39 MILES FROM BERLIN

See General Action In West Against Siegfried Line

Silence of Big Nazi Guns May Indicate Withdrawal

Paris, Feb. 1 —(AP)— United States patrols broke into the first ramparts of the Siegfried Line today 12 miles northeast of Monschau, and found only a flicker of life in Germany's concrete western defenses.

Paris, Feb. 1.—(CP)—The United States 1st Army advanced within plain sight of the strangely silent Siegfried Line on a broad front today amid growing indications that the Germans are withdrawn farther back.

Overnight advances generally reached four miles deeper into Germany, Village after village fell. Patrols entered the fringes of the Siegfried Line in the Monschau sector, where a whole three-mile section was captured earlier in the week. United States 3rd Army infantrymen seized four more Germany towns.

These advances came as headquarters reported the action on the 1st Canadian Army front in Holland was Canadian reversal of a threat to their operations by wiping out the big German bridgehead south of the Maas river, Today's communique said the Germans had been cleared "from the island of Kapelscheerse in the river Maas, south of Gennep, after hard and heavy and prolonged fighting."

An area almost covered six big Nazi guns in the Siegfried Lines, the southeastern sector of both the 1st and 3rd armies laid a barrage on all fortifications and on the 3-mile sector opposite Belgium and Luxembourg. The heaviest enemy resistance was limited to scattered small arms and accurate mortar screening, where frankly were amazed at the complete lack of artillery and, in most cases, the enemy's reluctance to stand and fight.

The French 1st Army fought into Hartzburg, eastern suburb of Colmar, in the smoking pocket south of Strasbourg. The Poilus captured seven towns, including Cernay, only a mile from the Rhine. They crossed the Rhine-Rhone canal and took Obenheim, 15 miles south of Strasbourg.

The United States 3rd Army pressed its main forces into Germany on the edges of the Siegfried Line east of the Our river, Ingeslieid, Irrem, Winterscheid and Manderfeld — all in Germany and southeast of St. Vith — were captured. Other gains averaging two miles despite thick small-arms fire, mud, and a cold slush. The assault carried to within two miles of the edge of the strongest Siegfried Line battlem Deep inside German Lines.

(The German communique said the United States 1st and 3rd armies had launched "deep attacks on main lines" on the entire front between Monschau and Echternach. The attacks were claimed halted in fierce fighting. German counter-east and northeast of Colmar were satisfied.

The United States 1st Army alone captured 1,332 prisoners in the 24 hours that ended at 8 a.m. (est haul since Jan. 3. That was a communique of German origin.

"The absence of strong German reaction against the Canadians that the Germans have jerked everything they had," Ed Ball, an Associated Press war correspondent reported from the 1st Army sector.

Nazis Holding Near Strasbourg Begin to Withdraw

The German cross-Rhine holdings north and south of Strasbourg also began to collapse, reflecting a weakening of the enemy along the whole western front.

TAKE 2 MORE GENERAL

Allied planes spotted heavy German rail movements eastward from Karlsruhe and Mannheim and through Heilbronn, indicating a further thinning of German defences. Roads north of Wissembourg, above the U.S. 7th Army front, were jammed.

The Colmar pocket was steadily being reduced from both north and south. Colmar itself was outflanked and French patrols reported they were close to the Colmar-Breisach road leading to the only permanent Rhine bridge standing in the Strasbourg sector. Street fighting progressed in Cernay, Whitlesheim fell, Cambsheim and Bettenhofen, north of Strasbourg, were captured and the Allies moved to within two miles of the river.

It was certain that the thin-out had weakened Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's whole position west of the Rhine so he could not hold what he had hitherto put in recent attempts to keep the initiative. Now it is a question whether the Germans, literally, will be able to save anything west of the Rhine in the sectors of the main Allied attack. It was said at supreme headquarters.

Allied Attack All Along

At 21st Army group headquarters in the north, a spokesman said the battle has changed into a general attack all along the western front toward the Siegfried Line. He expressed doubt, however, that the Germans would yield the fortifications without a hard fight. A 35-mile section of the line has been captured by American arms along the Roer River north of the Monschau area.

Seven United States 1st army divisions smote the west wall from positions mostly inside Germany. Four or more 3rd army divisions were either in the line or inside the Our River bridgehead southeast of St. Vith and along the German-Luxemburg border.

A considerable change to milder temperatures and steadily falling rain washed away the deep snows here and left only white patches on a black background, which two days ago covered the lanes of roads became double ruts.

Despite these weather handicaps which impeded supply and checked the use of armor, the grounded 62nd airborne division advanced in the center of the German border through the Gerolstein forest, 12 miles northeast of St. Vith.

The 2nd division advanced a mile beyond Rockerath in the Monschau forest and the 99th and 102nd divisions pushed two miles ahead without resistance in sight of the Siegfried defences.

In the American attack on the Siegfried Line yesterday, infantrymen cleared a two-mile stretch of the Siegfried Line fortifications in the southern end of the Aachen gap and, united across the Reich on four new places, virtually wiping out the last German foothold on Belgian soil.

It was estimated that in the Colmar area Allied troops have killed at least 5,000 German troops and taken 2,000 prisoners in the past week.

French troops apparently set up the Colmar pocket for the kill by punching to points where they could straddle the main highway connecting the city with the Rhine Rhine bridge at Breisach.)

Canadians Use Canoes on Maas R., Finish Fight in Infantry Role

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Feb. 1 (CP Cable) — White-cloaked Canadian infantrymen in canoes and assault boats paddled down the Maas River in an attempt to cut off the enemy during the first day of the five-day attack on the German bridgehead south of the river at Venlo-Blerick, in Holland.

The bitter attack ended early Wednesday with the liquidation of the enemy forces which held the island position 12 miles north and slightly west of Tilburg.

Canadians waited for the job and trained for two weeks in advance. The Canadians were given the Pill Winkinson of St. Catharines, Ont. Lumbermen said the paddlers came under fire from both sides of the Maas but there were not many casualties.

"It was getting pretty hot," he said, when they went ashore only a few hundred yards from a machine-gun post which opened fire. They overpowered the crew of three, their weapons were frozen with ice so they made their way back to the Canadian positions, wading sometimes through waist-deep water.

Cpl. Gordon Flewelling of St. Catharines and the mother Hardy of Winnipeg met five paratroopers laying mines and dispersed them with the fire. The Germans came back an hour later and again battalion signallers running lines up to command post, and the men went back to work.

The signallers cursed the German mortar fire which cut their lines several times but the mortar fire compared with the pounding the Canadians had received in Italy and gave the Germans.

"It's a wonder the island wasn't blown right to Flewelling.

One of the prisoners captured the first day of the attack was a prize-looking character in his early 20s. Where the Germans had time to get the people westward and to the Baltic.

Where they have had time, the Germans have done a good scorched-earth job, the refugees stated. Dispatches say smoke still rises from the wrecked cities.

A great many people not evacuated from Konigsberg, Danzig and portedly, but the-blockays and bypways were packed with refugees.

"We encountered old men and young women," the correspondent says, "the correspondent says, "the old women dragging children and a woman was crying and kept pointing to her bled and sobbing. A baby was wrapped in a heavy blanket."

SOCIAL MEASURES FEATURE SPEECH FROM THRONE

Parliament Prorogued Until Feb. 28th; No Hint Given On Election Prospects

Ottawa, Feb. 1 (CP) — The fifth session of Canada's 19th Parliament now is prorogued until Feb. 28, with little doubt in the minds of many who attended yesterday's brief prorogation ceremony if they would be summoned to Ottawa before a general election is held.

The date of Feb. 28 — regarded as a mere formality — was announced in the Senate Chamber by Mr. Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, acting as deputy to Governor-General Viscount The Throne Speech.

A further session could be called either before or after Feb. 28 but Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement early in the week that a general election will be called before the life of the present parliament expired April 17 made it clear that a new session is called is not necessarily be a short one.

Mentioning of the date on which the session was prorogued started a new wave of speculation on the likelihood of an election.

Few Distant Members

Members of both the Commons and Senate who attended the prorogation came largely from Ontario and Quebec constituencies. Most of those from more distant points had left Ottawa before the word they knew would be only a brief ceremony.

The 2,500-word Throne Speech dwelt on war developments and international relations with particular emphasis on social measures — passed or likely to be passed — in the defeat of Germany and concentration of Allied power against Japan before election of Hitler, but it also gave a stern warning that the last phase of the war in Europe might prove the most costly.

Members of the two Houses—the Senators at their desks in the Red Chamber and the members of the Commons standing at the rear of the Chamber as well as spectators in the gallery followed the words of the Chief Justice closely. There had been speculation on the Throne Speech might hold some hint of the prospects of an election.

JAP ESCAPE ROUTE FROM MANDALAY IS THREATENED

Kangaw is Captured by British and Empire Troops

Kandy, Ceylon, Feb. 1 — (CP) British and Empire troops edged closer to Mandalay today, threatening to close the Japanese escape route southwestward from Burma's second city.

Kangaw, important town dominating the Dalingdin creek, was captured Jan. 30, headquarters disclosed. It is considered the key to the concentration of artillery in this section and are counter-attacking through heavy loans, a communique said.

Further to the north, West African troops approached Monywa, 40 miles northwest of Mandalay.

British, Indian and West African troops of the 15th Indian Corps drove the Japanese out of Kangaw.

"Troops of the 81st West African division who were fighting astride the ancient Arakan capital, three days ago, made a 20-mile advance to reach Spontin, southeast of Myochaung. They were also closing in on Minbya, another Arakan stronghold, eight miles to the east.

The 14th Army has made further progress in sweeping up the Japanese north of the Irrawaddy-but was meeting stubborn resistance in the Kyaukse, 13 miles west of Mandalay, where the Japanese must be mopped up before the final assault on the city can begin.

Cold Silence Marks Relations of Russians And German People

By EDDY GILMORE
(AP Correspondent)

Moscow, Feb. 1 — (AP) — The Red Army and German people, relation, as well as can be learned, are getting along in cold silence in the huge area of Eastern Germany ruled by the advancing Russians.

Without exception, every account of Russian officers or soldiers meeting civilians has told the same story: the Russians are showing fawning attitude of the Germans which the Russians have met with silence.

All of the dispatches say the German high command ordered the civilians to evacuate before the Russians arrived, but the Nazis left in some sectors the Red Army has not met a single human being for miles.

Great desolate areas have been encountered especially in the eastermost sectors of East Prussia, where the Germans had time to get the people westward and to the Baltic.

Where they have had time, the Germans have done a good scorched-earth job, the refugees stated. Dispatches say smoke still rises from the wrecked cities.

A great many people not evacuated from Konigsberg, Danzig and portedly, but the-blockays and bypways were packed with refugees.

REEVE C. LONEY IS VICTIM OF SHOTGUN ATTACK

Police Seek Returned Soldier Following Wounding of Carlow Twp. Official

Bancroft, Feb. 1—(Special to the Ontario Intelligencer)—Provincial Police today are scouring the countryside east of here and Stirling for Reeve Douglas, returned soldier from the Italian war front who resides at Fort Stewart, 20 miles east of here, who is wanted for questioning in the shooting of Cecil Loney, reeve of Carlow township, at the latter's home early Thursday morning.

Loney is in Bancroft hospital as the result of a shotgun wound received in the right thigh from a gun allegedly fired by Douglas. Provincial Constables C. W. Palmateer of Bancroft, J. J. Hatch of Madoc, and Lindsay Ellis of the Ontario district headquarters in Belleville, are conducting the search for Douglas.

According to reports from Fort Stewart, Douglas, it is alleged, discharged war veteran, entered the Loney home early in the morning Wednesday and after threatening Reeve Loney's alleged to have shot him in the right leg. He later disappeared and Dr. Anderson of Fort Stewart was summoned to attend to the wounded man. Later it is said Douglas returned to the Loney home, but was not carrying a gun. His time he was followed by his wife, who is at present with occupants that her husband was considering a bullet.

Douglas was restrained, reports say, from any further attack when his wife and Dr. Anderson finally relieved him of the concealed knife, it is believed here.

He then escaped and disappeared under the cover of darkness. No reason for the attack was given by police, who refrained from commenting until after Douglas had been captured. Inspector Harry Storey of Provincial Police Headquarters in Belleville, explained, however, that his office in the County Court House, Crown Attorney H. G. Donnan announced that Douglas would be charged accordingly, who had been wounded in the Italian campaign while serving with the Canadian troops. Mr. Donnan added no specific charges had been laid as yet. "We have ordered investigating police to escort Douglas to Kingston when he is apprehended," he added.

At noon today Mr. Loney was admitted to the Bancroft Hospital, where his condition was reported to be quite favorable. The discharge of shotgun pellets entered the right thigh at an angle to avoid serious injury to the abdomen.

Following several years on the Carlow township council, Mr. Loney was elected reeve by acclamation as reeve of the township this winter.

The wanted man is married with one child and was only recently returned from overseas.

Zhukov Masses Infantry And Tanks for Quick Drive At City's Greatest Defences

Germans Make Frantic Efforts To Hold Southern Sector

By JAMES F. KING, ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER)

London, Feb. 1 —(AP)— The Russians with their fast-paced tanks and infantry were massing to the banks of the Oder northwest of Kustrin at a point about 39 miles or less from Berlin, the German High Command announced today.

It was possible that the Russians were even closer than 39 miles for the German communique did not give the exact location of the penetration to the river. The Oder swings to within 26 miles of Berlin northwest of Kustrin. But immediately northwest of Kustrin it is 39 miles from the Reich capital, and it seemed more likely that a point in the Kustrin vicinity was meant.

70-Mile Front

The eastern edge of Kustrin itself, one of the chief defences of the German citadel, was reached by the swift Soviet punches rapidly-gauged over the first of war to be fought on the Reich, said German broadcasts.

Along a 70-mile front Marshal Gregory Zhukov massed waves of tanks and infantry for a quick smash at Berlin's defences.

But at the centre of his spearhead in the 40-mile-wide Frankfurt salient between the Oder and the Warthe, the German high command said it had hurled in its reserves to halt the intruding columns which already had broken through a defence shield 23 miles east of Frankfurt.

Red air fleet planes raked the Berlin-Frankfurt highway and Moscow dispatches said Nazi prisoners were streaming in the German capital because German civilians believed the airmen's red flares were artillery fire.

Officially, Moscow placed the closest Soviet approach to Berlin at 63 miles, but an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow virtually confirmed the German reports of a much deeper advance.

Kustrin, a 13th Century fortified town of 16,000, is on the east bank of the Oder war on the north bank of the Warthe at the confluence of the two rivers.

D.N.B. said this key town, one of the chief defences of Berlin, was "encircled" in the Russian drive on the north side of the Warthe which captured Landsberg and Soldin further to Keyerskorf, 63 miles north-east of Berlin.

Nearly 17 Miles Away

It was about Frankfurt, a city of 70,000 on the west side of the Oder, 17 miles south of Kustrin, that the Germans had grouped their strongest forces to defend Berlin from the east, the Oder to protect communications between Berlin and Breslau in Silesia.

With his wings spread out on a 70-mile front, Zhukov was preparing for a mighty battle along the Oder River to crush the German last resistance and let the Red Army roll into Berlin.

The Germans were reported dynamiting, shelling and bombing the Oder in a frantic attempt to break up natural ice bridges.

The Russians quoted German prisoners as saying large elements of the German air force had been shipped from the Western front to the Reich, said German broadcasts.

513 White Prisoners Rescued From Japs on Luzon in Daring Raid

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Southwest Pacific Advance Command, Feb. 1 — (AP) — Men of Gen. Korregidor and Singapore—513 of them — were snatched from the Japs Tuesday night, and the Japanese guns Tuesday night, and Filipino guerrillas and of the United States 6th Ranger Battalion and Filipino guerrilla made a Cleopatra's Needle of Japanese Jungle Japanese lines to empty a prison camp.

They took the Japanese guards by surprise and rescued 486 American, 23 British, three Netherlands and one Norwegian — all that were left in the prison camp in Nueva Ecija province of Eastern Luzon.

Many more hundreds of more fighting men had been moved out to sent to work camps in Japan. Hundreds of others had died.

All but two of the men were brought out alive by the raiders who stormed into the prison stockade under command of Lt.-Col. Henry Mucci of Bridgeport, Conn.

The Rangers attacked with such merciless precision that not one of the Japanese stockade guards was left alive or able to resist. And they attacked so swiftly that not only one of the prisoners was scratched,

Within a matter of minutes all had been released and were on their 25-mile journey to freedom, walking, carried on backs of husky Rangers or riding in carabao carts.

Nearly 100 were so weak from malnutrition, disease and threeyear-old wounds that they could not walk when they were cut loose from their prison barracks.

This first mass liberation of Allied prisoners of war in the Western Pacific was accomplished by an all night forced march east of the American lines to Cabu.

The condition of the rescued men was reported to be good. They are receiving every attention possible and are expected to improve rapidly in the coming months.

The group making the sortie struck off at night, along almost the entire return trip.

They killed 523 Japanese and destroyed 13 tanks.

The assaulting force lost 27 killed. Three others were wounded.

The Commando force struck under cover of darkness deep into Nueva Ecija province, east of the central Luzon plains where the 6th Army has made its deepest penetration.

FOUR-POWER GOVT. FOR RHINELAND MAY BE POLICY

Report Says Churchill Will Submit Plan at Coming Parley

By JOHN A. PARRIS, Jr.
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 1. (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill is taking to the Big Three conference a plan for a four-power government of the German Rhineland and Ruhr, an unimpeachable source said today. The plan is understood to call for separation of the Rhineland and Ruhr from Germany and pacing them under economic and political control of Great Britain, Russia, the United States and France.

The same source also said British, Russian and United States representatives have signed "an instrument of surrender" to be presented to the Germans when they capitulate. This was signed by U.S. Ambassador John G. Winant, Sir William Strang, British Under-Secretary of State, and Feodor Gusev, Soviet Ambassador to Britain.

The document, formulated by leaders of the European Advisory Commission, is so secret only a few high officials here know of it. It lays down specific term to which Germany must conform.

The source said the Big Three also would discuss some of Germany's problems. Roosevelt was understood to have proposed last August that Germany be stripped of industry, Germany and maintain only a token force in Austria. But now it is reported the President favors having a liberal share with Russia and Britain in occupying Austria.

Five Nazi Prisoners Sentenced to Death

New York, Feb. 1 — (AP)—Newsweek magazine said in its Feb. 5 issue that five German prisoners of war have been sentenced to death by court-martial for killing a fellow prisoner at Camp Tonkawa, Okla., Nov. 3, 1945, and are awaiting "their doom in a federal penitentiary."

The five non-commissioned officers, the magazine says, "proudly admitted at their trial that they killed Cpl. Johann Kunze, who was found beaten to death with sticks and clubs.

"Under the articles of war the only choice the court had was to pronounce the death sentence, the magazine said. The Nazis appeared entirely satisfied."

Newsweek said other prisoners at the camp regarded the killers as traitors to the Reich and to the Fuehrer" and that they had been given a statement Kunze had given American army officers in confirmation they would have had no great value to the Allies in bombing Hamburg."

Belgian Family Sends Card Of Thankfulness

Heartfelt appreciation of the efforts of Canadian soldiers in the liberation of their country from the Nazi invaders is seen in a postcard received by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, 66 Dufferin Street, from a family residing in Ghent, Belgium.

Mrs. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who is fighting with the Canadian forces in Belgium visited the Belgian family and was accorded a fine reception. The postcard to Mr. and Mrs. Smith speaks for itself. It follows:

"Dear Sir and Madame;-

Although unknown to you I allow myself to send you these few lines. We have had a visit of your son Mac Smith and his brother-in-arms Alex. Smith. Just think of the honor and the pleasure it has been for my wife and myself to let them enjoy a few days of homely life, far away from the battle holes.

I can assure you, dear Sir and Madame, that your son is in perfect health and has a good conduct while he is a distinct friend to him. We do regret very much his stay at our house has been only for the days from the 10th of November, but when duty called, say-ing good-bye was as if one of our own sons was leaving for the front.

We assured both that our house would always be theirs, believe us dear friends; if you will allow us to call you that. This cannot efface the debt we thank our liberators for freeing us from four-and-a-half years of occupation by the German Nazi beasts.

Please believe us, dear friends.

Respectfully yours,
Mr. and Mrs. de Meyer De Gruese,

Memorandum Outlines Basis for Distribution Of Grants to Schools

In a memorandum for the secretaries of Public School Boards throughout the province Premier George A. Drew, Minister of Education, recently outlined the new basis for computation of grants payable under the legislative grants to boards of trustees. A copy received by Mr. L. A. Reid, secretary of the Belleville Board of Education, in which Premier Drew pointed out that the 1946 Ontario grants to school trustees will amount to at least fifty percent of the gross operation of elementary and secondary education in Ontario.

In providing for these increased grants, the government has recognized two principal educational costs should be borne as equitably as possible by all ratepayers in the province; and secondly—that as far as possible all pupils should have equal educational opportunities.

The memorandum specifically pointed out that the increased grants are designed mainly to relieve the heavy taxation on real property for school purposes. The Minister of Education and Boards of Trustees should exert every effort to avoid any further increase in the maintenance costs of the school operation and thus assist in keeping the general tax rate down.

Police Blotter

Only a short time after a robbery had been reported to city police on Wednesday morning, Inspector Ross apprehended Joseph Sloan, 22-year-old Arkville Naven of Napanee, on charges of breaking, entering and theft. Naven is charged with entering a storehouse, the property of Maurice Callaghan, situated on South John Street, and stealing a .22 calibre rifle and a number 50 boxes of shells. Police reported today that they had recovered the missing articles. Naven is being held on remand until Friday.

Forty Claimants To Unemployment Fund in City

Financial accumulation since the inception of the act in July, 1941 was announced by Mr. Phillips of the Unemployment Insurance Fund, an Ontario area representative to the National Selective Service office here revealed.

Monthly accumulations resulting from contributions from employed people all over Canada amount to between five and one-half and six million dollars.

Intermittent drains on the fund have occurred in periods between the offs of war and other industrial plants but nothing to the extent that is in this respect has occurred as yet.

In Belleville, there are upwards of forty claimants to unemployment insurance at the present time. These include some people between the ages of twenty and seventy years and for whom replacement in other places of employment proved difficult. Others have found themselves who worked in industry or other places of employment at the rate stipulated 180 days and who now have returned to the kitchen and the home with their cessation of employment.

Rumors Again Say Planes Ready to Carry Nazi Chiefs to Exile

London, Feb. 1 (CP) — Oft-repeated rumors that long-range aircraft are standing by in Germany to carry Nazi leaders into exile appeared again today in a dispatch from neutral Sweden and Switzerland.

The new reports were received here with the greatest scepticism.

A Zurich dispatch said two military planes were hurriedly prepared yesterday near Augsburg, Bavaria.

A Stockholm dispatch said eight planes capable of flying to Japan had been assembled in the Munich Nazi hotel notables as Hitler, Goering, Himmler and Ribbentrop.

12 NEGRO SOLDIERS SENTENCED

Honolulu, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Seventy-three Negro soldiers have been convicted in two courts martial on charges of mutiny for refusing to work on an Oahu airfield and have been sentenced to from eight to 30 years confinement at hard labor, Oahu is the island on which Honolulu is situated. Sentences were reported to have taken place on July 31, 1944.

RSM. Angus Duffy of H. & P.E. Regt., Who Was 'Mentioned' Several Times, Is Expected To Come Home Shortly

Trenton, Feb. 1 — A soldier for the past fifteen years, overseas for the past five and a half, Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy is expected home soon according to a letter received by parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Duffy, Victoria Ave., Belleville.

Wearer of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment since mobilization as a signaller in 1930, Angus, whose parents at that time lived in Trenton where he attended St. Peter's and Trenton High School, became a regimental sergeant major at the Coronation of the present King and Queen, and wears the ribbon presented to him on that occasion.

Returning home he advanced step by step in his regiment to the rank of company sergeant major and when war broke out he was promoted to regimental sergeant major at the age of 25.

Leaving Canada with his regiment in December 1939 he spent long months and years in Britain training his men, and in their effectiveness way called him the "Little Caesar" of the unit. He won the Canadian Efficiency Medal for meritorious service and has been granted a bar to that decoration.

Sailing 3,500 Fleet Freighter, Wheel, the regiment was finally chosen to go into action in disembarking in Sicily on July 10th, 1943 and at the famous battle of Assoro he distinguished himself gallantly. After scaling the 2,500 foot precipice, the first every single, after his recovery, he was not given permission to rejoin his regiment but was sent to General Headquarters in Canada.

A brother, Avon Duffy, has been in Italy for some time, and has been overseas for more than 5 years, is also expected home on leave.

Chas. Eden, 85, Thinks Londoners 'Best People This Side of Heaven'

His keen eyes can still discern a flaw in upholstery, and his memory is packed with useful hands can still construct furniture with the skill that characterized them a half century ago. He was born near Belleville, England, in the year of Waterloo, and this well-built man of 85 years, he still exudes the cheerfulness and heartiness that is the birthright of Londoners. And if he does drop an occasional "h" and "aw" where it is not needed, he disclaims any suggestion that places him in the "Cockney" class.

And Charlie will bristle with assumed anger if it is suggested that Londoners do not rate equal with Torontonians in any other parts of the world. "You aren't from Leeds, are you?" he will snap, "and they're the best blasted people in the world."

And furthermore, don't suggest that he was born within the sound of Bow Bells. "I'm not a bloomin' Cockney," he says, "I was born at Westminster Bridge and went to Burnham Mews, and you bloomin' well haven't 'ear the blinkin' 'Ole there."

When he was but a mere youth, he became apprenticed to a firm which specialized in upholstering and cabinet making in London, and he followed this trade until he left England to settle in Canada when he was twenty years of age. He came into Canada by himself in a Front Street location and was for some years in the employ of the present Canadian Department Stores. After being joined by his future wife in business, he occasionally works at it, "just to keep my hand in," he said in."

Asked in lighter vein if he is any relation of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Charlie's eyes twinkle when he says, "Why, I was me first cousin, but don't awsk him, for I don't like to boast."

Charlie visited his old home in 1938 when he was a delegate with the 50th Battalion, C.E.F. He served in France and returned to Canada after honorable discharge. Previous to coming to Canada in 1910, Charlie had had a military experience when he was a member of the famous 40th Westminster Regiment.

At the present time he is enjoying good health, can read without glasses and is looking forward to the coming of pleasant association with friends and relatives of the First Great War.

Democratic Party Split Possible

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP) — The biggest Democratic party split since the 1937 court fight appeared to be shaping up today around Henry Wallace's cabinet nomination.

Opposition to the window dressing the battle is fundamentally one between those who represent the liberal element of the party headed by Mr. Wallace and those in the Democratic machine led by Senator Harry Byrd (Va.), Senator George (Ga.), Senator Bailey (N.C.) and others.

Legislative leaders readied a compromise they hoped would keep pent-up animosities from erupting into a full-scale floor fight. But there was every indication both sides intended to have their say before the issue of Mr. Wallace's appointment as Secretary of Commerce is fully settled.

In the absence of any direct word from President Roosevelt, Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, promised to say that Mr. Wallace's nomination be sent back to the Commerce Committee. There it would await the final enactment and passing of a bill to abolish the Commerce Department of control over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other leading agencies which Mr. Wallace, when confirmed, would want him to control.

Senator Claude Pepper (Dem. Fla.) and other Wallace supporters have conceded that only by giving up the Secretary Commerce nomination.

Mr. Wallace, in the eyes of many Democrats, is the strongest man in the 1948 presidential picture regardless of whether he enters the cabinet.

Canadian-Manned Frigate Almost Sliced in Half

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP) — A giant ocean carrier, looming up suddenly through the black night, sliced into the Canadian-manned frigate "Teme" and almost cut her in two, it was learned today in discussing operations in the Bay of Biscay, naval service headquarters announced last night. Casualties were slight.

The announcement said the accident occurred while the "Teme," a Royal Navy river class frigate being operated by a Canadian crew, was on her first active operation, hunting U-boats with Canadian and British escort groups and Royal Navy carriers.

Damage to the "Teme," under the command of Lt.-Cmdr. Douglas Jeffrey, R.C.N.R., of Quebec, was repaired after she was towed back to port by the carrier Tripoli. One member and she now is back in operation.

Describing the ramming, the announcement said the "Teme" had been patrolling with the carrier's patrons on suspected U-boats and then was assigned to screen an aircraft carrier.

Men on the "Teme" suddenly saw the big carrier bearing down on them out of the darkness. The "Teme" turned sharply on her navigation lights and the carrier tried to swing about to avoid collision but too late the "Teme" was struck on the afterside of the bridge and a sheet of flame flashed as the two ships came together.

Pays Tribute To Memory Of Bob McFarlane

Sterling tribute to the memory of a former troop leader of the 4th Belleville Boy Scout Troop, Bob McFarlane, who paid the supreme sacrifice fighting for his country, comes from the shadow of Ailing one blasting their way into the German Reich.

Lieut. (Nursing Sister) Dorothy Osborne, now on active duty with the 12th Canadian General Hospital, "Somewhere in Belgium," former scout mistress of the troop writes the following sincere tribute to the fallen hero.

"He has gone home, having made the supreme sacrifice that is that he has given his life for his country.

He was a good scout, patrol leader and troop leader and when his country needed him, he answered the call, true to the scout promise.

To you boys of the troop, his brother scouts, I send my deepest sympathy. You have lost a leader, he has left behind a shining example; having given his all that scouts may continue on in our land and carry on their work of good will. So carry on boys, to you has been given the torch. He is just ahead with other brave scouts who have paid the price, beckoning to you. Keep the faith, follow in the trail".

We shall always remember Troop Leader, BobMacFarlane."

Chief Bain Asks Accommodation Be Increased

Trenton — The Chief Constable's annual report of the Police Department was presented at Monday's council meeting giving a summary of the cases tried during the year 1944 and a resume of additional work done by the department.

1,057 cases were disposed of by the court, an increase of 107 over last year. There was also an increase of $2,976.50 in the amount of fines and fees turned over to the Magistrate. Of the 1,057 cases there were 971 male, 82 female, juveniles male 21, females 2. In addition there were 21 A.W.L. or desertion cases from the army apprehended and turned over to the Military Provost Corps.

17 persons were arrested on warrants for other police departments and held for escort, and 4 were turned over to the Service Police of the R.C.A.F.

78 were fined, 53 given suspended sentence and ordered to pay costs or make restitution; 41 given suspended sentence, 20 dismissed, 5 dismissed on payment of costs, 4 enlarged till called on, 19 withdrawn, 4 withdrawn on payment of costs, 25 found guilty, 10 no evidence offered, 12 found guilty, conviction discharged and 20 ordered to pay costs.

35 were committed to County Goal, 11 to Canada Penitentiary, and one to Ontario Hospital at Kingston.

236 Car Accidents, None Fatal.

During the year there were 236 motor accidents investigated in which 26 persons were injured, none fatal. Also 11 hit-and-run accidents, 11 accidents of other kinds were investigated in which 6 persons were injured, and 27 accidents reported to the Department of Highways.

11 sudden deaths were investigated, two men from drowning in the Trent River, two children from drowning in the slip; seven other deaths which were found to be from natural causes. There were no inquests held during the year.

All of the 9 motor cars stolen during the year were recovered representing a total value of $1150.00. Of the 41 bicycles stolen at a value of $1135.00, 36 were recovered valued at $720.00. 6 automobiles were recovered for other police departments, representing a value of $8,200, also 3 bicycles valued at $65.00. In connection with these stolen autos recovered 13 persons were apprehended and held for escort.

Other property estimated at a value of $2,291.22 was reported stolen from the town, of which property to the value of $1,808.45 was recovered and returned to the owners. Tires and tubes to the value of $60.00 were reported stolen this compares favorably with $346.00 stolen in 1943.

Miscellaneous goods and money to the value of $6,878.13 were reported lost and of this amount $1,892.98 was recovered and returned to the rightful owners. Other goods and money to the value of $1,371.46 were found and turned in to the department. It was turned over to the owner or after it was certain that it would not be claimed, turned back to the finder.

171 transients and soldiers were given overnight shelter. In 1943 there were 126.

Business and other property to the value each night by the officers on duty and in 157 instances doors and windows were found insecure. Again an increase in the negligence of property owners in seeing that their property is secure for the night is noted as in 1943 there were 143 such instances and in 1942 only 88. In all instances owners were notified and property made secure before serious loss occurred.

7 adults and 42 children reported missing were all located and returned to their homes.

21 summonses were served in Trenton and vicinity for other Police Departments, and 82 fingerprints taken and forwarded to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Fingerprint Bureau, Ottawa, for identification and record purposes in connection with various cases handled.

During the year 37 fire alarms were answered. In many cases traffic was regulated and especially during the night hours assistance was given to the Fire Engineer. In 1943 there were 22 alarms.

The financial statement showed fines and fees collected and handed to the Magistrate to be $18,-282.00 (subject to division) as compared with $8,012.70 in 1943. Amount of fines and fees paid to the town by the Magistrate (after division) $4,212.78 as compared with $3,006.89 in 1943. Amount of court costs paid to the town $804.35 as compared with $621.40 in 1943. In addition to above $1,110.50 was collected in restitution and witness fees and turned over to rightful parties.

The following sums were collected for licenses:

Dogs $404.00, Bikes $113.50, Taxi $100.00, Trucks $70.00. All others (Restaurant, Tobacco, etc.) $1,402.75. Total $2,196.25 as compared with $2,132.25 in 1943.

Total paid to town $7,213.98 as compared with $5,906.46 in 1943.

Cruiser and Radio Equipment.

During the year $1,367 miles of special cruiser patrol and the transportation of prisoners to and from the County Goal was made.

During the summer the mobile radio transmitter was added to the radio equipment and the two-way conversation is now possible between the station and the cruiser as it has already proved to be of great value, especially during night hours when telephones are not available, saving many return trips to the police station. On emergency calls it is possible to contact a doctor and ambulance without unnecessary delay. The money for the installation of this was obtained by a donation of $150.00 from the town and the balance by public Police Radio fund, which is obtained by services rendered by the police in writing letters, and by private donations.

More Accommodation Needed.

In his report Chief Bain brought to light the necessity for more suitable accommodation for prisoners, both male and female, and a more up-to-date heating plant. He also recommended a new flasher system to be used after rush of traffic ceases on Front and Dundas and Dundas and Dufferin Streets.

It was also suggested, as a safety measure, that the inter-sections be painted as they were in pre-war day as this gives added protection to pedestrians and educates them to cross the street at the proper place, instead of crossing in a haphazard fashion. "No Parking" and "Stop Street" signs also to be repainted.

The Chief Constable thanked the Mayor, Council, citizens and the press for their kind co-operation and assistance during the year.

Council Seeks Action Regarding Bus Terminal

Trenton, Feb. 1 — Approval was given by the Town Council at its January meeting to an eight-hour day for the members of the police department, effective as soon as two new men can be engaged, which will bring the staff up to eight members, including Chief Constable William Bain. Authority to engage the two extra men, at $1,200 each, was given by council, with the understanding that all things being equal, local men, preferably returned soldiers, will be given the preference.

Action was taken at the request of Chief Bain and his men, in order to comply with the eight-hour-day enacted by the Provincial Legislature.

The new set-up will also increase the efficiency of the men in him and give to the citizens a still greater measure of police protection.

Considering recommendations made in the annual report of the Chief Constable for 1944 with respect to the need for more accommodation for members of the force, and for the detention of prisoners, the council instructed Councillors Ross Burtt, Chairman of Fire, Market and Police Committee, to secure estimates on the cost of providing better heating, more cells, particularly for women which are now entirely lacking, and improved police department headquarters. Several members of the council were of the opinion that the cells in the old Town Hall building were a disgrace to the town, and could easily be condemned by the health authorities as unfit for human habitation.

A fence heating system to heat the adjoining fire hall and the market, town hall and police headquarters and cells was suggested, replacing several stoves.

Bus Terminal Discussion.

Following up the recent discussion of a bus terminal for Trenton, the council voted unanimously to notify the Colcourt Coach Lines of Oshawa that they must take action by February 15th to provide a terminal for their passengers, otherwise other steps will be taken by the town. The resolution pointed out that the present practice of picking up passengers on the streets constitutes a traffic menace and is dangerous, it is considered. Mayor H. R. Dary informed the council that in one day no fewer than 76 buses came in and out of Trenton. Bus passengers have been using a local hotel as a waiting room and the management of the Mayor to take up with the coach company the question of a terminal.

The council's order does not apply to the Rathbun Company which operates more or less a local service, the council decided.

The letter and captain of the fire department requested a salary increase and consideration will be given. A communication was made that one thousand feet of new hose be purchased. The council was pleased to be advised that the Trenton firemen won honorable mention in a fire fighting demonstration conducted just fair by the Provincial Fire Marshal's Department, and participated in by over a hundred fire brigades.

Pipeline to Battleline

Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd, British Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Fuel and Power, revealed the existence in Great Britain of a pipeline system one thousand miles long.

This system has been one of the essential instruments of Allied air supremacy. The build up of the R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F. air offensive would hardly have been possible without it, and supplying the vast petrol needs of the Allied invasion armies would have been greatly complicated.

The presence in Britain of the U. S. Eighth and Ninth Air Forces is one of the reasons why the construction of the system was necessary, and the pipeline facilitated the War Office delivering to the American ground forces, under reverse lend-lease, 383,051 liquid tons of petroleum products between January 1 and June 30, 1944. It is probably that about half of this quantity went into the operational stock pile for D-Day.

As Mr. Lloyd pointed out, "It has not only been a question of importing petrol, sum in a hundred activities never previously approached or imagined. Once here, it must be rapidly discharged, distributed and stored."

The network was begun in 1941. The first section linked the southwest oil ports with the London area. This line was not intended for aviation spirit, but to leave the railways free to carry the large quantities of aviation spirit needed by the R.A.F.

The next section linked the oil ports of the northwest coast with a pipeline running southwards to join the first line. Facilities for pumping in either direction were installed and storage depots were linked into the pipeline. In the event of damage to either of the west coast terminals, supplies could be pumped from the other one; the eastern area was thus provided with two sources of supply. The second line was operational on May 30, 1943.

For the needs of D-Day, the next move was to link these new facilities with the future invasion bases. A long ago as March, 1943, work began on a spur from the original line to the south coast. Forty miles of this line began operating sixty days later.

Although the system had so relieved the railways that they were able to carry the rapidly growing quantities of aviation spirit for the R.A.F., the continued growth of the R.A.F. and the advent of the U.S.A.A.F. meant that further pipelines were needed. The Oil Control Board decided upon a new series of pipelines to carry the aviation spirit to depots within easy reach of the great new airfields, already built or then building in large numbers. Lines were laid from the west coast ports forming an aviation spirit circuit over 350 miles long.

Work on this circuit started on October 1, 1942, and both lines from the western ports began operating in March; and the whole circuit was completed by the end of August, 1943. A considerable number of important storage depots were linked into the circuit, and it is now the life-line of the air arm stretched from Great Britain to pound the Reich.

In the autumn and winter of 1943, further extensions to the system in the south and east of England were undertaken, partly to meet special Air Force needs and partly for the invasion needs of the Allied armies. The shortest of these lines runs for twenty-two miles and is the longest for about 120. Another is nearly 100 miles in length, and all were in operation by the middle of March, 1944.

The method of organization worked out for the original line was so successful that it was used in the construction of all succeeding pipelines. The route of the line to be laid was broken up into a number of equal sections, so that the work could be carried out at equal speed in all sections and completed simultaneously. Each section was a self-contained unit with its own engineers, lands officer, labor force and mechanical equipment. Routes were chosen across the open country wherever possible so that the fullest use might be made of mechanical excavators.

The men employed on the project were spread over hundreds of miles, often working in the very bad winter conditions and in waterlogged ground. With the enormous wartime demand for steel, speed of laying was limited by deliveries of pipe. The maximum laid in one week was eighteen miles of ten-inch line. The best sustained effort was 125 miles of both the ten-inch and eight-inch in eighty-four days. Practically all the pipelines are designed to work at a pressure of six hundred pounds per square inch. Comparatively light steel pipe could thus be used, which saved large quantities of steel.

Russia's Winter Offensive

It used to be that winters were a resting time in war and a time for building up for spring operations, but the giant Russian offensive which has swept out of the east and has already pushed on its various fronts into Germany to a depth that the distance from the front to the capital of Germany is disappearing faster than the snows of winter in spring.

The winter obstacles are now fewer than the advantages which a frozen ground offers an army and armies can fight now in the dead of winter, however severe it be. In the winter campaign several years ago when the Germans were driven back by the Russians steadily, the Germans bewailed the winter, placing all the woes of the Hun armies on its severity. The Germans, always proud of their preparedness, had not properly prepared for the winter and were caught napping. The Russians were very warmly clad and their scientists had seen to it that they knew how to make their motor equipment useful all through the winter months.

In the hour of Germany's greatest danger, the Russians have come out from Poland and German territory is being occupied at a rate which is wiping out the Huns' last hopes at a terrific rate, so that the enemy has announced the removal of the Government from Berlin, while the loss of Berlin is being anticipated.

The Russians know how to take full advantage of the present season to pronote their advance and to pile defeat on defeat the German armies. Germany was not ready for any such campaign as the Russians have thrown at the Germans with such terrific suddenness.

The cold in the east front region is severe enough to give the Russians this powerful weapon in their struggle to down the Nazis.

Undertone of Disaster

Hitler's speech on the twelfth anniversary that will be his last of his ascent to power bore every mark that he knows and official Germans know that Nazism is doomed. All through the speech was the undertone of the fact that nothing can save Germany. The Germans who have followed his directions from before Munich can see what has already resulted from the very defensive attitude he has to assume and the admissions he has to make. He can boast of having a master but whom can he blame for the present failing and Allied power, showing steadily growing might, he has to call the Huns to accept the greatest sacrifices. The Germans who have died from the cold and chilled fields know the utter folly of Hitler's protestations and proclamations. They know the chilling fact that the Russians are far within the gates of Germany. Nothing that Hitler can say or argue can prevent that fact from being uppermost in German minds.

British Pedigreed Sheep

A Soviet delegation is to visit leading sheep breeders in Great Britain. They will inspect some of the best pedigree flocks in the country to make selections as part of their great livestock replacement plan. Exports of sheep have continued during the war. In 1944 alone, to quote one example, breeders of the famous black-faced Suffolk sheep have exported 11 rams to the United States, 10 rams and 10 ewes to Canada, 1 ram to Australia and 4 rams and 7 ewes to the Egyptian Government.

PLAYING WAR

See the games the children play!
(Imitative little chaps!)
All pretending through the day
They are busy killing Japs.

Hear them clattering down the street,
Garbed and helmeted as Yanks,
Hitler's forces out to beat,
Using tommy guns and tanks.

Hear that tight-lipped: rat-a-tat
As they start a swift attack.
Swift machine gun fire that,
Is the hate that hurries burst is flak.
In the worst of human trades
Underneath the shining sun,
They are throwing hand grenades—
Imitating war, for fun.

Honored statesmen, grayed and wise,
Poets, priests and merchants shrewd,
Here before our open eyes
Childhood apes man's fiercest mood!
Hear them, see them as they play
Warfare with pretended hate
And remember sadly they,
Grownups, merely imitate.

CHARTER OAK

The Charter Oak was a large white oak tree that stood for many years in Hartford, Connecticut. It is famous in American history as the traditional hiding place of the Connecticut royal charter in 1686.

This historic tree was blown down during a storm on August 21, 1856. It was then about seven feet in diameter near the ground and its age was computed to be nearly 1,000 years. A stump about 10 feet high remained standing.

On the day after the storm large crowds gathered around the stump and fallen tree. It was necessary to place a guard to protect them from souvenir and relic hunters.

The historic tree was so revered by the people of Hartford that at high noon Colt's Armory band played dirges and patriotic music over the fallen tree, and a funeral oration was delivered in its honor. At intervals on the bells of the city were tolled in memory of the fallen Charter Oak.

A section of the trunk was preserved by the Connecticut Historical Society. The remainder of the wood was made into gavels, picture frames, chairs, etc., or cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs. A chair made of Charter Oak wood stands in the senate chamber in the State Capitol at Hartford.

When some years later, Charter Oak Avenue was laid out, the remaining roots were dug out and a stone placed to mark the site was placed in the retaining wall by the avenue. A white marble monument now marks the site of the tree.

Descendants of the Charter Oak" are growing in Israel Putnam Memorial Camp Ground at Redding, in Bushnell Park at Hartford and elsewhere in Connecticut, and another acion of the historic tree was planted near the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C.

SOCIAL MEASURES

Election Mentioned Once.

Only once was the word "election" mentioned, and then in reference to the provision made at the last session for taking the service vote. Before the members of the Commons went to the Senate Chamber to hear the speech speaker J. A. Glen announced the resignation of W. S. Hurford, liberal member for Grey North, and said he had issued a writ for the by-election.

The speech summed up the European war situation in a 13-word sentence: "Under sustained pressure the defeat of Germany is but a matter of time."

In the Pacific there had been notable gains by Allied forces and the concentration of Allied force against Japan was assured.

"Canada's fighting men of all the services wherever they have fought around the globe, have brought indefatigable honor to our country," the speech said.

Pride of Place to Reinforcements.

There was a brief mention of the decision to withdraw no 1 zone conscripted men overseas. Infantry casualties had been higher than anticipated and it had become necessary to send "nine thousand reinforcements" to Europe.

Reinforcements have been regularly forthcoming on the extended scale thereby provided for," the speech continued. "The armed forces Canada has given and will continue to give to the fullest support in men, munitions and supplies."

While the speech concluding a parliamentary session is by custom devoted almost entirely to a review, there was brief reference to conditions confronting the post-war future. Winning the peace was second only to victory in the war and with that in view Canada had taken part in the United Nations and had exchanged views with other countries.

Kevins Trade.

Recognizing that prosperity was essential to social security, active steps were being taken to revive and develop international trade.

Measures passed at the fifth session to meet post-war problems were reviewed and it was announced that nearly 200,000 veterans of the present war had been established in Canadian life. Legislation on housing, farm prices, banking and general social security and the provision made at the last session for taking the service vote. HOW COMMON IS SCURVY?

Infants or young children developing scurvy are fretful, anemic, without appetite, they fail to grow and gain weight from week to week. They cry when picked up or moved or handled and sometime the evident pain and tenderness in the legs may make parents suspect "rheumatism" and the child's instinctive effort to avoid pain by lying motionless ay make parents suspect "paralysis".

The gums are of deep purplish color, revolve around the upper central incisors and they bleed from the slightest irritation or sometimes without evident injury.

Before definite symptoms of scurvy develop, Pfaundler-Hurler (Pfaundler) authority: there is a period of ill health, characterized by certain symptoms which should be looked for in persons who habitually take too little vitamin C, though they get enough to prevent outright scurvy. These symptoms are a sallow, muddy complexion, loss of appetite, drowsiness, pains and limbs, especially in the legs, unaccountable tiredness, irritability. Called rheumatism in young children has often proved to be actually scurvy.

Hess, an American authority, pointed out how a deficiency period is denied almost entirely to a review, there was brief reference to conditions confronting the post-war future. Some Observations on Post-War Agriculture

By S. L. Jones

The twelfth annual meeting of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association which is being held in Toronto today and Friday was addressed at the opening session by S. L. Jones, Assistant Director of the Agricultural Extension Service, on the subject of his address was "Some Observations on Post-war Agriculture". The text of the address follows.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture about two weeks ago Mr. Hannam, in his presidential address, used the heading "Trend of the Times", said:

"Security for the few of yesterday must be transformed into security for the many tomorrow."

His faith in the truth of this statement is exemplified in the following paragraphs taken from his address:

"The growing strength and vigor of the co-operative movement is one phase of this trend in society. I believe that the great majority of the thinking people of town, both in parliament and in the business world, realize this. The more thoughtful and socially minded of them believe in it, and welcome it, even though it may eventually curtail some of the privileges they have enjoyed by reason of the default of the common people in failing as yet to assume the duties and responsibility which is rightfully theirs in a society which enjoys economic as well as political democracy.

"But there is unfortunately an unusually vocal minority in the business world who do not see, or will not see this inevitable trend toward a wider freedom for the people.

"These are my convictions and it is because of them that I have prepared this paper for presentation to you today.

Security will go hand in hand with good government, prosperous agriculture and a healthy industrial society. There is an interdependence between all that must be recognized and by my opinion is a good omen for agriculture when agriculture is publicly recognized and proclaim this, as Mr. Hannahs has done in his address, leaders

Famous Women and Their Influence On History Told to Women's Club

Women of history who before and behind the curtain of public life helped shape the destinies of nations and peoples formed the theme of an informative address here last night by Franklin Hall Edward 1st riding a black stallion, author and lecturer and showed in black and white. He established the famous "Il Risoro Collection" of which this is still in evidence and which were among the most perfect guns of Gothic beauty.

Sue Husband Murdered.

Margaret of Angou and Cecile Neville whose lives ended in tragedy, lived in an aura of enmity that perhaps actually was the cause of the Wars of the Roses. Margaret saw her husband, Henry 6th, tortured and her son slain while Cecile's husband's life was the price of her folly. Both women died of broken hearts.

Sarah Jennings, of Sandwich, near St. Albans, England, a favorite of Queen Anne and later Duchess of Churchill, Dowager Duchess of Marlborough was a woman of history who will which dominated the obstinacy and stupidity of her queen. It is difficult to know how much Bughand owed this woman's energies, but Winston Churchill whose brilliancy and courage is unquestioned, said Marlborough had nothing but his wife but he proved a genius in military politics and defeated the ambitions of Louis XIV of France. Napoleon and later that Alexander the Great and Marlborough are the only generals worthy of the name.

Queen Mary Litzenarian, first Mother Superior of the Ursuline convent who dreamed of the New World and came to new Quebec was next on Mr. McDowell's list. She was the first woman to come to the new land, but soon her brilliant work was ended and a tradition of saintliness grew about her. Closely in dress of a New France had fallen. Iroquois war cries were heard on the outskirts of Quebec. Only faint-hearted wanted to leave but the Mother Superior and the sisters remain. She set a splendid example of heroism and her name has honored down through the centuries.

Maid Marian Famed.

The greatest of all women in history, in the speaker's opinion, was Maid Marion, wife of Robin Hood. She was the ideal of heroism of the common people of England and their ideal type of Anglo-Saxon womanhood. Life with her was a serious struggle and daily she walked with death. She was a timeless heroine for her counterparts are seen in the pages of history.

Devotion to Duty

Mr. McDowell pointed out the devotion to duty and loyalty to an ideal of such women as Florence Nightingale and other historical figures. He spoke of the hardships and fortitude of the pioneer women of Canada and of the heroic women of Britain in the present war.

Women of today, he said, with their modern facilities have an unequalled opportunity for modern welfare and can be one of the greatest forces in the country. The Canada of the future is rising in the skies and, awaits the touch of her women's hands. If they are withheld, the greater feared another dark question mark in the story of the country.

He was introduced by the Club President, Mrs. F. C. Parks, who also expressed appreciation of the address at its close. Mrs. O. E. Argue read the financial report of the stalls branch prior to the introduction of Mr. McDowell. The branch had shipped 4,177 articles, 363 of which were quilts. Red sweaters during 1944. The committee consists of Mesdames Kinnear, MacColl, May, Truesdale, A. R. Cameron, Archibald, Abrams, Wills, Myers, Boland, Argue and Miss May.

Trenton R.C.A.F. Station Officially Welcomes Air Vice-Marshal Raymond, CBE, at Colorful Dance

Trenton, Feb. 1 — Climaxing the successful fusion of Trenton's No. 1 and No. 2 Training Units, which ceased to form No. 7 Air Command at R.C.A.F. station, Trenton, the station personnel Tuesday night officially welcomed the Commanding Officer Commander Air Vice-Marshal Adelard Raymond, C.B.E., and his entire staff to their new headquarters.

Personnel of the Command, only one in Canada, to function as part of an active flying station, were greeted by Trenton's Commanding Officer, Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, during ceremonies high-lighting one of the largest and most colorful dances ever held in the station's spacious quarters hangar. Hundreds of guests and hundreds of young ladies from Trenton and Belleville crowded to capacity the flag-decked hall.

The crowd listened as Air Vice-Marshal Raymond recipricated the C.O.'s pledge of co-operation between station and Command, and expressed his satisfaction in returning to Trenton, already familiar to him from his service there in the three years preceding the war. Inviting listeners to work together regardless of nationalities to create "the happiest Command in Canada."

The A.O.C. accepted G/C. Bell-Irving's invitation to cut a ribbon strung across the hangar's entrance, signed Wintergarden, a sumptuous succession of the station's latest canteen-age comforts, and with a crisp dollar bill bought the first cup of coffee served at the Wintergarden's wonder-bar.

Commanding visitors alike were quick to take advantage of the Wintergarden's entry foot bar and its menu of novel sundaes, sodas and sandwiches. Henceforth, the Wintergarden will provide a rendezvous for all ranks to meet, dance and relax during any leisure moments from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. All profits from the canteen will constitute a fund for the benefit of the personnel, and specifically will help buy an outdoor swimming pool for the station's use.

The A.O.C. later autographed the bill, an informal token of accord between the Command and the R.C.A.F.'s oldest station, signalling the completion of the transfer of the country's two major training commands to the Eastern Air Command, in compression of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Emergency Call Issued For Knitted Comforts

Toronto, Feb. 1 — "The need for finished comforts is desperate", Mrs. J. C. Emergency requisitions from National headquarters for shipments to the seaports have taken our surplus stock", Branches, she pointed out, can help in this emergency by immediately replacing that stock, in asking the warehouse in Toronto to meet the next call. "Knit all the wool you have on hand; ship it to the warehouse as soon as possible. Wool may be obtained from any Red Cross branch or from a Women's Institute.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

About a year ago we had a misunderstanding with a relative who "spoke her mind" much too freely. Consequently this relative has been deeply hurt, and since then we haven't seen her at all. I feel that it would be best to keep away.

This past Christmas she sent me and each member of our family a greeting card. We all ignored her receipt of us, and didn't send her one in return. Now (1 would like to know what to do. If she were wrong in sending each of her husband's family a Christmas card, after acting the way she did, or (3) should we have sent her a New Year's card in return for her card, and forget what happened?

A Reader

Let's think about (1). Certainly she was not "wrong" in sending each member of your family a Christmas card. On the contrary she may have been trying her best to be "right", trying to show you that, by the gesture, she was sorry for what she had done, wanted to be forgiven, and wanted to re-establish a "right" relationship with your family. In other words, in her own way, the sending-of-a-Christmas-card was actually the first advance toward the reconciliation which she apparently wants to bring about. It's true, and she may be hopefully counting on this truth, that very often the sending or a Christmas card means much of the establishing of a relationship or friendship . . . such can be the power of a good thought, a good word of "good will toward—".

Which brings us to (3) . . . that you decide to do, what your heart tells you you want to do in answer to this relative's appeal, only you can say. The problem of forgiveness is always with us . . . in our daily prayer, " . . . as we forgive those who trespass against us." Bearing a grudge in our hearts continuously never solved anything, but as the wise old adage says, "Good-news and gladtheels to forgive". So we it's your choice (1) to "ignore" completely this relative's gesture, (2) if (think) wish to be friends again with you and your family, and push up this chasm that has come in her life, make some return bow to her Christmas card to you (perhaps a note thanking her for her greeting, or perhaps a cordial invitation to her to come to see you), with the hope and fervent belief that the unfortunate consequences will be a "good" lesson to her.

OUR 41st. YEAR IN BELLEVILLE.

JUST A FEW WORDS OF APPRECIATION

Today begins a new year for us, and we want to take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation to our friends everywhere and more particularly to those customers, who in the year just closed, favored us with their patronage, thereby helping us to achieve another record year of business.

Truly sometimes we were bewildered with the number of customers who came to us, and were genuinely sorry it was not possible to serve them all in the manner in which we would liked to have done. We are doing our best to merit faith with our customers and thank them all for their kind understanding of the many difficulties, peculiar to our business.

A TOMORROW IS COMING

We know full well there is a tomorrow coming, a tomorrow when the picture will change, and we will never knowingly permit any deviation from the policy that governs our business, that provides for courtesy and fairness to all and an honest endeavor to merit the continued confidence of our thousands of customers.

For your indulgence during these hectic times, we want to thank you.

Clothing For Soccer Wear

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband, our 6-year-old child, and I are going to Florida by train, to be there the last week or March and the first week of April. Since it is our first trip there, will you please tell me what kind of clothes we should wear as we start on the train from here, and what we should take with us?

As you leave from the North, you would wear either a medium-weight suit or dress, your husband a medium-weight suit, and your child perhaps a light-wool dress of pastel-light color. And you should all wear topcoats that could be serviceable for possible cool evenings there. Then, for Florida at that time of year, you would take the type of clothes that would be appropriate for summer weather. But, considering the distance you are travelling and service, don't take too many clothes for such a comparatively short stay.

17 Children And Woman Trapped in Fire

Auburn, Me., Feb. 1 (AP) — 17 young children and a woman, trapped after a spreading fire swept flames racing through a wooden boarding home for war and factory workers here, were reported to be burned to death yesterday.

Most of the victims ranged in ages from three months to three years. They died in their cribs —their heads thrust through the spaces between the slats in their futile struggle to escape.

Only eight of the 26 occupants of the converted farmhouse were able to flee the fast-spreading flames that swept the interior of the converted farmhouse.

One of them was Mrs. Eva Lacosle, operator of the home, who sobbed "we don't have any more babies" as she told of trying to flee from the burning building with two cribs, of falling, and losing the babies in the fire.

"I had them in my arms, I lost them when I fell down," Mrs. Lacosle cried after telling Fire Prefect Frederick W. Caron, her physician, how a stove had exploded.

Fire Chief Ralph Harnden, who, with Bureau, aided Spiglas at sheets of flame barred them from the building, said a heart-rending spectacle was had when they finally were able to enter.

Sixteen bodies were found and one by one identified. Hours later, the body of the 17th, victim, a baby, was found in the ruins.

He said it was "a terrific sight" when he and his men finally battled their way to where the children had been quartered.

"We found many of them with their heads through the slats of their cribs, where they apparently had tried to escape," he added. "I carried out six of them myself, in my blankets."

When news of the disaster spread frantic relatives, seeking word of their offspring, converged on the area.

Many of the babies, the fire chief added, were burned badly. Others apparently died of suffocation.

Chief Hardin said the cause of the fire had not been established.

Augustine Became First Archbishop of Canterbury

By W. L. C.
(in Windsor Star)

The Bishop of London has been promoted to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and some readers ask why the See of Canterbury should be senior to the See of London.

It is also pointed out that St. Hon. and St. Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, D.D., was the 111th Bishop of London and he becomes St. Hon. and Most Rev. Dr. Fisher, the 97th Archbishop of Canterbury succeeding the late Rt. Hon. and Most Rev. William Temple, D.D., who had been the 96th Archbishop of York before his elevation to Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Archbishop of Canterbury also has his official residence at Lambeth Palace in London and not in Canterbury. The Bishop of London's official residence is Fulham Palace in London.

Back to Augustine.

It all goes back to Augustine and the coming of Roman Christianity to the people of England in 597.

Canterbury gets its name from being called the town of the men of Kent. The Saxons of early days knew the settlement as Cantwaraburh, which meant where the men of Kent lived. That name has been corrupted to Canterbury with the changing of the language from Saxon English to present English.

Two miles from Canterbury there was a heavy concentration of shipping in early times. People from all countries came to the country. There was a ford across the River Stour, which the early Romans used as they made their way to London and beyond.

Owing to its ford and being a centre of travel, Canterbury became quite a cosmopolitan centre for those times.

When Augustine and his missionary group arrived in England to bring Christianity to the people, it was natural that they should reach Canterbury as the first settlement of any size.

Everyone is familiar with the story of Pope Gregory and the slaves from England. The Pope saw the fine-looking slaves in Rome and asked them who they were. When they replied that they were Angles, he expressed the wish to convert them from Angles to angels. Accordingly, he sent Augustine and 40 Benedictine monks to England.—

Augustine was received by King Ethelbert of Kent and Queen Bertha. The Queen had already been converted to the Christian faith and she used her influence with Ethelbert to allow Augustine and his missionaries the use of the old church at Canterbury. The mythical founder of the ancient church was a King Lucius.

Synod of Whitby.

For a time there was difficulty between the Christianity taught by Augustine and the older Welsh form of Christian worship. This was settled at the Synod of Whitby in 664.

ALL ASHORE THAT'S GOING ASHORE

Yankee fighting men clamber down the cargo nets from a great giant-manned invasion transport to crack out a beachhead on Linguayen Gulf at the start of the Jan. 9th invasion of Lingon Island in the Philippines. These first wave fighters, veterans of battles in the Solomons, and New Guinea, are piling into landing barges for the dash ashore, even as the U. S. fleet concludes a terrific barrage at Jap gun emplacements.

Augustine lost no time in establishing his headquarters at Canterbury, being a Benedictine, he founded a monastery for his order and it became a part of the church which had been named a cathedral with Augustine as the First Archbishop of Canterbury.

Dr. Fisher becomes the 97th Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England. Between Dr. Fisher and Augustine there have been some famous names. These include Lanfranc, Anselm, Thomas Becket, Stephen Langton, Reginald Cranmer and last three Primates, Randall Thomas Davidson, Cosmo Gordon Lang and William Temple.

Time of Reformation.

Thomas Cranmer was Archbishop of Canterbury when Henry VIII prompted the political reformation by which the King became the Head of the church in England. Church properties were taken over in the name of the monarch and he became the Defender of the Faith. Cranmer was Archbishop from 1533 to 1556.

After Queen Elizabeth became ruler, Protestant Puritans returned to England from Europe. The Puritans had strong differences of opinions on religious questions and they were the founders of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Baptist Churches.

Between Henry VIII and Elizabeth were King Edward VI and Queen Mary I, better known as "Bloody Queen Mary", who reversed the Roman Catholic religion and revived the laws against heretics. Archbishop Cranmer, Bishop Ridley of London and Bishop Latimer of Worcester, were executed at the stake by Mary.

As Latimer and Ridley were facing death with the flames starting to devour them, Bishop Latimer called out: "Be of good cheer, Master Ridley, we shall this day light such a candle in England as shall never be put out."

Great Power.

The bishops have grown in strength in Great Britain. The Archbishop of Canterbury wields great power and the House of Bishops has immense influence in the United Kingdom.

There are 24 Bishops in the House of Lords. They are senior to the barons and are listed next after the viscounts.

The Church of England holds great and valuable properties that run all the way from coal mines to hunting preserves. There are city and town properties that have annual rentals running into huge figures.

It has been estimated that the annual revenues from various sources bring the Church of England some $30,000,000.

Communicants and Others.

There are something over 3,000,000 communicants in the Church of England in Britain, which does not seem so many in a population of 45,000,000. But the influence exerted by these members of the Church of England is far in excess of their numbers. It has also been said that the Church of England can muster six voters for every member, which makes the political influence something to be counted seriously.

Dr. Fisher has assumed the leadership of the Church of England. As the 97th Archbishop of Canterbury he takes the reins at an hour when great men are needed more than ever before.

The Sign Of The Double Eagle

Allied bombing of "Hansa" centres in the Reich recalls a trading organization of German merchants which was a recognized power in London in the Middle Ages—an influential financially that the term "sterling" as applied to British currency allegedly derives from one of its designations.

By G. R. STOCKS,
(In the P.I.A. Monthly)

Among the most frequent targets of the R.A.F. are the old Hanseatic towns of Germany. This is not altogether coincidental, since, for her size, Germany has always had very few ports. Bremen, Hamburg, Rostock, Lubeck and Cologne, and the other Hansa centres—Dortmund, Brunswick, Munster, Frankfurt and Magdeburg—have for centuries, owing to their geographical position, been important mants.

The Hanseatic League was one of the most powerful trading combines ever known and at its height extended all over Europe. Its headquarters in England was, naturally in London, and its attempts to set up trading monopolies had far-reaching effects on the trade of the early London merchants.

The Hansets of Lubeck, also known as "Easterlings," gained such a trading reputation that their currency came to be recognized as a standard, and some authorities maintain that this was the origin of our word "sterling."

Set up as the result of charters and agreements between successive British monarchs and German merchants, the League in London gradually made itself indispensable to English kings.

The first important charter was granted by Richard I. Over de Lion to the merchants of Cologne, in return for hospitality extended to him while in that city. By this the members were exempt from paying rent for their premises in Thames Street, and acquired special privileges in buying and selling throughout the entire country.

The German merchants had a depot in London from the tenth century onwards, but it was not until the reign of Richard II that it was known as the Steelyard. In 1155 it is referred to as the "Hansu Colner," in London; in 1194 as the "Gildehalle de Colonie"; in 1260 as the "Guildehalle Theutonicorum," or Guildhall of the "Teutons," and in 1467 as the "Hall of the Easterlings," or the "Easterlings Halle."

Thus, by the name alone, one can trace the gradual growth and spread of their trade, as the Hanseatic League developed. At first it was mainly in the hands of Cologne who visited London, then merchants from various parts of Germany, and finally, with the development of the Baltic trade, were added the "Easterlings" (men from the "Ostsee" or Baltic) who came into close touch with London through the rich League city of Visby in Gotland.

The Steelyard was situated in Dowgate and from the first insignificant building the premises of the League were extended until a large area was taken in.

Among the subsidiary premises which grew up was the once famous Rhenish Wine House, catering specially for the Rhenish members, and to which many references are made in contemporary history. As time went on the Steelyard buildings were further improved, and eventually they held a collection of rich art treasures.

One condition of the granting of the trading privileges was that the Hanseats in London should repair, rebuild, and defend the Bishopsgate, as and when required. Their trading privileges were, however, worth a great deal, and eventually they secured the English raw wool trade, the most lucrative commerce of that time.

The trade which gave them a start was the carriage of Baltic herrings, which were in great demand throughout Europe. But this was only a beginning, and the Hansa's power soon embraced a variety of merchandise.

The Russian duties days supplied many valuable products through its great mart at Novgorod, among them were timber, tar, pitch, honey, wax, furs, hides and tallow. From the Italian ports, particularly Venice, the Hanseatic carried the products of the Orient, leatherwork, silks, precious metals, gums and fruits. Swedish supplied copper and iron and various forms of building material. England exported her wool and coarse cloths. A fair proportion of this trade was handled by the Kontor in London.

The life of the Hansa merchants in London was, as elsewhere, austere. They were subject, during the early stages at least, to a half-monastic, half-military discipline. They had to spend from seven to ten years in the service of the League. During that time they could not leave London, and were under the absolute control of the Kontoraeister.

They must remain single, and were forbidden even to sleep outside the Steelyard buildings for a single night. The rooms they occupied were practically devoid of furniture, and had very little comfort. They were, of course, forbidden to trade on their own account. The League had its own judicial system for dealing with its employees.

The League members were, however, careful to keep as far as possible in favor with the Church and State and civic authorities, realizing that their privileges depended largely upon this attitude. In London they went to the church of All Hallows the More (destroyed in 1894), where they had seats reserved for them.

For hundreds of years this great trading concern carried all before it in the Port of London. There was, of course, opposition from the London merchants. The lucrative wool trade was the chief cause of dissension, but the privileges of the Hansa, which were not reciprocated in German cities, gave them a most unfair advantage.

Appeals to the authorities, usually in need of the Hansa's financial aid, brought no result for a long time. But at last, in 1552, largely due to the influence of Sir Thomas Gresham, the privileges of the League were rescinded, and German merchants were placed on the same footing as other foreign traders.

At this time, too, English merchants, in an endeavor to establish free trading rights, had formed themselves into the Company of Merchant Venturers, under the governorship of Sebastian Cabot. Other similar companies soon followed, the Muscovy, the Levant, and the Eastland Companies. These became rivals of the Hansa in continental trade, and were largely responsible for its downfall in Europe.

Finally, in 1598, Queen Elizabeth ordered the Hansests to leave the Steelyard, and after centuries of residence and trading there, they had to go, although Jl was later restored to them. As a result of the 'Thirty Years' War, the power of the Hansa was entirely broken on the Continent; of all the wealthy cities which had comprised it, only Bremen, Hamburg and Lubeck carried on.

In the Great Fire of London a great part of the Steelyard was destroyed. The then Commissioner, Jacobsen, after vainly appealing to Lubeck for funds, had a portion rebuilt at his own expense. You may still see the site of Dowgate Wharf, but you will look in vain for signs of the once mighty Hansa. The site is now occupied by Cannon Street Railway Station.

Through the Steelyard offices had been conducted all the business of the other English ports at Hull, King's Lynn, Boston, Grimsby, Southampton, Yarmouth, Canterbury, Rochester, York, Norwich and Bristol. The trade mark of the League was the double eagle, and all their property, wharves, goods ships, and furnishings, were marked with this sign.

The Hansa decayed slowly, the last connection with London being broken as late as 1853, when, after long negotiation, the still Hansa towns of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck sold the Steelyard buildings to the London men.

It is strange to think that the Hanseatic League, at the height of its power, could influence monarchs, cities and states. By "Un-Hansing" a city they could practically reduce it to ruin, by shutting off its trade. But the fact is that they did enjoy a long-lived and widespread monopoly, which enabled the headquarters at Lubeck to dictate to cities much more wealthy.

History has a strange knack of repeating itself. Formerly the Hansa cities made economic war on London. Now, four hundred years later, London and the Hansa cities are again engaged in conflict.

Bombers Score Five Times In Third Period To Down Sixardee 8 to 5 in Fast Game

Cawley Rings Up Three as Bombers Possess Too Much Staying Power; Williams Good in Nets

FAST GAME

Coming from behind to score five goals in the final period, the Mountain View "Bombers" virtually clinched a play-off berth in the Quinte R.C.A.F. service hockey league at the Hume Arena last night, edging Sixardee 8 to 5.

The losers were forced to come from behind to gain a two-all tie at the end of the initial period of fast play and then Sixardee forged to the fore to outscore the Bombers two to one and lead 4 to 3 at the end of the second. However, in the final session it was the Mountain Bombers with their wide-passing game who won by scoring five successful goals before Sixardee finally could put dirt for their fifth and final counter.

The game was productive of smart passing plays on the part of both squads while the going was exceedingly speedy throughout through the Bombers' defence where Savard and Swanson, both stellar backing bouncing as the Sixardee forwards dared to invade the Bombers' territory. However, it was Williams in the Bombers' net, who was voted by Reverted No. 16 Repair Depot spectators with his marvelous saves between the goal pipes. Now the question arises who is the best goalie in the league, Williams of Mountain View or Robertson of the Trenton "Flyers", when these two teamed next Wednesday maybe the answers can be found.

Cawley Scores Two.

It looked like a clinch for the Bombers as the veteran Dan Cawley banged home two timely first period goals midway through the initial period to give the ultimate winners a scheduled lead. McMullin was also helping hand on both these counters, while Don Willson, former Belleville market junior star, and new-comer to the Mountain View ranks, also helped.

However, the Sixardee squad was not-to-be denied and drove back with vengeance and power to be rewarded when Bill Leonard soloed up the left boards and rammed a low shot past Williams that stunned, trapped at this point Six-

I ALWAYS GET CLEAN, QUICK SHAVES WITH BLUE GILLETTE BLADES

Clem McCarthy

Ace Reporter of Columbia's Cavalcade of Sports — says:

"A TRIP through the Gillette factory showed me why I always get clean, quick shaves with Blue Gillette Blades. It saw steel hardened in automatically-controlled electric furnaces . . . saw blades ground to razor edge in grinding machines weighing several tons—yet so precise that they are adjustable to 1/10,000 of an inch. So my advice to any man who wants to enjoy shaving is to use Blue Gillette Blades."

FUTURE OF N.H.L. LOOMS BRIGHTER, PLAN TO ENLARGE

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

This weekend may see the shape of things to come in the National Hockey League. At Montreal the loop governors stage a gathering of the clan, and when the clan gathers so do the clouds of rumor and gossip—but they all have a silver lining.

Yes, silver lining . . . listen to the cash jingling in the N.H.L. ticket wickets.

Nobody listens too carefully to all the rumors harangued in the hockey halls. But they are around to be heard. For instance there is all the talk of more teams in the post-war period. And there are those that go so far as to envision a 12-or 14-team league.

Yes, silver lining . . . listen to the cash jingling in the N.H.L. ticket wickets.

Nobody listens too carefully to all the rumors harangued in the hockey halls. But they are around to be heard. For instance there is all the talk of more teams in the post-war period. And there are those that go so far as to envision a 12-or 14-team league.

President Mervin (Red) Dutton of the Montreal Americans—no relation to the Dodgers — are a potential candidate for membership in the circuit. Other quarters add that Montreal will again support two teams, a league in itself to hold a couple of squads. Washington and St. Louis are being considered as entries. Buffalo and Cleveland are ready for major league hockey.

Other suggestions pour in by the hour, to which Conny Smythe, the majority man of Toronto Maple Leafs, adds, "We've been sitting on our hands."

Owners are willing to pay the sums 200-odd hockey players of pro calibre coming back from the armed forces will be play hockey. And rest assured that there will be plenty of playing material for a 12-team loop so the clubs in the league now so see that the loop expands.

Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the National Hockey Association announced at Toronto last night the Memorial Cup junior title will be played this season by a junior "B" club must be included in the Memorial Cup junior "B" competition for clubs in any series. Secretary Hewitt explained that there has been an impression that a juvenile player could play in the junior "B" series and not lose his status nor be counted in the authorized squad. But the Memorial Cup announced the Preston-at Guelph junior "B" game last Saturday night will be replayed in Preston Feb. 19 by mutual agreement.

LACHINE WINS 7-6

Lachine, Que. Feb. 1 — (CP) — Lachine Rapides eked out a 7-6 triumph last night, over Valleyfield Braves, interprovincial hockey league leaders. It was their eighth victory in 10 games and brought them within a point of the second-place Cornwall Canadiens who have played four more games than Rapides.

It was goal for goal all through the game with Valleyfield in the lead twice and Lachine five times. Steele Paulson was Lachine's pay off man. He snared a loose puck 2 seconds before the final whistle and drove it home from 10 feet out. It was his second goal of the game and his fellow marksman were Geo. Thomas, with two, Bob Broderick, Guy Crowley and Alex Joanisse. The Valleyfield line of "Mouse" Joannette, Bernard Vinet and Rolland Boyer scored four Braves goals and Boyer accounting for a pair. Polesani and Connolly were the other Valleyfield scorers.

United States has quite decided yet just what degree of essentiality sport has, as until such time as it is secured on that, professional athletes will have to bear the brunt of occasional criticism from some members of the populace and the occasional restrictive order from the government. Anyway the fans are happy.

Dualdexterity:

Earl Robertson, who jumped into the limelight with the 1936 Stanley Cup finals, is having the time of his life coaching the pee-wee hockey players in Edmonton...The Canada Minor Hockey Association, of which claims to be the largest organization devoted exclusively to minor hockey, is still growing. Registration of minor teams this year has reached eight more than last year's record total...Jim Thomson Glebe and Matt Gallagher man has given food for thought to those St. Michael's College hockey fathers who claim this year's Irish edition is the best ever. On the 1934 Memorial Cup-winning Irish were such stalwarts as Harvey Jackson, Syd Reg and Johnny Hamilton, defence, Mickey Drouillard, Bobby Bauer, Bob Kelly. Art Jackson and Johnny Acheson and Mick Metcalfe on the end all. If the present squad can do as well—it will do all right.

ANOTHER JOB FOR GEN. MACARTHUR

Lawrence, Kas., Feb. 1 — (AP)— Dr. Forrest (Phog) Allen, who was telling "Fire, Fire," months ago when others couldn't see smoke, is the basketball betting, wants Gen. Douglas MacArthur to close the gambling evil in college as soon as the Pacific war is over.

"It will take a great organizer and General MacArthur, who always has been a great sports fan, would be the man to give collegiate sports the thorough renovation it needs," the Kansas University coach said. "There are plenty more things he could look into, too, such as college baseball coaches acting as scouts for big league teams, sub rosa agreements to athletes and other evils."

Phog predicted last fall that an incident would occur soon to start one which brought indictment yesterday of two men on charges of bribing five Brooklyn basketball players.

No Boxers?

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 1 — (AP)—Behind the wheels of service jeeps is being developed the greatest collection of daredevil racing drivers in history, says Johnny Mauro, national champion dirt track auto driver.

But boxers?

"No," says Cmdr. Jack Dempsey. The former heavyweight boxing champion says boxers are in too good boxing mth that I've observed in his war. It takes three or four of them to develop a topnotch fighter."

Further:

"People say that the last war produced great fighters. It didn't. Gene Tunney came along, to be sure, but it was seven years after the war before he became champion."

Meanwhile, Wilburn, a former from a 13-month job overseas as a civilian technician with the United States Army Air Forces, predicted a tremendous post-war boom in auto racing as well as other branches of sport.

A hen is not supposed to have

Yet every time she lays an egg
She cackles forth the fact.

A rooster hasn't got a lot
Of intellect to show—
But none the less most roosters

Enough sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts
Has a persistent way
Of letting folks know he's around
By his indistinct bray.

The busy little bees they buzz;
Bulls bellow and cows moo.
The watch-dogs bark, the drakes they quack,
And doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and struts,
Pigs squeal and robins sing,
And even serpents know enough
To hiss before they sting.

Junior Round-up

With the exception of two postponed games, Belleville at Trenton and Campbellford at Trenton, the group schedule in the "Little Six" Junior O.H.A. play-down series hears Lack of scoring punch proved the difference between victory and defeat for the No. 6 Repair Depot squad, while the Bomber sextet proved apt opportunists on the occasions to score were present-ly. Only the goal-tending stars of the teams show any degree of superiority, but the Bombers possess a bit more power to collect the moneyed game.

Familiar Names—

Minor hockey facilities in the Lifflock City Goalie Len Hartford, Ken Burton, Bun Kingdon, Honey Todhpkins, Joe Slewett and Wilmot Yeo of the old Peterboro Seniors have lined up with the Omemee Blackhawks in the Intermediate O.H.A. Last week the Blackhawks beat Lindsay 3 to 4 with Yeo and Hartford the goal bell nine times and Kingdon getting eight. Back in oldtime form was the Petes' line of Kingdon, flanked by Blewett and Tompkins to score as many as three goals in a minute's play. It was like old times reading off the names of such veteran players in the Examiner, but apparently the opposition afforded the Omemee-Peterboro sextette is far from that which might produce any degree of competition. After glancing over the summary of the game we are more convinced than ever that the calibre of hockey played in the Quinte R.C.A.F. service league is the best played in these parts.

Working on the theory that Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' appointment will have little effect in Canada, promoters of the proposed Queen-Ontario League are going ahead with their plans, in the hope of operating the circuit next season. Fifteen clubs are under consideration for membership, including Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston, Hull, Kingston, Lachine, Ottawa, Quebec, Farnborough, Pulp, Shawinigan, Sorel, St. Hyacinthe, Three Rivers, Valleyfield and Verdun. All of them are in Quebec except Cornwall, Kingston and Ottawa. A meeting will be held in Quebec within a month to talk over plans.

Remember when—

Hughie Jennings, who won the American League pennant for the Detroit Tigers the first year he managed a major league baseball club, died at his Scranton, Pa., home 17 years ago today. Jennings led the Tigers from 1907 to 1920, winning league honors in 1907, 1908 and 1909. He was succeeded by Ty Cobb.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 596
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Results justify it again and again. If experts it was raining, you still would rely on the rule T-A-N as bidding basic training.

Make follow the pattern of choice in T-A-N; takeout, first assist, second choice; no-trump, last resort. You break away from that order only when you give some special signal.

Runs around with this responding hand:

♠A 5
♥K 4 2
♦A Q 3
♣K J 9 5

What would you answer to an opening of five in a minor suit or four in a major? Pass as a signal to deny three aces and a king.

What would you answer to an opening of four in a minor or three in a major? Four no-trump as a signal for slam information. An assist to game in that suit would be a signal to deny two sure tricks.

What would you answer to an opening of two spades or two hearts? Two diamonds? Three clubs normally to show your takeout suit. Two no-trump would be a signal to deny having a sure trick.

What would you answer to an opening of two clubs? Three clubs normally to show an assist when you have no takeout. Two no-trump would be a signal to deny having a sure trick.

What would you answer to an opening of two no-trump? Three clubs normally to show your takeout suit. Pass would be a signal to deny having as much as one high card.

What would you answer to an opening of one spade or one heart or one diamond? Two clubs normally to show your takeout suit.

What would you answer to an opening of one club? A jump to two no-trump as a signal to show slam in no-trump. After that the bids follow T-A-N if necessary.

You See how it is. Where special signals are not needed first, T-A-N is followed at once. Where special signals are used first, T-A-N is followed thereafter until slam signals are needed.

When you find yourself in doubt, T-A-N will help you out.

State Legislature Amends Law To Make Bribing In Sports a Major Crime

Claim Gambling Ran as High as $10,000,000 Weekly on Big College Cage Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Brooklyn, Feb. 1 (AP)—With New York State's legislature heading a legal hand, as far as that state is concerned, basketball officials and other interested sportsmen throughout the United States today renewed their efforts to stamp out widespread gambling on games which one source estimated ran as high as $10,000,000 weekly.

While a Kings County grand jury returned yesterday conspiracy indictments against two men charged with bribing five Brooklyn college basketball players, the state legislature rushed two bills directly connected with gambling on sports contests.

Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson introduced a bill to amend the penal law which would make amateur athletes liable to fines up to $1,000 and imprisonment for one to five years.

Amend Laws.

Also introduced was a bill amending the penal law to provide that offering of a bribe to an amateur athlete a felony, instead of a misdemeanor as at present. A person guilty of a felony is subject to 10 to 20 years imprisonment, whereas a misdemeanor is punishable by only one to two years.

Accused in the Kings County grand jury action were Aaron Wm. Stemmer and Henry Rosen, confessed bookmaker, who were charged with conspiring to "defraud the public" by bribing five Brooklyn college players to throw a game against Akron university of Ohio at Madison Square Garden last night. The game was cancelled.

No charges were placed against Harrison Barnett, Tarry Fearichild, Robert Leder, Jerry Green, and Stanley Simon, the Brooklyn players, although they were named in the indictment as co-conspirators and will appear as witnesses when the case comes before county Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz Feb. 13.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, Feb. 1 — (AP) — No sooner had Maurie Waxman, Bobby Ruffin's personal drum beater, heard that Commissioner Kitte Eagan was looking for a better way to score fights than he let out a blast that Ruffin wouldn't fight Johnny Greco tomorrow unless there was a new scoring system... That threat didn't even get a laugh, but it served to point out the possibility of using the bout as a test case... How about taking the best suggestions and having one qualified judge use each method just to compare them with the official vote? . . . In New Orleans they let the fans have their choice and as a result the referee will name the winner, alone . . .

Little Benny's Note Book

Cousin Oscar is still staying with us and sleeping in the guest room, being the only one that never talks about how good he used to be at golf and after supper he was looking kind of sad in his corner of the room in the living room, saying, Oh well, as the old saying goes, such is life without a wife. But I can't get the kind of a clitsen that ever expects to have a wife, for I got mine all over me all in a rush that the fokes at home were finally by missing me a lot, he said.

Well Oscar, you're feeling homesick, is that it? I said. Well, he said, Well, naturally 1?y only natural.

Both of them starting to look glad, and Cousin Oscar said, I admit it's been on my conscience, because they never have got mine. I was the life of every party, I used to practically tear the house down, I didn't wheel my weight, it was. I'm sure would make me feel better if I could go down and talk to them, just like old times, he said.

Well, if you feel that way, Oscar, maybe it's wrong of you to deprive them of the pleasure, you said, and Cousin Oscar said, That's how I feel about it, but it's a question of exersee.

Well now, that might be managed, ma said looking at pop, and pop said, Absolutely, I dont see why I can't advance you enough for your trip home. How much is the fare? he said.

Oh, I've got my railroad ticket all right, it's not that, Cousin Oscar said. What I was thinking was, it might be nice for me to go there are you, and then I'd be easier in my mind about staying here a little longer with you fokes, he said, and pop said, Oh, I see what you mean. You're right, Oscar, those long distance calls run into money, he said, I should say so for land sakes.

Being the end of the subject.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Feb. 1 (CP) — An RCAF Wellington piloted by FO. J. E. Neelin, 23-year-old Brandon, Ont., skipper, and an R.A.F. Liberator took turns in dropping a submarine but results of the attack are not public.

It was the first attack for FO. Lloyd Creaser of Bridgeport, N.S., the Wellington co-pilot who spotted the U-boat at night from a distance of seven miles. Three other Canadian in the Demon Squadron aircraft was another Nova Scotian, FO. J. W. Aulenbock, of Bridgewater.

Flashing on his Leigh lights, Neelin dived to the attack. The U-boat's anti-aircraft machine-gun hits as the enemy tried to crash-dive and then depth-charges were dropped.

The R.A.F. Liberator was waiting for the U-boat when it surfaced a few minutes later, slightly damaged, and launched another depth-charge attack. A large oil stage below like a fire appeared on the ocean, then it and the submarine disappeared.

Later Neelin and his crew saw three patches of oil on the surface, the largest a mile long.

FO Robert Rethie of Edmonton, navigator, pulled out of a damaged Beaufighter over the Bay of Bengal, and swam to an island where wild-eyed natives welcome him as a celebrity and wanted to name one of the islands in his honor. Rethie refused the offer, then modestly declined. He suggested the island be called "Kite," the scaly-necked nickname for a Beaufighter—and that's what it's now called.

Both he and his pilot, a Scot, swam for three hours through shark-infested waters after parachuting from their damaged plane.

"As flying fish made me jump once," said Rethie. "I thought for a minute I'd seen the fin of a shark." Finally he set out on what turned into a four-day tour of the Sunderman Islands in native boats in search of telephone or telegraph communication but after sending a message continued on to Calcutta by railroad and aircraft.

R.C.A.F. bands stationed in Britain have made musical history for Canada during the past two years. They have played at air force stations, for parades, dances and broadcasts—and even before the King and Queen and Princess Elizabeth.

There are five bands in Britain and another is expected soon from Canada. All are under Flt. Lt. Martin Boundy of London and Stratford, Ont., director of music for the RCAF overseas.

Four of the bands are military bands and the dance-band sections but one fifth is purely a dance band.

Flt. Lt. Boundy, formerly of Sunderland, England, went to Canada in 1923 and became a church organist, choir director and supervisor of music in Western Ontario public schools.

"Can't Help Singing"

Entertainment, spelled with large capital letters, is now at the McCarthy Theatre with Deanna Durbin's latest film. Universal's Technicolor production "Can't Help Singing" is the feature.

There are so many outstanding features about this film that it is difficult to decide in which order to list them. Deanna herself, photographed in Technicolor for the first time is more alluring than ever and never before has she been in such wonderful voice as she is singing the Jerome Kern tunes, written especially for this picture.

Kern and E. Y. Harburg wrote seven songs for the production, every one of them an outstanding hit. They include "More and More," "Can't Help Singing," "Elbow Room," "Californ-i-ay," "Any Moment Now" and the Four Freshmen "Swing Out the Fire."

The story laid in 1849 opens in Washington D. C. Deanna in love ing swindler.

AT THE CAPITOL — Jeanne Crain is apparently making some headway in getting Lon McCallister to consider her as more than a mere "pal" in 20th Century-Fox's "Home in Indiana," the new Technicolor hit opening tonight at the Capitol theatre. On the same program "Swinging in the Saddle."

with a young Army officer, played by Hugh Bruce, sets out to follow him to the west coast. Enroute she meets Robert Paige, a gambler whom she engages to drive her covered wagon; she falls in love with him. There's a merry mixup when the 2 come together in Sonora, but it all comes out alright for Deanna in the end.

Most of the picture was filmed out of doors and it contains some of the most striking scenic shots photographed in Technicolor. In the first time is more alluring than preceding dramatic role in Christmas Holiday" Deanna is light and gay throughout this film, which leans heavily toward comedy. Paige, in his most important role to date, proves an excellent romantic leading man.

Akim Tamiroff and Leonid Kinskey are very funny as a pair of petty crooks. Ray Colling does a good job as Deanna's pompous amateur-father and Andrew Tombes contributes enough fine as a fast-talk-

CHAPTER 6

"I tried to pull up in time, but—" Her voice trembled and she had needed forgiveness.

Mrs. Clarkson was unconscious. Her leg had been crushed. And there were injuries in her back. The doctor's face was solemn.

"We ought to operate, but—" He lifted his shoulders helplessly. Then Bruce arrived. He had a private talk with the doctor. He told Livia and Vera:

"It's her only chance—an operation; but her leg—"

"Amputation?" said Livia. He nodded. Vera wept, but Livia remained calm. Nothing seemed to be real, today. First her father; now this. Her feelings found relief in a fierce hatred of the man she had left sprawling on a table. He ought to be here taking care of her mother. But a stranger had to do it—Bruce. But he wasn't a stranger. He was always there in help when she needed help. "I love him," she thought, and smiled up at Bruce. "I love you, darling."

"What shall we do?" Vera asked tearfully.

"What do you think, Bruce?" Livia asked. He was slow in answering.

"It's a small chance — but a chance."

"Your mother is conscious now," a nurse told them. Vera and Livia looked at each other with sudden hope.

"Don't excite her," the nurse cautioned them.

They were sitting mutely by the side of the bed. Mrs. Clarkson tried to turn her head to look from one to the other, but the effort tired her. She closed her eyes and whispered:

"Don't move, mother. Save your strength. We're here to take care of you. Bruce is here, and everything's to be all right." Mrs. Clarkson smiled faintly. The two girls encouraged. She was brave, for their mother.

"What does the doctor say?" Mrs. Clarkson asked faintly. Vera looked at Livia, and Livia made a warning shake with her head. Something happened to Livia then. The confusing mantel of childhood and youth disappeared, leaving her exposed to the decisions and slender of adulthood. She felt strong.

"The doctor says you're fine," she told her mother. Vera took new courage from Livia's confidence in Livia's voice. The nurse came back.

"You must leave now," she said. "But we'll be outside your door."

"Don't worry about me. I'll be all right," Mrs. Clarkson said painfully.

This broke Livia's self-control, and she left the room swiftly and cried in Bruce's arms. She felt ashamed when she saw Vera's woebegone face. Their plan for the school! Even if their mother survived, she would be a cripple the rest of her life, and hardly able to assume the responsibility of running a school. She withdrew from the shelter of Bruce's shoulder.

"We hope," she said, and Vera echoed with difficulty: "Yes, we must hope."

The doctor appeared. "Have you decided?"

Livia looked at Bruce and Vera. "Yes, please operate."

She was glad their mother was unconscious again as they wheeled her into the operating room.

It was nearly midnight when they brought her out. Those two hours of waiting would remain with the two girls for the rest of their lives. George Almond arrived in response to the message left by Bruce. And the four of them slept—kept vigil in the corridor outside the operating room.

The door opened and two young nurses came out. They looked tired. Livia and Vera followed the narrow stretcher-bed to the door of their mother's room. Her face was white.

"She won't be conscious for three or four hours; I advise you to get some rest," the surgeon said wearily.

"How is she?" Bruce asked.

"The operation was successful. It's now a question of whether her heart will hold up."

Bruce offered to spend the night in the hospital and suggested that Livia and Vera go home to rest. But the only one to leave was George, who had to appear before a Race-Track committee at nine in the morning. Livia had an eight o'clock call on the set, but Bruce promised to explain her absence to the casting director.

The three waited in a nearby room. Two girls tried to rest on a narrow bed. Bruce stretched out on a small white hospital chair. A nurse came for them at four in the morning. Mrs. Clarkson was conscious, but dying.

"I want to speak to Livia alone," Mrs. Clarkson said with great effort. Vera looked wonderingly at Livia, but moved to the other end of the hospital room.

It was hard to distinguish the words that slipped through weary Mrs. Clarkson's mouth. Livia bent close to hear.

"Earl Dixon — if you should see him," it was several minutes before she could continue—"have nothing to do with him. . . . He's bad." Livia would not tell her mother of her meeting with the drunken fellow. Her mother was upset enough. "Now the words were too jumbled to understand. Livia gently wiped her mother's forehead.

"Sh! Mother," she whispered. "Don't worry. Everything is all right; don't worry."

"But he isn't dead," whispered Mrs. Clarkson.

"I know," said Livia.

"But he'll be outside your door," Livia said.

Ship's Captain Lauds Cameraman

New York, Feb. 1 — (AP)—Capt. J. F. Bolger, whose ship took fire under heavy enemy attack, has praised "the heroic and meritorious achievement" of Charles F. Gorry, Associated Press photographer who was aboard.

Mr Gorry, fearlessly, and without regard for his own personal safety, endured by fire and exploding ammunition, voluntarily joined the fire and rescue parties," Capt. Bolger wrote Kent Cooper, AP executive director. "Leaving a place of comparative safety for one of grave danger, he aided in fighting fires and rescuing personnel until the fires were extinguished. He was a surprising and inspiring influence amidst the smoke and flame.

"Then, when a call was issued for blood donations to aid the wounded, he was the first to volunteer for this additional service."

NOTED PHYSICIAN DECLARES SUICIDE

Kansas City, Feb. 1 (AP)—The theory of Dr. Frank Clendening, 56, widely-known physician, lecturer and author, that medical suicide was found in bed at his home yesterday, the throat and left arm pierced in a manner that authorities reported there was no doubt of suicide.

Detective Ben Tibbs quoted Dr. John Whitney, Dr. Clendening's friend, as saying Dr. Clendening had told him he intended to take his own life, and that the spectacular Kansas physician had been despondent and depressed lately, probably over ill health.

Dr. Clendening was best known for his syndicated column "Diet and Health," in which he expressed many unconventional ideas of his profession.

Storm Blocks Many Western Ontario Roads

Toronto, Feb. 1 (CP)—February followed the precedent set in western Ontario in previous months of this winter by hurling its first real snowstorm with a snowstorm which completely blocked many provincial highways and left others heavy and narrow.

The Ontario Department of Highways, saying that the fall averaged about four inches, warned today against highway traffic in the section of the province around Lake Erie and Huron and Georgian Bay. It said roads were open east of Hamilton, but west of that city, and including the Niagara peninsula, road conditions were said to be bad.

The most complete traffic paralysis was in the Owen Sound area where blocked roads may handicap political speakers in the Grey North by-election campaign and may reduce the vote next Monday unless they are cleared by then. The department said generally all its highways in Grey, Bruce, Wellington, Dufferin counties were blocked.

Further south in Waterloo, Perth and Huron about half the roads were blocked with drifts, other roads were heavy and narrow. West of London even the 401, main highways, No. 2 and No. 3, were blocked. East of there, these roads were heavy and narrow. In Kent, Elgin and Lambton counties practically all highways were reported to be blocked in some places.

In Hamilton area and in the Niagara Peninsula, the majority of roads were blocked, including the Queen Elizabeth Way between Niagara Falls and Port Credit. The roads in the eastern and northern sections of the province were said to be bad.

CBC TO MAKE NO CHANGE

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP)—Howard B. Chase, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Board of Governors, said yesterday in Montreal after a board meeting that it had been decided not to "disturb the status quo of broadcasting" in the city of Toronto.

He added this meant that "for the present" a Kate Smith program would not be broadcast by any Toronto station.

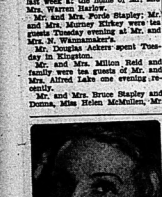
The deep snow of this winter has greatly changed many of our habits. It has caused great difficulty in wood cutting. In reaching the woods the new homes have to plunge through drifts with frequent rests, then the runner track is too narrow for the farmer to walk in and one side is apt to be up to his waist in snow. One person solved this problem by attaching a polish kettle to the runner and thereafter had a fine wide path. As the trees fall, they frequently bury themselves and must be hunted before trimming can begin. The cold weather is keeping the snow dry and more comfortable. Meanwhile wood piles are dwindling.

For hunting is impossible and no doubt this will cause many a headache to poultry raisers next summer.



Every available cutter and sleigh has been pressed into use and sets of single harness have been repaired and oiled to provide a means of conveyance for young gentlemen who are now unable to run their motor cars.

The young married people visit their neighbors more frequently than in former years and those older people, unable to leave the wintry winds, derive great pleasure from radio and telephone. Several years ago when radios were new a very comical picture showed an old gentleman listening intently to the new radio but his good wife had her ear glued to the telephone and with her hand adroitly covering the mouthpiece was providing a "Let Pa have his radio, I'll stick to the telephone."

But the children have had the most glorious winter, skiing and coasting. Several old horses have had an exciting Winter prancing around on cobbled up outfits. One father confesses that from about Wednesday he always gives Old Bess an extra ration, of oats so that she will be well prepared for her part of a stirring weekend.

CLEAR 30 MILES RHINE LINE AT STRASBOURG
ZHUKOV MASSES FORCES NEAR FRANKFURT

U.S. Troops Probe Deeper Into Centre Of Siegfried Line

Thinly-Defended Front Suggests Abandonment

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 2 —(AP)— United States army front troops cleared 30-miles of the left bank of the Rhine south of Strasbourg today and laid a heavy artillery barrage on the Neufrisach railroad escape bridge from less than a mile away.

In the centre of the western front, the United States 1st and 3rd armies probed deeper into the thinly-manned Siegfried Line and advanced up to two miles in its fringes on the western slopes of the Eifel mountains opposite the late Ardennes bulge.

Half a dozen German hamlets were taken; more lines of dragon teeth tank barriers were passed; scores of pillboxes—many undefended—were captured.

The passive German resistance in the centre strengthened the suspicion that the enemy might be falling back to the Rhine, from 20 to 60 miles east of present battle lines in the centre and north.

An announcement from 6th Army Group Headquarters told of the victory month of operations, in an area manned until recently by 25,000 reichist Germans, troops.

The threat to the Alsatian capital was all but dissipated, for gains also were made in the north, pushing the Germans to points about 25 miles away from Strasbourg.

French 1st Army troops fought to near Hatten, on the road to Neufrisach. There, one of the few standing bridges, railroad bridge crosses to Breisach in Germany, protected by fortifications atop the 1,500-foot Kaiserstuhl Hill. The ridge there is from 1[illegible] to 220 yards wide, 20 feet high and partly banked.

Colmar itself was almost surrounded and Allied troops fought in its suburbs. The villages of Andolsheim, Widensolen, Artzenheim, and Rustenheim, between Colmar and the Rhine, were captured; Colmar, capital of that 19th province, lies 40 miles south of Strasbourg.

North of Strasbourg United States 7th Army troops, who fought across the Moder River, overran a German tank-supported counter-attack fields Oberhoffen. Another raiding force crossed the Moder between Hagenau and Brumath, and inflicted heavy losses.

Meanwhile no change was reported on the British 2nd and 1st Canadian Army fronts to the north. Germans 84th Moving

Continued thaws slowed somewhat the United States 1st and 3rd Army onslaughts along a 40-mile section of the Siegfried Line opposite the erased Ardennes bulge. Despite their apparent weakness in the line, the Germans still were moving troops eastward and Allied air power late yesterday struck at Rhine bridges and railyards to disrupt the flow of men to eastern front.

The Americans widened their stand inside Germany by capturing Laufenfeld, and the hill mass 3 of St. Vith and a little more than seven from the heavily fortified rail centre of Prum.

The United States 3rd Army advanced up to two miles inside Germany beyond the Our River south of St. Vith, capturing Heckhausfeld, Grosslangenfeld, Winterscheid and several other German hamlets west of Prum.

The 1st and 82nd Divisions of the 1st Army resumed their probings from the Roer valley to the north, and found a few pillboxes manned. The 1st Division went through mine fields and fought heavy fire-fights east of Krinkelt. No Germans were found but the 82nd's early morning mortar fire was encountered.

North of the 40-mile section of the Siegfried Line under attack a 37-mile string of the fortifications already had been captured. This line runs from Prum and Bitburg northwest of the Roer river town of Lindlar to the Erft canal and sector southeast of Aachen.

At points outside the Ardennes mountains, the 3rd Army had advanced from 2 to 3 miles into German Prum and three inside the Reich.

The 1st and 82nd Divisions of the 1st Army resumed their probings from the Roer valley to the north, and found a few pillboxes manned. The 1st Division went through mine fields and fought heavy fire-fights east of Krinkelt. No Germans were found but the 82nd's early morning mortar fire was encountered.

North of the 40-mile section of the Siegfried Line under attack a 37-mile string of the fortifications already had been captured. This line runs from Prum and three inside the Reich.

At the extreme northern flank of the 3rd Army, dispatches said that the Germans were pulling back swiftly into the main Siegfried Line forts. Many pillboxes were abandoned. Some had protected 155-millimetre cannon shelled those which were defended.

LANDING SOUTH OF MANILA PUTS SQUEEZE ON JAPS

Second Invasion In 48 Hours Catches Enemy by Surprise; Slight Resistance

Southwest Pacific Advance Command, Feb. 2 —(AP)—Manila was in a trap today.

United States 8th Army invasion troops fashioned a pincers on the Philippines capital Thursday morning by landing on the Batangas Province coast 61 road miles southwest of the city while 6th Army Spearheads drove to within a few miles of Manila on the north.

The 11th Airborne Division swept ashore without landing craft and nearly unopposed along five miles of Batangas Bay coast line and quickly pressed eastward toward 2,-500-foot Tagaytay Ridge, which commands fine highways leading to Manila from the Cavite Naval Base in Manila Bay, 32 miles away.

A communique reported today that this third Luzon invasion was second by the 8th Army in 48 hours again caught the Japanese by surprise.

"We landed without loss", the communique announced, explaining that the Japanese had pulled off the possibility of the enemy troops south of Manila hitting those of the 6th Army and definitely outflanks the enemy's defence lines in Southern Luzon".

The first wave of 11th Division troops hit the shore without firing a shot at 8.30 a.m., and took the town of Nasugbu where Filipinos welcomed them.

"It wasn't a totally bloodless landing as it was Monday's invasion of the Zambales coastline to the north, but it was definitely one of the easiest", the communique said. "Americans were ashore, Japanese in caves to the north brought machine-gun and 77-mm. fire to bear on the landing forces. This was quickly silenced by naval gunfire and mobile artillery".

The invasion, fashioning the jaws of a trap north and south of Manila, caught the 14th Area Army United States 6th Army spearheads from the north and Angat River 25 road miles north of the capital.

Patrols were reported operating freely in advance and could well be on the approaches to Malolos, 20 miles from Manila.

Eighth Army troops which landed just north of Subic Bay on Monday night to the west captured the captured Olongapo naval base against light resistance.

These troops are heading toward a junction with a 6th Army column advancing westward from San Fernando, 25 miles away, and between troops in the Bataan peninsula, which forms one jaw of Manila Bay.

Washington, Feb. 2 — (AP). United States Army casualties since Dec. 7, 1941 neared the 750,000 mark today, with deaths reported 650,420, and injuries reported 99,580.

The army's total, plus the latest navy figure of 96,222, puts the overall combat casualty figure at 727,-642, an increase of 35,393 over last week's report. The army accounted for 32,460 of the rise.

LANDING UNOPPOSED

Kandy, Ceylon, Feb. 2 —(CP)— Members of the 5th Indian Corps have made an unopposed landing on the small island of Saqu Kyun in the Bay of Bengal, 30 miles southeast of Akyab, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Saqu Kyun is off the southernmost tip of Akyab Island, about 120 miles south of Akyab, British forces recently made an unopposed landing on the north end of Ramree.

Meanwhile, the Japanese launched new counter-attacks against Allied positions on the Arakan front in an effort to regain control of an inland corridor southwards from Myahaung and Minbya, an Allied communique said.

Immediate Approval of Plans to Rule Reich May Be Urged by Churchill at Big-3 Meet

By JOHN A. PARRIS
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 2 — (AP) — On the basis of reports indicating the possibility of early political and perhaps military disintegration of large sections of northern Germany, Prime Minister Churchill will urge immediate approval at the Big Three meeting of plans for ruling the Reich.

This information came today from an entirely reliable London source. It was emphasized this statement should not be interpreted to mean that Germany as a whole would collapse in a matter of weeks, or that a quick surrender of Nazi die-hards could be expected.

Nevertheless it was made clear that a sense of real urgency has been lent to the Big Three session.

Reports of Possible Disintegration in Reich

This source said Mr. Churchill was operating on the basis of reports from inside Germany that much of the political machinery already had broken down in the northern areas and that the process of decay would be accelerated by war developments.

These reports came from sources which hitherto have insisted that the Gestapo grip was too powerful to allow a political breakup.

But there seemed every reason to believe large portions of the German Army would fight on, even if the civilian population went to pieces.

The reports reaching Mr. Churchill were understood to indicate that the German military forces were planning to retreat if necessary to the south and fight in an organized way from hedgehog strongholds that would be geographically and in part, industrially self-sufficient.

Last-Ditch Stand Rumors

For such a last-ditch stand the Germans have been reported establishing an elaborate resistance centre covering 10,000 square miles in mountainous parts of Bavaria and Austria. It would be difficult to storm and would offer few good targets for bombing operations.

Inside this line, it was reported, is an even more elaborate stronghold covering more than 100 square miles and centred on Berchtesgaden, Hitler's hilltop retreat.

This information and other facts which cannot now be revealed will, it was understood, lead Mr. Churchill to ask that plans for the future of Germany be co-ordinated and made ready for immediate application when the occasion arises.

Says 'Anything May Happen'

One Whitehall official asserted that "anything might happen in Germany." "Reports we have received," he said, "show the people have reached the very depths of despair."

London, Feb. 2 — (CP) — The Germans have begun a propaganda campaign against any "surrender now" demand from the Big Three conference, which the Berlin radio said may already be under way.

The Germans "have expected" such a demand for some time because the Allies never realize that the unconditional surrender policy was a major blunder, a Berlin broadcast asserted today.

"The contents of this proclamation the German people are easily foreseen," said the broadcast. "It will state that the Germans must stamp out the German people but National Socialism and the Fuehrer. It will hint that once the Germans people are rid of the Nazi movement they will be allocated a rightful place among the nations.

"All this is nothing new. In the last year of the First World War the German people heard similar proclamations. At that time it was said the western powers merely wished to destroy Prussian militarism and the Kaiser. As soon as these were liquidated and the German had accepted a democratic regime Germany would have her rights restored.

Berlin, joining the international guessing game about the Big Three conference, ventured the statement that it already is in session—probably in Bucharest.

STATA ON STAND IN OWN DEFENCE ON MURDER COUNT

Two Statements Made by Stata to O.P.P. Officers Read to Court

Sarnia, Ont., Feb. 2. (CP)— The trial of Irwin William Stata, 19-year-old Oshadan Army private charged with the murder of Mrs. Austin Smith of Detroit, yesterday saw the young soldier take the stand in his own defence. Mrs. Smith was found by her husband in their summer cottage at Port Franks, Ont., Sept. 11, 1944. She had been shot by a .303 rifle bullet.

Two statements allegedly made by Stata to Provincial Police were read to the court, but were later excluded. Stata admitted giving the statements saying he was told "things would be easier" if he did so, but he would not swear to the truth of the statements.

Both were admitted into evidence by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay.

In the second statement, Stata gave details of how he came to shoot Mrs. Smith. The statement said he obtained his left Army Superpersuh, where he was stationed, Sunday night, Sept. 10, loading rifle and cartridges with him. He said he took the ammunition with the intention of going into the woods and firing them.

"Early in the morning . . . I followed along a small creek which led me out to the lakeshore. The first thing that drew my attention was the car (Mrs. Smith's Buick car) standing beside the house. I walked up to the house, looked into the car and saw no keys. I had in mind taking the car and going home to Ontario. While I walked around the house, I looked into the window. There was a bedroom but no one in bed.

I figured there was anyone at home. So I opened the screen door, walked in and through the kitchen. "Just before passing through the door into the kitchen this lady stood with the pistol in her hand at my back. Well, the minutes and seconds passed and she charged the rifle not meaning to hit her . . . after I was told I had done I took the keys and drove away."

The statement said that Stata drove to Kingston where he saw his brother and left the car. He then travelled by freight train to Toronto.

He was arrested at his mother's home in Toronto on Sept. 14.

Tokyo Says Report Of Raid Is "Nonsense"

London, Feb. 2 — (AP) — Tokyo radio today described as "sheer nonsense" reports that the Japanese Embassy staff had left Berlin.

Reds Say Storming Of Oder River 'Not Too Distant'

Germans Clamp Blackout On News From Oder Area

By JAMES F. KING
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 2 — (AP)— Russian forces have made one attempt to storm across the Oder in their onslaught toward Berlin, a German broadcast said today, and y other Berlin reports indicated Soviet patrols might already have crossed.

The German high command claimed a bridgehead in new fighting in the sector as one illitary commander of a Red Army attempted crossing in the area of Kustrin, 40 miles east of Berlin.

Berlin radio accounts said Marshal Gregory Zhukov had brought up strong forces along the river on both sides of Frankfurt and that assaults to reduce the fortress of Kustrin were under way.

The German communique, however, completely omitting mention of the sector, said the Russians themselves are stopped in East Prussia, had been checked after hard fighting and Moscow dispatches said Zhukov had run into thick minefields and a hard shell of German armor along his 90-mile front threatening the German capital.

Heavy fighting raged on a line from the area of Glogau, on the Oder 115 miles southeast of Berlin to Kustrin, in the angle of the Oder and Wartbe east and slightly north of Berlin.

Claim Russians Repulsed.

There was no further report of the situation at Kustrin, were the Germans yesterday said the Russians drove into that highly fortified city and reached the Oder but just to the northwest in a sector 30 to 40 miles from the capital.

The Germans claimed they had thrown the Russians out of Kustrin, and that thousands of German men, women and children were being evacuated to the west. The great system of trenches to make Berlin a "bloody disappointment" for the Russians.

Moscow dispatches reported, however, that Zhukov was working to bring up stronger forces, was massing his artillery and stood within close behind his tank spearheads and that the invasion of the Oder is not too distant a project."

Fires raged in the threatened capital from an R.A.F. night bombing, heightening the confusion of battle, and Berlin's overcrowded roads from Berlin jammed with traffic bound for the front.

Although the Germans claimed the Russians had been thrown out of Kustrin, 40 miles from Berlin, they referred to this as the "first time" they indicated that strong Soviet forces might have been brought up for a large assault.

The Russians were inside Germany proper, the Neumarkt area and Pomerania on a 375-mile front. But it was the Germans who told of the closest approach to Berlin.

List Objectives.

By Moscow account these were the distances the Red army from these immediate objectives on the Berlin front:

Kustrin — About 11 miles, from the sector southwest of Dubringhof. This would be about 21 miles from Berlin and the nearest approach yet reported in Moscow dispatches.

Seelenzig, in the Warthe-Oder bend — Four to five miles, from the region west of Seelenzig. The Germans reported the Russians in the Zielenzig area several days ago.

Furstenberg, nine miles south of Zielenzig — Seven to eight miles, from west of Lagow.

Furstenburg, on the Oder about 15 miles south of Frankfurt — Nine miles, from the Gritesel area.

Moscow dispatches by Soviet tanks had knifed between these hot points for significant victories.

The spearheads therefore were considerably closer to Berlin than the 51 to 89 miles indicated by these positions.

This was through these holes, Moscow said, that the most interesting threat was developing with Soviet tanks and infantry pushing 15 miles of the fortified city of Frankfurt on the Oder, 40 miles from Berlin.

Along the front of 90 miles Zhukov had developed an impressive operating area from which he might strike out in any storm across the Oder at any one of a number of points.

Both Moscow and Berlin reflected the fact that the critical phase of the Russian offensive was near, the Moscow radio urging upon the Germans to surrender and avert "unspeakable misfortune" like Nazis—hinting at strong counter-measures—promised "the bloodiest disappointment" ever dealt troops for the Russians.

The Nazi High Command said Marshal Gregory Zhukov's troops already had reached the curving Oder River northwest of Kustrin, which would place the Russian 30 to 40 miles from Berlin. Two years ago today Zhukov scored a great victory over the Germans at Stalingrad, capturing 1,300 tanks to the east—when he accepted the surrender of the German 6th Army. German forces which had besieged that city for months.

While German commentators painted Berlin as overjoyed, neutral travellers arriving in Stockholm said the refugee-paced city was static-stricken and that anti-aircraft defences were lying stripped of their guns for the fight against the oncoming Russians.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told the German people "the just future would like" to believe the Germans will seek peace formally.

He summed up the case by saying:

"Officers cannot lead us corporatively into your lines as much as they can lead you into theirs. Because immediately their families would be executed . . ."

Meanwhile reporters had heard by the grapevine that the last of 13 to all officers especially in the July 30 attempt on Hitler's life have been executed.

There are only two groups who could, with authority, ask for peace, the Nazi party leaders and the German armed forces. The other is the Nazi regime. The purge following the July 30 attempt against Hitler seems to have been so thorough that all military leaders with any political sense apparently were executed.

Such a surrender by the Nazi regime seems extremely unlikely. Their only hope of postponing the evil day for themselves lies in prolonging the struggle.

Break-up of German Army Seen As Main Hope for Early Peace

By LOUIS P. M. LOCHNER
(Chief of the Former Associated Press Bureau in Berlin)

On the Western Front, Feb. 2— (AP) — Peace with Germany, according to the best informed opinion can be hastened only by the disintegration of the German army into the piece-meal surrender of progressively large units. Formal terms and a peace offer by Germany seems quite unlikely.

My conviction in this respect was strengthened after I had an opportunity today to talk privately with a whole "cage" of prisoners of war who had come straight from battle.

Without exception, they said the October men in their units were sick and tired of the war and that but one hope — early peace.

When I asked about their officers and the likelihood of whole companies and regiments surrendering they said nothing could be expected of the officers, although many of them were absolutely through with the war. Some claimed even their commanding general would surrender except for one thing. That one thing explains why, on the basis of evidence available to me, I do believe the Germans will seek peace formally.

Large-Scale Attacks On Convoys Predicted

London, Feb. 2. (CP)—Information received from neutral and underground sources indicates the Germans are ready to launch U-boat attacks on convoys en route to France and Russia, The Daily Telegraph said today.

Estimates have been made in Stockholm, the newspaper said, that the German navy has a total of 400 serviceable submarines and is building new ones at the rate of 20 ships a month. Some of these, it was thought underground said many were based at Bergen and Trondheim.

Under the submarine, many of them long-range, 1,500-tonners, were said to be fitted with a number of new devices.

Defence Minister McNaughton told a Grey North by-election audience Jan. 26 that "today the North Atlantic is, as it hasn't been for months past, a happy hunting ground for submarines". He said ships were being torpedoed day by day.

Reds Storming Of Oder River 'Not Too Distant'

Germans Clamp Blackout On News From Oder Area

By JAMES F. KING
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 2 — (AP)— Russian forces have made one attempt to storm across the Oder in their onslaught toward Berlin, a German broadcast said today, and y other Berlin reports indicated Soviet patrols might already have crossed.

The German high command claimed a bridgehead in new fighting in the sector as one illitary commander of a Red Army attempted crossing in the area of Kustrin, 40 miles east of Berlin.

Berlin radio accounts said Marshal Gregory Zhukov had brought up strong forces along the river on both sides of Frankfurt and that assaults to reduce the fortress of Kustrin were under way.

The German communique, however, completely omitting mention of the sector, said the Russians themselves are stopped in East Prussia, had been checked after hard fighting and Moscow dispatches said Zhukov had run into thick minefields and a hard shell of German armor along his 90-mile front threatening the German capital.

Heavy fighting raged on a line from the area of Glogau, on the Oder 115 miles southeast of Berlin to Kustrin, in the angle of the Oder and Wartbe east and slightly north of Berlin.

Claim Russians Repulsed.

There was no further report of the situation at Kustrin, were the Germans yesterday said the Russians drove into that highly fortified city and reached the Oder but just to the northwest in a sector 30 to 40 miles from the capital.

The Germans claimed they had thrown the Russians out of Kustrin, and that thousands of German men, women and children were being evacuated to the west. The great system of trenches to make Berlin a "bloody disappointment" for the Russians.

Moscow dispatches reported, however, that Zhukov was working to bring up stronger forces, was massing his artillery and stood within close behind his tank spearheads and that the invasion of the Oder is not too distant a project."

Fires raged in the threatened capital from an R.A.F. night bombing, heightening the confusion of battle, and Berlin's overcrowded roads from Berlin jammed with traffic bound for the front.

Although the Germans claimed the Russians had been thrown out of Kustrin, 40 miles from Berlin, they referred to this as the "first time" they indicated that strong Soviet forces might have been brought up for a large assault.

The Russians were inside Germany proper, the Neumarkt area and Pomerania on a 375-mile front. But it was the Germans who told of the closest approach to Berlin.

CNR Engineer, Fireman Killed When Two Locomotives Plunge Down Bank

Brantford, Feb. 2 —(CP)— Officials of the Canadian National Railways today sought to determine the cause of the derailment of a Chicago-bound train last night in which two members of the train crew were killed.

The train, drawn by two locomotives, left the rails about a quarter of a mile east of Brantford station. It was travelling at about the hour slowing down for the Brantford stop. Two locomotives and two express cars plunged down a 30-foot embankment. One baggage car went part way down the embankment. Seven other cars were derailed but remained upright.

Engineer John A. Jarvis and fireman C. Mayhew, crew of the second of the two locomotives, were killed. Engineer George McGillicks of Hamilton suffered lacerations and shock and was badly scalded. His condition is serious.

Two passengers—Stanfield Wright (home town unavailable) of the United States Navy and R. West of Windsor — were injured when the dining car employee suffered minor injuries. The dining car employee was scalded.

Most passengers were shaken up but escaped injury. Largely because all the passenger coaches remained upright.

An official statement issued in Toronto by J. C. Fenton, vice-president and general manager of the central region of the C.N.R., said the accident occurred at 8.52 p.m. The train was in charge of conductor George Boyden, of Sarnia.

It said also that relief locomotives from Hamilton took the cars which were not derailed on to their destination, via London and Guelph. Night eastbound trains bound for Toronto were detoured via Stratford and special trains operated from Toronto to Montreal to accommodate delayed passengers.

Frank Taverna of the United States Navy, a passenger on the train, said it came to a stop "within a few seconds". The navy posting which lifted us from our seats."

Taverna said he was a former member of the Canadian Army overseas and was "glad to get off the first down the embankment to the side of the pilot engine.

"One of the firemen was on top of the cab", said Taverna. "We heard the engine crying, 'Help me, for God's sake, help me'.

"We were afraid the engine would explode but Hughes and I climbed into the cab. We found the man on his knees and it appeared to me he was in some distance back in the engine. We helped him out and carried him up the bank".

Both these men were taken to hospital in an ambulance.

Members of the Brantford Fire Department removed Jarvis and Mayhew's bodies from the engine cab. One of the two was still alive but he died later.

Both engines were damaged. The undercarriage was ripped away from the tender and trucking was strewn for more than a city block along the right-of-way.

Charles Gamble of Brantford, a fireman on the Canadian Pacific Railways, was the engineer of the ambulance, said "the road from the station to the scene I thought the roof was coming in".

A fire broke out in the pilot engine after the crash, but crew members were out but it was soon brought under control.

Hundreds of citizens came to the scene.

RETURNS LOST WALLET

For the second time in as many days a person to lose a wallet and have it returned intact by the owner was reported to city police. Mr. Thompson took the purse to the police station, but at that time no report of such a loss had been reported to the authorities. Current Balance Of Shannonville Fair Totals $1,070

Misinterpretation of the financial report of the Shannonville Agricultural Society as presented in a news story in the Intelligencer is resulting in numbers of inquiries being received by members of the above organization, it has been indicated to this newspaper.

According to the report appearing in the press the operating balance for 1944 was approximately $650 and this is correct. However, the report did not state the current balance which totals $1,070. The greater portion of this amount is made up of balances carried forward from other years.

Receipts for the year grossed approximately $2,000 with $450 being paid out in prize money, while the society also gave a grant of $50 to the local Red Cross branch.

Officials of the fair board, President Sydney Fitzgerald and Secretary Kenneth Vivian, expressed their appreciation to merchants for the donation of prizes to the fair contributed measurably to its success of last year, and to others who worked for the benefit of the organization.

Veteran Airman Thinks Belleville Motorists Selfish

If Belleville motorists were like Belleville pedestrians, they would be selfish as if they had been subjected to a flying machine, to a blow torch, they needn't blame the sub-zero weather.

It will just be a verbal blast from an irate Westerner who thinks that they are a frigid, unfriendly crowd, and the sooner he gets to the west, the better he will feel.

It appears that the Western gentleman in question, he comes from Saskatoon, who was badly wounded overseas, and who had a wife and baby in hospital here, has been constantly injured by motorists leaving the hospital when he signals a request for a lift downtown. As many as four-ten party empty cars have refused him and then one offered a lift.

He enlisted in the RCAF in 1941 and attained the rank of warrant officer. He was a tail gunner in a bomber and received flights over occupied territory before overseas service and thought he is one of four men of his original group of 82 who have survived the hazardous tour. He was wounded twice, wears a silver wing for his flight over the raid on the Dieppe show. Recently he suffered a broken arm, a result of a fall.

Thats are not available at all times he says, and walking with a bus is a physical difficulty when one wishes to travel.

And Belleville motorists are a high-hat crowd. Some, he admits have asked him if he isn't in the army, adding he is a pretty healthy looking sort of an object.

"There's a bus service chum, why don't you use it?"

And he had about it. He thinks the local drivers are a self-centered, selfish crowd. Just won't stop and give a fellow a lift. In fact they just don't know there's a war on.

Incidentally he is married to a Belleville girl also, as was before mentioned is a patient in the hospital here.

So how about it Belleville motorists? Perhaps you think the Canadian he may be a Canadian who sits done his 'tilt' and badly needs a lift. So keep your peeled for a nice appearing young man anywhere near the highway, who would just like to sample some of the milk of human kindness which you have to way to make this troublesome world a nicer place to live in.

City Health Conditions Good During Past Year Says Inspector

9,575 Quarts of Milk Consumed Daily in City and at R.C.A.F. Stations

With the exception of an increase of 45 cases of communicable disease over the 1943 total, city sanitation conditions were reported to be in a satisfactory condition during 1944, Inspector of Health H. Kelsey, reported to the council at the meeting of Health last night.

There were 144 cases of Contagious diseases in the city last year including chicken pox 70; measles 56; mumps, 6; scarlet fever, 10; whooping cough, 10 and spinal meningitis, 1. The total of 100 cases was in excess by the amount stated above over 1943.

Ice samples taken before cutting commenced were found to be good. Samples of water taken from the municipal supply were reported to be in Class "A" although other water samples taken from two wells were found to be in lower classes and ordered closed by the Medical Officer of Health.

Milk Inspection

With Mr. O. V. Ball, of the Engineering Division of the Ontario Department of Health, Inspector Kelsey inspected city dairies and creameries.

They were found to be in a generally satisfactory condition but suggestions and other information were given to owners. There are 9,575 quarts of milk consumed daily in the city and adjoining R.C.A.F. stations. Samples are taken each month from dairies and creameries for the purpose of bacterial laboratory for analysis. Reports of these samples over the year were good.

The City Tourist Camp was inspected and found to be in good sanitary condition as was the swimming pool in Victoria Park.

Restaurants and hotel washrooms were inspected at regular intervals and found satisfactory with a few exceptions. These conditions were corrected on subsequent inspections. Washrooms at service stations were found to be sanitary while theatre managers of the city have carried out health regulations. The garbage collection has been satisfactorily food group control, the inspector stated, and although there are a few places causing trouble no harsh measures had to be resorted to.

War Veteran Arrested On Shooting Charge

Bancroft, Feb. 2 (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer)—MacPherson Douglas, wounded returned war veteran residing at Fort Stewart, was arraigned in police court here today by Provincial Police on a charge of unlawfully wounding and shooting Corporal Lloyd Lemley and Cecil Loney, ages of Carlow township. Douglas was remanded to the Hastings County jail on remand for one week.

Loney is lying in the Red Cross Hospital here suffering from gun wounds in the right leg after being shot in Douglas' home late Wednesday night. Lemley and a shotgun pellets entered the upper left leg of Mr. Loney's right leg, while others passed through the window. The police say that the gun was discharged at close range.

Arrested in Home.

Douglas was arrested by Sergt. J. F. Hackett and Provincial Constable S. W. Palmateer as he sat on the floor in his home beside the gun on Thursday afternoon. Douglas who walks with a decided limp from the effects of wounds received in Italy, did not attempt to resist arrest. "I know why you are here but I don't remember anything about shooting the gun went off," Douglas is said by police to have stated when arrested.

Constable Fred Stewart indicates Douglas had been drinking during the past few days and when requested to leave a relative's home refused to do so. Reeve Loney was called to the home and refused to leave. Douglas then started to return to his home, which he did. However, it is alleged he followed Loney and became annoyed with the family dog and picked up a shotgun threatening to shoot the dog. Mr. Loney's step-son became frightened and telephoned for Reeve Loney to return.

Gave First Aid.

The latter arrived Loney walked into the Douglas home as Douglas allegedly fired the gun. Reeve Loney charge partially hitting Mr. Loney in the leg. He then immediately after the shooting Douglas dropped the gun and walked into his home. Mr. Loney attended him home. Investigating police stated the line of fire indicated considerable skill in placing Douglas might have been attempting to shoot a deer while under the influence of liquor.

After accused has been held without bail at Belleville and will appear on the wounding and injuring charges. Douglas faces a charge at Bancroft on Feb. 7th, before Magistrate A. C. Donnan announced today. In the meantime Mr. Loney is a patient in the Bancroft hospital under the care of Dr. Anderson of Fort Stewart. He is suffering from loss of blood and is in a weakened condition. Douglas is a veteran having been wounded in Italy.

Fine Letter Tells Of Great Spirit Of Blind Soldier

Bonarlaw, Feb. 2 — The following letter, written by Pte. Lloyd Rice, Radcliffe regarding her son, Rynard Radcliffe, who died in Belleville General Hospital in 1940, went overseas in 1941 and was wounded in Sicily, is dated July 26th, 1944, losing the sight of both eyes.

St. Dunstan's (For Blinded Men and Women Blinded on War Service)
Dec. 25th, 1944.

Dear Mrs. Radcliffe:

Mrs. Leonard, has asked me to send you the enclosed letter which he has typed himself. As it is only the third letter that he has typed I think that it is a very good effort.

He is a nurse at St. Dunstan's and you son has been in my care quite a lot. You have a son of whom you can be very proud for he has tremendous courage and the right spirit for the future. You must not worry about him for he is very cheerful and happy.

I will thing a lot of him here and are proud to have had the honor of looking after him and I will certainly make his way in life. I have heard such a lot about your son, Gunner Lee and others that I feel I almost know you. Now that your picture I know just what you look like. I am sure you have Christmas time after the way so perhaps one day I may meet you.

I will be spending Christmas with my mother and family and I myself am looking forward to the most southerly part of England.

The weather is very wet and we have been able to spend most of the time out in the open.

On Christmas Eve we went to a concert and the Canadian Army son was invited onto the platform to speak to the audience. He received a tremendous welcome. He simply brought the house down. He is a fine young land. I only wish that you were here with him. You would indeed have been proud of him for he spoke magnificently. Soon you will have him with you. Please do not be sad when you first greet him for he has his blindness so very well that you have no cause to feel unduly sorry for him.

Courage is one of the greatest things in life and he has lots and lots of it.

I have been on the staff of St. Dunstan's for a long time now and have known many boys but none with more brave as your son.

With best wishes,
Yours very sincerely,
Wilhelmina M. Warhurst.

TABERNACLE U.C. REPORTS YEAR OF MARKED SUCCESS

Rev. Dr. Nyman Gives Sketch of Church's History at Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of Tabernacle United Church was held Wednesday, January 31st, when 150 sat down to dinner. It was a good year in every way for the church. There was an increase in contributions in every department and the year ended with a comfortable, surplus. Reports of their progress were given by all the various organizations and they gave an impression and a picture of the very great activities of the congregation and were full of human interest. The financial statement, multigraphed, was in the hands of the congregation. It was unanimously decided to undertake some repairs and improvements. Even in spite of the whole meeting was most harmonious and happy.

During the evening the ladies' Missionary Circle served a banquet in a very fine number and Mr. H. B. Moorman contributed two vocal solos.

Unanimous votes of thanks were tendered to the ladies and special gifts to the church through the years to the choir, organist and leaders for their instructive work, to the women of the congregation who provided the dinner.

History of Church.

Dr. Myers gave a sketch of the history of the church based on authentic records. The Methodist Episcopal Church in Belleville came to the "Bay of Quinte" area as early as 1791. Belleville was established as a separate circuit in 1817. They built their first church in 1819 which was a rough building 30 x 50 feet erected on government land by the settlers and was on the site where the Crown some years later. A new building was put up on this original site in 1831. This is now known as 132 Pinnacle Street. This property was sold in 1870 to the Wesleyan Methodist Church which is now the Methodist Episcopal congregation built on the property on Church Street, some of which is now occupied by the Coca Cola Co. The present church was bought in 1873 and the present church building was erected in 1874.

The Methodist Episcopal church had a Sabbath School before Rev. Albert College) in 1857. They established a Sabbath School in 1826. They bought a plot of land from Capt. Ketcheson for the Dundas Street (opposite Charles Street) which was sold by the City of Belleville for a park or open breathing space."

Members of the trustees who acted on all these transactions were also recorded.

Foxboro United Church Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the United Church congregation was held in the Sunday School Rooms on Wednesday, Jan. 26, when proceedings were opened with a pot-luck supper. A very enjoyable and social time was spent around the tables and in clearing away the dishes before attending down for the business period. The chair was taken by the minister, Rev. E. M. Cook, and Mr. Murney Reynolds was re-elected secretary. Mr. Cook reviewed some of the events of the past year and made sympathetic reference to the loss of two members by death, Mr. Jonathan Wilson, one of the Elders who gave long years of service, and Mrs. John Gowsell, one of the brightest and willing workers in the congregation. Reference was also made to the recent sad illness of Mrs. Ross Chapman, the wife of the Rural Dean of Hastings, and Mr. Cook moved that a letter of sympathy be sent to her in the middle of life. It was again arranged to write to all the boys and girls who are on active service from the congregation which includes about twenty-four names.

Three of our boys have come safely out of catastrophes at sea, two of which were officially announced this week. Congratulations were tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wickett, the latter's parents, who were commemorating the thirty-ninth anniversary of their marriage.

Mrs. Walter Wickett reported for the W.A., of which Mrs. Walter Scott is again president, and showed an income of $280, which included a contribution of $25 to the Fred Victor Mission Home in Toronto, and $360 in the bank.

Mrs. Geo. Frost, W.M.S. president for 1943, reported for Mrs. W. Scott, treasurer, and also for the Mission Band a total of $235. The Sunday School has a membership of 106 and had an income of $194, of which $24 were for Missions. The Y.P.U., a newly-organized group with Miss Phyllis Dafoe, president, gave $30 to Missions, which is the same as before the many older young people left for the services and war industries.

The Church treasurer, Mr. J. W. Daniels, who has filled this position for nearly thirty years, reported an income of $1526 with a balance on hand of $114. Mr. R. Morton, treasurer of Mr. & Mrs. for the Charge, gave an incomplete statement of $778. The grass income of the church totals $2745. Stewards elected for three years were: W. E. Yunmans, Wm. John Read, Clare Pinkle and Wm. Cooke. Elders re-elected for three years were Harry Dafoe and Clifford Wilson. Missionary treasurer, R. Morton. Finance committee—Harry Dafoe, Walter Wickett and John Gowsell.

Mr. Murney Reynolds was thanked and congratulated for the excellent records he has kept as church secretary and J. W. Daniels for the efficient manner in which he has kept the financial records and Rev. and Mrs. Cook for their leadership and services. A very pleasant and successful gathering closed with the National Anthem and the Benediction.

Official Board Meets

On Monday evening the Official Board of the Foxboro Charge met and reviewed the year 1944 and planned for 1945. Mr. Ben Hoover was re-elected recording secretary and appointed as representative to the Charge. Rev. Church, Foxboro, Halloway and Marsh Hill, has maintained its work in a satisfactory manner and has an aggregate income of $4425, this includes about $400 from a special effort made by Halloway congregation for the renovation of their church.

Citizens' Forum Views Films

Foxboro Citizens' Forum met at the home of Mrs. Clare Pinkle on Thursday evening. A public period listened to the broadcast "What Happens Today on the Land", and Mr. Gray, of the Farm Co-operative showed three films of moving pictures, one on the Co-op., a second new modes of education, "The Rustlers of Grain", and one on "Rural Life". This last was especially beautiful. Lunch was served and a social time spent. Mr. Harry Wickett invited the group to meet at her home next month.

Halloway Church Holds Dinner

Halloway, Feb. 2 — The United Church congregation, who are in process of renovating their church, provided a most delightful supper dinner in the church on Wednesday which enjoyed a most pleasant event. About one hundred and thirty people gathered from the surrounding neighborhoods to partake of what proved to be largely a chicken chowder with many delicious dishes including a large variety of delicious pies. The evening is beginning to look bright and inviting with a complete replastering and the upper decorating in shades of pale green and gold. The minister, Rev. E. M. Cook gave a short address in which he thanked the people for their patience and told how the local families had given $200 and done a great deal of the work by voluntary labor. The church is nearly 100 years old and has one member, Mrs. G. Carson, who was a member for twelve years before this church was erected, having moved now approaching close to one hundred years.

The financial returns from this event were $130. It is intended to complete the work and rededicate the church as soon as possible.

M'NAUGHTON LEFT ARMY 'NOT BY MY OWN DESIRE'

Makes Statement in Reply to Bracken's That He "Left Canadian Army Under Cloud"

Owen Sound, Feb. 2 —(CP)— Defence Minister McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian army overseas, said yesterday that he had not left the army by "my own desire or will."

Gen. McNaughton made the assertion in a prepared statement on the reinforcement question, issued in reply to a speech made here yesterday by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

He said Mr. Bracken had stated that "I left the Canadian army under a cloud."

"I left the Canadian army, and not by my own desire or will," said Gen. McNaughton. "I have been very careful that this should be understood by all insofar as it lay within my power to make the, situation known.

"I am well aware that it does not lie with me to give the details at this time, and so I have to wait until later on but, I have seen to it that every letter and document, including the Ralston memorandum which has any bearing on this matter has been found still those who will write the history of Canada's part in this war.

"For my part, there is no reproach, no bitterness, nothing at all so far as I can see to wait until the truth is given out as it will be some day."

Winter Just Half Over Now If Candlemas Day Signs Unfailing

Local residents would be advised to pull up their coat collars; get in an extra ton or so of coal and prepare to do some extra shovelling for despite pussy willows and crows there is still considerable winter in store.

At least there is considerable winter in store if Candlemas Day, as established by friends of the hibernating animal world are correct as are its superstitions. Mr. E. Yunmans, owner of the weather which has been experienced during early February.

For today is February 2nd., and therefore Candlemas Day when the bears, the groundhogs and other hibernating animals come out of their winter lairs to have a look at the weather. If the day is cloudy, Mr. Bruin supposedly takes it that the back of the winter is about broken and decides to stay out of his lair and forage for some food. If the day is clear and he sees his shadow, he returns to his shaggy coat and holes up for another six weeks.

Well, Mr. Bruin saw his shadow when the sun broke over the horizon early this morning and then promptly momentarily at noon and if local weather forecasts are correct as designated by Candlemas Day they are advised to act accordingly. And according to old Scottish tradition, "If Candlemas Day be fair and clear, there'll be two winters in the year."

Ground Hog Faithful Gather

Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 2 — (AP) —"The groundhog faithful gathered at Punxsutawney on Candee Ridge, at seven o'clock this morning to see what the "official weather forecaster" for the world" cast his shadow—and they did see it, so they claim.

They believe in the groundhog and his weather works, this means six more weeks of winter.

The groundhog club spave this version:

"Phil saw snow from the worst winter on record covered the knob and the going was hard for those seeking the little woodchuck. Finally they heard a faint bark, got busy with pick and shovel, and removed five feet of hard-packed snow from the mouth of the burrow.

According to the club's official liar, the chuck crawled out slowly, climbed wearily up a 25-foot snowdrift, sat down and cast a shadow 13 miles long! Then the old fellow slid down the drift to their midst and said with a yawn:

"You saw 'er boys. If the length of the shadow is any indication of the length of winter, we'll all be freezing on July 4. But if the weather listens and this snow is washed off with a warm rain, you'd better prepare to be plagued with present home on this mountain, or little pests at last."

With that he scurried back into his burrow.

The War Today—
Each Ally Knows What She Owes To Others of United Nations

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
(Scholastic Staff Writer)

That old question, "Who's winning the War?" as recurrent as war itself, is making its annual bid for bidding fair to cause some trouble.

Russia has been publicly critical of the lack of help by her western allies almost from the beginning. She knows that she was left to fight most Germans and lost the most. Britain, although she was driven from the continent in 1940-41 stand, Hitler probably would have overrun the British Isles. America knows that without her neither Britain nor Russia could have made the grade.

Now a British magazine is scolding the Russian offensive during German casualty figures, saying other Russian figures "call Germans killed and captured, 30,-000,00 wounded. And a writer in Red Star, carefully edited official paper of the Russian Army, blames the Allies for keeping the western allies of dilly-dallying for non-military reasons, and the Allies are busy talk in Britain and America when they consider Russian offensive power during the American Roe River drive last Fall.

No Time for Argument.

This is not the time for argument on the merits.

Briefly it may be said that when the figures are retreating, which it was when the most questionable casualty figures appeared they envy, thought they needed such propaganda for the home front. (And that is the remembered in passing that utterly false stories on other things were put out by the Nazis by the United States officials to the American press and radio audience during the fast days of this unfortunately would weaken public confidence in the government's every real media for home front mobilization.)

Now the Russians are publicly critical of errors—failure of supply at the German border and failure to capture the fuel in Iran, regardless of the Russian offensive and the backcloth of a Hitler past, a Munich and a Pearl Harbor—that they know who she owes to the others. There is an unfathomable interdependence.

Picton Clouds of Smoke Cause Alarm

Picton, Feb. 3—Firemen were called to John St. about 9:30 p.m. when dense clouds of smoke filled the building. It was discovered that previous to lighting the furnace Mr. Dunnett had left a can of gasoline in the basement for the first time this winter, a barrel of oil had been upset in it. After the fire had been started, the oil ignited and produced dense clouds of smoke. No damage was done.

Ability To Get Supplies to Front May Decide the Fate of Berlin

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 2 —(AP)— Logistics—the military science of getting supplies to the battle-line—rather than a reinforced German defence, may decide the fate of Berlin as the present Russian offensive carries across the Oder river and the last 50 miles to the city.

That is the opinion of the best available unofficial military intelligence here, although admittedly not much is known here of the full capabilities of the Russian breakthrough or the exact intention of the Soviet command.

It is quite possible the Red army Wehrmacht to its knees, but it may well be because of this logistic problem.

The weather and the Polish mud are keys to that. The Russians have now reached that part of Germany where the road system changes with every mile — but behind them are the great supply lines of the Russian rail-line-rather than a reinforced German defence, are keys to that. Highways Reported Generally Open In West Ontario

Toronto, Feb. 2 — (CP) — Provincial highways generally were open to traffic in western Ontario today, the Department of Highways announced, although 10 of 14 highways listed as open were those which were open were heavy and narrow.

Most main arteries are open, but it will be tomorrow before we have complete information from a department official. The highways were blocked by a Wednesday night storm in which there was an average snowfall of about four inches.

However, country roads and township roads in western Ontario were reported to be badly blocked in many districts. Impassable conditions of the country roads were snowbound and two bulldozers and two snowplows which were being used to open up roads have broken down. George Unger, township road superintendent, said the equipment was being repaired and it was hoped to resume clearing away the snow soon.

U.S. SENATE VOTED TO DELAY ACTION ON APPOINTMENT

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP) — The Administration won a slender victory in the fight to salvage a controversial post for Adolf Berle when the United States Senate voted 42-41 to delay self-direct the nomination.

The Senate then voted 83-2 to take up the George Bill which would create the Government Lending Agency from the Commerce Department.

Through the delay on the nomination vote, which may extend into weeks, Wilson Compton, foe, won ultimate confirmation of the appointment of Berle to the post of the Commerce Department of its huge defence agencies.

Court-Martial Acquits Dahl Of 10 Charges

Montreal, Feb. 2 (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Carol (Wing) Dahl, internationally known flyer, was acquitted on 10 of 11 charges at a RCAF court-martial late yesterday with the courts announcing that its decision on the other four counts would be announced later.

The acquittal a majority of the charges was announced after a three-hour period, during which the court was closed, while it considered its decision. Flying Officer Dahl, then proceeded with the reopening of various pieces of government property while he was stationmander of a RAF Transport Command unit at Dorval.

All of the charges, the finding of Rooms is quickly stamped "Private" which he was found guilty, were laid to do with the disposal of the remains of crashed aircraft. It has been declared unserviceable. The other acquittal was on a charge of disposal of unserviceable motorcycle.

Charges on which decision will be announced later dealt with the disposal of a vacuum cleaner, a refrigerator and motor parts, an astro compass, signal lamps, and emergency life rafts.

The sum of money which the charges claimed had been paid Dahl by Brazilian merchants totalled 130,000 cruzieros (about $6,000) charges on which no decision was announced.

The finding of the court in these cases will be submitted to the Chief of the Air Staff, Ottawa, and subsequently will be announced there.

Flying Cmdr. V. Lynch-Staunton, summing up the defence pleas, claimed Dahl had been the victim of a Brazilian junk dealer who had failed to avoid payments for aircraft equipment which came into his possession by honest and legal documents.

The defence claimed Dahl had been approached by American officer to clear the field of crashed aircraft and Dahl had considered the junk dealer to make the best possible arrangements to get rid of the wreckage. He had been asked to sign documents to cover the transaction and the sums of money listed in the documents had been presented as an assurance of the proof of ownership legal.

It contended that natives had stolen equipment, such as life rafts, signal lamps, and other equipment, and had sold them to the dealer, who found Dahl would easily put his signature on documents without question, and had used him as a means of getting clear title to the goods.

The prosecution replied that the court would be unable to believe that a man would enter into agreement with strangers and sign documents without having a clear understanding of what he was signing.

Symbol of Nazi Fall

It has been strangely symbolic that the fall of Tannenberg in East Prussia is so closely tied in what is going to be the impending defeat of Germany. Tannenberg in August 1914 was the scene of one of the great battles of history. There Von Hindenburg, the German, defeated the Russians in the days of the Czar a few days after the outbreak of the First World War, and not got into the stride of modern war and the Russians who had stretched over a wide front in their invasion had the tragic experience of finding their plans broken down and Hindenburg gained the victory. Hindenburg became a German hero, something like the figures of German folklore with which Adolf Hitler's strange mind has been toying for many decades in his wild dream of German domination. At Tannenberg after the rise of Hitler to power as chancellor Hindenburg was laid to rest with the typical German pomp. Hitler at the time of the funeral spoke of Hindenburg as entering Valhalla, the land of departed German heroes.

But Hindenburg's rest in that very material Valhalla has been interrupted for just a few days ago as the Russian armies were moving into the province of Tannenberg the Germans say German forces took up the caskets containing the bodies of Von Hindenburg and his wife along with German flags and took them in a waiting plane of safety, after blowing up the tomb which had been built to contain the body of the German military leader of the last war.

To the Russians and to other Allies the fall of Tannenberg in the land of the Junkers is a fiery symbol of the destruction of Nazi tyranny. It heralds the collapse of the enemy whose gods have been barbaric cruelties, lust and ruthless use of power for selfish racial aggrandizement at the expense of the rest of the world.

It is again symbolic that the modern Junkers and the Nazis could not defend the Junkers homeland which is now in the hands of the Russians.

For mankind it will be the greatest blessing when the Nazi regime is wiped out.

Allies From the Hills

The Nagas, mountain tribes, are now stout allies of Britain and America. Field-Marshal Alexander was pulling his army out of Burma in 1942, Nagas labored to keep the roads open despite the monsoon washouts. When the Japs moved occupied the country they tried very hard to win the Nagas over, because their services as interpreters, government officials and policemen would have been invaluable. But the Nagas are fierce patriots and the enemy efforts met with no success.

The tribesmen have enlisted freely in the Assam Rifles and the Assam Regiment, and at one time in the Burma Rifles. Last summer the Nagas captured more Japanese prisoners than the whole of the Fourteenth Army.

Intelligence work is the Nagas' specialty. They work right among the Japs and gather priceless information for the British Staff. Many of our air strikes were based directly on information brought by the Nagas. And besides giving such valuable intelligence to the Indian army they have also fooled the Japs by giving them false information. They have frequently harbored Jap deserters and guided them into our lines, and have aided British prisoners escaping from enemy custody, and their co-operation has been an important factor in preventing the infiltration of Jap agents into India.

Villages which have been in enemy hands for as long as three months have still maintained contact. They get contact with British troops and when possible have sent runners with information. They have brought in many wounded British soldiers and airmen, on improvised bamboo stretchers, for miles through Japanese-held areas, sometimes fighting off enemy patrols to get these men through.

Much credit for the co-operation of Naga tribesmen and for the establishment of observation posts in their hill country must be assigned to a thirty-year-old London, woman, Ursula V. Graham Bower, who has lived alone among the Nagas for six years, studying them, taking photographs and collecting material for a book.

Equally stout allies are the men of the Chin Hills. For many years past the men have enlisted in a battalion of the old Burma Military Police, of which six battalions now constitute the Burma Frontier Force. Recently the Chins have also developed a system of armed levies which makes every villager a guerilla fighter.

There is also a group of tribes in the Kachin Hills who have developed a defensive organization, similar to that of the Chins. Their stories constitute the biggest of the hill forces.

Another more or less guerilla group is the Lushai brigade. The Lushais and Chins have been traditional enemies for centuries but are now united like brothers against their common enemy, the Japanese.

All of this enthusiastic support for the Allied cause says a great deal for the devoted work of generations of British officers in the remote hill country, who have created a deep mutual affection between themselves and the people they have served. These hillmen are simple people who cannot be expected to grasp the profounder implications of Axis aims, and powerful inducements to betray have been offered them by the Japanese—generous bribes on one hand and brutal torture and death on the other. These inducements have been scorned, and the Allied cause has been immensely aided by these staunch and clever allies from the hills.

Snowdrifts

(New York Times)

A snowdrift is a beautiful thing if it doesn't lie across the path you have to shovel or block the road that leads to your destination. In the open a snowdrift is the sculptured figure of the wind done in crystal. In the woodland it is the path of the wind pirouetting around the trees and curling over stumps and stones. If there is a sudden lifting of the motion, surely it would be a snowdrift, new and gleaming and softly curved.

Big drifts are magnificent. They show how the wind will walk with giant strides across the land. But there is a simpler beauty in the little drifts, the feathery drifts that trail away from the veriest weed stems in an open field. There is the diligence of the wind, the fine detail of the snowstorm; and one must look close to see them unless the long light of the morning or late afternoon has drawn its long shadows across the snow. Then they stand out in all their fine-detailed beauty.

That, of course, is the best time to see the clean, sculpturing of any drift, when the sun is low and throws the crests and the shadows lie like pools in every hollow. Then you can follow the wind along the hilltop and down the valley and see the whole pattern of its path. Nowhere else is the record so clear. Sand dunes show it, but not with the fine detail of a new-fallen snow.

A snow, of course, that you don't have to shovel or struggle through with a smooth-tired car. In those circumstances a snowdrift is just so much snow, sleek and wet and very much a nuisance. In fact, too much snow to be beautiful at all.

Price Ceilings Are Not New

(John W. Murphy, in Your Life Magazine)

There's nothing new about price ceilings, according to Dr. David Moore Robinson, head of the department of art and archeology at Johns Hopkins University. Excavating in Asia Minor several years ago, Dr. Robinson's staff uncovered a third century tablet inscribed with an injunction prohibiting an increase of more than 100 per cent in the price of bread, following a famine. And that was approximately 1,700 years ago!

"Spitchered" New R.A.F. Word

(London, Eng., Spectator)

There is going to be trouble about "spitchered." The author of the recently published official booklet on Malta says the word is R.A.F. slang, and denotes anything completely smashed up: it even added that it comes from the Maltese word "spiccha." But a naval captain writes that the word was in common use when he was a midshipman in 1905, and it had probably been going some time then.

WHY

She was his mother! They,
His neighbors round about,
It seems to them but yesterday
They heard his merry shout.

But yesterday, she stood
And waited at the door,
Counting the long day good
That brought him home once more.

But now a star of gold
Shines in his place today,
And all the friends of old
Seek fitting words to say.

His mother and his friends
Stand round and wonder why
Man's liberty depends
On boys who dare to die.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 2.—Since The Common Wealth Party has been running through hundred times and there are indications it may soon collapse.

Last October it appointed a committee to seek affiliation with the Labor Party but the move was turned down. As a result R. W. O. Mackay Common Wealth's chairman has resigned and two other members of the national committee are expected to follow his advice that "the only thing left for Common Wealth is to dissolve and for its members to join the Labor Party individually."

Sir Richard Acland, one of the party's founders, has taken over as chairman, as well as parliamentary leader of the tiny Common Wealth group. Its parliamentary membership and he says Common Wealth will carry on."

Already, however, one parliamentary member has resigned. John Loverseed, first to win a by-election for Common Wealth after its formation in 1942, has announced he will not contest the future will be planned around long bars. If he does not like the Labor Party's policy it may be determined its course.

Service Voters: The Home Office has disclosed that some 90 per cent of the service men and persons in the armed services who are eligible to be entered on the service voters' list have completed the necessary declarations.

Commons Veterans: Of the 615 members of the Commons, nine were members during all of the First Great War and five have held the unbroken service record of time. Before David Lloyd George became an Earl, the figures were 10 and six respectively.

"The nine are: Prime Minister Churchill, Earl Winterton, India Secretary Amery, Minister of Agriculture Scrymgeour, Sir Reginald Blair and Hon. Henry Channon, all Conservatives; Will Thorne, Labor; George Lambert, Liberal National; and Sir Henry Haydn Jones, Liberal.

The five with uninterrupted membership since the last election are: Earl Winterton (1906), Henry Gibbins, Labor, Sir Percy Courthope (1906), Sir Henry Jones (1910) and Mr. Amery (1911).

Corn Chowder

(New York Times)

A prudent man hesitates to take issue with the book through which Noah Webster, et al, established claim to fame. It is difficult to believe he has not had a bowl of corn chowder. To the countryman who rates corn chowder on the same high plane as baked beans, or fried salt pork and milk gravy, it is heartbreaking that Mr. Webster thus offhandedly defines it. Perhaps, however, in the history-proved, traditionally accepted method of making real corn chowder is an old iron kettle which has had its bottom burned out, and which is then used as a receptacle by one of the stove covers. Such folks, unfortunately, wouldn't know that a good, big, wood-burning kitchen stove has been a thing of two ends. But if you're going to make corn chowder that's something that has lost sight of the fact that the remainder of the calcium in the bones and teeth. We have too often lost sight of the fact that the remainder of the calcium of time in the bones and teeth. We have nerve tissues, muscle, glands, some organs and secretions, and they rarely exceed the amount of iron in the entire body—but there is a definite calcium or lime in the blood and other tissues is as important as the iron in the blood.

Here are a few of the functions of calcium in the body:

1.—Necessary for clotting of blood—if there is a deficiency the clotting time is lengthened and bleeding is more likely to occur or to be excessive.

2.—Necessary for vigorous action of the heart muscle, the force of heart beat.

3.—Helps to promote permeability of capillary endothelium—that is to say, seepage, instead of escape of fluid part of blood through the walls of the capillary blood vessels or from the capillary spaces, to tissue spaces, as in drops or inflammatory swellings) or upon the surface, as in weeping eczema, hay fever, nasal rhinitis, watery nose, itchy fever).

4.—Regulates excitability of nerve fibers and nerve centers, prevents neuro-muscular irritability—as in asthma, hay fever and bed-wetting in growing children.

It is my notion that calcium deficiency may have something to do with coronary occlusion, coronary thrombosis and angina pectoris. That is, I imagine—and please understand this is merely my theory —that an adequate intake of calcium and, of course, vitamin D, combined to lessen the tendency to coronary artery casualties regardless of the cause of the artery disease. I believe calcium tends to prevent spasm or constriction of the coronary arteries. I might like to make it clear that this is purely theoretical, that calcium and vitamin D in such cases is not an established fact, that I am merely trying to prevent attacks; at worst it can do no harm.

BLOOD, BONES AND ARTERIES

When the diet is not rich in milk and green vegetables—a fault of the diet of most Americans—the calcium (lime) in the bones will be drawn upon, for a certain amount of calcium is used up and excreted daily in health even when the daily intake of calcium is less than the amount required for maintaining good health. Thus the aging adult whose diet has been poor in calcium for years, perhaps for most of his or her life time, has what physicians or pathologists call osteoporosis—absorption of bone so that it becomes porous and brittle or fragile. This state of the bones in the aged, it should be clearly understood, is due to deficiency of calcium in the bones and not to the imaginary increase in the proportion of mineral matter in the bones. Our quaint school physiology books told us when you and I were young.

Unfortunately many of us, laymen and physicians, have been all too much impressed by the fact that something like 99 per cent of the calcium or lime in the body is in the bones and teeth. We have too often lost sight of the fact that the remainder of the calcium or lime in the body is just as important. The nerve tissues, muscle, glands, some organs and secretions, and they rarely exceed the amount of iron in the entire body—but there is a definite calcium or lime in the blood and other tissues is as important as the iron in the blood.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

SNAKES SWALLOWING YOUNG

It is a common belief that young snakes can run down into their mothers throat for protection. Persons all over America bear witness to this. Even the scientific men of Manitoba, however, do not credit these reports. They believe the stories arise from the fact that newly developed young snakes are often found in the throats of adult snakes that have just been killed.

The fact is, however, well established that many species of snakes are viviparous; that is, they do not lay eggs but produce living young, which are active and able to look out for themselves from the moment of birth.

The general notion that all snakes lay eggs leads to many misconceptions about snakes. For instance, one often hears reports of rattlesnakes having only rattles—rattlesnakes do not lay eggs. Such reports are based on mistaken identity, because all of the dozen or more species of rattlesnakes in North America are viviparous, that is they eggs hatch inside and not outside the mother's body.

In the fall the female rattler usually produces from seven to nine young which are several inches long. They immediately exhibit all the traits of adult rattler and are dangerous from the moment of birth.

Likewise, all the numerous species of common garter snakes, which received their name from the custom of carrying about their stripped bodies to a garter, do not lay eggs but give birth to living young. The number of young in a single brood may range from a dozen to 40.

Stories of snakes swallowing their young are known to everyone from examining the bodies of freshly killed snakes. Frightened snakes about to produce a litter of young sometimes the young are extruded from the mouth of the parent and the slayer jumps to the conclusion that the young have previously swallowed her brood.

The fear of the mother, either the mother or the father snake of most species take any interest whatever in the offspring. Apparently young snakes, from the moment of birth, must shift for themselves from the beginning. What newly born and young snakes find Typhoid is the wide state feed upon remains to be determined by future study. Among the few egg-laying snakes that cover their eggs to protect and to incubate them.

U.S. Farmers' Gift to Chop Suey

From "Time" Magazine, New York.

In Oklahoma, hundreds of farmers are marketing the last of a fresh crop of bumper bean sprouts. Their ancestors came originally from China. For more than 100 years a few United States farmers had raised mungs in small quantities for fodder, but had found little market for them as a cash crop. But when imports of mungs from China were halted, owners of chop suey joints from coast to coast and as far west as Honolulu flashed sh S.O.S. The sprouts are limited there, and mungs were needed for Times Square's most popular dish.

In Enid, Okla., a smart grain dealer, Dale H. Johnson, bought mung seeds, found a few hundred farmers in Garfield county near the town (pop. 50,000) willing to try a test crop. Johnson believed that the bean would thrive there, grown and harvested during the end of the winter wheat harvest and the beginning of fall planting for next season's wheat. He was right. The beans grew well when they got sufficient rainfall in late summer.

By 1942 mung planting in Oklahoma was up to 30,000 acres, the yield was 270 pounds of beans an acre. Another record, 80,000 acres of mungs were planted, and estimated fresh crop value was $12 million harvested.

Much of the harvest was trucked to Johnson's busy grain elevator. The fact, many farmers early suspect that Johnson cornered the mung market this year, is false. Johnson is killing. He denies it. But he bought all the beans he could get. By last May stores had cleaned up, too.

A typical mung grower is Victor Virgil Beard, 31, of Waukomis, who came home after 18 months in the army to find that Beard, discharged as an essential farmer. Early Oklahoma Panhandle rains left hundreds of wheat off 100 of his 600 acres for the first farmland, as soon as the wheat was in, Beard planted the 100 acres of whipoorwill to mungs, this fall harvested 17,000 pounds of beans. Last spring Beard planted 52.5%, the mungs 63.13%—and Beard still has 1,250 pounds of bean for seed.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Feb. 2. (CP) — Onion Harvest Onion lovers have a pe-culiar reason today for indulging their taste for this flavorful vegetable, say the home economists of the Agriculture Department. A bumper crop has resulted in plentiful supplies and "making the best use of available foods" in the wartime eating slogan.

Applied to onions, this requires some knowledge of the characteristics of various types. Large, Spanish-type onions are mild in flavor and they are first choice for baking whole and for generous use raw, in salads and sandwiches. Other varieties of yellow and red onions are stronger. Their use for serving boiled, with a cream sauce, to "smother" a steak or liver, and for flavoring.

Shallots or spring onions cooked and served like asparagus are sweet and mild.

Cheap Nourishment

Housewives know that cereals and bread are the cheapest foodstuffs in Canadadian meals today, besides being excellent fillers-up for the hollow-legged members of the family.

Canada's Food Rules recommend one serving of the "whole grain" cereal every day. Reason for the emphasis on the "whole grain" is that the Nutrition Division, is that whole grain cereals are such excellent sources of thiamin and niacin, the B-vitamins which aid digestion and steady the nerves. They are also a good source of iron, the mineral necessary for making red blood cells.

In the process of turning whole grain into refined cereals many of the B-vitamins are lost.

Beef Hash

It may not sound like a romantic dish but in the past months beef corned beef hash has become glamorous, because, in different forms, it is a favorite with our fighting men overseas. When they have to cook a meal in a hurry, with the least possible preparation and the greatest return in delicious food they make hash. The main difference between theirs and ours is that they generally use bully beef as the basis for their hash where civilians use canned beef.

This basic recipe, which may be varied by using other meat or vegetables, comes from the Nutrition Bureau:

Combine two cups of corned beef, three cups of chopped cooked potatoes, one small chopped onion, and one-half cup of milk. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook slowly in a little fat or salted oil until browned, turning frequently. This serves four.

Soup Again.

Yesterday's gravy makes tomorrow's hot beef broth. . . but careful about making it too rich. Cut it with vegetable water, and vegetables and brew it a bit for good flavor.

Cool Off

The electric iron should be allowed to cool off before it is stored away. Starch may be removed from the sole plate by wiping it with a damp cloth. Experts suggest an occasional rubbing of the sole plate with paraffin, or beeswax, if available, followed by a polishing with a dry, soft cloth.

Attractive Suit Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

The collarless dress suit, one of the most sensible and pleasing of today's fashions, is especially liked by the young and slim, in this case, attractive Joan Leslie. It is fashioned of brilliant purple wool set off by a huge bow of purple and green striped satin. The jacket fits smoothly through the waist and flares out sharply at the sides somewhat in simulation of a peplum.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Asks if Loveless Marriage to Faithful Beau is Better than None

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"A letter I read in your column recently interested me. A girl wants to know if she should marry her faithful beau because she thinks she'll never fall in love, being at the sad age of 26. I wonder why we women think that the "grand passion" only comes when we are 19 or 20, and if it hasn't, it never will. It must be a throwback from our Victorian grandmothers, who grabbed the first man that came along when they passed twenty-one.

"Why can't a person fall in love at 30, 35 or 40? It's as silly as saying all children should cut teeth at ten months or they won't have any, as it is to say one will never fall in love if one hasn't at 26!

"Take my advice and wait. I too was 26 and had never been in love. I thought I wouldn't fall in love, I married my faithful beau, and fell in love at 33 with another man. "It could happen to you," as the song has it. I've stayed married to my very dear faithful beau, and suddenly I found the one who was meant for me, at 33. Think it over carefully, dear. Before you decide to live all your life with a man who is good and kind, but whom you cannot respect, and for another's very glance sends you to heaven, too late. S. O."

Read the daily papers if you want to make up your mind at what period of life the "grand passion" strikes most and women and makes them dance like whirling dervishes. Isn't it the highly respectable paterfamilias who throws prudence, responsibility, welfare of wife and children to the four winds and pursues slim chit of a girl he had known in his heart is working him for a gold mine or a meal ticket—according to his resources.

The case of the elderly woman in the throes of a passion for a boy is too pitiful for amusement. Such material is indeed available in every woman, and of that unquenchable desire to be loved, her plight is nearer akin to tears than laughter. Mr. My correspondent was certainly right in her diagnosis that the devastating passions do not smile their victims at eighteen or twenty.

Pink For Resort Wear

By VERA WINSTON

THIS IS the sort of dress that is being worn in the sunshine spots of this broad land. Like so many of the new resort and early Spring clothes, this one is pink and the material is a rubby weave cotton that closely resembles raw silk in appearance and texture. A side-swept drape forms an unpressed pleat from a peplum pocket. The dark brown suede belt is studded with pink stone cabochons.

The Marry Go Round

When a Girl Feels Herself

If you are a business-girl, what have you been doing with your money lately? Have you been buying war-bonds, putting it in a savings bank or just hoarding some of your pennies so that you can let the income-tax collector take care of the dollars?

Or have you been buying a mink coat or a diamond wrist-watch or "investing" in gold mines or chicken farm or some other beautiful dream? Every successful working-woman has her dream!

My dream is of a big old house in the country and an ever-changing garden where I can just sit and relax, all day. I long neither the time nor the talent for making a garden, but I love to kid myself. Alas, I'm a woman!

That's the trouble with a woman. She is always kidding herself. She can make herself believe anything that she wants to believe. Her ability to hypnotize herself is positively amazing! That's why when I see a man trying to fool a woman, I always wonder why he takes so much trouble and goes out of his way to do it.

All you need, my brother, is to start her imagination working and she'll fool herself better than you can get sound to it. A clever salesman doesn't have to coax or bribe money from her. He can merely paint a rosy little picture for her and a "investiment" that will yield golden profits or perfect happiness—and she'll hand over her life-savings on a silver salver and beg him to take them.

Any smart promoter can convince her that a course of beauty treatments and personality development will transform her from plain Jane into a Hedy Lamarr; or that all she needs in order to be a movie star is "influence".

But it isn't in matters of cash or career, as much as for her sake. And many a girl has waited hopefully for years for a man to "make good" or to give up drinking or to divorce his wife and marry her, only to find that she has grown old and he has fiddled herself. For men have changed—and gurus have eaten them—but for the LOVE.

Of course, there are men of the wolf variety who deliberately set out to deceive women but most girls are too sophisticated these days to be fooled by this type. When a girl's life gets knocked into a cocked hat, it's her nerves go to pieces; it is more than half the time because she has deliberately deceived herself. And that's what no man can understand!

It's About "time to consider those summer outfit besides knitting! A round piece of wood to top of crate or barrel box. Covered with material to floor. Material can match curtains, bedspreads or chair in room.

BASEBALL FACES MOST IMPORTANT CONCLAVE YET

To Name Landis' Successor Over Weekend; Frick Rejects Proposals

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—Baseball faces a momentous week-end — perhaps the most important of the last 24 years—with major league club owners gathered here today for a two-day session that may decide whether war-time manpower demands are sufficiently drastic to warrant suspension or delay the forthcoming season.

High on the list of important decisions to be acted on the 16 league moguls is the election of a successor to Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, whose recent death terminated a firm and respected directorship which organized baseball needs badly now in its first real period of distress since Landis took control in 1921.

Developments in the last two months have fluctuated the baseball fever chart to such an extent as reported by Ford Frick, National League President, on his conference with Lieut.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, United States Selective Service Director, 60 days ago may be an important factor in the owners' decision whether to play this year.

Frick has persistently declined to reveal the answers he obtained to questions put to Gen. Hershey, explaining only that he was successful in getting a clear picture of the manpower situation as it related to sports and that he would unfold the true picture at the baseball meeting.

Indications are that Frick will be elected commissioner, if one is named, according to unofficial tabulations, the count stands 12-4 for the National League proxy with no other candidate having more than one backer.

JUNIOR TEAMS RATE HIGHLY IN THE WEST

Winnipeg, Feb. 2 — (CP) — With Western Canada inter-provincial junior hockey matches well underway, fans are narrowing their attention down to four clubs as playoffs in the three prairie provinces approach.

After eight exhibitions between the inter-provincial teams of all leagues, selectors were confident second winners would likely be Port Arthur Flyers for Thunder Bay, Winnipeg Monarchs in Manitoba, Moose Jaw Canucks in Saskatchewan and Edmonton Canadians in Alberta.

Monarchs, only undefeated Manitoba team in the big league setup, have lost an edge in games against Moose Jaw Canucks, Southern Saskatchewan titlists, 4-4 tie, and Port Arthur Flyers, top outfit in the Thunder Bay branch.

Edmonton Canadians, only other undefeated western Allan team, has yet to encounter Moose Jaw, Winnipeg and Port Arthur but has turned in impressive victories over Regina Commandos, Southern Saskatchewan champions, and Saskatoon Navy, Northern Saskatchewan loop winners.

Plans to round out teams in the prairies for Allan Cup play-offs were temporarily balked when the senior picture became clouded with doubt as to whether inter-provincial contests would be staged this season.

Frank Sargent, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has announced definite plans would not be made until the association meets in Montreal and Toronto next month.

No senior leagues operated in the west this year.

Propose New Play-off For Pro Hockey

President Red Dutton Suggests Adoption of Different Play-Off System at Meeting

Montreal, Feb. 2 — (CP)—When the Governors of the National Hockey League settle down to a business meeting today, a new play-off system will be on the discussion agenda, with president Mervyn (Red) Dutton the exponent of the new system.

Dutton has not intimated what he has in mind, but it is expected the first-round series will be cut to five games. Last year, the first-place team played the third-place team, and the second met the 4th-place club in best-of-seven series, with the winners of these series being matched in a best-of-seven series.

Other matters which will be considered are ways and means of curtailing unnecessary train travel, and post-war expansion of the league.

Wallberg and St. Louis are reported as red-hot prospects for admittance to the loop, making the league an eight-team circuit. However, Maj. Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs is very much against this and is campaigning a 10 or seven team league.

Brooklyn is expected to be one of the first teams to resume operations in the post-war period, while there is talk that Montreal will once again become a two-team city.

Blackhawks Halt Canadiens' String Of Victories

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canadiens' fans will probably have a few sleepless nights before Chadwick for the rest of the season.

Bill ended a little controversy in front of Chicago's big net last night when he handled the goal-judging assignment and the Hawks succeeded in ending a five-game losing streak by grabbing a nine-gamer.

When it comes to Canadiens goals, the name of Maurice Richard always pops up, and it was Richard's disputed one of them—that caused the whole argument.

Sometime in the first period Richard had a go at Mike Karakas and Referee Chadwick gave goal-judge saw it was in. The elusive puck appeared to have been batted accidentally straight out again and the game went on though the little red light in the eye-glass over the Chicago citadel.

In spite Chadwick's no-counter decision, Richard coasted in on Karakas a few minutes later and scored—and good thing too, for Canadiens won the only goal of the night.

Elmer Lach and Bouchard were in on Richard's goal last night, while Speedy Bill Mosienko notched the tying and winning goals. Clint Smith and Joe Cooper taking honors on the play.

San Francisco, Feb. 1 (AP)—The death of five more Japanese spies was announced by the Japanese Domei Agency in a broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

These six deaths brought to 111 the number of Japanese generals and admirals who have died of natural causes or been killed in action during the past eight months.

Five Students Who Accept Bribe for Throwing a Cage Game Are Banned for Life

Viewing his first N.H.L. fixture since 1942 at Montreal last night, Maj. Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs declared it appeared he would have to learn his hockey all over again. Conn suggested that the old rule applied—the team with the most players was the winner.

Smythe admitted that Canadiens' Maurice Richard resembled the late Howie Morenz with his speed but thought the comparison ended there.

Touching on baseball, Maj. Smythe expressed the view the New York Yankees had been sold as a bargain at $2,200,000, saying he thought it had been classed as a $10,000,000 organization.

Reflecting confidence in the return of horse-racing in the United States was the announcement at New York last night that 1947 Belmont Futurity had drawn the heaviest nomination list in a decade with 1,309 names named by 198 studies or owners, indicating a gross nifies value of $80,000 including $25,000 added by the track. There were 1,077 nominations for the 1945 Futurity.

The five students of Brooklyn College who admitted accepting a $1,000 bribe to throw a basketball game against Akron at Boston this week were banned from intercollegiate sports last night on the unanimous vote of the faculty-student athletic committee of the Brooklyn, N.Y., school. College officials have yet to determine if the players are to be expelled.

Pitcher L. N. (Buck) Newsom yesterday was turned down in his $150,000 bonus claim against the St. Louis Browns by the Major League Advisory Council at Chicago. Both Newsom and the Browns are criticized for violating a major league rule prohibiting side agreements in contracts.

Pro Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and amateur Ed Furgol of Detroit, captured first prize in the 36-hot basketball competition with a 60 in a field of 190 golfers at Miami Beach, Florida, yesterday. Low man for the day was Claude Harmon, Winged Foot Mile, in an even par 70.

Victory in the western Ontario Colts Association's bonspiel at Detroit last night was added to Geord Murray's rink of Galt, Ont., with a 11-6 decision in the final against R. E. Hudson's four from Chatham. Murray defeated O. C. Brisack of Chatham rink 19-7 to reach the trophy round.

Toronto, Feb. 2 — (CP) — One of the rising stars in Canada's ice skating world, Doreen Dutton of Drumheller, Alta., can really say she's a self-made woman.

Youngster who won the Canadian junior-ladies' figure skating championship in Toronto the other day had to build her own rink to get her start in the world, as the legend has it.

It seems that pert Miss Dutton was a child of tender years indeed she wanted to figure skate, so bundled-up her shovel and scraped off a patch of ice in the back yard put on her first pair of skates, and began practicing. Later she changed her field to the Drumheller arena, and got professional coaching before she started out and up in the world.

Like the child Hollywood stars, she studied while she worked, her books and her mother going along with her on numerous trips hither and yon. Incidentally, she graduated from high school with honors.

Insurrection!—

Reports from Ontario's Niagara area say the Hamilton district lacrosse league will break away from the Ontario Baseball Association if the latter bars entry of American professionals from south of the border. Last season, if we remember correctly, the boys had a great time squabbling over the importers, and civil war nearly resulted. Baseball is a red-hot issue in Canada, but the country — almost as much so as hockey used to be in parts of the Maritimes and the west, good feuding material.

N.H.L. Gossip—

Right now, the fans are all ears to learn what comes out of the National Hockey League meetings in Montreal. Rumors are flying thick and fast about changes in playoff systems, possible suspension of the league, and the like, but as intgr-esting as any is the speculation what Conn Smythe will say or do. Conn is reported anxious to get a bit at kicking around the circuit before he settles down to the more prosaic task of shaking up his Toronto Maple-Leafs.

Far-off Fans:—

No matter how far away from home Canadians still love an argument over hockey doings. Somewhere in Holland a bunch of boys in No. 3 Canadian Public Relations Group got into a dispute over which Canadian city had won the Memorial Cup the most times. Bets and side bets piled up rapidly and Cpl. A. L. Vickrey wrote to The Canadian Press in Toronto for a decision. Incidentally, the answer is Winnipeg with seven wins and Toronto next with five. St. Boniface, across the river from Winnipeg, won the cup once, which probably can be accepted as a 'Peg victory.

LARGE NUMBERS OF PRISONERS FREED

London, Feb. 1 (CP) — The Moscow radio, quoting a press dispatch, said today that a "large number" of prisoners had been freed from the Prokowe concentration camp.

The camp, said the broadcast was "established by the Germans when they smashed the Warsaw uprising last year."

"Between 2,000 and 16,000 War-saw people" were packed daily into the camp, said the dispatch, many were tortured by the Gestapo and certain members of the home army."

ALBERT COLLEGE AND ST. MIKES WIN AT HOCKEY

"Irish" Win 13-0 in Senior Game While Albert Downs B.C.I. 5-0 in Junior Contest

INTERSCHOLASTIC

St. Mikes seniors and Albert College juniors remained undefeated in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. hockey conferences when the whitewash brush was applied in both games. The "Irish" trounced the Albert seniors 13 to 0, while Coach Pepper's Albert College juniors applied the same brush to the Belleville Collegiate Juniors to win 5-0 in one of those weekly Thursday afternoon pleasing Interscholastic doubleheaders at the Home Arena.

In the junior game Doug Christie put the Albert kids well in front with a first goal in the initial period while Claude Lemay added a third. In the middle session Johnny Merkley added a fourth Albert goal and Lemay scored his second counter in the final stanza to give Pepper's charges No. 5 and victory at Mackintosh, in the junior semi, stood out as the star of the game with his sensational stick-handling throughout the game.

The line-ups—Belleville Collegiate: defence, Bradshaw; defence, Thompson and Byrne; centre, Young; wings, Lockyer and Mac-Donald; subs, Waite, Campbell, Pepper, Thompson, Mackay and Sedlorchick. Albert College — goal, Mackintosh; defence, Head and Kilpatrick; centre, Merkley; wings, Taylor and Lemay; subs, Christie, Isley, McCullough and Peck. Referee: Bill Louis.

In the senior game it was pretty much of a parade as Coach Jack Doran's St. Mikes sextette used a fast passing game to completely baffle Albert seniors within their own defensive zone during the early going and to tag tune of 13 to 0. While all of this was going on Dick Fitzpatrick, Irish goalie, was enjoying a holiday from tending goal for the Belleville juniors, fired home the first counter of the night early in the first period on a wide open passing game.

The line-ups—Albert College seniors: goal, Lindsay; defence, Ferguson and Cook; centre, Lem'ry; wings, Lane and Rivers; subs, Mac-Donald, Soloman, D. Lindsay and Stanton. St. Michael's Academy seniors — goal: Bunton; defence, Green, Duffy; centre, Moher; wings, Mackey and Coach Doran; subs, a wide open passing game.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

A young Judge was trying his first case, that of a Negro charged with a malicious assault. He wanted to make sure that the prisoner had a fair and impartial trial, so he took the questioning out of the hands of the prosecutor at one point. Leaning down from the bench he began the following cross-examination:

Judge—Now, you have a very fine reputation here and I want to see it retained by this case. I want you to tell me exactly what happened and why you tried to kill this man.

Tom—Judge, y' honor, suh, he done call me a black ——— and I done hit him with a brick. Now Judge, suh, y'sonin' he calls you a black ——— what you' goin' to do about dat?

Judge—Hold on here! I am not a ———

Tom—Yessah, I knows dat. But y'sonin' he calls you the kind of a ——— what you is?

Who'll Decide?

Under the President's conditional green light for the Big Four conference, arises, "Who's going to decide how healthy is 'perfectly healthy?'" comments Ray Cronin, sports columnist of the New York Daily Mirror.

"Will a man who is able to run out a triple, or even two, be considered well enough to be further concerning himself with the fabulous horseplay known as baseball?" asks Cronkite.

"It is easy to envision a player who, after performing some batting feat which in other days would have rocketed him into the top ranks to the roaring approval of the crowd, now slinking across the home plate, obviously protesting: "Honest, ladies and gentlemen and members of the Manpower Commission, and General Hershey, that six-foot home run was just a fool accident. Some enemy of mine must have put rubber in my bat. I'm really as weak as a cat."

Hockey Round-up—

With all six teams in the "Little Six" in action tonight the game of interest to local fans is the Belleville at Trenton affair. Stan Jackson's kids blew hot the other night when they trimmed 9 to 2 and rumbling home nine pucks behind Mc-Intryre, the Combines' goalie, is the key task, however, Holway's charges seem to have found their scoring mark of late and should give a good account of their night's effort to beat the Trenton lads on surface. Incidentally for those interested in the period scores tonight, the Jacks are available by phoning 74 or 666.

And there'll be another of those popular RCAF doubleheaders at the Home Arena Monday night when Trenton meets Desoronto and Trenton take on the fast-skating Kingston team, who boast of one of the best players in the loop, Randy Ellis, the former Oshawa junior star. Ellis really gave the fans a treat in his last showing here. Another good player in the league is Ross Hunt, regular centreman with Stacedon. Hunt gets in a lot of hockey in a night and pivots on a mighty fine line with McInnis and Pfaff. In that second game Monday Trenton must win to regain first place, now enjoyed by the Mt. View Bombers.

Interscholastic News:

Around the Bay of Quinte Interscholastic circles a great deal of interest is very much the Albert College for the junior honors and St. Mikes to repeat as senior title winners. Coach MacIntosh guarding the twine the Albert juniors have the whitewash brush on the B.C.I. kids trapped to the tune of 5-0 while Coach Pepper's charges are busy keeping the 'Collegians' clean from the score sheet. At the Home Arena, St. Mikes "Irish" merely fattened their scoring average beating Albert 13 to 0 and incidentally enough Dick Fitzpatrick, who boots 'em out for the junior O.H.A. setsters, rapped home six of the Irish' 13 goals. Maybe Skipper Holway is making a scoring threat after all. After yesterday's stonday school weekly hockey game at the Home Arena, St. Mikes lead the senior parade with two wins, while Coach Pepper's Albert juniors have yet to be defeated in two starts with a win and a tie.

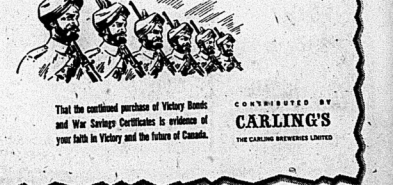
Remember when?

Pirotlla La Guardia, now mayor of New York City, but then a member of the United States Congress, tried 20 years ago today to introduce a bill to put a wedding ring on the price of professional baseball players with a view to limit on the price of players sold for more than $5,000. The bill was promptly squelched.

High heep news:

Ed Shortt is taking his Belleville "Y" girls to Peterboro on an exhibition game with the Littlock City Y.W.C.A. lassies tonight. Next Thursday there'll be a doubleheader of girls' basketball at the "Y" here when the Mountain View (W.D.) lassies meet the "Y" girls in the feature attraction with the Deacon girls playing the "Y" Juniors in the curtain-raiser.

Last Call—



Secretary Joe Shortt of the Y.M. has announced today entries to the three Ki-Y leagues would close tonight. We have been told by several what by the lack of playing facilities, but the green light flashed earlier in the week so we'll draft schedules over the weekend," said Secretary Shortt. The group operated by the local Ki-Y groups include Bantams 11 and under, Midgets 14 years and under and Juveniles 17 years and under.

Former Employer Establishes Trust Fund For Blinded Soldier

Toronto, Feb. 1.—(CP)— When Pte. Jimmy Robertson, blinded in action, returns home his spirit he will have enough money to secure a Seeing-eye dog. Thanks to a friend of the corner store where Jimmy used to buy candy as a child.

Arthur B. Clancy, proprietor of an Eau York store, has established a trust fund for Jimmy with money collected by a local paper, on his counter for that purpose. He and other county residents plan to raise $2,000 so that the junior golfer will be able to receive training at Seeing-eye, in the handling of a Seeing-eye dog.

LESSON NO. 597

A bridge monstrosity is not always your partner in a bridge game. It could be the kind of a hand you are holding. Like this partial freak:

♠ A K Q 6
♥ A K 3
♦ 2
♣ A K 10 9 3

A hand like that could increase the blood pressure of a cold-blooded fish. Anybody who would not get excited at a hand like that probably has an isolated brain.

It is too good for an opening bid of one. That might show, among other things, as few as five tricks. This hand containing nearly twice that many.

For an opening bid of three in a minor suit, it is too good in other strengths and not good enough in the minor suit. That would show a solid seven card suit with nothing outside.

For an opening of four in a major or five in a minor, it has much too splitty strength and not enough length. That would show a long suit and not a sure trick outside.

For an opening of three in a major or four in a minor, it is plenty good in general strength, but not enough length. That would show a nearly solid seven card suit or longer with a sure outside trick.

It is an opening of two in a suit for anybody's money. That says "Partner, I have a whopper of a hand with at least nine tricks. Let's not stop bidding until we reach at least game."

It goes on to say: "You may not have a thing, partner. Things may go wrong. But if I fail to make a game of some kind with this hand of mine, I hope to kiss a pig."

Open with two clubs. Why clubs instead of spades? Always with two different length suits, first bid the longer. Strength has not a thing to do with it.

Pop out with two clubs and see what happens.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(AP Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 2 — (AP) — The Southern Association's proposal to end the minor leagues should have a hand in naming the new baseball commissioner probably won't have any effect, but it does show which way the wind is blowing . . . when they come to rewrite the major-minor agreement this year, one change that may be demanded by the minors is that the commissioner should have the deciding vote in all cases where the majors and minors disagree . . . As it is, when the major leagues say "No" to a proposition, that ends it . . . but it's a certainty nothing can be done in that line until there's a commissioner to vote and one minor league executive adds: "We certainly wouldn't object to anybody the majors might select now and if they don't like their selection there will be so many "favorite son" candidates that they will have a hard time picking anybody."

PLEAS TO SCRIBES

New Orleans, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Walter C. Smith of the United States National Collegiate Athletic Association issued an invitation today to sports writers to assist the N.C.A.A. in checking gambling on college athletic events.

The plea came after five Brooklyn basketball players admitted accepting money to "fix" a scheduled game with Akron, College.

"Few newspapers have ever quoted gamblers' odds on college sports, but it will be make this plea to those that do that this practice be discontinued in the interest of sports," Dr. Smith said.

Would Fine Voters For Not Exercising Their Franchise

Sudbury, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Mayor W. S. Beaton of Sudbury has suggested that municipal voters who fail to exercise their franchise should be fined $5 unless they can produce satisfactory evidence they are unable to vote because of illness or some other valid reason.

"The old idea of candidates furnishing automobiles and spending a lot of money to get people out to vote should also be frowned," he said in a service (Rotary) Club address. "It is a lot of hooey to expect a man who can conscientiously give public service at a financial loss to spend money to get people to vote."

Candidates should be limited by law to one campaign address and the publication of their platforms once in their local newspaper, the mayor said.

Prairie Chicken Has Run of Town

Wood Lake, Neb., Feb. 2. (AP)—Wood Lake's fraternal order of chickens, known affectionately as Old Biddies, today for formal proclamation became a privileged character, privileged even to start runs in ladies' stockings.

Mayor James L. Hanna issued the proclamation in defense of the wedding bird after two ladies protested Old Pete had run them. Their good hose by pecking at their legs on separate occasions.

"The town will not be responsible for any damage to ladies' hose", declared Mayor Hanna.

Pete, ignorant of the scarcity of ladies' stockings, attributed his beak on the hose because the ladies paid no attention to his overtures to the bird's supporters. They claim Pete's principal purpose in coming to town is to make friends.

Mayor Hanna said he also is instructing police to arrest anyone annoying Pete.

Toronto Feb. 2. (CP)—Mayor W. S. Beaton, of Sudbury, who recently spurned the "big neighbor advances" of Toronto yesterday sent the following telegram to Mayor Robert H. Saunders: "Dear Bob, please arrange hotel accommodation for me in Toronto with feather bed".

The wire sent by Mayor Saunders to Mayor Beaton in reply read: "Dear Bill, feather bed arranged in Royal York. Please ignore hoseshe calls I have spotlighted in mattress".

AT THE BELLE
"Arsenic and Old Lace"

The poisonous pranks of two sweet little old ladies are hilariously recounted in Warner Bros.' lethal farce, "Arsenic and Old Lace" starting Cary Grant coming this weekend to the Belle Theatre.

With a brilliant supporting cast including Raymond Massey, Jack Carson, Priscilla Lane and Peter Lorre, the film is based on the stage success of the same name by Joseph Kesselring, which ran for more than four years on Broadway under the production aegis of Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" is concerned with two Brooklyn Borgias, whose consuming passion is to murder their lonely male boarders. This they accomplish with the unwitting aid of an equally daft nephew, who thinks he's "Teddy" Roosevelt. The result is a second, and criminally insane nephew (wanted by the police) who has a penchant for burying his victims in the cellar, grim things matters to a head. Nevertheless, it all works out beautifully in the end.

Produced and directed by Frank Capra, the screen play was written by Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein.

Five-Member Board To Redraw Borders

London, Feb. 2 (CP)—Prospects of a "feminist" controversy are seen in the government's announcement that a five-member board will redraw the map of England, and Wales after studying the various divisions of local government.

The White paper on municipal reform doesn't specifically say the five members are to be men but the wording of the paper seems to be: "Well, after all, these problems have been studied mostly by men. Let's ask the women".

The possibility of a woman being among the "big five" doesn't seem to have been considered.

But the plan will be discussed in parliament next month and women members are expected to raise the matter. It will be argued, presumably that women have nowadays are playing a much greater part in local government than when the reforms of a number of British towns— and that women live in local surroundings much more than men.

Another contention will be that the redrawing of municipal boundaries may ultimately influence things which concern every woman, such as bus and tram services, electricity and water supplies, housing, schools, hospitals and other public services.

Little Benny's Note Book

I forgot to get my hair cut again today, thinking, G rootten pop's going to get mad as the goose he's been wearing me to go to the barber's every day for about 5 days. Oh well, if I get hair in it, it will stay on it and brush it eater good, maybe he might not notice it. Anyway if he's thinking of something else, I thought.

After supper I brushed my hair as flat as it would go, and sliked my flat, but it was no sooner brought it.

Which I hope to do.

HALIFAX NEWS VENDOR HERE TO $50,000

Halifax, Feb. 1. (CP) —Charles Burns, 56-year-old newsboy who has been selling papers on Barrington street here for eight years, yesterday felt heir to $50,000. The fortune came down on him when they recently left England. Burns had not seen his uncle for 36 years.

The legacy cannot be brought out of England until after the war, but that doesn't bother Burns. He says he is going to stay on the job selling newspapers until he drops in the stew and pop started to eat with a absent minded expression, saying, Mairie is really wonderful.

In what way? ma said, and pop said, She provides the tender lamb with a fine fleecy jacket of wool, but think enough to be a suitable protection against our moderately severe winters.

Sometimes as if he was getting on the subject of hair, and ma said, Now William, this isn't lamb stew at all, it's veal stew, your favorite dish. What's a use of my going out of my way to get you what you like if you're going to confuse it with something else or different? she said.

But Jerry it's veal and I appricate it, thank you my dear, pop said. But to get back to nature, she grew the polar bear a heavy fur coat that defies the latest blasts, and the scientists reminded that even man, if thrust back to his primitive state, could develop an almost unbelievably bushy, bristly and wearin weather, he said, and me, ma said, Now William dons anybody in the world except yourself know what you're talking about?

I hope so, pop said.

Meaning what? I said, Well G. pop, tomorrow's Saturday, so I'll get some extra day to remember it.

Which I hope to do.

CHAPTER 1

She looked hastily at her dress to make sure it was all right. What could it be? What had she done wrong. Her heart sank and she walked slowly toward the director. "Livia," he said sternly, "Do you think—Now Livia was a faint smile in his eyes. "Dye think you could say a couple of lines for me?" The re-action from fear to happiness was too much for Livia. Her lips trembled, and it was several seconds before she was able to speak.

"I'll try," she said, smiling gratefully.

Livia was aware of a new hospitality in the eyes of the extras on the set. A line to speak would mean $25 for the day's work. But more than that, the line might open the door—to anything.

"What's the got that we haven't?" one sharp-voiced extra demanded. Livia flashed and looked swiftly to where Johnny Elnfeld stood. But he had not heard. He was planning the set-up for the next sequence.

"What do I have to say?" Livia timidly asked the assistant director.

"I don't know," he said and walked away.

No one seemed to care that she, Livia Clarkson, was actually going to speak a line in a picture. Ah, there was the script girl. She would ask her.

Trixy, a gnome-like female, who had been in pictures since the silent days, was going over the script with the star of the picture—Alice Delavera.

"Be with you in a minute," Trixy smiled at Livia.

"No hurry," said Livia hastily. She moved a few feet away, and was soon joined by the script girl, who whispered:

"Sorry to keep you waiting—but you know what Alice is." Livia's extra in Hollywood could have answered that question. They all knew Alice Delavera was notorious for her tantrums. She seemed to delight in making those who worked with her as miserable as possible. But she was even a good actress when she wanted to be charming, as she was now on the set. And she was powerful—her husband was the biggest producer in Hollywood. She had been a star for ten years now and her reputation was still strong enough to sell her mediocre acting. Most people made a point of being polite to her —or of keeping out of her way.

"This is what you have to do," said Trixy. Livia had to bump into Alice while they were dancing with the respective partners, then she had to register surprise at the sight of the partner, whose role was that of a heartbreaker, Trixy said. "Who, hello, there, you didn't know you were."—Then stop short at the bewildered look.

It seemed simple enough as Trixy explained it. Livia repeated the words aloud, so that they were graven forever on her memory.

"All right, Clarkson," yelled the assistant director.

Livia was nervous and bumped into Miss Delaware with too much force.

"What are you trying to do—knock me out?" Alice screamed.

Johnny Elnfeld grinned and said, "It's not a football tackle, Livia."

Everyone laughed, and Livia felt foolish. "All right, this is a take," said Elnfeld. "Camera—action."

But now Livia was too gentle.

"No, no. Bump into Miss Delaware," Elnfeld called, when the expression of exaggerated, patient suffering on the star's face told Livia want to slap it.

The next "take" was no good. Miss Delaware's fault this time. She blew up—and blamed it on Livia.

"That fool of a girl has upset me," she said. "What is this—a school of acting?" Again that hateful laugh from some of the extras greeted Livia. She had slept very little the preceding night. She lost her head, and her temper. There was a gasp of astonishment when she said slowly, but clearly to Elnfeld:

"I'm not the fool of a girl, she-is and she blames me for forgetting my lines. Why doesn't she blame her own stupidity?"

"Say, that's it," said Elnfeld. There were smiles on all the faces —excepting Alice's. She looked around swiftly and decided to have hysterics. She flung herself to the floor, kicked her heels, and screamed. Livia was among those who rushed to help her to her feet, but Alice threw off her arm and yelled: "Get away from me, you—you—" She could think of nothing else to say, in her fury.

It was half an hour before Miss Delaware was able to continue acting once more. And it was no surprise to Livia when Elnfeld told her: "Better forget about the line, Livia." But she was still too angry to take it philosophically. Two months she'd worked hard, hoping for just such a chance, and now it was to be taken from her because of a temperamental clothes-prop who couldn't remember her lines.

"Im leaving," she said She's right, I am a fool, thinking I could get anywhere as an extra. We haven't a chance. We're just as many pieces of scenery, and we're fools to think we'll ever be anything else. Well, here's where this fool's getting wise to this racket. I'm going home."

She was half-way to the exit before Elnfeld caught up with her.

"Don't be silly, Livia," said Elnfeld, "There's nothing more to be said." He had a picture to make, and if one foolish girl chose to destroy her livelihood—that was her business. But he was angry with Miss Delaware and not all her "Darling, Johnny" this and that, could banish the incident from his mind.

Livia went to her room at Hollywood House. She telephoned Bruce —and was answered by the Chinese boy. "Mr. Clarkson not home."

"Ah, Mister Clarkson," said the boy, "I have message for you. Mister Nolan go on location. He get call very late."

"Where?" asked Livia.

"He no know, tell he away few days. He say he call you tonight."

Livia hung up the receiver. What should she do? Should she go home, admit she had failed in Hollywood? Should she stick it? Look after a home? Have peace?

"Oh, but I'd never be satisfied with that," she must be a place for her in Hollywood. She had become known, way, that was all. How did stars become stars? Once they, too, were nobodies. Most of them credited the first break to luck—or they came from the stage with a big reputation.

She stared moodily. The sky suddenly darkened and rain fell. Why, of course! Why hadn't she thought of that before.

With feverish haste she packed the clothes she had hung in the closet only the day before, paid Mrs. Sayles for the week.

"But, Livia, you going?" stuttered Mrs. Sayles. This was most unexpected. Livia's coms to Hollywood House one day and leave the next. Livia wrote her new address on a piece of paper.

She was still laughing at the recollection of the extras' astonishment when she arrived at her new home.

* * *

They were filming a new adventure story, heavily interspersed with the love of the leading man for the daughter of his commanding officer. The skin of the said leading man was too precious to risk in a plane or in the water. Besides, he could not swim, nor pilot a plane—except on the process stage back in Hollywood.

Livia smiled three times over the lake at Arrowhead. He waved to the group around the camera in the boat, braced himself, and tilted the plane steeply. The plane brushed the water. But there was an hand-to-at this stunt, and after a momentary shock, opened the aperture-didn't dive underneath the plane from which he was hung to safety. He reappeared in the water swimming with long, say strokes despite the handicap he wore. He was picked up by a waiting boat.

"That was fine," the director declared.

"I was hoping you'd want another take" Bruce grinned. He received $250 for each "take" of this stunt. For the first time in life, he wanted to make money.

"Oh, Lord," Bruce groaned as the boat neared land, "Do you see what I see?"

Livia tried to tell you," the director said apologetically. "But I thought you'd dined with her. She begged so hard to come here today. And you know what she's like when she wants anything."

"Yeah, I know," said Bruce. His mouth closed in a thin line. The Countess Sashi was famous in Hollywood for her parties and her relentless seeking out males who pleased her fancy. She was Austrian and still good-looking—in a harsh, aggressive manner. The title had disappeared from her life several years ago.

A stuntman was something new for the Countess. She usually collected young leading men in pictures. To date, Bruce had evaded the pressing invitations to her parties. Now he was caught.

Her slightly - protruding eyes widened with admiration as she stripped forward on ridiculously high heels to greet him.

"You were wonderful," she said. "Yes," replied Bruce.

"Is he told you?" Countess Sashi indicated the director, who suddenly found something to attend to, "I'm staying up here for a few days."

"If you'll pardon me, I have to change my clothes," said Bruce politely.

They went back to the hotel, the Countess insisting on a ride in her car with Bruce.

"She left her card this afternoon," Mrs. Sayles told him.

"What? . . . Where did she go?"

"To the Beverly Hotel."

To the Countess, who was hovering outside the telephone booth Bruce said, "I must get back to Hollywood tonight."

"I have my car outside—we can make it in two hours," she told him happily. Bruce considered a moment. Then accepted her offer.

What had happened? How could Livia get on a salary of an extra. She lived at the luxurious Beverly Hotel?

The drive seemed interminable. But the Countess left him at the hotel. When Bruce asked for Miss Clarkson at the desk, the clerk shook his head.

"There is no one of that name here."

"There is no one here by that name," repeated the desk clerk.

"Where is the manager?" Countess Sashi demanded.

Presently the manager, all bows and smiles, arrived and looked through the book of reservations.

"There must be some mistake." he told the Countess. "The lady is not registered here."

"A drink for us both good. Let's go to the bar," the Countess said to Bruce. He followed her slowly. "We'll have that table in the corner," she said loudly to the waiter, and turned to Bruce for approval.

He was staring in mingled bewilderment and relief at a girl with auburn hair in a clinging white evening gown, and a white ermine coat over her shoulders. With her was a tall, dark-haired man in full evening dress. Bruce walked past Livia, followed closely by the Countess.

"Livia, did you weren't registered here," Bruce said, Livia started, then recovered quickly and looked at Bruce. His eyes wandered from her ermine coat, ten back to her elegant eyes, then to the escort, who seemed uncomfortable and was eyeing the table.

"Won't you introduce me to your friend," said the Countess . . . Livia hesitated. The man with Livia looked up at that and murmured:

"Sashi."

The Countess ignored him and said, "Livia, Livia?"

"What will you have to drink?" Livia said haughtily.

"I have to talk to Livia alone. Will you both excuse us?" Bruce said.

"You must settle whatever you have to in nine minutes," said the Countess with forced gaiety, "Another lady will entertain me." And she glared at the uncomfortable escort. Livia followed Bruce into the lounge. They sat down silently in two arm-chairs with a low cocktail table between. Bruce rolled a cigarette with slow deliberation, and waited for her to speak.

"I've changed my name," Livia said. "I'm now Veronica Weston." She paused waiting for his comment. But he said nothing. "I'm going to crash into the movies from the top," she continued with a note of defiance. She told him of the humiliating scene with Alice Delavera. "I'm through working as an extra."

"Where dye get the coat?" he asked. Livia stroked the ermine and giggled.

"It's all part of my plan. I hired it; it cost me $25 for the evening."

"I suppose you also hired that—" Bruce nodded his head in the direction of the bar. She laughed.

"Yes—he was a little cheaper—$10 for the evening. Oh, don't be so shocked, Ily all very respectable. The agent bureau fires them if they get fresh or anything."

Bruce's jaw set in a hard line. But Livia refused to be offended.

"It's my money, isn't it?"

"I'm leave?"

"Yes. What was the use of $1,500 in the bank? It all vanishing the back riches, I can get it to get a good movie job."

"Maybe."

"Yes," she continued lightly, "for as long as my money holds out I'm wasting absolutely girl from the East. I have a car—they gave me a very generous salary, and it's a beauty. I have a good wardrobe—furs I can hire, and the jewels—she shook the jewelled bracelets on her wrist—they're phoney."

"You're crazy," said Bruce.

"What have I got to lose?"

"Fifteen hundred dollars. Where are you going with that gimlet?"

"To the Spotlight restaurant first. That's where the big-shots go, isn't it?"

"I wouldn't know. My salary as a stunt-man—"

"Please don't be like that, Bruce. He stood up. "Antonia must be getting impatient."

The Countess brightened again at sight of Bruce.

"Well, Miss Clarkson—or is it Miss Weston? Well, anyway, good-bye — and good-bye Antonia," said the Countess. "Come and see me some time—both of you." She brushed Bruce's cheek.

"You're having dinner with me?" she pleaded with him.

"If you don't mind, I'd like to be excused." Bruce shuddered at the fate of her escort when the Countess home," he told the chauffeur and grinned at the picture of indignation.

He walked toward Hollywood. Livia—she needed spanking. But she was able to take care of herself, and anyway, it was not it to him?

He stopped at a drive-in and ordered a chocolate malted. She decided to drive back immediately to the Beverwood. There was nothing for him to do in town anyway.

He went to his apartment and changed his clothes. It meant going out of his way, but he drove to the Spotlight restaurant.

There was the usual photographers and the usual crowd at the door. He searched the green and silver restaurant. Livia was dancing with Antonia. She seemed happy enough and was laughing at something Antonia was whispering. But Livia looked across the floor.

He ordered some beer and drank it slowly, watching professional motion picture people come in. An agent, paused and said to Bruce:

"I thought you liked only the great open spaces?"

Forecasts New Era in Flying

London, Feb. 2. (CP)—Lord Brabazon, pioneer aviator and former minister of aircraft production who headed a British committee on civil aviation design, has advised aircraft model-makers and experimenters to study the boomerang.

Opening a model aircraft exhibition of model aircraft, he said the weapon of the Australian aborigine combines the principles of the autogiro and the helicopter.

"You with your models may discover new great contributions to flight", he said in an address. "In addition, to use an Irishism, is still in the air.

"We don't know whether we are going to pull the airplane in the future or push it, or whether it will fly tail first or be all wing or all fuselage. The introduction of the jet has changed everything in flying.

"In the past we have been a race of sailors. Now we have got to be a race of airmen. It is in the use and direction of air policy that the future peace of the world lies. Britain's youth must take a part in this policy and shape it for good".

POSSIBILITY OF INVASION BY JAPS REMOVED

Chungking, Feb. 2 (Reuters) — Allied military pressure in Burma had removed any possibility of a Japanese invasion of China from the southwest, Dr. Wang Shih-Chien, Chinese Minister of Information, stated yesterday. "Now this back door has been secured we have to fight virtually on only one front," he added.

Subic Bay Naval Base Found Abandoned by the Japanese

Southwest Pacific Advance Command, Feb. 1. (AP)—Subic Bay and its naval repair base of Olongapo, dotted with pillboxes but inexplicably abandoned by the Japanese, were back in American hands today while to the east advanced American elements rolled clear of a dangerous bottleneck passage only 28 road miles from Manila.

Well-fortified Grande Island, guarding the entrance to Subic Bay, was abandoned to the enemy and taken Tuesday by 5th Army troops. Units of the United States 38th Fleet then steamed into Subic Bay.

Other elements of the 5th Army moved by road along the inner rim of Subic Bay to capture the Olongapo naval base.

Today's Allied communique said that "we are now using its excellent anchorage, and development of this base is already underway".

Sixth Army troops 35 miles to the east meanwhile reached the town of Calumpit, 26 road miles from Manila, in a drive down an easily-defensible strength of highway flanked by huge swamplands.

Failure of the Japanese to put up a fight in this natural defence zone was a puzzling as the enemy's lack of opposition in Subic Bay.

The Americans crossed the Pampanga river just north of Calumpit to swing free of the swampy corridor and slim down the eight Manila - Lingayen highway. They were approaching Malolos, 22 road miles from Manila.

18-Mile Advance.

One column of 6th Army troops, which has been moving southward from Lingayen, turned westward on the Bataan peninsula road from San Fernando and captured Lubao. This represented a 10-mile advance to within 25 road miles of a junction with the 8th Army pressing eastward from the Zambales coast beachhead, established without bloodshed Monday.

Such a junction will seal off the Bataan peninsula, which forms the eastern edge of Manila Bay. Japanese troops have fled into Bataan from San Fernando and other sectors to the northeast, and some are reported to have sought refuge there by boat from Manila.

The communique announced severing of the Cagayan valley road, only highway of the central Luzon plains left in Japanese control, with the capture of Munoz and Talavera.

Motor torpedo boats, with fighter plane support, destroyed 81 Japanese coastal vessels in raids on Batangas Bay, south of Manila, and Lingayen Bay to the north.

Heavy bombers pounded the Cavite naval base with 97 tons of bombs which caused heavy explosions and fires.

Escorted heavy bombers swept across the China Sea to bomb Hsilo airdrome on southwestern Formosa. Twenty aircraft were destroyed and five were knocked off in assembly and repair shops.

Four freighters were sunk and two others set afire in a raid by patrol bombers on the Sakishima Islands just east of Formosa.

Nearly 200,000 Veterans Already Re-established

Ottawa, Feb. 2. (CP)—The speech from the throne prorouging the fifth session of the 19th Parliament Wednesday said that nearly 200,000 veterans of this war already have been re-established in civil life and this was interpreted by veterans officials here as meaning that this number had actually returned to civilian occupations.

Officials said the re-establishment program which includes the payment of gratuities, re-establishment credits, college and vocational tuition, land settlement advances and other benefits is only beginning.

The mustering out gratuity on which credits and other benefits are based have been paid to nearly 85,-000 discharged veterans. Applications have been received from about 98,000.

The job-finding agency, however, has put thousands or more to work each month. For instance, in November jobs were found for 11,200 veterans, bringing the number placed to 184,777. December placements were not available, but they were understood to bring the total to nearly 200,000.

This objective could be attained only by co-operation of trustees and they should avoid any increases in school maintenance costs, the premier wrote. The Memorandum was made public yesterday.

Big Battle Rages Four Miles East Of Frankfurt

Germans Claim Russ Lose Bridgehead Across Oder

London, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Marshal Gregory Zhukov's vanguards were reported by the Germans today to have won and then lost a bridgehead across the Oder in the Kustrin area 46 miles east of Berlin as the Nazi capital was battered again by Allied bomber fleets.

Hard counter-blows yesterday wiped out a spearhead of the 1st White Russian Army which had won a lodgement on the west bank of the river line, according to a broadcast by Col. Ernst Von Hammer, German military commentator.

"The western bank of the Oder has now been mopped up of Russian forces," he said. "East of Kustrin, all Russian thrusts were repelled."

Berlin Bombed

Explosives from hundreds of fighter-escorted bombers from British crashed at noon upon the Reich capital, already teeming with refugees frightened by the sound of Russian guns as the Germans said a big battle was raging in the area four miles east of Frankfurt, itself 36 miles from Berlin.

From German divisions entered the line.

While Zhukov sought to exploit 15-mile gains achieved yesterday through the Kustrin-Frankfurt defence arc, units of his right wing pushed to within 11½ miles of the shipbuilding city of Stettin, Berlin's last port and capital's gateway to the Moscow radio announced.

Moscow dispatches said Soviet artillerymen and tanks were pumping shells into Kustrin, 40 miles northeast of Berlin, and into Frankfurt from the last major barriers before Berlin.

15-Mile Gain.

South of Kustrin other Russian vanguards plunged forward from captured Drossen, 14 miles northeast of Frankfurt and 15 miles due east of Berlin. The fall of this communications hub represented the greatest gain yesterday for the Russians with a 15-mile plunge punched through the heavily reinforced German lines.

The German radio, which has consistently placed the Russian advance several miles ahead of gains announced by the Soviet High Command, said the Red Army was also attacking Kustrin and had reached the Oder River at new points only 26 miles from the heart of the Frankfurt area.

The midnight Russian war bulletin said the Nazis were consistently replenishing their shattered forces east and northeast of Frankfurt, but despite a stubborn resistance were losing one position after another under blows.

May Outflank Kustrin.

Another column of Zhukov's men, rolling northwest around Drossen, reached the Oder river at a point

Settlement Likely In Greek Crisis

Athens, Feb. 3 (AP)—The conciliatory spirit that marked the opening conference between Greek Government Representatives and Left-ing EAM-ELAS delegates spurred hopes today that a settlement would be reached in a dispute that flared into civil war after Greece's liberation.

The first meeting of the two factions last night ended without a clash. The government announced that taking up arms with the ELAS had been removed from the list of punishable offences, but individual acts contrary to rules of war or the criminal code will be punished.

30 miles from Berlin, the Germans announced. This advance threatened to outflank Kustrin and take it from the rear.

Moscow's communique did not mention that fighting was in progress at Kustrin itself but announced the capture of Alt Lietzmirtin, only 10 miles east of the city.

Eight miles south of Alt Lietzmirtin Drossen, in the capture of which the Russians by-passed Zielenzig, is another German position protecting Frankfurt.

In another 15-mile advance the Russians seized Maiow, 24 miles east of Frankfurt and four miles south west of Zielenzig, driving ahead at the lower end of the curving-35-mile bulge pointed at Berlin and Stettin.

The 1st White Russian Army captured more than 150 places yesterday despite the stiffest German resistance and an unseasonal thaw which hampered mechanized movement.

In the drive on Stettin Soviet forces captured Soldin, 20 miles northeast of Kustrin, placing the Russians officially within 36 miles of the big Baltic port. Berlin said they were even closer.

NO INFORMATION ON RELEASE OF ANY BRITISH PRISONERS

London, Feb. 3 —(Reuters)—The War Office announced it had so far received no information of the release of any British Commonwealth prisoners of war by the advancing Red army. An announcement will be made as soon as reliable information is available, the War Office said.

It is known, however, that the German authorities have been moving to the west, prisoners of war and civilians from camps which are likely to be overrun.

BOMBERS RAIDING BERLIN STRETCH NEARLY 300 MILES

Night Raids Against Wiesbaden, Karlsruhe And Synthetic Plant At Wanne-Eicket

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—The German radio said waves of Allied heavy bombers were hitting Berlin today.

The enemy report came after great formations of heavy bombers, shielded by hundreds of fighting planes, swept into Germany from over northern Holland.

These planes went out after more than 1,200 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers attacked rail and other German communications last night, and the target of the heaviest stream is still flying eastward, making it seem, on the first speculations, here are already leaving Berlin heading northwest," the Berlin broadcast said.

The daylight blow at the German capital appeared to be one of the heaviest assaults in months. The Berlin radio said the procession of bombers stretched more than 300 miles from Berlin to the Dutch frontier.

United States air force headquarters announced that the accorted heavy bombers of the United States 8th air force were over Germany as the Nazi radio kept up a running account of their threatening.

The night raids, from which four R.C.A.F. bombers are missing, were against Wiesbaden, 30 miles southwest of Frankfurt-on-the-Main; Karlsruhe, just across the northern entrance of the Belfort synthetic oil plant at Wanne-Eickel, in the Dortmund region, R.C.A.F. Mosquitos also carried out intruder patrols over western Germany.

Berlin apparently was given a night's rest after the heaviest R.A.F. Mosquito raids of the war Thursday night when heavy blows were struck at two other Rhine transportation centres, Ludwigshafen and Mainz, by British and Canadian planes.

R.C.A.F. Lancasters bombed Wiesbaden last night while Canadian Halifax and Lancaster of the Pathfinder Force, which led the attack, said he saw two huge explosions lighting the clouds over the oil plant while PO. J. K. Smith of Toronto, a Lion squadron member, said "in my opinion we have what we were after."

Yesterday's afternoon-flying R.A.F. Mosquitos struck at six railroad yards shot up and bombed 13 trains, 540 railway

Weather or Terrain Should Not Delay West Front Attack Says Moscow

London, Feb. 3. (CP)—The German press and radio sounded the theme of "Remember 1916" in appeals today to Germans to stand firm against battlefront setbacks and any Allied calls for surrender.

Promising nothing, German newspapers declare, "all enemy aims cannot be achieved if the German people have the firm will not to capitulate".

Dispatches from neutral capitals and Allied broadcasts said anti-Hitler posters and slogans were appearing on walls in large German cities. Moscow radio said "there is no doubt of panic-mongering in many sections of Germany".

Berlin was reported in various dispatches as teeming with refugees with armed guards trying to shuttle them hurriedly from the capital. One Swedish newspaper's Berlin dispatch said the city was threatened with famine due to overcrowded loss of huge food stocks to the Russians in the east. Another, it added, is "hourly becoming more and more the capital of the Reich".

A Moscow broadcast called for an Allied attack on the western front, the ground is right for a blow at the Germans in the west that would crush the tattered banks of Hitlerism once and for all, now, and the time is also ripe", the Soviet commentator declared.

GUESSING DATE OF THE ELECTION IS NEW PASTIME

Parliament Will Not be Dissolved Until By-Election Monday

Ottawa, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Parliament Hill and many parts of rural Canada, too, is taken these days with a new pastime — guessing the date of the forthcoming Federal election.

There is one thing definite about this election-guessing business and that is that the voting cannot come before April 9.

This is because parliament will not be dissolved until after Prime Minister Mackenzie King has made public his unalterable for the government to carry on any length of time without a parliament by setting the date of the election far in advance of the dissolution or expiry of the present parliament.

In previous years election day has seldom been more than two months (always between the end of the life of parliament, as if Mr. King follows precedent a two-month interval from April 17, when the five-year parliamentary term automatically ends, would make the election date about mid-June.

Can Be Held Later.

As the election laws require that voting be on a Monday the earliest range of dates would appear to be April 9 to June 25.

Legally, the election could be held long after June 25, providing another session of the present parliament was held between now and April 17, when the five-year parliament dies. Under the law, parliament must meet at least once a year and, thus, if there has not been one before April 17 the new parliament need be elected at any time for a session in 1946.

While there are plenty of guesses in political circles here as to the election date, few will venture to speculate on the outcome of the Grey North voting Monday, when Defence Minister McNaughton will be opposed by Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative, and Air Vice-Marshal Earl Godfrey, C.C.F.

That by-election campaign might have much to do in deciding the date of the general election. Some political quarters have even suggested that if Gen. McNaughton wins there will be a short session of parliament within a few weeks, to be followed by the main session later. But if Mr. McNaughton is defeated, however, they look for almost immediate dissolution and an election 60 days hence.

Says S. S. Guards Try to Drive Refugees Out of German Capital

London, Feb. 3 (Reuters) — A Swedish eyewitness was quoted by Moscow radio today as saying that refugees were being driven from one Berlin station to another by armed S. S. guards who were trying to clear them out of the capital.

"Berlin is in a terrible state," he said, "this is the beginning of the end."

RUSSIAN WOMEN HELD ON HUGE NAZI SLAVE FARM

Employers Came to Farm to Pick Out Strongest for Heaviest Work

Moscow, Feb. 3 —(AP)— A distinguished Russian correspondent in the Nazi said today Soviet troops who captured a huge slave farm in Silesia had discovered a huge slave farm where Russian women are held in readiness for Nazi employers.

A large group of the women, crying with laughter over their liberation, told the Red army soldiers the operation of the farm had fled with other Germans to a safer area, Ossip Gusarow said.

Several thousand girls and women were placed in a large barbed wire enclosure as landowners, factory managers and representatives of Nazi officials came to select their slave workers, Red Star related.

"They felt our muscles, arms and legs, and also looked at our teeth," "trying to find out who was the strongest and who was able to do most work. They made us open our mouths and looked at our teeth like horse dealers."

The liberated women added the Nazis sent girls to work as maids in factories and farms, and the strongest were sent to domestic service in homes.

THRUST SEVERS JAPANESE FORCES ON LUZON ISLAND

Strong Indications Philippine Capital Will Be Liberated Without Major Fight

Southwest Pacific Advance Command, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Two powerful United States armored columns have driven through Siegfried Line defences southeast of Aachen toppled two more towns today within 32 miles of Bonn on the Rhine, but German resistance stiffened along a 40-mile sector of the besieged west wall.

One front dispatch said the Germans were preparing to counter-attack at points from concrete bunkers, and termed the fighting the heaviest since the height of the 16 December break-through into Belgium.

"The battle was particularly fierce in the area 11 miles southeast of Monschau, where the 82nd Airborne Division aided Timberscheid and heights dominating the Siegfried Line 1 1/2 miles inside Germany.

Patrol in Force.

A front dispatch said that farther north British and Canadian patrols were sent out in force across the Maas River northeast of Brebt, Holland, and southeast of Nijmegen.

"Fighting forward east of Monschau, the 1st Army's 2nd Infantry Division had cracked the west wall at one of its widest points 30 miles southeast of Aachen, and driven 10 miles inside Germany. Farther north, the Second Division seized Schonefeldt and Rurberg, three miles from the Siegfried fortress of Schleiden and 32 miles from Bonn, communications hub on the Rhine.

The 2nd Division already was through the first of two main defence belts there, but enemy opposition stiffened.

Hard Fighting Rages.

Germans fought as bitterly against the United States 3rd Army's push farther down on the Aachen front. Front dispatches said fighting raged for Bleialf, 5½ miles west of Prum, a supply centre for the defence line.

American and French troops battled 3 three Germanys from a toehold in Colmar on the southern edge of the meeting of the Rhine and Ill rivers, front dispatches said, and broadened their grip on the Rhine south of Strasbourg to 15 miles.

Artillery pounded the Rhine bridge at Neuf brisach east of Colmar, main route of supply for perhaps 25,000 Germans in the Colmar area. Allied warplanes struck at the Rhine near Kuenheim, north of Neufbrisach.

Over To Central Pacific

French and American tanks and infantry had driven to the centre of Colmar, meeting stiff resistance only in the eastern sector.

Allied planes struck repeatedly in support of ground troops. They announced United States Army 3rd motives, 1,312 railway cars and 276 motor vehicles Friday.

The pattern of day and night attack began increasingly to seal off the Colmar bulge from the Siegfried Line defences, perhaps preparing for a break-through bid for the Rhine.

Crack West Wall And Drive 10 Miles Inside Germany

Fighting Heaviest Since Nazis' Break-Thru in Dec.

Paris, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Jfulled States 1st Army troops striking halfway through the Siegfried Line defences southeast of Aachen toppled two more towns today within 32 miles of Bonn on the Rhine, but German resistance stiffened along a 40-mile sector of the besieged west wall.

Military Occupation of Germany Gaining Support in U.S. Circles

Washington, Feb. 3—(AP)— In United States government circles there is a feeling of keeping of a unified military occupation forces in Germany for many years after gaining unconditional surrender.

Information trickling Washington about conditions inside Germany is generally interpreted by officials as holding little hope of a unified enemy surrender.

Instead, the belief is that German military forces will disintegrate under pressure of converging Anglo-American armies, leaving the country in a state of chaos.

Since this prospect, if realized, likewise means the complete disintegration of Germany politically, there is increasing discussion here of the possibility that the defeated people may have to be ruled by an Allied commission for an indefinitely prolonged period.

There is some belief that discussion of a plan along this line may have taken place at the conference of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin at their meeting. The possibility is not entirely discounted that Marshal Stalin may suggest eventually building up the German economy of London, have agreed on broad policies and most of the machinery expected to be required for the initial stages of military occupation of the Reich. These policies include a three-way split of the country for occupation by the Russians and the Western Allies and the creation of a military control commission in Berlin to provide for joint uniform administration and uniform justice for the entire country.

Tank-Supported Infantry Attacks Along Senio River

Rome, Feb. 3 (Reuters) — The British 8th Army today made tank-supported dawn attacks across German strongholds along the Senio River in the Po Valley.

One of these attacks, launched south of the Faenza-Bologna highway, the area where the 1st Canadian Corps has been operating with the 8th Army, rolled some German prisoners and cut up a number of other Germans stubbornly defending these posts.

Eighty army patrols along the Senio River frontline were finding the river banks cunningly wired mined.

The Germans everywhere along Field Marshal Albert Von Kesselring's winter line were nervously alert to Allied scouting patrols searching out their positions along both the 5th and 8th Army fronts.

On the 5th army front, patrols clambering about the misty Appenine ridges were making contact with Germans in the mountains, according to an official report by Field Marshal Alexander. Inflicted casualties on the Germans at several points.

A headquarters statement said a number of Silesian Poles from the German 146th division has deserted to the Fifth Army lines.

Despite unfavorable flying weather, medium bombers of the Mediterranean Allied tactical air force attacked rail bridges on the Brenner route into Germany and bridges in north Italy.

LARGE OWL SHOT

There is at least one barred owl who won't give a hoot how long the winter lasts.

For when Thomas Ogden, Colville, drew a bead on the big bird with his trusty .22 rifle, the plumed raider of chicken houses had all hoots and no flies.

The owl weighed approximately five pounds and had a wingspread of five feet. Its plumage was barred, making it difficult to say how would have no difficulty in making off with a full grown chicken.

Mr. Ogden preserved the bird sitting on top of his barn.

Fishing Trip Turned Into Big Headache

(By E. W. B.)

Bancroft, Feb. 2—Fishing through the ice is often considered a few recreation to those engaged in business whereby due to the individual but in some cases a fishing trip is terminated in a final headache as in the case Tm about to relate:

Wednesday noon, Rev. H. A. McLauchlin, the United Church minister at Bancroft, company with Mr. C. C. Ellerbeck, a local business man, set out by motor for a few hours' fishing off Mink Lake. This lake is situated in between a number of hills and is about some 35 miles northeast of Bancroft. Arriving there the Marmora Whitney made by Mr. D. K. Card, of Portwood one turn over the ice and the wife, who is hauling timber from the lake. "Jerr" and "Bert" as they are known, about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon and failed to return home at the time they started for home—with no fish, but here is where the grief commenced.

Narrow Read.

As mentioned before, this winter road, over the ice from the lake, is built up on packed snow whose tracks are narrow as the sleigh is big a car and no one need not deviate six inches either way without being precipitated into the snow to the ground and that is what happened to Rev. McLauchlin. After various efforts to put the car back on the packed track the car leaked backward a distance of some three miles, gouging their way through the snow and ice and it was a settler's home to secure a team to pull their car out.

Is Trouble Again.

After their car was hauled from the ditch and the teamster and team back to their home, the rest of the day went everything was smooth sailing from there on, but after a visit to Gooding, to and behind, if the car didn't once more get stuck in the stately snow. Night now settled in and a blizzard set in with a home becoming alarmed that their husbands had not returned. At 10 o'clock, contacted Provincial Officer B. W. Cranston and got in touch with the writer, set out shortly after ten in search of the lost fishermen.

A little after eleven the officers in company with other searching fishermen vainly attempting to place the car on the right track on the road, which was accomplished with the help of a team from a settler's home, but the next problem was how could the car be driven in the deep snow and ice, and no cut-outs along the way. He and his party were left to return to the vehicle back, but this was too great a strain on the latter's neck, so after accepting the officer's finally after accepting the officer's kindly suggestion the heavy car was left bodily right where lifting one end and then the other until after a few hours' hard work finally freeing and lifting the car was heading once more for Bancroft.

Finally Reach Home.

One feature in favor of the fourscore was that the skies cleared and the moonlight enhanced the wintry landscape and made the situation easier. So boy and boy the team reached home at three o'clock Thursday morning, tired but grateful that all were safe and finally. During the evening's episode the boys at a well equipped home at the several spectacle staged some fourteen miles from any main assistance.

Engineer Officer on Hospital Ship Says Wounded Given Every Comfort

Pistol in hand, the Gestapo officer edged himself between a young Norwegian and his wife on one of the main streets of Oslo, Norway. With a threatening gesture, he motioned the young man to go on, and his wife to remain. "You go to Berlin—the morning," he said.

The young Norwegian hesitated. His jaws set in a grim line. Then he strode quickly to the dock where a small cargo craft from a small German harbor to the south-east reaches of the North Sea. Some later, the young patriot was picked up by a British destroyer.

That is one of the stories told of Wartime occupation of Norway by Second Engineer Carl Lindemann, of the "Lady Nelson", cargo Canadian hospital ship, husband of a Belleville lady who at present is spending a brief leave with relatives in the city.

"That young man," he said, "was one of my best friends. He has not seen his wife since that fateful day in Oslo, but at present is accounting for plenty of Nazis with the British Army on the western front."

Went To Sea At Fourteen.

True to the traditions of seagoing forebears, Second Engineer Lindemann went to sea at the age of fourteen. He sailed the seven seas on the ships of the merchant marine and after a lengthy voyage to the Indian Coast, landed back in Europe with Engineer officer in the British engineer on the "Lady Nelson" early in 1940.

He speaks six languages fluently and has a wife and baby in the seaport city with a friend; Flight Sergt. Leo Bellinger, RCAF, who was a prisoner of war in Germany, and the friend of the First Great War and learned to speak German, fluently.

Loves Wounded Canadians

Engineer Lindemann speaks highly of the morale of wounded Canadians whom he has come in contact during his transatlantic trips. "Naturally they are glad to be coming home," he said, "but quite a few of them seemed anxious to get back with their friends at the front. You never hear them complain and they bear their scars honorably and nobly.

"In one case we had was a double amputation. Both legs had been shot off, but at present is accounting for plenty of Nazis with the British Army on the western front."

Loves Wounded Canadians

Engineer Lindemann speaks highly of the morale of wounded Canadians whom he has come in contact during his transatlantic trips. "Naturally they are glad to be coming home," he said, "but quite a few of them seemed anxious to get back with their friends at the front. You never hear them complain and they bear their scars honorably and nobly.

"In one case we had was a double amputation. Both legs had been shot off, but at present is accounting for plenty of Nazis with the British Army on the western front."

Capt. Rawson Tells Kinsmen of His Experiences on Recent Trip Overseas

Members of the local Kinsmen might have been no D-Day.

Club were entertained by appreciation to wives and to lady friends for assistance in the club's program during the past year as they played the host at their annual Ladies' Night banquet held in the Hotel Quinte on Friday evening.

Guest speaker for the evening was Captain the Rev. Norman Rawson, Presbyterian chaplain from Hamilton, who with his characteristic touch of humor, kept his audience in convulsive spasms of laughter as he related some of his experiences overseas during a recent trip to England and of France. Climaxing his address with a sermon note he appealed to Canadians for the realization of the real privilege that today's being bought at a terrible price by the boys in the services.

Enjoyable Evening.

It was a night of complete enjoyment for guests of the Kinsmen Club attending the evening banquet and the dancing at the Club Vanity Fair Ballroom after the per party. Kinsmen President Milton Wilson was in rare form as he kept the program rolling along. The assembly enjoyed community singing to the leadership of Kin Geoff Marvell and Kin Ernie Counsell, and a solo number by the latter ended to the silvery voice of Miss Betty Wilson, who also gave her per per touch of feeling she sang "An Irish Lullaby," following with an Irish jig number. Kin Phil Huddleston acted as Miss Smith's accompanist.

Toast to the ladies was proposed by Kin. Lorne Wilson to the guests, President Rollins asked the ladies present to rise, and toasted them with applause as compensation for assistance during the past year. A pleasant evening was spent by members of Kinsmen now in the armed services.

Visits Son.

Introduced by Kin Richard Arnott, Captain Rawson humorously described hurried preparation for his trip overseas to visit his son and the fighting fronts. He with his wife, made a sightseeing tour with the National War Finance as public speakers in support of the Victory Loan campaign. Kinsmen appreciation was expressed by Norm Garbutt, when the Kinsmen artists were expressed by Ted Pollard.

Given a free hand to go where he pleased and to talk with anybody he cared, the speaker told of his sight-and-one-half hour flight across the Atlantic in a converted Lancaster; of his visit to London during the light of a flying bomb attack; of his talking with wounded in Canadian hospitals, of a flight over Calais aboard a "jitterbug" piloted by his own son and of his trip to Europe aboard a motor torpedo boat.

Describing Britain as a mass of airports from which daring pilots take off for the short trip across the sea of the earth with the nonchalance of a taxi ride around the city, the speaker intimated the worldly outlook of Britons far surpassed that of Canadians.

Rebomb Destructive.

The robomb was termed a "deadly" weapon, more destructive than would be indicated by the reports of modest Englishmen. Its blast could seriously injure within a distance of 400 yards unless precautions were to the pavement in a special crouch.

"It is my considered judgement," stated Mr. Rawson, "that the robomb launching sites in France and Belgium had been put out of operation by the Germans there and after a lengthy voyage to the Indian Coast, landed back in Europe with Engineer officer in the British engineer on the "Lady Nelson" early in 1940.

He speaks six languages fluently and has a wife and baby in the seaport city with a friend; Flight Sergt. Leo Bellinger, RCAF, who was a prisoner of war in Germany, and the friend of the First Great War and learned to speak German, fluently.

Arrange For Mass Funerals Of 16 Miners Killed

Timmins, Feb. 3 — (CP) — Arrangements were being made today for mass funerals for the 16 miners who were killed at the Paymaster mine here in the worst mine tragedy, when a cable snapped and the mine cage carrying them plunged 1,500 feet.

The district mine inspector, R. B. Watt, who spent a long day yesterday directing workmen in their painful task, said: "It is up to the surface, said the cause was broken cable.

The steel mine-shaft cage broke away at the 1,000 foot level of the 2,500 foot shaft and landed at the bottom a mass of twisted wreckage. There were eight men on each of the cage's two decks. The bodies from the upper deck were recovered in a short time but it was hours before the other eight could be reached.

Inspector Weir said there was no evidence of any defect in the elevator cable, which had been examined just recently. He said the cable had broken near the socket on the lower strand."

Preparations were being made for a coroner's inquest but no date for it had been set by the coroner, A. C. Evans of South Porcupine, who was at the mine throughout the day.

Flag at Half Mast

It was expected that there would be a number of funerals, and at Timmins and one at South Porcupine. The flag was flying at half mast over the municipal building of the township of Timmins, and the mine buildings.

Premier Frost sent the following message to Premier Duplessis:

"My colleagues were: Eine Niemf, 30, Russell Dillon, 24, Nick Stoost, 44, T. Kelly Johnson, 40, all of Timmins; Joseph Lemieux, 30, all of South Porcupine; Stanley Kolodejchuk, 30, Sylvio Bellefeuille, 30, Elzeldth, 40, Ubald Legault, Mike Markoseie, 40, Legouri Legault, 40, Joseph Rumpel, 40, Timmins, 40, Marvin Appleyard, 29, Laurent Dupuis, 40, all of Timmins.

Heist Cable Tested

Toronto, Feb. 3 — (CP) — H. C. Hickaby, Deputy Minister of Mines, announced today that the cable which broke at the Paymaster hoist cable was tested in Toronto last April. The cable passed a test every six months, he said.

The chief inspector of the Department of Mines, W. O. Tower, and Resident Mining Engineer, Northern Ontario, G. Sinclair, left for the disaster scene yesterday. Inspector E. Lee of the department, was at the mine within a few hours of the disaster.

"There will be a full and thorough investigation," Mr. Hickaby said. "We are awaiting all available facts of the terrible occurrence."

NazisOut-Thought And Out-Fought Says Air Marshal

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP War Writer)

Rome, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Adolf Hitler lost the European war, Britain because he failed to build up a strategic air force and concentrated instead on "the latest type of "technological development weapon," Lt.-Gen. L. C. Baker declared here.

The Mediterranean Air Force commander carried out the first corps inspection on the third anniversary of the day he landed in British-held Sicily to begin the campaign that ended in the Reich.

The address was definitely defeated when bombers cut her oil supply to half the minimum requirements of her armies.

Gen. Baker said. In modern warfare, he said, the "air battle must be won first and was won by the Allies, has been accomplished by the Allies.

"If the Germans had our long-range bombers the landings in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Normandy and Southern France would have been impossible, and the German armies would be in Russia or Stalingrad," Baker said.

The fact that the Nazis had no strategic air force, the commander declared, was proof that Hitler was not intelligent, but that he was out-thought.

Absorbs Out-of-Date

Virtually all German aircraft today is obsolescent, he said, but production of obsolescent planes, but even enemy jet-fighters "have not the range to accompany our attack on better fighter types such as Mustangs, Thunderbolts and Lightnings, he added. In fact, he added, the German jet-plane is inferior to the new American ones.

Germany, he said, was producing 2,000 fighter planes monthly and was ready to step up the output when British and American air might was turned loose on her aircraft plants. The bombing of the Germans had been practically soon was allied to less than 200 fighters a month. However, Gen. Baker said, subsequent bombing could restore production to 1,000 a month and that as a result "we shall undoubtedly be required from time to time to knock down rebuilt fighter factories."

Assail Proposals To Separate Power Seaway Phases

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 3 — (AP) — The New York state power authority, seeking to prevent a separate the power and seaway phases of the St. Lawrence project, said today development of power on the "dual purpose" basis envisaged the whole trend of river development in the United States over the past quarter of a century.

In addition, the authority stated in its report to the state legislature, the development of the power project by itself would cost $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 more than if it were constructed in conjunction with the seaway and waterway phases.

The authority has been attacked bitterly by a New York State Republican legislator, headed by Assemblyman Wilson C. Van Duzer of Cambyman Wilson C. Van Duzer of Cambyman Wilson C. Van Duzer, who charged Governor Dewey's proposal that the state develop the St. Lawrence power and seaway project in conjunction with the government of Canada and the province is "a sell-out to the Dominion if the Federal government is "unable or unwilling to proceed with the seaway has introduced a bill to abolish the authority on the ground that it was created contrary to the interests of the state.

Governor Dewey has also announced this week they would seek to amend the Republican platform to delete all reference to navigation.

Asserting recent proposals to separate the navigation "overlook the fact that the St. Lawrence, from the standpoint of navigation, is one of the great navigable rivers of the world and that the major part of the project is "practical obstacles which stand in the way of ... the St. Lawrence seaway and power project solely for power purposes."

McNaughton Says NRMA Discipline "Satisfactory"

Owen Sound, Feb. 2 —(CP)—Defence Minister McNaughton said here that the discipline at the ports in this country and on the ships during the recent movement of home defence troops overseas had been "satisfactory and the men had made a very good impression on arrival."

Gen. McNaughton was commenting on a statement made in Montreal, Oct., when Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken, addressing a political rally, said home defence troops had thrown their rifles and ammunition overboard while on the High Seas.

A prepared statement issued on behalf of Gen. McNaughton said:

"In answer Gen. McNaughton states that the accusations which have been made by John Bracken have been investigated by the officers of the Department of National Defence.

"The authorities at the ports of embarkation report that there had been rumors that some crates had been thrown his rifle and kit overboard. It had been stated that the man's kit was recovered and the rifle lost.

"There was no confirmation that this incident in an individual case had happened. Inquiries have been made to London."

"Gen. McNaughton stated further that he now had full reports on the embarkation, the voyage and the arrival in the United Kingdom of the troopships which had carried the N.R.M.A. men as well as others.

"The discipline at the ports in this country and on the ships had been satisfactory and the men had made a very good impression on arrival.

"Gen. McNaughton observed that if Mr. Bracken had in fact made the statement attributed to him, it was another example of careless utterances which have come to be associated with his name. He had made serious charges. He would be given every opportunity to substantiate what he had said."

Washington, Feb. 2 —(AP)— Amusement places in the 20 eastern and central states were ordered abruptly to turn off all gas jets at 4 p.m., E.D.T., yesterday if they use natural or mixed gas.

Theatres, restaurants, picture houses, night clubs, bars and other entertainment places in Washington, D.C., were covered by the edict as well as those in the affected parts of the 10 states. The test of application of the ban is whether natural or mixed gas is used.

The order was accompanied by an appeal to householders, schools and institutions to conserve gas.

Precipitation of prolonged cold weather, the emergency action affects Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky and parts of Maryland and Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

Canadians Share In Air Attacks On Hun Targets

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 2 — (CP Cable) — Aircraft from the Canadian Bomber group based in Britain shared last night in two almost simultaneous attacks on railway yards needed desperately by the enemy to transfer troops from the western front to the defence of Berlin.

Halifaxes marshalling yards at Mainz while Lancasters attacked industrial communications centres in Ludwigshafen, farther along the Rhine. Planes from the Bluenose and Tiger squadrons took part in the latter operation.

A third raid Thursday night — an all-R.A.F. show — struck similar targets at Saigen. More than 1,000 British and Canadian planes were in action between dusk and dawn.

All Canadian craft returned to base safely.

R.A.F. bombers hit Berlin twice during the night, wreaking further havoc on that refugee-clogged, panic-stricken capital.

Ludwigshafen and Mainz were hammered yesterday by 700 United States navy bombers, covered by 300 fighter-bombers. One bomber and one escort plane were missing.

R.A.F. Lancasters late Thursday hit a rail junction at Munchen Gladbach west of the Rhine and 16 miles northeast of British 2nd Army Roer River positions.

The Ludwigshafen attack was made through extremely heavy clouds and enemy flak was negligible. Fires as the bombed area were visible 75 miles.

R.C.A.F. Mosquitos of the R.A.F. fighter command on intruder patrol destroyed one JU188 last night.

PEACETIME TRAINING URGED

New York, Feb. 2 — (CP)—Only a "perpetual army of occupation" would be able to prevent Germany and Japan from rearming eventually, says Harry L. He urged Congress to provide one year of compulsory military training in peacetime for every 18-year-old boy.

Russians Uncover Slaughter Factory At Oswiecim

By DUNCAN HOOPER
(Reuters Staff Writer)

Moscow, Feb. 2 —(Reuters)— Special investigators are uncovering the secrets of the captured German factory at Oswiecim in southwestern Poland.

Every day while the camp was in full operation, between five and eight locked trains arrived at the camp with intended victims from the occupied regions of Russia, Poland, France, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, the trains always left the camp empty.

Prisoners were sorted on arrival into two sections—those fit to work before going to the slaughter chambers, and the aged, extremely young, and invalids, who were destroyed immediately.

When the Germans started the camp in 1941 they killed "primitively"—shooting through the back of the head and carrying the bodies to mass graves.

Then they introduced mechanized slaughter with gas chambers, and electrically charged conveyor belts which simultaneously killed the victims and took their bodies to the furnaces, and special devices for killing young children.

Thousands of prisoners were liberated by the Red army's advance. They are described as "people so exhausted that they shake like shadows in the wind."

"Health is a Priceless Asset"

The general acceptance of the phrase—"Health is a Priceless Asset"—is manifested in the greatly increased attention being paid to health habits throughout civilization. Departments of Public Health, national and local, are busy in improving conditions of sanitation, pure foods, immunization, and other phases which contribute to better health.

Newspapers, the periodical press, posters and radio advertise what to eat, and drink and wear, and in general how to conduct ourselves that we may be well and happy to a very ripe old age.

One striking fact shows the efficiency of these admonitions. In Canada in 1921, there were 71,350 men and women reported in the 75-79 age class. In 1941 this number had increased to 135,606. In other words, 75-year-olds had almost doubled in number in 20 years. Continued and improving good health habits, communal and personal, should see this figure doubled in the next 20 years.

HEALTH WEEK, beginning Sunday, Feb. 4, is being promoted by the Health League of Canada as a means of driving home the fact that "Health is a Priceless Asset." Messages concerning health will be delivered through churches, schools, service clubs, home and school clubs, women's and other organizations.

It is the aim of the League, a voluntary organization interested in health education, that the "Week" will help bring Canadians to the realization that it is imperative that they become health conscious. The future will demand good health of the Dominion's citizens who are now urged to get interested in the public health problems of their communities and also of the nation at large.

Canadians must remember that health is not a parochial problem alone.

Right to Triumph Over Nazism

For more than the twelve years since the rise of Hitler to the chancellorship of Germany the millions of people of the earth have seen the most evil force of the world throwing itself against every principle of right and justice and every charter of human ideal. That force is German National Socialism or Nazism.

It had its foundations in a hatred of those high principles of democracy and brotherhood which despite tyranny of such as Hitler and Mussolini and the warlords of Germany and of Japan continues to expand across the earth. Nazism is seen in a broader look to be the most sinister and brutal forces of primitive life. It was born in the hearts of evil men like the Nazi and Fascist leaders and had as its aim that of supremacy to thrive and grow by means of the results of the labor and vision and idealism of other peoples. Nazism had no place in humanity except in foul minds of degraded beings for it is in its essence wrong and sin. It had to rob and murder to start and carry on. At first it grew strong upon German soil and mentality; but meeting modern ideals in others it was much for it. It has met nations in the shock of battle which have demonstrated that good is greater than evil and that for a nation to go down into the pit it is only necessary to follow the teachings of such haters of mankind as Hitler and Mussolini who hated everything good and whose hand was raised against everything that stood in their way of taking by robbery and murder the products of the labor and love of others.

Now it having been shown on the wide battlefronts of this vast war that the Nazis must go down and that Nazism is to be destroyed by fire so that the earth may be cleansed, how many will do what Hitler asks Germans to do, die for what has come to the point of destroying Germany for a second time in the art of war? Nazism has had to use a long-fallen-into-disuse system —that of the spy system on the German people as applied by the emperors of ancient Rome where spies were maintained in families of the leading citizens—it to keep Germany under the thumb. Of course Himmler has built the reflection of the fear that is in the hearts of the Nazis for they know it is evil. Now will even all Himmlerites be ready to die for Hitler?

Nazism has been stronger than Fascism was in Italy, but both came from the same root of evil, hatred and envy. Fascism fell and its fall foreshadowed that Nazism must go.

Hitler must know that the Gestapo is hated for it has had to be busy in Germany especially in the latter half of the last year and of course it is feared.

No Allied leader has had to appeal to his people as Hitler has had to do with the Germans, threaten them if they dare "stab" Germany in the back. The very threats of Hitler are a proof not only that he is evil and his system with him but that not only tyranny within Germany has been necessary but also his tyranny outside Germany by force of vast armed forces.

A crisis faces the German people, they stand between the revenging or cleansing sword of the United Nations which will cleanse Europe of Hitler and the brutal force of Himmler's Gestapo which domineers over Germany but the vast hated not only Germany but the vast hordes of foreign labor slaves whom Nazism has brought in captivity to the Reich to try and bolster its inherent weakness,—which is this, that it is evil and offends every right-thinking nation and human being on earth. Whether the Germans dare defy Hitler or not, in the not distant future, the Nazi curse will be lifted from Europe and its plagues cease to be. Justice in the hearts of men and women to overthrow such organized evil as German Nazism.

Still Up to the Driver

(Christian Science Monitor)

The "safe driver" is the most patriotic one today. The efforts made by railroads to avert catastrophes at grade crossings should encourage even lax motorists to do on the alert. The Illinois Central, for example, has analyzed crossing accidents and has summarized the causes under ten distinct headings. Foremost is the fact that the motorist misjudges the speed of the oncoming train, and, second, he waits for one train to pass and then is struck by another from the opposite direction.

Among other reasons are those of "being fascinated by the passing and hence exercising no caution whatever," his judgment is clouded by alcohol," and factors involving the mechanical condition of car or brakes. The once familiar sign, "Stop! Look! Listen!" has been replaced at many rail crossings by the most modern electrical appliances and signals, but the burden of safety is still the most part on the shoulders of the motorist.

Reconstituting Dehydrated Foods

(Newsweek Magazine)

Food industry officials predict that devices for "reconstituting" dehydrated foods are destined for wide post-war distribution. Early in the war there was a huge demand for home dehydrators. But when the dried food was rehydrated it had lost much of its fresh product's appeal. Housewives also find present methods of rehydrating commercially dried foods not altogether satisfactory. Stirring such as food with cold milk usually results in discovered jars does effectively eliminate lumps. Now several contrivances have been developed to overcome such difficulties, and they'll be on the market when normal production is resumed.

In a newly discovered infra-red tunnel process, food which have received their coat of paint are dried in one sixtieth of the time occupied by the normal method. A military general purpose car can be dried in 30 minutes after being spray-painted with two coats of enamel.

PREJUDICE

He eats his meals each day, as I;
Like me, is fond of apple pie,
But 'twould not bother him at all
Were I for mince or peach to call;
Nor would he mind it if I said:
"I'd rather have fresh fruit instead.
'Tis my belief, though pie is sweet,
'Tis something man should never eat."

He would not shake his head at me
Did we o'er music not agree,
Or books or art or games to play,
Or bitter word be moved to say
Did I his special drink refuse.
My people he would not abuse.
Nor turn on me a scornful eye
Did I his favorite shop go by.

But, since unto his God I pray
In just a slightly different way,
And would the self-same Heaven achieve
By paths in which he can't believe,
Although the creeds he views with scorn
Teach, just as his, we're brothers born,
He turns in prejudice from me
And thinks my motives base must be.

Capital Closeups

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Slim, mild-mannered Francis Aubrey Hardy takes in his stride the trustfeeds of half a million volumes in the parliamentary library but he hopes that a new department building program will relieve his groaning shelves and crowded racks.

The library proper is actually designed as a mammoth reference for the nation's legislators and since the time Mr. Hardy had dug out material for one argument one day and found material supporting the opposing view, the next.

One of Mr. Hardy's tasks is to answer nearly 1,000 mailed queries a year on a wide variety of subjects from members, government officials, "bet settling" questions.

Recent reading trends? Well, Mr. Hardy finds his clients are reading pretty much what they always have. However, he has noticed an emphasis on books surveying post-war settlements and the hardcards of peace-making.

Foreign Relations Today found the library corridors once more quiet with the last member gone back to his riding after Wednesday's short prorogation session.

The ceremony provided him in the way of news but there was at least one point established. He has always been the custom for the Prime Minister and government leader of the Senate to stand stiffly at either side of the Senate Chamber as the Throne is being read in English and French.

However, this week Prime Minister Mackenzie King's colleague prevailed on Him to sit it out during the speech, which took long, occupying about 40 minutes.

Another incident performed a hitch in the usual smooth-working of the Hansard staff. The gowns of the chamber are locked while the members are at the opening speech. But somebody forgot the Hansard men and doorkeeper Glen was busy along with routine business before they were admitted.

So the official transcript of the early part of the proceedings—concerning the announcement of the vacancy in Grey North riding—had to be picked up later by the Hansard men.

Aurora Druggist Tells His Version Of Letter Episode

Owen Sound, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—J. E. Wills, the Aurora, Ont., druggist who became a figure in the Drew-Conant election campaign when the Liberal party paid $1 published a letter to the Owen Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate in York North, told the campaign yesterday what the letter contained.

The Case letter, written last November 2, proposed to conscription as soon as Drew entered the cabinet and ordered the mobilization of resources.

Wills, who stood as a Liberal advertisement, Mr. Case said it was not news, since he had read it in the local meeting 10 days earlier.

The Progressive Conservative party then published an advertisement asking the Liberals to publish the whole letter, not excerpts once, and in a public speech Mr. Conant charged Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal candidate in the election, with writing the letter that "Mr. Wills wrote to me in which he gave me his opinion of Mr. Case."

Mr. Willis' letter, appearing as an advertisement in the press, was addressed to the editor of the Owen Sound Sun-Times, and dated Jan. 30 and said Mr. Willis and Mr. Case were friends and had never corresponded prior to last November.

The letter said: "I wrote him as the Conservative candidate for York North, giving him my political background and I did not want him to misrepresent me in the present campaign. His letter back to me was, for the present, entirely confidential."

The letter stated Mr. Case was not for conscription. In the last war and that his family, Conservative for generations, was opposed to conscription and Mr. Case became a Liberal.

When he learned of Mr. Case's candidature, Mr. Wills said, he was servative in the present election, Mr. Wills said, but that the question of his stand when he was of age to be conscripted and whether he would be willing to be conscripted himself and had no views as to the principle of conscription, not to be a hypocrite."

Navy Minister Says U-Boats' 'Activity Has Increased

Ottawa, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Navy Minister MacDonald and Vice-Admiral George Jones, chief of the naval staff, arrived at nearby Rockcliffe air station early yesterday afternoon after flying from Halifax where they spent two weeks inspecting naval establishments in the Pacific and touring naval establishments.

Mr. Ralston read a statement made in London that the U-boat activity had increased and then quickly asked a reporter to say, "a better warship in the world" than their activity has increased."

He did not elaborate, but this was taken to mean he did not think it had increased. The reporter has had actually increased very much.

He had sat in at a British war cabinet meeting and had discussed the question of the future organization of Canadian power in the Pacific must wait the end of the war in Europe.

"First finish first," he said.

"Until we have finished with the war with Germany we cannot consider Japan," he added.

In answer to a question as to said he did not expect to go Owen Sound, Ont., to participate in the by-election campaign.

MONGOLIAN IDIOCY

One out of every five cases of mental deficiency is Mongolism or Mongolian idiocy. The condition takes its name from the facial resemblance of the patients to the Mongolian race, but Mongolism has anything to do with it we must find something more definite to support the theory—four family trees and nine are by Mongoloids to every 1 Mongolism or two as is the family tree of the Mongoloid idiot. Mongolism cannot be foreseen or prevented. It just happens here and there, now and then, in any family. So far as we know, circumstances and influences during the course of pregnancy have nothing to do with it. Nor has the treatment of mother and child during and immediately after childbirth.

In some instances a Mongolian baby or idiot may be the first born in a family of otherwise perfectly normal children; in others the Mongoloid idiot is the last born in which he gave me his opinion of Mr. Case."

Mr. Willis' letter, appearing as an advertisement in the press, was addressed to the editor of the Owen Sound Sun-Times, and dated Jan. 30 and said Mr. Willis and Mr. Case were friends and had never corresponded prior to last November.

London, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Prince Boris, a member of the late King Boris of Bulgaria, was executed Saturday by a Berlin dispatch saying Philov and Lt.-Gen. Mihola Mikhov, the Bulgarian radio announced yesterday. All three were former regents.

About 200,000 persons filled the streets of Sofia shouting "death to the traitors" as death to the murderers of our people," while the executions took place, Berlin said.

Previously the Sofia radio, as heard in New York by the Federal Communications Commission, had announced that death sentence for treason had been imposed on the three former regents, 22 cabinet ministers, nine king's counsellors and 67 former members of parliament by the Bulgarian People's Court.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Howard R. Stettinius has been the first secretary of state to proceed from Virginia in more than a hundred years. Most Secretaries of State before him was Abel P. Upshur, who served in Tyler's cabinet from 1841 until he was killed by the explosion of a gun on a warship in 1844.

The United States has had only one secretary of state born in the 20th century. Stettinius. He is Edward Reilly Stettinius, jr., of New Jersey, who served in Arthur's cabinet.

A remarkably large number of American Secretaries of State have been comparatively short names—Hay, Rush, Clay, Cass, Day, Hay, Root, Knox, Hughes, Colby, Hull.

William Hickling Prescott, the historian, wrote a history of The Reign of Ferdinand and Isabella, "The Conquest of Mexico," and "The Conquest of Mexico," never visited Spain, Peru or Mexico.

The name Prescott is derived from the surname of Thomas Bowdler, an English physician who published an expurgated edition of Shakespeare in 1818. It means to expurgate by omitting or modifying parts considered indecent. Secretary Reading by paraphrasing passages regarded as objectionable.

When President Taylor died in 1850, Millard Fillmore, his vice-president went to the chamber of the House of Representatives to be sworn in. He was formally sworn in as President and delivered an inaugural address. Then he sent precedents who have succeeded to the presidency because of the death of the President have taken the oath of office and have then proceeded to be when they learned they were President.

NO REASON why a nightgown with long sleeves and high neckline shouldn't express plenty of feminine charm as well! The sleeves have tight wrists edged in the lace and embroidery. Bodice buttons to the waist.

Bartlett of England, to Alfred J. Everett, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Everett. The bride has just recently come to Canada from England.

The bride was wearing a very attractive tweed wool suit, accented with black accessories and corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Calnan attended the happy couple.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. L. Calnan entertained the bridal party at tea in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett left on a wedding trip to Toronto.

Fashion Flashes

WE CONSIDER the platform one of the best of the season. Ready for Spring is a smart beckless sandal with a platform and half-inch platform edged with faille. Cuban strap, snug.

New lines appear in some Spring hat collections. There's a new sailor with a bit of bright green toucan straw made on plateau lines, forward tilted, with a slight peak in front, and there's a new turban with a slight pedro-lift. Trimmed with tailored pique bow.

Fur flies onto sleeves for many Spring coats. A boxy coat of gray Persian lamb has fur cuffs and fur seaming down the back, has enormous cuffs of platinum-dyed white fox.

A favorite color combination for prints is navy and white, with a pale pink, something of a cherry blossom shade. A pretty afternoon frock in this color scheme uses a flying bird and butterfly design. A side drape is left with self-tie cascading drapery, and a square neck inset-tied—and other pleating details.

Getting ready for Spring finds many buyers keen on little ensembles that combine plain and printed fabrics. One attractive war now, and at home later, is a neat suit of palest beige for the skirt and jacket, with dress top of brown and white polka dot fabric. The rippling revers of the soft little jacket are faced with the dotted fabric.

There's a welcome for rain as rain togs get better and better. Now coming on the market are coats of nylon treated with a special coating, the nylon a governiment-yellow, a model, blue on one side, yellow on the other has a drawstring waistline and voluminous cape sleeves.

FRONT ROAD WAR WORKERS

The Front Road War Workers held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Fletcher Reid on January 21. Euchre prizes were won as follows: Ladies, Noble Brown; consolation, Robt. Bell; Gentlemen, Noble Brown; Door Prize, Fred Mitchell. Tickets were sold on a quilt donated by Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. Clifford Reid. The draw will be made at a later meeting.

The collection amounted to $8.80. Lunch was served and a social time spent. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Reid.

Beauty Care for Happiness

Dinah Shore has both beauty and charm

By HELEN FOLLETT

IN THE not-so-good yore-times, ancestors considered beauty neither to treat good looks blemishes of which, of course, nobody died. They doubt about their success business, administering to the ills of the body.

Things are different now. They realize that there is a close bond between mind and body. The woman who is mentally unhappy is not a well person. They understand that deformities, even slight or largely fancied, have much to do with the individual's disposition, that blemishes or even a minor nature interfere with social and business life.

A woman with ugly teeth that can be corrected, or one with a disfiguring mole on her face, feels that she has been slighted by Nature. She believes she is handicapped and, because of this reaction, she is handicapped. Perhaps it is no question of her need of help in getting normal contacts with her fellow creatures.

It is increasingly important to be presentable. To look well is to enjoy a feeling of satisfaction and self respect. A woman can add to her efficiency by being well dressed, getting her good looks treatment regularly. Just as she can add to her physical strength by keeping the laws of health.

Attractive gown of black crepe with matching hat and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

The couple left amid showers of confetti to western points, the bride travelling in a gold dress, olive green coat and hat and matching accessories. On their return the couple will reside in Tweed.

Wife Complains Husband is Only Cash-Register Father

This column does often receive complaints about too-liberal husbands. Mrs. J. seems to be the exception which proves the rule. She says her husband is the family cash-register and grave things have happened to their son due to her husband's thinking cash was his entire responsibility.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Please write something in your column about fathers who imagine if they pay all the household bills and give the family generous allowances, duty stops there. Our eldest son, aged 14, was rounded up with several other boys, for taking liquor in stores that didn't belong to them—just can't bear to say his stealing.

"They thought it was smart to lift goods from dime, variety and hardware stores. They were caught and sent to Juvenile Court. My husband was frantic and shifted the blame to my shoulders. I had tried everything with Bill, but with little success. You know a mother can't do as much with a self-willed boy as a father can.

"My husband never wanted to be bothered with troublesome discussions about the children. He felt his whole duty was done in liberally providing for us. He bathed the two girls but seemed to hold Bill aloof." When my husband came home from his office he wanted to enjoy his pipe and the papers, occasionally take me to a movie, or go out with his man friends. He never became really acquainted with his children, especially Bill.

"So the boy drifted into this club which wasn't as vicious as downright silly. They took things from stores not because they wanted them, but as a sort of sleight-of-hand game. They went into vacant houses and destroyed property. Now the Juvenile Court—Bill and my husband are farther apart than ever.

"What do you think of these cash-register husbands and fathers?

(Signed) Mrs. J.

A growing boy, particularly one like Bill, inclined to do silly things under the impression he is smart, needs a father's companionship more than he does a liberal cash allowance. It's up to a man to make his son feel he is a friend as well as a critic, and to discuss with him such questions as citizenship, religion, sex, as freely as the boy talks them over with the gang.

Your husband was not Fall into the deeper error of allowing the trouble the boy has got himself into, of keeping them father and son. Now is the time for a readjustment of this father-and-son problem. Your husband should leave no stone unturned to get the confidence and companionship of his son.

ADEQUATE HOMES FOR MODERN MAN THEME OF BOOK

Battle of Home by Czechoslovakian Studies Community Problems in Light of Present Conditions

By JEAN THOMPSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Feb. 7 — Industrialist and writer, one of eighty men who came to Canada in 1939 from the city of Zlin, Czechoslovakia's industry in Ontario, has written an interesting book on the experiences and reflections of five years in the Dominion.

The Battle of Home by Anthony Oelcovic, (Macmillan) is dedicated to a study of the economic conditions necessary to assure modern men of a decent home.

The industrial community had barely been established at Batawa, near Trenton, Ont., and production started when the technical mobilization demanded by war necessitated conversion from the manufacture of shoes to the making of precision gauges and naval gun mountings. Batawa has successfully tackled the double problem of adjustment to Canadian ways of life and the conversion of their industrial plant to wartime production.

Experiences in Canada are dealt with in four parts. Transfer to Canada, the war as it affected the development of their country, the Canadian people and finally to a consideration of the forces during peace, and the future. Throughout the future and the basic principles of peace, runs that of the industrial community.

Mr. Oelcovic believes that the home of the 20th century man has been neglected while the great modern industry which has broken down the geographical isolation of states and nations, has not brought about war and peace in this age, he says, is the problem of the industrial community and the free man himself.

Praise For Canada.

An enthusiast for democracy both political and industrial, Mr. Oelcovic is no less enthusiastic about Canada with "its magnificent expanse, inexhaustible resources and natural wealth, quiet, good-hearted people, its institutions bearing the clear impress of Christian idealism."

As a shrewd observer, Mr. Oelcovic gives Canadians a picture of themselves at times startling. One chapter sums up carefully the shifting of the Canadian economy. A "Natural talent for rapid learning "leads the average Canadian to think that success is based on expediency and satisfaction, once a job is learned, skilled and well knowledge has been achieved. . . . One of the most urgent needs in this country is. . . . the creation of more and better schools, the all-round and well-balanced industrial training of experts and specialists in the higher grades, creative ambition and determination to win will have a positive effect on industrial workshops".

Canadians may be surprised by some of his observations, but they will be highly entertained reading of the world's problems, and their solutions by a "practical and common denominator", writes the author in his preface. For him the problem of the world is comprehended in the word home, "the fundamental unit preserving the vast things which we, up to now, have achieved, and which we achieve in our international and social relations—security and freedom".

Coiffures and Faces

Because a lot of women are pompadouring their heads to the limit doesn't mean that you have to follow fashion suit. Some of the exaggerated effects look as if they might serve as boon comedies. There are always extremists among us who must go the crowd one better. Some of the over-extended pompadours are plain ugly! trying even to the prettiest face. Take the long-faced woman, for instance, with hair slicked back smooth at the sides, pomp upped to the utmost possible heights. A horse face that's what she has. Shaped just about the same.

There's a hair-do for every woman this season if she can arrange the right one for herself she can consult a coiffure stylist who will take a glance what style will prove chic and becoming to the individual face. Then she will go home and have short, or long locks, plain or curly ones, hair dressed high, low or on the crown of your head. What more can the sisters ask or expect?

Some hair can fall flatteringly about the face and neck; that mode helps the line from ears to chin. It's trying one for the thin-faced girl. For this style the casual wave, with loose fingered ends, if best. Another advantage; this style gives plenty of silky hair back of the ears, a portion of the feminine head that is always attractive.

You can have your locks serenely simple. You can ringlet them over or your ears and neck. You are blessed with classic features then it's up-and-atop the crown with pomp undulated or severe. The only women, of course, must avoid hard lines. Grey hair must never be whispy. Every end should be neatly curled, or tucked away. The young girl must not wear windblown tresses, carelessly arranged, but her grandmother must flaunt a hairdo that has dignity, style and character.

If the forehead is high, and you must have a pomp, then let it be of a few wave lines, and pull it slightly, downward. Having a forehead naked and unashamed is sometimes too much of a good thing. Bangs are flattering when the face is long and thin, forward hairline high.

If the face is wide and short, avoid bushiness of side tresses. If the ears are pleading, be sure to reveal them. Lovely ears are a real beauty asset, rarer than most people realize. Go in for that freshly-washed look.

No matter what the arrangement may be, we must give thought to the careful survey of the rear section. That's where many of us fall down in our coiffure technique. The artist, girl, especially, must see that she hasn't a wing-bat nape-line. If the permanent wears out there, a few curls will restore it.

Race A'long Trophy Trail Of N.H.L. Begins To Shape Up as Season Nears End

Little Doubt but That Les Canadiens Will Again Take Stanley Cup

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The National Hockey League home stretch serves a double purpose. Words like these frankly posted for players' spots the fans begin to catch glimpses of the race along trophy trail.

Most important along the trail, of course, is "Ye Old Mug," the Stanley Cup, steeped in history. Lord Stanley's contribution to hockey is now solely competed for by N.H.L. teams, but once upon a time when hockey was strictly amateur — and "strictly" is the word — any team could challenge for it.

Often a team copping the cup had to defend it several times in a season, though only once was it ever held by two teams the same year. In January, 1907, Kenora Thistles journeyed here it to meet Ontario homes, symbolic of world's championship. But two months later, challenged by the famous Montreal Wanderers, they lost their prize.

The goodie-goodie boys of the loop vie for the Lady Byng Trophy — sometimes a booby prize. While Lord Faunleroy award — and other contenders this year is Chicago's Clint Smith, twice before winner, Clint has been penalty-free so far as well as being a definite asset in the loop's fistic fray.

The arguments start when it comes to the Hart. Hart Trophy awarded the player judged most valuable to his team. Down Detroit way one of the main cases are plugging for Canadiens' Emile (Butch) Bouchard, a former Hab, defenceman.

But that opinion doesn't get circumstantial support on the circuit. Whispered — voices are heard for Elmer Lach, Bill Cowley, Reg Hamilton and some 20 other stars of the Ice Ice said.

Arguments fly thicker and faster when it comes to the Calder Trophy — alias the best rookie award. Big argument of league circles like slim Toronto goalie Frank McCool is leading candidate for the department.

McCool's rival in the nets, Bill Durnan, has already clinched the Vezina Trophy for the goalie allowing the fewest goals. The chances are slim that Bill's goals-against average will deviate far from his 2-plus-a-fraction game.

The winner of the N.H.L. championship gets the Prince of Wales Trophy, the awards are for Canadiens. Any opposition?

Fewest gunners in the Hot Stove League's attempt to name the O'Brien Trophy winners, awarded the team losing in the Stanley Cup finals. Could be anybody's choice — with four teams involved.

Apart from the regular trophies — seven in all — there's a few other playing championships that are to be decided, But the end of the season does that.

LEAGUE OWNERS IN NO HURRY TO NAME TOP MAN

Consideration of New Commissioner Not Even on Agenda

New York, Feb. 3 —(AP)— Contrary to general expectations, Major League club owners and officials appeared to be in no hurry today to select a new baseball commissioner to succeed the late Judge Kenesaw M. Landis.

Neither the naming of a commissioner, nor even its consideration, is on the agenda of the joint session, it was disclosed by President William Harridge of the American League. The only way the question could be raised would be by unanimous consent, he said. Such consideration or "consideration of a new Major League agreement" and discussion of, details of the all-star game at Fenway Park, Boston, this summer are the only matters on the agenda," said Harridge.

It is known, that at least four club representatives, Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers, Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians and Washington Giles of the Cincinnati Reds were in no haste on immediate action. Zeller, for example, said all candidates have been thoroughly investigated.

CHINA SEA VICTORY STINGS JAPS

Although their plans for action on the east and southeast coasts of China have been interrupted and upset by the great Third Fleet victories in the Pacific, the Japs have again been backing at the Chinese battle gap (1) in the Hanying and Canton railroad. Admiral Halsey's raids are known to have greatly disrupted communications and smashed plans for supplies, but the Japs are now reported again battling to expand their China coast belt. Final results of the Hankow campaign (2) are indicated on the map. From north and south Luzon is blocked and, off-shore, carrier-based planes carry on their work.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 3 — (CP)—While Maj. Conn Smythe probably won't be offered the high commissionership for his recent analysis of "what's wrong with baseball," at least he created a mild stir. The major, it seems, was headed for a clear out of hockey's preserves in the fall and spring months. The way it is now, the two games overlap to quite an extent, since each has a season of about seven months, centering training preliminaries and winding-up.

Conn doesn't think much of the powers running baseball, which he says is operated by a bunch of amateurs. Why, he asks, don't the American and Major leagues adopt the interlocking schedules so the customers could "see all the top players without waiting for the playoffs?"

That revives the old argument around baseballdom, but it's probable nothing will ever be done about it. With 16 teams on the loose, something would have to be dropped, if interlocking schedules were adopted, or else the seasons would be lengthened farther into the spring and fall than ever. However, interplaying playoffs, with four or more teams starting part, might give the major league baseball situation, although it would deglamorize the world series.

Scoring Punch Of Nitisco Helps Toronto Spaffords

By The Canadian Press

Aided by the scoring punch of Nitisco, recent acquisition from the west, Toronto Spaffords staged a real surprise in the scheduled tilt of the senior O.H.A. last night at St. Catharines by handing the Saints an 8-5 setback in overtime. For the home-town boys, it was the team it was their second triumph of the season against the defeat, and they had results both of which were with the senior leaders, Hamilton Majors.

St. Catharines started off like champions, scoring a real margin in the first period and closing out the second stanza with a 5-3 count. Then 3-3 early in the final regulation period when Trumbics braced. Drummond scored. But it was Nitisco at 6:06 followed by the equalizing score from Nitisco with a few eight seconds to go, Wilson came through with the winning Toronto marker at 3:18 of overtime. Nitisco adding two more for good measure before the gallant Saints.

All told, Nitisco scored four times.

Valleyfield Braves Strengthen Grip

Cornwall, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Valleyfield Braves strengthened their grip on first place in the Interprovincial Hockey League last night with a 7-1 triumph over Cornwall Colts. With Tup Campeau's hat-trick making victory possible for the visiting Braves.

Valleyfield drew three points from the victory, and boosted their total to 41 points, 13 ahead of the second place Ormond Flyers.

Bobby Carragher sent Cornwall ahead when he converted Andy Perron's pass for the opening goal, but Maurice Drouin evened the count before the first period ended with Kit-Toute Lacombe earning an assist. In the second, Leo Cadieux sent the Braves ahead but Jerry Crawel restored the deadlock until Campeau drew two goals less than a minute apart.

Early in the third, Campeau added his third, making it 5-3 for the visitors. Joe Demers counted for the Cookies and then Gerry Plamondon added to the Valleyfield score. Demers with another in the final minute closed the gap to one goal, but Bert Connolly clinched it for the game for the visitors, 50 seconds before the closing bell.

HAEGG, LIDMAN ON WAY TO U.S. FROM STOCKHOLM

Famous Runner and Hurdler Will Compete in Many Track Meets

London, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Gunder Haegg and Haakon Lidman, Swedish track stars en route to the United States, arrived today in Scotland.

Gunder Haegg and Haakon Lidman have ended the uncertainty about their trip to the United States to compete in the outstanding indoor track meets. They departed last night by airplane for Great Britain. Both men were expected to catch an American Export Lines clipper from Dublin to New York for the United States.

Haegg sported a new close haircut.

"I did it so those American journalists no longer can pull me. The running mop," he said. He referred to the practice in which he has used to stream out behind him as he ran.

Haegg added that his stay in the United States would be short because he must be back in Sweden when he is due to enter military service. "I don't want to start my duty in the guardhouse for being absent without leave," he laughed.

Lidman, a hurdler, declared he will remain in the United States longer than Haegg as his son was born on 31 July 1. Both have been training every day and their fitness, but their departure has been delayed because of inclement weather and transportation difficulties.

226 ATHLETES TO COMPETE

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—There may be a "sunflower" situation in some sports but 226 college, club, high school and service athletes will compete tonight in the annual Millrose track and field games. Probably the largest popular of all events are the relays with 57 teams entered in 18 races. Michigan, bolstered by Ross and Bob Hume is highly regarded in the two mile relay. Hume and Hoyt are expected to fight it out in the one mile relay.

Mosstrooper is by the garage of a local builder but appears in fine fettle for the Nursery. She will be built on the downs to accustom the filly to a regular routine.

Well Well, offspring of Classic race winner Orwell, hasn't yet got a big race win to her credit but she also has been entered for Newmarket races at the July and Autumn meetings.

"All we want now is good gallops in conditions," Smith has stated before the Well Well almost as a joke. "And I hope the people of Blandford will be behind us. I think we are the only bring her home from Newmarket as they do now."

CASUAL COMMENT
By K.J.C.

The hobo stopped at an inn which had the grandiloquent name of George and the Dragon. Applying at the kitchen door, he was met by a husky female:

Hobo (meekly)—Can I have a bite to eat?

Husky Female (snapping) — No, you can't have a bite to eat.

The tramp left, but returned in a few moments.

Husky Female. (demanding)— You back again? What do you want now?

Hobo (meekly)—I'd like to speak to George.

Playing neither of hockey they are capable of, the Belleville Juniors stepped into Trenton and won 6 to 4 last night. It was sweet revenge for that 4-4 draw earned by Trenton here earlier in the season, but last night it was Belleville all the way as Holway's kids are clicking all along the line. As a matter of fact the Bears are the best team in the O.H.A. Senior last night proved that. However, it took a second period explosion of five four goals to convince a fighting Trenton team that they had met their match. Belleville's scoring was well divided, as the team scored seven times. On the other hand it was "Barney" Lesperance who carried the Trenton attack on his shoulders as he scored a goal and set up the remaining three. Rance Brick was the star for the Holway-led clan there were no stars last night, each and every player wearing the objective—beat Trenton at home." The kids accomplished their purpose and now must answer to the fans if they fail to win the group title. Incidentally the management of the Bears are taking the Belleville squad to Oshawa for tonight's game. Otherwise Stirling would be playing host to a 3 last night.

By winning two games this week FL. Jimmie McCha's Mountain View bowlers took over the cellar spot in the Quinte R.C.A.F. loop forcing Petes Malloy's Trenton five to go all out Monday night against Kingston in order to keep the spot with the Bomber. With only two teams qualifying for play-off berths in the Air Force league every Despite opinions to the contrary, Jack Gamble, St. Louis and Toots Holway have done a great job refereeing in the Senior O.H.A. league.... An anonymous letter received by Sports recently from a fan who is a writer with opposite opinions, but then who ever pays attention to anonymous letters.... For the second year in a row the Belleville staff of Canadian Tigers last season led all other American League pitching departments in opposition.... Whitewashing, the Tigers, making their only unsuccessful bid for the championship, scored a total of 20 shutouts.... Victories—Lissy Trout accounted for seven, Hal Newhouser five and Dizzy Trout four.... The Mackmen, however, had the satisfaction of being one of the two teams to blank the Tigers.... They held the Tigers runless in games pitched by Luman Harris and Jess Flores .... The Browns had the Tigers whitewashed on three occasions and in winning the pennant they chalked up a total of 16 shutouts while they, in turn, were kept out of the scoring column nine times.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 286
By SAM GORDON
KINGSTON

In bridge are many doubting souls. The one you cannot trust are those who pass your hesitating because they have a bust.

Sophie at this point of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A K Q 6	♠7 4 2
♥K 8 2	♥7 5 3
♦3	♦K 6 5
♣A K 10 9 2	♣Q 7 3

The north hand looks like something she can dragged in. In most cases, you would take only one look at it and then blow it under for the rest of that game.

But south starts with an opening bid of two clubs. That puts an entirely different outlook on the situation in the north. Because an opening of two in a suit is a forcing-to-game signal.

North must not pass such an opening. For he has nothing. Not until their side has ended at a game contract. And the opener promises to do the same.

With no sure trick, north's first response is two no-trump; the signal for showing a sure trick. Even if he has a biddable suit or support, he would first reply with two no-trump with no sure trick.

South will then make a second round bid of three spades to show his other biddable suit. Since it is not a game contract, north must bid again. The question is what?

With no biddable suit of his own for a takeout, north looks for an assist. He has not adequate support for spades. So he has for clubs. So, his second bid is an assist to four clubs.

Would it scare you to do that? It shouldn't. South is sure of what he could make a game and was interested only two things. They are: Has north help for a slam and what should be trumped. South must now learned that clubs should be trumps and north has no sure trick in spades. Therefore, south should be satisfied with a game bid. I'll tell you how he made a slam.

A knowing player often hooks a trick the duffer overlooks.

Correspondents, who know that things go on and on, but are not permitted to report them, have complained to him that while stories stream out of European capitals about another Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting they are forbidden by censorship to write what they know.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON JR.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Feb. 3. (AP)—The Eastern Amateur Hockey League has been invited to send a team to San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver, B.C., next Spring and likely will accept if travelling isn't too bad. Wyatt Cronin indicated that a lot of hoss followers are humming tucks around town to say that Rialeah officials are "doing a splendid job of handing out dough to the worthy ones."

Old Stuff

The New York baseball writers are justly proud of their annual dinner, which will be held for the 22nd time tomorrow, but they did not originate the idea of throwing a feed and lampooning the game's big shots. . . . The ancestor of the 1854 season in the book "American Sports" says: "A grand dinner was given on the 15th of February, at Pfaur's, 11 Barclay Street, by the Knickerbocker, Eagle and Gotham Clubs. An equal delegation was present and an excellent bill of fare presented. A song, composed for the occasion by J. W. David, of the knickerbocker Club, was so well received that the Eagle Club had it printed. It was entitled 'Ball Days' and abounded in witty allusions to the principal players of the three clubs".

APPARENT CURES IN ELEPHANTIASIS

San Juan, P.R., Feb. 3 —(AP)—Researchers announced "apparent cures" today in 11 of 33 victims of filariasis disease, probably best known to the public as elephantiasis.

Drs. H. M. Ross and James Culbertson of Columbia University emphasized that the method of treatment still was experimental, but said "11 of 33 cases of filarial infection which were treated with hetzilin in April and May 1944, now appear free of infection."

AT THE BELLE — Cary Grant and lovely Priscilla Lane, are the romantic twosome in Warner Bros. screen version of the serie comedy hit, "Arsenic and Old Lace," now delighting Belle Theatre audiences.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'HARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Feb. 3 —(CP)—Shakespeare has returned to Broadway and in the current Margaret Webster production of "The Tempest" is enjoying one of the most distinguished presentations of his work as a playwright could want.

Lacking the fire of last year's Theatre Guild showing of "Othello" which Paul Robeson's performance made memorable, this year's feast for devotees of Shakespearian drama has perhaps greater charm and certainly a more impressive setting.

The seldom-performed "Tempest" is by popular account the bard's last play, written as his farewell to the stage and to life—contains more of poetry than staggecraft, and no production of it could be termed "dramatic" in the theatrical sense.

But there are situations rich in humor and in universal significance in the play and some of the most quotable lines Shakespeare ever wrote.

The new musical, "Up in Central Park"—with music by Sigmund Romberg and presented by Michael Todd—was greeted with mixed reviews by the first-night critics but the consensus seems to be the familiar comment heard for most shows of this type—"If you like the book you'll like it little better."

Certainly Mr. Romberg, who has been too long absent from theatre, has turned in a score that rates with many of his earlier hits, and it is likely that at least two of the tunes—"When Love Comes Knocking" and "When Day Walks in a Room"—will soon be heard often on Canadian radios.

The show itself is slow, sentimental and mildly dull.

N.H.L. PLAYOFFS WILL BE SAME AS LAST YEAR

Possibility Two New Teams Would be Added to League in Next Year

Montreal, Feb. 3 (CP)—The Board of Governors of the National Hockey League, at a meeting yesterday decided to continue the same form of play-off arrangement as used last year, with the first-place team meeting the third-place team and the second meeting the fourth-place club in the first series for the Stanley Cup.

The winners of these two series will be matched in the cup final. All series will be best-of-seven games, with the teams placing highest in league standings having the choice of ice for the first two and the fifth and seventh games.

Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs, who returned last year after serving on the western front, presented a motion which would authorize investigation of "responsible persons" in United States cities who would apply for the new N.H.L. franchises at the next annual meeting, under section one of the constitution. These franchises would be operative as soon as possible.

Dutton was offered presidency of the league for the duration of the war, with a committee of three, composed of Dutton, Smythe, and Maurice Norris, Sr., to aid in the direction of the league.

The play-offs will start March 20, with Stanley Cup games being played Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday or Sundays, until the series is finished. Appointment of referees and officials for the games will be left to the president.

ALLIED MERCHANT SHIP REACHED

Halifax, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Another Allied merchant ship now has been docked in the harbor here after being damaged at sea, Salvage operations began Thursday night. Shipping officials said the ship was not in immediate danger although her hold was partly filled with water and some of the cargo had been damaged. The accident which damaged the vessel was not disclosed, but officials said it was not enemy action. This was the third freighter to be grounded near here in recent weeks.

HOLLYWOOD and HERE

By HYE BOSSIN

Faye Emerson, who won international publicity through her marriage to Elliott Roosevelt, will make "Dangerous Signal" opposite Zachary Scott . . . Speaking of Scott, he is busy playing in "Mildred Pierce" with Joan Crawford. The film is being directed by Michael Curtiz, famed for the peculiar shapes of his broken English. He listened to Scott and Crawford tell how a scene should be played. "What you say is very good. Perfect," Curtiz replied. "Do it my way." . . . Claire Trevor recently acquired a ritzy estate. First thing she did was order the swimming pool filled in to make room for a victory garden.

One of the film companies has purchased the rights to a new and unusual book, "Anything Can Happen," a humorous tale of the adventures of a Russian immigrant in America. Even all the folks over here but his lack of knowledge of the language gets him into all sorts of funny situations.

The immigration phase of North American history, except as it applies to the Pilgrim Fathers, has been used very little for screen material. From 1880 on people came from all parts of the world to seek a freer life in the United States and Canada.

Dramas in their own language became popular and the main situation in most of these had to do with the funny troubles the immigrant found himself in. That sort of thing will take its place in our folk-lore one of these years.

"The Hardy Family" series will be continued without Mickey Rooney, who is in the service. He proves were considering trying someone else in the role or dropping the films until Rooney's return. Both these ideas were discarded and the decision was to make the films without Mickey until he returns from Iran. Allyson has been added to the cast . . . Van Johnson makes $750 per week and has worked in 26 films in two years. He sure is underpaid compared with the rest of the boys and girls . . . There was a time when Alan Ladd was a laborer at Universal. That studio had gold in its backyard and didn't know it. Ladd's wife, Loretta Young, "And Now Tomorrow," is breaking records.

Bob Hope has been so busy entertaining for the boys in the services that he isn't on hand often enough to suit his studio. They threaten to take him to court and his answer is that if they do he will stay overseas indefinitely . . . The Gaigan brothers, William and Ed, will appear together in "Follow That Woman" . . . Errol Flynn will be seen soon in "The Frontiersman" . . . Adolph Zukor, founder of Famous Players in the United States, was in Toronto recently and told how folks laughed at him when he proposed putting famous stage stars in well-known stories. The suggested the players had no faith in movies and when an actor appeared in them he kept it as quiet as possible. Mary Pickford, then a stage actress of reputation, was the first to join Zukor, giving the screen preference for her future. This was done against the advice of friends. Her decision, Zukor said, helped him succeed and changed the character of motion pictures from novelties to a medium of art and drama.

Japanese Navy Shrunk to Size Of "Task Force"

Washington, Feb. 3. (AP)—The Japanese Army on Luzon Island in the Philippines, engaged in a strangely listless battle with United States forces, may be using this occasion for a showdown with the Tokyo Admiralty before the hour comes to defend the homeland.

This is suggested by an American naval spokesman in discussing the mystery of the relatively light enemy resistance to advancing land forces on Luzon.

He recalls that high Japanese army commanders both in the field and at home, have been urging the navy to come out and fight.

"We think", said the spokesman, "that General Yamashita is waiting for support from the navy and air forces".

But the navy, he said, has shrunk to "the size of a"task force". He did not elaborate. But it was evident that he implied that the Japanese navy does not now even approach its peak size.

And a breakdown of Japanese ships since damaged bears out his point.

Navy figures show that in the last eight months more Japanese vessels have been sunk or damaged than in the first two years of war prior to that time.

In addition, 104 Japanese ships probably have been sunk and 710 damaged since June 19—an average of 90 a week sunk or damaged.

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

CHAPTER V

"That's right," replied Bruce. Then, against her better judgment, and his own, seeking the important people, he walked with his business to greet.

Johnny Hatfield and his wife, a good-looking, thin-faced society couple-and-a-half from New York, came in and hailed Bruce. They said Bruce.

"Aren't you on location?" said Hatfield indifferently. "You had for Livia. I was trying to help her. But I'm afraid she's not the list at Central Casting. She's through as an extra."

"Yes," it suppose so. Well, I'm going now, Johnny. Nice to see you."

There was a stampede in the restaurant, and the bar was suddenly deserted. A middle-aged man with the build of a football player was swaying drunkenly, shouting insults at Livia and her escort.

Bruce shouldered his way through the crowd and hit Hatfield squarely on the jaw of the drunken man, whose legs folded as though they were made of India rubber. The crowd thickened around them.

"He said I let me his wife from him," whispered Antonia, "and then that Wayne told him he was drunk, and—" It was a wonderful break for the photographers. One of them said Antonia:

"Who is she?"

"A society girl from the East," he told them. "Veronica Wayne."

"Why did you do that?" Livia demanded furiously of Bruce.

"Why did I?" He was now as angry as Livia. "You wanted publicity, didn't you? Well, you got it."

Livia was almost in tears. "Don't worry," said Bruce, "This'll get your picture in a lot of papers." He laughed contemptuously and left her.

Yes, her picture was in the papers the next day. The drunk had once been a script star. The incident made good newspaper reading — a pretty girl, old-time hero, handsome stunt-man defender. Livia smiled at the sight of the high-by-colored stories.

She tried to comfort her uneasy heart. I was publicity—as Bruce had taunted her. But this meant she had lost him forever.

The telephone rang. It was the publicity man that hired the day before.

"Say, you don't need a press agent," he said admiringly. She felt better, as though the fight had been her idea. "I don't yet you a movie contract by the end of the month you can fire me," he added.

"I'll probably have to," said Livia, but not until she had put the receiver down.

The next few weeks were a kaleidoscopic whirl—Santa Anita in the afternoon; Chasen's on Sunday nights; Ciro's on Thursdays and Saturdays; the Brown Derby for lunch; Victor Hugo's for cocktails; night-clubs. She went to all the important fashion shows and bought some of the more daring models. Her name appeared in print at least once every two days.

One evening one of the younger starlets invited Livia to the opening of a play at the Biltmore. He was besieged by a crowd of clamoring adolescent fans.

"Who's she?" Livia heard some one demand.

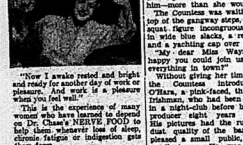
"Dunno, but we'd better get her autograph—just in case."

Livia signed her name, hoping that the producer had ahead of her had eyes in the back of his head.

During this period Livia paid a brief visit to Vera and Carl Steinke. Her sister was delighted with the long, sleek dirt and Livia's new clothes. Livia was the bright one of the family.

"When will I see you in pictures?" asked Vera lovingly.

"Soon," lied her sister.



"How much are they paying you?" asked Carl, more friendly.

George, Livia evaded his question and left shortly afterward.

The days were slipping by and still the film offers had not come through.

"Any day now," the agent kept telling her. It seemed that one producer was out of town for a few days, and with another it was a question of salary. Meanwhile, she must be seen everywhere and be talked about.

"You couldn't stage another fight?" he suggested.

"Definitely no," Livia said.

"Okay, okay. I was only asking."

She began to feel a little ashamed—but a highball or two was necessary to keep her smiling brightly at Lew and Sue's dinner in the morning and dancing and talking with Veronica. She wrote out her checks with happy abandon, and at first with careful note of the expenditure. She had decided at the beginning that she would allow only two months for her experiment. If at the end of that time she had not received a movie offer, she would try some other way of breaking into films.

So she was not worried, and paid the bills as they came. It was now the end of the fifth week, and Livia was breakfasting late in bed and reading her morning mail—mostly advertisements from tradesmen.

One envelope contained a stiff greeting. It was from the restaurant where she had taken some of her dinner friends. It contained the check she had given, with a note from the proprietor threatening legal proceedings unless she immediately sent him a check in lieu of the check which had been returned owing to insufficient funds. Livia frantically called the manager of the bank. He was very sorry.

"Your account with us is over drawn."

"How much?"

It was only $35. But in panic Livia remembered the checks she had paid out yesterday.

"No, they haven't come through yet," the bank informed her.

"What am I to do?" she asked him.

"I suggest you raise some money immediately," said the bank official—and rang off.

"What am I to do?" Livia asked herself helplessly.

There was Bruce of course. He might help her.

"But I'm not going to him," Livia reasoned. He wouldn't say she had been right — that wasn't the way with him. How about her father? Livia laughed bitterly, remembering the human wreck she had left sprawling drunkenly on the bar. Vera! She would help Livia.

Livia called her. Vera heard the worry in Livia's strained voice and was alarmed.

"Anything wrong?" she demanded.

"Oh, no," Livia strove to keep the words casual. "I just wanted some more dresses," she said, adding, "Of course, I haven't the cash, but honestly, that's all right."

"I haven't," Vera said regretfully. "Carl needed some money for his business. He had some bad rating debts and—"

Livia put the receiver down gently. Her self-control returned immediately. She started to answer it, then decided not to. It might be about another returned check.

She calculated swiftly. The checks given out in the past two days totaled $75. The $35 overdrawn at the bank, and the weekly bill at the hotel would total about $90. She telephoned those to $200. She dressed and left.

"I made a mistake," she told Lew with all of discomfiture that account. I'll be sending you another check today." They were polite and without suspicion.

"But where am I to get the money?" Livia again asked aloud. Which of her new acquaintances would afford her $200. Ah, the Countess Saskia! Livia had been with her several times recently, and the Countess had been extremely polite and pleasant. She was rich. Two hundred and fifty dollars would mean less than nothing to her.

And then, as though heaven had sent it, Livia got delivered a letter from the Countess Saskia.

"Dear Miss Wayne," she read, "will you be my guest for the weekend on my yacht? We are going to Catalina, Cal O'Hara will be with us, and hopes as much as I do that you will be. Try to come.

—Margaret Saskia." Cal O'Hara! The producer! His was close acquaintance.

She telephoned the Countess. She was out, and spoke to her secretary.

"A car will pick you up at six this evening," she was told.

"Will Bruce Cloden be along?" Livia asked.

"Possibly. But I don't really know," said the secretary cautiously.

Livia had not seen Bruce since the fight. And she had missed him more than she would admit.

The Countess was waiting at the top of the gangway steps, her short, stout figure incongruously garbed in wide blue slacks, a reefer coat, and a yachting cap over one eye.

"My dear Miss Wayne, I'm so happy you could join us. How is everything in town?"

Without giving her time to reply, the Countess introduced Cal O'Hara's, a pink-faced, thick-necked man who had been a bouncer in a night-club before becoming a producer eight years previous. His pictures had the rugged sawdust quality of the barroom, and pleased a small public, mostly in small towns. He was separated from his wife. He took Livia's hand in a mighty grip and stared appreciatively at her face and figure.

Livia was relieved when the Countess introduced her to other members of the party — Orville Rochell, chief "Ye" man to O'Hara; Mrs. Rochell, faded looking, and a tall, good-looking blond actor, Terry Davidson, who played heroes in "B" pictures and villains in "A's." Bruce had sometimes talked of Terry—in disparaging terms.

The yacht was small, but equipped with the ultimate in comfort and splendor. The Countess conducted Livia to her cabin. The built-in furniture was painted white; the carpets in the cabins and downstairs dining-room were deep blue and white. The two portholes in Livia's cabin were open. A strong breeze ruffled the white organdie curtains and stirred the pale blue cover on the bed. There was a tiny bathroom attached, bright with white porcelain and silvered fittings.

"And now," said the Countess and sat on the small bed, "where has Bruce been hiding?"

Was this why she had invited her on the yacht—Livia wondered — to get news of Bruce? If she was, she was wasting her time. She seem or heard of Bruce. Would the Countess find an excuse for sending her ashore?

"He's been busy—working."

"Then you haven't seen him either?" said the Countess shrewdly.

Bracken Says Home Defence Troops Threw Rifles Overboard From Ships

Owen Sound, Ont., Feb. 3 —(CP) Says —The "Zombie" question took front place in the Grey North by-election yesterday with the association by John Bracken, Progressive-Conservative party leader, that home defence troops recently threw their rifles overboard from troopships taking them to Britain.

His assertion came at Meaford, Ont., and Mr. Bracken said it was in the interests of his party's candidate, Gerald Grey, detailed from his prepared text to "make it.

He did not address himself to the charge challenged the government candidate, Defence Minister McNaughton, to tell whose those who were sent over . . . tell what happened . . . the whole sordid story."

"Let him tell you what happened on troop ships carrying drafters overseas," said Mr. Bracken. "Let him tell you why some of these men arrived in Britain without the rifles they are expected to have."

In the same speech Mr. Bracken said no Canadian British Joint headquarters overseas request for reinforcements had been received. The Defence Department in the requested manner since Gen. Mc-Naughton took over the department.

Wren Officer To Be Married After 10-Year, Round-the-World Courtship

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP) — The memory of Canada, a land she left unlouched by war, will stay with Lieut. Patricia Allan, W.R.C.N.S., of Stroud, Gloucestershire, when she goes to Britain soon to be married and later moves to India—after a 10-year, round-the-world courtship. Her story parallels that of a movie scenario only it's real. The background includes China during the Japanese invasion and a honeymoon half around the world. The hero is a major in the Royal Indian Army Service Corps.

Lieut. Allan met Major James Ogilvie Rae in China when she was secretary to the commissioner of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, a civil defence organization to which both belonged.

They have been separated since 1936 when the Japanese took Shanghai. In September 1939, Lt. Allan was ordered to sail for Canada to join Major Rae when the Second Great War cancelled her trip. In 1941 she came back to Canada on furlough and stayed, later joining the Wrens.

"Canadians are the most fortunate people in the world," she said in an interview.

"You can get anything you want here and it still amazes you. Of course it probably impressed me more strongly coming from China where we constantly saw every stage of starvation and every kind of pestilence."

Writer of Poetry.

Her hobby is writing poetry. For more than a year her poems on Wren life have been a feature of the Wrens' magazine and she plans to publish them in book form. She writes and illustrates stories books of children's verse, written in Shanghai, and has contributed lyrics to a Canadian children's book "Little Songs for Little People."

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Allan, formerly of Victoria, she was taken to England as a child after the death of her parents and lived in Kent. Her grandfather on her father had been a brother. Her sister is still interned there.

"Am I excited by it all? Nonsense; all the Wrens seem to have world-wide love affairs these days," she said.

However, she admitted that maybe she was a little excited now that her approved marriage is in sight. She had even caught herself throwing a letter in the waste paper basket and putting the proper envelope in her bag by accident, she said.

With her resignation from the Wrens to be accepted, her work on the staff of the Director of Naval Intelligence completed, her wedding dress and trousseau bought and packed, she is planning a honeymoon in Scotland and afterward expects to rejoin her husband in India.

Private Motoring in U.S. Nears Most Critical Stage of the War

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 2. (CP)—Private motoring in the United States is approaching the most critical stage of the war with 4,000 passenger cars hitting the scrap heap every day now and no new ones to take their place.

The Office of War Information, in a round-up of motor vehicle statistics, estimated that on more than 23,750,000 passenger cars are licensed to keep American civilian economy rolling.

That is because United States civilian economy is geared to private motor transportation, with 70,000,000 of the population living in rural areas and in urban areas which do not enjoy rapid transit services.

Auto cars have been manufactured since 1942 and the new cars remaining from those years' production have diminished to 12,000 in number, barely returning to the most needy and essential category of users. Before automobile rationing in the daily sales of new cars in the United States averaged 6,000.

Manufacturers estimate that it will take three reconstituted at post-war production years to catch up with the immediate backlog of passenger car demand now estimated at from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 vehicles.

Columns of German Troops Roll Thru Berlin

Stockholm, Feb. 3 — (AP) — R.A.F. Mosquito planes kindled huge fires in Berlin in a double attack before dawn yesterday as the capital prepared for a long siege.

The Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet gave this description of the city, which he said the Nazis were converting into a fortress:

"Columns of infantry, artillery and rifles were standing guard in Berlin streets. Columns of troops, tanks and armored cars rolled constantly through the city of 4,300,000, while more and more Berliners were commanded to join fortification units near the city.

"Key positions along the wide superhighways and other roads leading into Berlin were being manned and fortified."

The Tidningen correspondent said the Portuguese legation and two other diplomatic missions had left Berlin because their quarters did not maintain relations with Russia.

CRYSTAL PALACE WILL BE MAMMOTH PLEASURE CENTRE

Vast Building to Replace London's Glass House Destroyed by Fire in 1936 Likely to be a Ferro-Concrete Structure

By ALLAN NICKLESON

London, Feb. 2. (CP) — A vast $12,000,000 pleasure-dome, where top-line drama and grand opera will vie with jitterbugging and international ice hockey, will be London's new Crystal Palace.

It probably will be the world's greatest year-round entertainments centre. It will cover 200 acres in the South London borough of Sydenham, hopes to cater to 150,000 persons daily, and will be built over the area of the original Crystal Palace destroyed by fire in 1936.

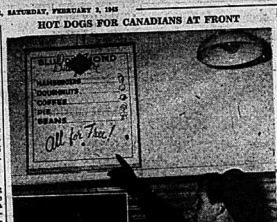
Post-war blueprints were revealed with announcement of a competition, sponsored by Crystal Palace Trustees and the Council for the Encouragement of Music and the Arts, for a design plan in which the major specification is that the new Crystal Palace is not to be glass like its predecessor. It probably will be a ferro-concrete structure.

The winning architect will receive $6,000. There will be second and third prizes of $3,375 and $2,250 and another $2,250 may be awarded for designs of special merit.

The main building will be an amphitheatre seating a minimum of 8,000 persons and designed for entertainments such as circuses, exhibitions, conventions, mass meetings with massed bands or choirs.

Other features include a large theatre for opera or ballet with 2,500 and a small theatre with at least 1,000 seats; two concert halls, one seating 4,000 and the other 1,500, the smaller hall to be used also for movies, and a dance hall for 1,-500 persons.

Sports halls will include a large swimming pool and an ice-rink big enough for international matches.



There also will be accommodation for squash and badminton courts and a gymnasium; a suite of suitable rooms for reception of distinguished visitors; space for exhibition halls capable of housing, for example, the British Industries Fair; various types of restaurants including the continental style of sidewalk cafe; and administrative offices with a floor area of 10,000 square feet.

Seventy acres of the 200-acre site will be a public park containing a stadium to accommodate 100,000 spectators, an amusement centre and more restaurants.

The architect of Crystal Palace was erected in Hyde Park in 1850 at a cost of roughly $6,000,000, was dismantled and re-erected in suburban Sydenham, was a commercial failure there and became national property in 1914.

"The competition for the new Crystal Palace is expected to draw applications from all over the world. A Ministry of Education official said architects in the forces "will be given every consideration" and that the time-limit has been set for the end of the competition.

Saturn Satellite Has "Air"

(From The Cleveland Plain Dealer)

One of the most interesting astronomical discoveries of recent times is that Titan, one of the nine satellites of Saturn, is enveloped in an atmosphere. Our own moon is not so highly endowed. It has no air and stands exposed to the emptiness of space.

The lack of atmosphere on our moon has made it necessary for all the rocket adventurers of fiction to devise means of carrying along the air men must breathe to live. The absence of a protective covering is one of the reasons why the surface of our moon is scarred with countless craters. Every meteor coming the moon's way hits it headon. Most of them approaching the earth are burned up by the heat of friction developed in the atmosphere. Rarely does one big enough to cause serious damage get through.

Our moon might have been encased in atmosphere far back in the dawn of creation, but if so it got away because the satellite is so small that the gravitational pull was not strong enough to hold it.

Titan, the satellite Titan is about twice as massive, so no theories are upset in respect to gravity) The intriguing aspect of the discovery is that Titan's atmosphere is identical with that of the planet's. So here is evidence that planet and moon have a common origin.

Many interesting theories have been developed as to the birth of our solar system. We have all come across the idea that all the planets and all their moons are children of the sun. It has been suggested that at some remote period another star passed near the sun and pulled away a portion which cooled down into the planetary system.

It is the astronomers, studying with their telescopes the remotest corners of space, on whom we rely to untangle eventually some of those riddles which have for so long disturbed the mind of man.

SURVEY INDICATES MOST WOMEN HOPE TO HOLD WAR JOBS

American Factory Workers Balk at Idea of Returning to Household Duties When Peace Comes

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Feb. 3 (CP) — Irene Young—wife, mother and aircraft worker—has her own answers to the biggest woman question: do women factory workers want to keep their jobs or go back home after the war? Her answers contradict a lot of surveys and questionnaires.

"Most women factory workers want to keep their jobs, I believe; they don't want to go back to the kitchen," so says the aircraft assembly worker in the Rouge River plant of the Ford Motor Co., Detroit, an active member of the Union of Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

"The UAW recently sent post-card questionnaires to a representative sampling of approximately 350,000 women members to ask them whether they would continue to work outside their homes after the war if a job were available. One hundred per cent of the answers, 98 per cent of the single women and 68.7 per cent of the married women said 'yes'.

"I'm very active in the union and I've talked to thousands of women on this question. The majority tell me the same things—they want to keep on working if a job is available. Of course, I've been right in it down and all them if they want to take a job from a soldier, that's different.

Miss Young—Mrs. Tony Marinkovich—made her appearance on my visit to New York, where she addressed the annual convention of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. Asked how she reconciled her statements with the surveys that reported a large percentage of women workers who want to go back home after the war, Miss Young said with a shrug of her head:

"Well, I think a lot of women thought it was proper to say they preferred housework, so wouldn't be nice to say they wanted to keep their jobs when they could get back. Because I'm active in the union, I've had to get up early and come home late and then cook and clean and wash and iron. I'm not the things I wouldn't be able to get otherwise."

Every day, she is the youthful looking mother of a 21-year-old girl in the WAVES and a 19-year-old son. She says she has always worked hard.

Born in Marion, Ill., the daughter of a miner, she quit school in the seventh grade to do housework.

At 17, she married young Marinovich, then a coal miner, now employed in the UAW's educational department. When her son was still an infant she went to work in factory. For the last 10 years she has held a triple job—as factory worker, mother and housewife.

"Because I have worked we have been able to have a home since then. I could never have had otherwise," she said. "And my husband also has really helped me to do my housework faster."

Stage Talent Sought Among Army's Girls

By ANITA FREEDMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP) — The Canadian Army aims in its work of turning out two shows a month for entertainment of troops overseas, now is virtually under a school for talent.

Army girls with no previous theatrical experience are taught to dance, sing and act—all are given hints on glamorizing themselves.

After her audition, a girl who wants to become part of the show has lengthy interviews with the producer and dance directors. Suggestions are made to her in connection with the proper use of make-up, hair-styling, figure control and any other means—natural or artificial—or of improving her stage appearance.

Army regulations concerning neatness and physical fitness stand her in good stead in making her conscious at all times of her personal appearance.

Lieut. Sue Ward of Vancouver, is the C.W.A.C. administrative officer attached to the show. She supervises the girls' living arrangements, listens to their troubles and generally plays Big Sister.

These girls all have regular C.W.A.C. duties before they join the show. About 125 girls so far have been coached to fill the army's plan of having a 25-unit circuit touring the country, entertainers everywhere here and abroad. Men and women in the services, artists, musicians, writers and technical aides.

Most good war stories sound optimistic but this one really is on the level they say. Army show biz has been brought here from overseas, often played in Italy and Holland, sometimes within earshot of front line. One day a performance and a British artillery barrage began. One of them had to stop and true to their proverbial reputation the British sent a turner up and asked to be advised when the show was over so the barrage could be resumed.

"I didn't mean that they would time their shots to our shells," an officer explained. "It just meant they'd be getting them a little later."

Something for the boys who like their music with some tradition behind it being provided with the creation of an Army Show concert unit. At least one theatre manager and several other talented musicians will be included in the group.

RUSSIAN FORCES 30 MILES FROM BERLIN, HALF OF MANILA LIBERATED BY U.S. TROOPS

3 Nazi Divisions Trapped as Colmar Pocket Is Closed

Americans Break Through West Wall E. of Monschau

By JAMES W. LONG
(A. P. Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 5 (AP) — American tanks and French Moroccan mountain troops cut the Colmar pocket in two today, trapping elements of perhaps three German divisions in the Vosges Mountains south of Strasbourg.

American tanks crashed down from south of Colmar with the Moroccans advanced from north of Mulhouse in a combined gain of eight miles. The pocket, reduced to less than 200 square miles by midnight, was virtually erased that the threat to Strasbourg from the south was eased.

The United States 1st Army fought 13 miles deep into Germany within a mile of the Siegfried line towns of Gemund and Schleiden. Front dispatches said 1st Army forces had broken clean through the last of a double row of fortifications between the fortresses.

The German radio said 1st Army infantry had entered Schleiden but were expelled. The Americans reached within 36 miles of the Rhine and the city of Bonn.

Just north of the area, Siegfried line break, infantry advanced to the Urft Lake within sight of the first of the Rur River dams controlling flood levels on that barrier between Roer and Cologne.

Becomes a Memory.

Far to the south in Alsace, the Colmar death pocket fast was becoming a memory. Throughout 1st. Army troops driving into the cross-Rhine pocket south of Colmar bourg moved within eight miles of a junction that would split and dissolve the German force.

Fighting within a mile of Neuf-Brisach, the storied United States Army Corps spelled repeatedly the steel and concrete reality of Hitler's boast of a thousand years of defense on the Rhine. More than a dozen Alsatian towns including Cernay were taken.

The United States 3rd. Army, fighting into Germany proper just south of the 1st. Army, advanced a mile and more within 10 miles of strongly fortified Prum, key of the storied Siegfried line defensive points. At points the 3rd. Army was 1½ miles deep in the Siegfried line and within three quarters of a mile of by-passed Brandscheid, another defense point.

The 1st. Army front, like that of the U.S. 9th. Army along the Roer to the north, was virtually inside Germany, was wholly inside Germany. Divisions of Lt.-Gen. Courtney Hodge's army were within 10 miles of the major traffic centre of Euskirchen, the capture of which would embarrass German communications leading to the front to the south ends of the whole eastern front.

The German High Command communique Sunday, however, reported an attack by troops attacking an isolated pocket around the French Saar basin city of Forbach, Dunkerque has been increased since last September by 14 divisions.

•A late front dispatch said for-mations of the United States 1st Army overpowered the last system of German pillboxes eight miles east of Monschau. They captured the tiny village of Wollerlay, 1-2 miles from the Roer River dams, whose gates were opened by the enemy to flood the valley and balk the Allied push farther north.

Attack Is Crushed.

Last night and today the 1st Canadian Army troops at the extreme northern end of the front pushed and pepped up their patrolling along the Maas (Meuse) River from the area of Venlo north to the Nijmegen Bend.

The 3rd Army, fighting south of the United States 1st, in its current operations had penetrated five square miles of Germany, pressing five miles into Germany on a 15-mile front. It had captured the Siegfried Line at three places.

Resistance was only moderate and the 3rd Army again found some pillboxes unmanned. Only sporadic German artillery fire was reported.

•A French 1st Army communique reported the capture of 2,200 prisoners and much booty in dissolving the Colmar pocket. The French 1st Corps cleared the Thur River from Cernay to Thann, the communique said. "The United States 21st Army Corps on the defenses of Neuf Brisach one after another."

EVENTFUL WEEK OF GREAT IMPORT SEEMS PROBABLE

How Long and Tough German Death Struggle Will be' May be Indicated

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, Feb. 5 — (AP) — This week may be one of the most eventful of the war.

Three developments appear probable:

1. Conclusion of the Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin talks — accompanied or closely followed by momentous announcements of military and diplomatic decisions bearing on the end of the war in Europe and Asia and the beginnings of peace.

2. More definite information on how long and tough the German death struggle probably will be. Development of Allied assaults along the Siegfried Line in the west.

3. Conquest of Manila, intended American base for breaking the Japanese ring around the East Indies and building up forces for the next great, grinding assault on Japan proper and Manila lie the China coast and the Japanese homeland.

About the Big Three meeting there is nothing official on which to base speculation. But the meetings Harry Hopkins and Secretary of State Stettinius left Italy several days ago for unannounced destinations and the conclusion of what Mr. Hopkins called an information tour for the president preliminary to his meeting with Messrs. Churchill and Stalin.

Liberty Brought to Manila Internees By Lone U.S. Tank and 75-MM Gun

By DEAN SCHEDLER
(AP War Correspondent)

Santo Tomas Prison Camp, Manila, Feb. 5 — (AP) — Liberty was a steel tank with a 75-mm. gun for a trench and a white star on its tempered flank.

The driver slipped the clutch and the tank lurched before the chained gate of this war prison which held 3,700 persons — 3,000 prisoners of war and children of the United Nations.

"Open up!" roared the tank commander.

No hand appeared to slip the gate's bolts.

"Open the — — — thing or I'm coming anyway," the commander shouted. Again the order brought no response.

Inside the prison a low speculative murmur had risen to a crescendo of cries with overtones of fear, and doubt and hope. The prisoners sensed that this was not just another of the inexplicable Japanese orgies. But they could not open.

"Go on in," the tank commander directed calmly, "but stand back because you may have to. And be sure they're Japs."

Prisoners, gaunt, hollow-eyed, afraid of their own hopes, poured from the buildings. In the gathering gloom they saw this was an American tank. And as from a single throat they gave voice to attack and dwelt on industrial, food and manpower problems.

RAILWAY CENTRE OF BONN POUNDED BY HEAVY FORCE

All-Canadian Force Of Heavies Strikes At Synthetic Plant At Osterfeld

London, Feb. 5 (C.P. Cable) — Several hundred R.A.F. heavy bombers, including a "strong" force of R.C.A.F. aircraft, smashed at the railway centre of Bonn on the west bank of the Rhine north of Cologne last night while an all-Canadian force of heavies struck a synthetic oil plant at Osterfeli in the Ruhr.

The German radio reported that today Allied planes were over Allied territory in continuation of the Allied air offensive.

Both heavy bombers and Mosquitos, participated in last night's assaults against Bonn's vital industrial and communications targets in the Ruhr valley.

Despite the heavy clouds, bombing was done by instruments but fires and large explosions were seen. The R.C.A.F. termed the opposition "not heavy."

Cut Vital Lines.

There was no confirmation, however, of a German report that Berlin-bigger of a record-breaking assault by 1,000 United States heavy weights Saturday—had again been hit. Bombing filtering through from Berlin via neutral sources indicated the Saturday raid had cut many vital rail lines feeding the eastern front, in addition to laying waste an area of two square miles in the heart of the city.

The Saturday raid on Berlin cost 19 bombers and five fighters, including Gen. Doolittle's simultaneous blow at Magdeburg to the southwest.

A powerful force of R.A.F. bombers attacked German synthetic oil plants at Bottrop and Dortmund in the Ruhr Saturday night.

Bonn Hit Again.

Last night's raiders split into five separate forces, a similar tactic striking also at the Nordstern Benzol plant at Gelsenkirchen,

The deaf lad sustained numerous cuts and abrasions and was taken to hospital being treated in the school hospital. Traffic Officer W. Henderson investigated and was informed that Mr. McFarlane was following Swidwick at the time. SERVICE CLUBS WILL BENEFIT

Two Belleville service clubs are the recipients of a gift of $25 per Christmas gesture on the part of the local Mooney Sawing Co., under the management of Frank Street in their offer of a $50 war bond to the interested organization by the lucky purchase chest which was displayed in the window. According to the regulations of the contest; the customer holding the lucky number was the winner of the bond.

North Grey By-election Recalls Hectic E. Hastings Campaign in '36

With the eyes of politics Ontario in particular and the Dominion in general, focused on the riding of North Grey today where electors will vote by the polls, in the most publicized by-elections in provincial history, the memory of the hectic battles in this district recall that exactly one decade ago today when the riding of East Hastings went through its political archives.

It was a battle of the "Hazolds" with the Hon. Harry Nixon, Liberal leader holding high the Conservative standard and pitted against Reeve Roy Hazold, representing the banner of Liberalism. On Dec. 4th in bitter stormy weather, Mr. Nixon won the seat by 1,289 majority.

During the week previous to the election, the city and county proved the mecca for a host of cabinet ministers, speakers and newspermen and photographers at a premium. By nine-thirty the "word" was over and a campaign of active election had been conceded.

Victory Parade.

Victory celebrations were celebrated. Someone dragged a sterling bell from its stable and its clarion, at last, silenced the arguments. Musical instruments sounded, and the mid-Hastings countryside echoed to the shouts of the victorious "Tories." Then, a parade of cars, a motorcavalcade started a headsome tour of the riding with the victorious officials including the late Dr. Wellington Hall-Sandville of Wellington, and the several stops.

Within a week, the pomp and pageantry of political glory had departed. Oratorical trumpets had been silenced, and the district settled down to its former peaceful existence. The election was a peaceful affair, and the campaign was conducted in a dignified manner. Not a single case of intimidation was reported to the police.

Hotels of the city were crowded with visiting politicians from leading Ontario newspapers and news services. Cable wires to Toronto dailies here broke all records. Front and other pages of the provincial dailies were generously carried stories of the fight to all corners of Ontario and the Dominion.

TRENTON

Dr. McQuade And Mrs. Nicolls Injured In Car Accident

Trenton, Feb. 5—Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton, suffered a fractured breast bone in an accident on Saturday afternoon as he was returning to his home from Belleville with Mrs. C. Nicolls of Trenton and her infant baby who had been visiting friends in Belleville.

Mr. George Saylor and his wife were proceeding east on Highway No. 2, just east of the city limits when he is alleged Mr. Saylor attempted to turn north into his lane and collided with the car of Dr. McQuade's car. Mrs. Saylor received a cut eye and eye injuries and was attended by Dr. Gordon Johnston and later transferred to the Belleville hospital under the care of Dr. Cronk.

Dr. McQuade was also taken by Dr. Johnston to the hospital for X-rays. Mrs. Nicolls and baby escaped injury.

Both cars were considerably damaged and the accident was investigated by the Provincial Police.

Fire Damages Two Homes

Firemen were called late Friday afternoon to the home of Mrs. W. Bruyea, 53 Heber Street, when it was found by the occupants of the house to be completely enveloped in flames. Upon arrival at the house at the time and the fire is thought to have started in the chimney, allegedly from an overheated stove. Fortunately the fire was brought under control before the other portion of the house was damaged, but the roof was almost completely wrecked.

At 11 o'clock Saturday the fire men were again called, this time to the residence of Mrs. Bertha Bowen, 15 Dundas Ave. Considerable damage was done to the contents of the house before the firemen arrived but they quickly got the fire under control and prevented the house itself suffered any damage.

Two constables of the local police force assisted in extinguishing the blaze and removing Mrs. Bowen and the three small children from the house.

Fred Kramer, manager of the Century theatre, was first to notice the fire and while passing by on his way home and rushed into the house, giving the alarm. Members of the family were asleep at the time, with their three children, and had to be awakened.

Arrested on Theft Charge

Russel B. Phillips, Brighton township, was arrested by Sgt. J. F. Taylor of the Provincial police late Friday afternoon on a charge of theft in the amount of two cheques, one for $100 and one for $97.50. Both cheques had been issued by Phillips at local store in Trenton and cashed by Stokely-Van Camp Canning Co. and posted to Gerald A. McQuoid of Brighton township.

It is alleged that Phillips stole the cheques from the mail box on the highway near Phillips' residence and forged Mr. McQuoid's signature.

McQuoid reported to Stokely-Van Camp on the 30th day of January that he had not received his cheques, and it was then reported by the company to the Trenton police, for investigation, which resulted in the arrest of Phillips.

It is also alleged that Phillips was only recently released from the Ontario reformatory where he had been serving a sentence for attempted robbery, with violence.

Trenton High School Holds Commencement Exercises

Trenton, Feb. 5—Schools must educate for eternity and infinity, and that is exactly what is being done in Trenton High School," said Wing Commander M. C. Johnston, R.C.A.F., in his very inspiring address delivered to the graduating class of 1944-45 at their closing evening in the auditorium before a gathering of parents, invited relatives and friends of students and ex-students.

Wing Commander Johnston, one of the first Chaplains to proceed overseas with the Canadian Army for two years and after returning to Canada, transferred to the Royal Air Command, then Montreal No. 1 and eventually to Montreal No. 1 Command at Trenton. Besides being the author of a text book on Religious Education, "Baptist," he is also the author of several books of poetry.

Character Is Important

Wing Commander Johnston's opening remarks regarding the stimulating, challenging and thrilling keeping a school of education were carried out in his lecture, a definition that after all food procurable was given to the pigs. "We are not pigs but pigs." Likewise after all the education possible had been given to the students, they were not "just people."

"So many things I feel and he said, "are overlooked by forgotten, but the important thing is that adult training is the most important. We are all students, learning, and we have all no more wars."

Speaking of the Royal Canadian Air Force he said that when war was declared in 1939 the R.C.A.F. had less than 4,000 officers and men whereas the R.C.A.F. is now one of the largest air forces in the world and all because high schools had taught aviation, and had established a capacity for training. Most of these, he said, have come from high schools. Stating that almost half the aircrew overseas are Canadians, he said, "It is a hard and adventurous, but educational life, and I predict it will be the learning these men learned but the men who have been overseas."

"Magic in our souls is all that matters, because at the end of life that is all we have left," Wing Commander Johnston was introduced by Principal Spencer and in his opening remarks referred to the graduating class.

Delicate Piano.

Highlight of the Commencement was the splendid piano rendition of memorial piano, recently purchased by school in memory of boys and girls of the school who have died in the present struggle. Pte. Donald Ross of the R.C.A.F., a native of Northern Ireland and a student of the school, played and delivered the dedication address.

"From time immemorial caring for the sick and wounded has been God," he said, "and this dedication should be a standing for the sick but of ourselves. You and I have the duty to keep alive the memory of they died for we must live to preserve.

"That as the piano under a skilled hand can produce great music that under our hands can come out of discord, so can people under proper leaders come to the complete test in self-discipline and mastership, whereas with unskilled hands there is only discord and in disunity and war.

Introducing Flt. Lt. Nimmo, Mr. Oswald Lacey, B.A., a former student of the school, paid a delightful tribute to the assistance the R.C.A.F. had given the boys of Trenton. He said the way possible from helping with snow cleaning operations to assisting in the band, orchestra and congratulated Principal Spencer in his untiring work with students. Mr. Lacey also congratulated Principal Spencer in his untiring work with students. Mr. Lacey also congratulated the first conductor of the high school orchestra, which has been consisted of eight pieces, but now has developed into a full size orchestra. He spoke with much feeling of the orchestra's first pianist, the late Jack Hubbard, a lad of another of his first members Leading Coder Hubbard, now in the Royal Canadian Navy, recently killed in action.

The piano was accepted, on behalf of the school, by three representatives, Miss Betty Lou Hubbard, Class Wm. Nelson, for the Boys' Committee, and Miss Joan Spicer for the Army; and P/O. Leonard Dougherty for the Air Force and the latter making a most fitting reply to the Principal Spencer, who thanked the graduating class for the school.

Following the dedication of the, piano, Mr. Alec Gordon of Belleville, a former student of the school, gave a most entertaining series of humorous impersonations.

War Unsettling.

Valedictorian for the Commencement exercises was Percy Olliemann honor graduate of 1944, and Scholarship winner at Queen's University, Kingston. Speaking with a keenness of insight into the effects of war on students, Percy Olliemann said that the fact the graduating class of 1944 had definitely been war minded as declared, he stressed the fact that the graduating class of 1944 had definitely been war minded as through their high school term as war was declared when those students were just entering high school. Stressing the value of mind of the students of these five years Percy Olliemann was considerably more troubles for teachers, and Percy paid high tribute to Principal Spencer for being able to keep the standing of the school to such a high degree all through the war years. "One by one his male teachers", he said, "had left to join the forces, until in 1944 Mr. Spencer was left to carry on alone in that capacity." Percy paid high tribute, too, to the other members of the staff and their untiring work on behalf of the school and the students.

Speaking of expensive equipment, he said that Principal Spencer had said what Trenton High School is that much can be made out of, for in "the intimate friendship which existed between staff and students."

Percy ended his clever address with the hope that "The rule of sanity and brotherhood would soon return to a united world of war."

Mr. W. A. Reid, chairman of the Board, in a brief, but fitting address thanked the many guests for attending, and assured the staff of their efforts, were maintaining such a fine standard for T.H.S. which was appreciated.

400 in Armed Services

In Principal Spencer's brief address he pointed out that more than 400 students and ex-students of Trenton High School has joined the Armed Forces, 200 in the Army, 181 in the Air Force, five in the Navy, 12 in the Royal Canadian Air Force, 2 American Navy, 2 American Army and 1 American Marines and one Nursing Sister in the Military Hospital. Of these 13 have been killed or died on active service, were rendered ex-war and 8 missing.

Those who were awarded the D.S.O., four the D.F.C., one the D.F.M. and one mentioned in despatches.

Mr. Spencer mentioned that though the late might not be correct to 100 per cent they had been made out to the best of their knowledge at the school.

Several selections were rendered by the orchestra under the leadership of Miss Ruth Wilkins, Belleville, as pianist; violin, Virginia Beattie; clarinets, Barney Lewis and Jack Hubbard; flute, William Weaver; trumpets, Harvey Blakely, Ronald Hubbard; trombone, Barbara Hyde, Roy DeMille, John Keane, Ronald Hubbard; drums, Whaley trombone, William McMillan; saxophones, Jean Blakely, Robert Shurter; E-flat horn, Harold Carswell; drums, Donald Mcintosh. The several selections included vocal solos by LAC. Audrey Pond and clarinet solo, Jack Hubbard.

Mr. W. H. Ireland expressed a few words of thanks on behalf of ex Wing Commander M. C. Johnston and Flt.-Lt. Nimmo for their inspiring addresses.

POLISH COUNCIL

expressed in international conference and there has been seen the attitude of the major powers. We don't think anyone will interfere with it.

He added that the question of the Trentino was, in 1919, a mining district annexed by Poland from Austria-Hungary, but he left it to take up in "friendly negotiations."

Complete Expansion

Premier Mikolajczyk made it plain his government would complete Poland's expansion to the Oder from its mouth to southern Brandenburg, and along the Neisse where it falls into the Oder some 30 miles south of Frankfurt to the foot of the Sudeten mountains.

In East Prussia "the distribution of Germans will be left to the conditions there will determine the frontier," he said.

He reiterated the northern sector of East Prussia, including Konigsberg, would probably fall within the borders of the Lithuanian Soviet Republic and the remainder to be taken by Poland.

Premier Edward B. Conhka-Bedzkowski of Poland, speaking at the press conference, said that at his last meeting with Premier Stalin and chief in Moscow "I asked him about support of Poland's policy regarding the Oder and he replied it was obvious."

Labor Leader

Bierut, who had moved the presidential government to Lublin after the Warsaw metropolitan area within the previous 24 hours, seems not unduemphasized the importance of the reconstruction task facing Poland.

He asserted it is "Utopian" to to speak of rebuilding Warsaw in the near future with 150,000 German prisoners of war.

That to clear away the debris will require more than a year, and that Warsaw will be rebuilt "only in many years. Since Warsaw is one of Europe's greatest cities of culture and science it is the most appropriate if other cultural nations participated in the reconstruction."

COLLEGIATE NEWS

ASSEMBLY

The Fight That Failed:

The feature of our assembly this week was a swift-moving story concerning a propaganda war waged by the axis powers in winning over the minds of their people to the doctrines of totalitarianism. The film went on to show how this war is being won by armies of men who think for themselves.

It Will Be Heart to Stay Away:

Nobody was surprised to hear that the Library Club would present an announcement. A mild ripple of interest seemed through the audience as a large Valentine walked on the steady feet. Necks began to crane as the huge placard stood silently in the centre of the stage but the climax came when a dimpled head burst through the centre of the sign to say that the Library Club would present a real old Could Tea Dance with all the trimmings on Wednesday, February 18, 1942. There is a shortage of standing room in the girls' gym on that occasion.

W. J. B.

COMING EVENTS

National Health Week:

Monday, February 9th to Friday, February 20.

Monday, February 9th:

This is a comparatively quiet day, although the girls' interform basketball rivalry starts with XIIIA tangling with XIIIB while XIIIA and XIIIB battle it out in the second game at one o'clock.

The remainder of the week interform games are as follows:

Tuesday noon—XC vs. XD and XIIC vs. XIIB.

Wednesday noon—XIIC vs. XIID and XE vs. XF.

Thursday noon—XA vs. XC and XIA vs. XIIA.

These games are productive of some very exciting basketball as those who have their dinner at school are very fortunate to be able to be present. I think there are very few who go home who could not be back in time for the second game at one o'clock.

Tuesday, February 10th:

Here is your first chance to see either of your favourite basketball teams in action and you can see both of them. In the girls' gym VC Senior vs. Trenton at 4:30 and 7:00 p.m. and in the boys' gym at 4:30 Senior Boys vs. Trenton. As you all know by now, both B.C.I. teams usually starts both against Albert College and both on Albert floor. This is one of you who know the Albert floor will thus appreciate the fact that you have good basketball on the floor at school this year. There are not many who can afford the time and the money for the price of admission is to be reduced to 25c. Come, one and all to the gyms to the roof. We did it last year and look what happened. We won. It can happen twice, very easily. P.S. the capacity of the galleries is approximately 300.

Wednesday, February 11th:

The assembly program this week is dedicated to National Health Week. A number of boys in this school have given much of their spare time during this week and have made the program a success. A class of girls, under the direction of Miss Morton, will also be on hand with a display of Tuesday's gym periods to perform for us on the parallel bars, the trampoline, the first time that this year the pyramids will go up for the school. Other boys will put on the gloves and go to it and still others will give a demonstration of professional wrestling. In addition there will be films on high jumping and pole-vaulting. And that's not all. For Dr. O. S. Cronk, our Medical Health Officer, is giving of his time to come to us as guest speaker. Any of the general public who would like to hear Dr. Cronk or who are interested in this grand program are cordially invited to be present with us in the assembly next Wednesday morning.

A Valentine Tea Dance sponsored by the Library Club will be held today at four in the girls gym. During the past Year the Library Club has given much to the school. It's our turn now to help them. So come to the tea dance, bring along your Valentine and enjoy yourself to the soft music and soft drinks.

Thursday, February 5th:

Another double header. This time it's hockey. At the Hume Arena the B.C.I. Seniors meet Albert Seniors and our Juniors stack up against the Albert Juniors. Both games are fighting for a place in the win column and we figure what they need most of all is some support. So turn out. The weather is getting milder and anyway you'll probably get so hot over the games you won't notice the cold.

The school week ends quietly on Friday, February 6th.

BOYS' SPORTS

Basketball.

Last Monday, in a game that was very late setting underway, our Juniors bowed to a team from Picton in the first game of the season by the score of 21-20. The game was fairly fast throughout and but for some loose checking on the part of our team, the score might have been vastly different. Inability to hang the ball cleanly after penetrating the Picton zone, spell defeat for our boys and they were forced to very poor basketball. Picton led 16-10. However, in the second half our team opened up and for a while it looked as if the game of play outscored Picton 10-5, but it was not sufficient to win. The game was very thrilling to watch, especially in the closing minutes of play, when B.C.I. fought desperately to score that winning basket. Unable to locate the net, a stout Picton defence. Inexperience was largely responsible for the defeat as five of the Juniors had never played basketball before this year. The Juniors have from now until Feb. 18 to get ready for their next game, which is with the strong Albert College team. Alan Laverdure, Hepburn and Lipson were high scorers for Picton, while Jack Fleming and "Silver" Cameron together with Bowman and Sheridan for Bayside and Vaughan, fought hard to play their best. The referee in the game was the work of Don Shore who did a commendable job, keeping score from a position seldom too up of a table.

J. Seniors Defeat Albert 36-16.

On Tuesday, our Senior boys, defending champions of the Inter-City Quinte C.O.S.S.A. upset the experts by defeating Albert on their own floor by a 36-16 score. The method used has been accomplished since the Albert Playing Coach-Referee game, and moreover with only six players dressed, our Seniors made their toughest game of the season to date. This win to credit can be given to any individual, for this victory, as the team played smooth as a unit, to end up the night as the final whistle.

Congratulations our Seniors engage Trenton in our first home game of the season on the Albert floor and the students will continue their wholehearted support of this accidentally approximately twenty students will be on hand to support the Seniors, and this was really appreciated by the fellows.

Hockey.

Last Thursday one of our Junior boys' teams lost to Albert College by a score of 3-2. Lois Pritchard was the benefit of any practice our boys were not seen at it much of late and when the best of the thirty candidates have been picked from into a team, we feel sure they will give a good account of themselves.

Mary Tupnase and Dorothy Flintoft worked in well on some neat plays but could not chalk up any points, while Betty Holway and Faye Campbell helped their team's cause considerably. Louella Homan starring on defence but unfortunate. Assistance was rendered by Ruth Johns, Katherine Mills and Suzy Gordon.

OUR SCHOOL LIFE

Chapter 1 — Grade IX

Well, so you finally finished elementary school and now you've officie hung high on the wall; so you spend one glorious summer in celebration and then settle down solemn in our thriving establishment where you are confronted out almost yearly); so you feel in high spirits; so you're all keen and know then what fate held in store for you.

Now my attitude won't be misunderstood. I'm not trying to damp your spirits, not by a long shot! But everyone who went through first year high knows exactly what I mean.

When you left public school you were a big fish in a little pond and much to your surprise and dismay you find that you're a little fish in a big pond. You're given no individual consideration and you're lost in the crowd. You're a unit, to end up by the end of the year as the final whistle.

Then second year Seniors engage Trenton in our first home game of the season on the Albert floor and the students will continue their wholehearted support of this accidentally approximately twenty students will be on hand to support the Seniors, and this was really appreciated by the fellows.

Hockey.

Last Thursday one of our Junior boys' teams lost to Albert College by a score of 3-2. Lois Pritchard was the benefit of any practice our boys were not seen at it much of late and when the best of the thirty candidates have been picked from into a team, we feel sure they will give a good account of themselves.

What Red Cross Means

In the reports of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross given at the annual meeting last week could be gathered a very fine impression of the great work which that organization has been performing. They give a story of public service which is an inspiration not only to every citizen in furthering the war effort but to every citizen to make use of the opportunity to render service wherever and whenever the need and opportunity arise. That the opportunity should be everyone is clear from a study of the Red Cross and other societies of a public service character.

No organization can render and none renders more important service in wartime. This society has many undertakings, support of the blood clinic, liaison work concerning prisoners of war and casualties, the comforting of war brides from overseas, and many social problems. The Red Cross has spread out and has its ramifications in the form of organizations in churches, in schools and women's institutes, all working towards the one ideal of the Red Cross. It has enlisted the services of all ages of life and some of the finest stories of war effort can be told through the Red Cross work. There is heroism of every real type shown in all of this work and the finest sense of patriotism. One has but to note the hundreds of tons of parcels sent to Toronto headquarters totalling 10,254 articles, including knitted comforts, civilian clothing, hospital supplies, quilts and afghans and leather goods. Grenfell Jams. Into this labor have been put much patience and devotion by the great number of persons interested in this class of activity of the society.

Branches of the society in the rural areas rendered effective service in the preparation and gifts of jam and honey.

Blood Donor Clinic was shown to have 7,286 donors, the donors from the county districts of Prince Edward and Hastings counties being highly praised for their tireless efforts on behalf of this cause. It was good news that the report could say while there was a small number of city blood donors there was improvement shown in this regard. Men in the R.C.A.F. had been generous in support of the clinic.

The Red Cross whose activities know really no limit has a devoted membership of men and women in the varied activities of the society. From President Duff to the last member the year's work is a cheering record of achievement in devoted attention to every opportunity which rises. The work is on a voluntary basis and merits appreciation on the part of everyone in the community. It is a work of humanity that the Red Cross serves in war and peace, it is tireless, devoted and humanitarian to the last degree.

It is an encouraging sign to see so many associated with this work, going out of their way to do their utmost on behalf of those who need the ministrations of the Red Cross in the wide world at war and also in cases, at home.

Frantic Hun Appeal

Inhabitants of Berlin have been urged by German propagandists to follow the example of the Russians at Stalingrad and the Poles at Warsaw and refuse to surrender.

It sounds strange to read of this advice in the mouths of the German leaders who tried to crush those very places, Stalingrad and Warsaw, because they refused to surrender. It is remembered that some time ago the sky began to look dark for the enemy, the people of Germany were told that they should rise to the call of defence of Germany as the people of Britain had done against Hun bombing.

First of all, Stalingrad and Warsaw defied the Huns successfully, and Britain hurled back the Luftwaffe four and a half years ago with such success that the air force of Goering never again attempted to win by the air over Britain.

These three great cities were fired by the love of country and liberty and of the right to defend their cause of living their own life without the interference of the Huns. London, Stalingrad and Warsaw knew their cause was just and fought the fight for all the world.

Anyway the Huns cannot emulate the United Nations for German ways are not our ways.

Londoners, Poles and Russians are not like Germans. Though the Allies were up against fearful odds at the time through sheer force of their courage and spirit they triumphed and the course of the war to-day is to a large degree the sequel of those great Allied victories over Hitler in past years. Germany is losing and really has lost the war and no appeal to defend Berlin can succeed whether the time of its fall be soon or later. Germany is swiftly driving for military catastrophe. Germany is going down because modern Germany is an evil thing from the free nations know it must be crushed as evil is crushed in society before the world can be safe and freedom can go forward securely on its noble way.

Fascinating Story of Fire

(From the New York Times)

The conquest of fire was one of the great achievements of man. Sit and watch the glow of a log, the slow flame curling upward on the hearth, and you are seeing in the embers many centuries of forgotten history.

There must have been four stages in this story, four long and misty chapters. At first, fire was a natural phenomenon, to be feared and perhaps appeased: Lightning was fire, and there was fire in volcanoes.

Man, like the animals around him, fled from such fire to save his life. But, being a man, he pondered on it, learned about it. And thus came the second stage, when man took fire for himself and fed it and tamed it. His animal enemies still feared it, and thus fire gave man a strength he otherwise lacked. His fists were no match for horns and claws, but a torch made him for a time the equal of the tiger. It made reasonably safe his home, whether it was a cave or a cairn, and he could settle down in one place.

The next step is perhaps the most fascinating of all. Man learned to make fire at will. He struck two stones together and made a spark. He rubbed some dried timber and created a coal. That was the first great discovery, the primal invention. It was the turning point in human history, for without fire of his own man might not have gone the way of the dinotosaurus. Instead he looked into the flames of his own making and saw the future there. Out of those flames came whatever of civilization we have thus far achieved. That was the fourth step, the use of fire.

The verb is wrong. That is the fourth step. We are still learning how best to use our fires. Otherwise we should not watch the hearth flame and wonder how civilized we really are.

From "Hardtack" to Frozen Foods

(Christian Science Monitor)

A short three-quarters of a century ago, seamen who sailed across the ocean wide went on a diet of hardtack and other equally imperishable fare about as soon as they had lost sight of land. Nor did the soldier on distant shore eat like a king.

Today both fare far better. Indeed, they do all right. For the War Department has just announced construction of a new type of refrigerator ship to carry armies of forces into the seven seas, busily making ice cream, and bearing tons of frozen foods.

Furthermore, the machinery can make five tons of just plain ice a day. Sixty-four carloads of frozen meats can be maintained at 122-degree temperature aboard each barge, and there is, in addition, room for 500 tons of refrigerated vegetables, dairy products, and other fresh foods.

Every American thinks "there's nothing too good for the boys," but whoever invented this ingenious barge has made the phrase really mean something.

Britain Has 7,000 "Controls"

(London Evening News)

Controls set up during this war now number some 7,000, most of them made under the „Emergency Powers Act. This Act restricts you and me every day, almost every moment, in fact.

ILL-WILL

Ill-will and hate are poisons vile
In that they run so long a while.
And, in his memory, all too long,
Freeze man's remembrance of a wrong.

Man takes from friends and strangers near
A thousand favors through the year,
Which, by the morrow, he'll forget,
Thinking a "Thank You" squared the debt.

Stung by a real or fancied slight,
He'll toss upon his bed at night
Or lie in wait for years to find
Some way to pay it back in kind.

How strange it is that men contrive
To keep the little wrongs alive
And let, as time goes winging by,
The little acts of kindness die.

PRESIDENT IMPEACHED

President Andrew Johnson was impeached in 1868 by the House of Representatives and tried by the Senate, but he was not convicted.

The House, organized as a committee of the whole, attended the trial in a body. The Senate, organized as a court of impeachments, to try the President, voted on only three of the eleven articles exhibited against Johnson.

On each of the three articles the Senate voted 35 yeas and 19 nays—one short of the two-thirds required by the Constitution to convict. The Senate then voted 74 to 16 to adjourn sine die, and the articles were sent to the effect that Johnson be, and he is, acquitted of the charges.

Senator James W. Grimes, of Iowa, who had suffered a paralytic stroke in the course of the trial, was carried from his sick bed to the Senate chamber to vote "not guilty."

Senator Edmund G. Ross, of Kansas, is often given credit for saving the day for Johnson. He had been very critical of the President, but the Radical Republicans confidently expected him to vote for conviction. When the last ballot he voted "not guilty."

When the President of the United States is impeached the Chief Justice of the United States presides over the Senate during the trial. Salmon P. Chase, who had been appointed Chief Justice by Lincoln, presided over the Senate trial of the impeachment when Johnson was tried.

Under the statutes then in force the President Pro Tempore of the Senate would succeed to the presidency in the event there was no President or Vice President. Johnson had succeeded to the presidency upon Lincoln's assassination. Senator Benjamin Wade, of Ohio, had been elected President Pro Tempore of the Senate and accordingly would have succeeded to the presidency in the event of the president's conviction and removal from office.

Wade's right to take part in the proceedings was challenged on the ground that he was an "interested party." The Senators present were evenly divided on the question, but Chief Justice Chase, though not a member of the Senate, took the position that he was a member of the court of impeachments and voted to break the tie in favor of Wade's right to be sworn in and to vote. The right of Wade to vote was unsuccessfully challenged.

Wade, like Johnson, believed he was so sure that Johnson would be convicted and removed from the presidency that he had begun to select the members of his cabinet. It is supposed that Wade's personal unpopularity caused some Senators who preferred Johnson to him, to vote for acquittal.

House Enemies Of Henry Wallace Still Working

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP) — Prospects of Henry A. Wallace becoming secretary even of a bob-tailed commerce department were dimmed today following a developing coalition of opponents in the House of Representatives.

By an intricate manoeuvre, a combination of Republicans and a segment of southern Democrats which often dominates the House in its key votes, succeeded to scuttle the George Bill. This would force a direct Senate confirmation of Wallace as head of commerce including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other loaning agencies.

Democratic congress leaders believed, would result in outright rejection by the Senate of the Vice-President for the Commerce post.

However, Senator Walter George (Dem., Ga.), author of the Senate-approved bill divorcing the loan agencies from commerce department, expressed the hope the measure would become law without amendments.

Friends of Wallace joined in support of the George bill when it became evident he could not be confirmed. They argued that as the loan agencies remained a part of the commerce department.

The House Banking Committee will take up the George bill tomorrow.

Fox Stages Come-Back

Ontario is being invaded, quietly and unobtrusively, by an animal known as the grey fox. While man, the grey fox was a common animal throughout Ontario. It is now found from the bones found in pre-historic Indian village sites. It disappeared from our area. Its range almost accidentally became known. It has been absent from early historic times until recently.

Twenty years ago the gray fox population began to increase and spread again. The Royal Ontario Museum received its first specimen in 1942. Subsequently others were secured and the front of the question is now how far to the north. St. Lawrence to Lake-of-the-Woods? Only time will tell whether successful this animal will be in re-establishing in the north.

The coat of the gray fox has a salt and pepper mixed effect and the tip of the tail is black. These features will distinguish it from the red fox in any of its phases. The Museum will appreciate information from readers to increase knowledge of the gray fox in Ontario.

WHY INSECTS MOULT

Insects do not increase in size in the adult or winged stage. This means that a small fly or other adult insect never develops into a larger one. Growth takes place entirely in immature stages, during which most of the feeding is done. In the growth of all insects the body but not the skin of the immature insect enlarges, with the result that the dermal covering (integument) becomes tighter. This finally splits, and the developing insect crawls out covered by a soft and delicate membranous skin. This is known as a moult. Most insects moult about three to five times during the period of growth. Following the last moult, the adult appears full grown, equipped with legs, wings, and other appendages.

CHIEF TEXTILE FIBERS

The principle textile fibres are wool, cotton, silk, flax, and rayon. Wool is the warmest and goes back to pre-historic times. Cotton was produced nearly 5,000 years ago and linen from flax was woven in Egypt at a still earlier date. Silk was produced in China over 5,000 years ago, while rayon, the baby textile, was first produced commercially only 60 years ago.

NON-FLAMMABLE WOOL

London (CP) — Plans are being made by the wool industry to further perfect processes to "take the sting out of fire" in wool and woven textiles, upholstery, clothes and carpets moth-proof and non-shrinkable.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

KNOW THE GOLDEN RULE OF HYGIENE.

Research workers, subsidized perhaps by commercial interests, from time to time report their observations that the air and various surfaces in a hospital ward or in a sickroom are contaminated by bacterial strains which are recognized as a frequent cause of serious acute respiratory infection.

That is interesting in a scientific way, but does not attempt to explain epidemics or even casual instances of such infection.

Even without discounting the evidence to allow for the possible bias by publicity, this has tinged much modern "medical science I won't for the life of me comprehend why a hospital ward, a sickroom, a dentist's office, a surgical operating room or any other room should be equipped with gadgery for ultra-violating the atmosphere or for vaporizing or spraying with some germicidal germ killer.

Attempts to disinfect the air or surfaces or furniture or bedcovers can have little if any influence on the spreading of respiratory infection. The virus or germ of the disease is present in the moisture sprayed from the nose and mouth when the person with the infection coughs, sneezes or talks. Invisibly the droplets of moisture, which contain the germs or virus, fall upon the face, lips, nose or mouth of the victim who happens to be in the spray range—unless a suitable mask is worn by one or both persons to prevent the droplet spreading.

Even if ultraviolet light or propylene glycol vapor in the air kills bacteria, it does not destroy all the bacteria or virus in such moisture droplets can be so destroyed by the sunlight. You know what are in the air.

Jacking up the barrier is no convincing evidence that respiratory infections including pneumonia, influenza, scarlet fever, measles, pulmonary tuberculosis, epidemic sore throat, infantile paralysis, smallpox, influenzas and other less serious diseases, will be reduced in number or communicable disease of any kind, is the height of folly. We know all of these respiratory infections, particularly the mild "common cold" or "flu" childhood gets a bad break) are spread almost entirely by droplet infection, droplets, and only rarely if at all through direct contact with infected persons or indirectly by the germs or virus.

So we can be no longer negative ourselves or our neighbors about this. If we are honest about it we must admit that it is a reprehensible offence for a person with any coming illness of this kind to associate with other persons unless he wears a mask—and lest you assume I am clearly apply to you let me explain that by any on-coming illness of this kind any indisposition you may wish to think or wish your associates to think is "just a little cold."

The golden rule of hygiene is: "Your suffering is your own affair" and not remain isolated when you have any such illness.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Bed-Wetting

How can I break my two-year-old son of bed-wetting? (Capt. C. L.)

Answer—First, keep it confidential—don't discuss it in the presence of the child and other people. Second, remember it is not abnormal and more or less insignificant in a child under three years of age. Third, by kindness, persuade the child, by patience, suitable training, by encouragement and never scolding or embarrassment, to want to remain dry he will stop wetting. Send stamped envelope requesting booklet, or pamphlet "The Bed-Wetting Habit."

Eighteen to Sixteen

Thank you so much for your advice. I have followed your instructions, they did help some three months and have reduced from a size 18 to size 16 dress. I never did so much sheer vim and joy in living as I do now. (Mrs. J. C.)

Answer—That, or something like it, should be expected. If the reduction is not excessive. On request (written, not a clipping) I will send booklet entitled "Weight Control" who provides stamped self addressed envelope, I will send you the pamphlet "How to Lose Weight."

Humidity

Use sprayer with vacuum, spraying a fine water mist, keep temperature at 70 degrees. Is that recommend this? (Mrs. B. C.)

Answer—Yes, but not economical. But I do recommend keeping the humidity of the air between 40 and 50. Methods are described in pamphlet on "Humidification" which I request you provide stamped self addressed envelope.

WEDDINGS

GREEN—RAWSON

A very lovely February wedding was solemnized on Saturday, the 7th third, at four o'clock in the afternoon in Christ Church when Margaret Joyce Rawson, W.R.C.N.S., Ottawa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rawson, became bride of Petty Officer Frank Louis Green, R.C.N.V.R., Halifax, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Green.

The Rev. J. Grant Sparling officiated at the ceremony against an impressive floral background of yellow daffodils. Miss Ruth Calvert presided at the console of the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiantly attired in a long gown of white lace, fashioned exquisitely in long torso effect and with sweetheart neckline, long tight fitting sleeves and full sweeping skirt. She wore a dainty Dutch cap of lace from which fell a cape length veil of tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of pink Delight roses.

Miss Corrine Walmsley, as maid of honour, was wearing an attractive dress of aquamarine blue sheer, made with high rounded neckline and long tight sleeves. Her headdress was coronet shaped, accentuated with flowers and fitted the shoulder length veiling. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Briarcliff roses, carnations, stevia and forget-me-nots.

Miss Ila Green, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Her gown was rose taffeta, fashioned on princess lines and with long torso bodice and puffed sleeves. Both her headdress and her bouquet were similar to those of the maid of honour.

Marian Rawson was a very pretty junior bridesmaid in her frock of orchid taffeta and matching Dutch bonnet. She carried a nosegay of Christmas roses, stevia and heather.

Mr. Harry Green of Peterborough, was groomsman, and the ushers were Leading Aircraftsman Donald Atkinson and Photographer Andy Spiten, R.C.A.F., Ottawa.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The mother of the bride chose a wine crepe ensemble, complemented with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother wore a two-piece crepe gown in mauve shade, black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

On the wedding trip to Detroit and Chicago, the bride donned her naval uniform.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Ottawa and Peterborough.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET CHURCH W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Holloway Street Church held its regular meeting on Thursday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Reid presided and opened the meeting. The treasurer's report showed a most gratifying beginning for the year's work. The other various reports were present and showed much activity in the Society. Worthy of special mention is the Community Friendship work and the C.G.I.T. The leaders of these groups should be commended on the results of their untiring efforts. Business arising from the minutes was then discussed. Mrs. McMurray and Mrs. Stephen were chosen as representatives on the C.G.I.T. Work Board, which is being formed in the city. The Offering was received and dedicated.

Mrs. Cordes, leader of Group 3, then took the chair, the theme of worship service being "The Kingdom of God in our Midst." Avoiding Facial Wrinkles With Proper Diet and Rest

Irene Dunne believes in getting plenty of Rest.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE is one thing that a woman of forty would like to know and that is, how to avoid wrinkles. The best prescription perhaps is good health, a love of life, a kindly and sunny disposition.

Whether the flesh on the face is smooth or crinkled depends somewhat on inheritance, but more on and cares that weigh heavily on the heart. If one feels low, the lip ends droops; in time facial tissues sag because of depletion. The flesh falls into fine lines.

Countenances Alight.

If one is happy, the countenance is alight and alert; the muscles stay strong. It is not easy to control one's thoughts. But one should remember that there are our constant companions, with us every waking moment, and whether they are uplifting or depressing, we ourselves. We make them what they are.

A woman can have the most expensive beauty treatments, but she found on a round of beautyshops, but if she goes out of the door with a frown between her eyes, high.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Probably there is no time in the life of a feminine mortal when she is so over-conscious of the size and appearance as she is between the ages of twelve and sixteen. In latter years she will either grow different. During adolescence she must be a carbon-copy of every other girl. Or so it seems. So of the crowd are wearing small pompadours and bowing fashion. It is nothing less than a tragedy if mama does her hair with a middle parting and two pigtails. Mama should not do it. A little girl is entitled to wear her hair according to the accepted mode. What does it matter to mama? Her daughter, in a few years, will be flying away from the home nest and, in time, mama will be a grandmother. She may remember the ugliest lane and wish she had given in.

It is true that the teen-agers are pretty standardized. But what is fit? So what, as long as they are dressed according to the accepted mode. What does it matter to mama? Her daughter, in a few years, will be flying away from the home nest and, in time, mama will be a grandmother. She may remember the ugliest lane and wish she had given in.

Sometimes paying a girl compliments is like feeding an elephant peanuts; it takes so many to fill her up. In fact, she can go on swallowing them forever without getting indigestion.

Why is it a wolf can always find some romantic girl who will marry him, sterilize his children, make his peat, and call him her "precious lamb?" Girls are unpredictable!

All that stands between a pretty girl and a top-flight movie star is the flight!

Lots of these hasty war-marriages have gone on the rocks although they were comfortable. Silly. There is nothing uncomfortable about satin. The boys prefer to see the girls in skirts; they all say so. Evidently, then, our young ladies do not dress to please our gentlemen friends. Women don't dress to please men either; they dress to please themselves. The fair woman, at the age of fourteen, is just asserting her rights as a designer.

And now, after this long introduction, we have a few suggestions to make to the freshman class in the fashion show.

Don't forget that plenty of soap and water is the life of your complexion. Never take a day's rest to bed with you. Have a thorough scrubbing if you use a complexion brush for the purpose, so much the better. Rinse in warm water, then in cold, dry gently, apply a little cold cream.

Be a little bit choosy about your fingernails. Laying on the red glow is not enough. Clean the earth with an orangewood stick every day; germs lurk there, ready to get you to action.

If you shampoo your own hair, instead of going to the beauty shop, use melted soap and rinse with the last pail of water or shower. Every particle of suds must be removed.

Finally, don't bore yourself beautifully; that is the only way to have chic and style.

Gift Packages Should be Opened at Shower.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

Recently I received a "shower tea" given for a bride-to-be I arrived to find that the majority of the guest had arrived before the display before the party. These had been opened and were on display in one of the rooms for the guests to view when they departed. Some of the guests, including myself, brought their gifts with them when they came to the tea. These were not opened at all while the guests were there. Please let me know this procedure correct? If not, what is?

—S. T.

I am certainly as surprised and baffled at this procedure as you must have been! In the first place, since it is the general custom and the accepted procedure of a shower for the guests to bring their gifts with them to the party and for the guest of honor to open them at the shower, I don't understand why a majority of the guests, were apparently requested to bring their gifts the day before, while also apparently, others, including you, received no such request.

Occasionally, it's true, guests are requested to send their gifts a day or so before the shower .. for example, when the ladies wishes to wrap all the gifts in some special and similar way, perhaps to be grouped for the table centrepiece, but when this is done, all the guests are given this request, and even so, the gifts are not opened until the bride-to-be opens them.

To have the gifts already opened and on display when the guests arrive certainly, I think, takes from the shower its most dramatic and fun-inducing feature, the great joy of honor's opening the presents and exclaiming over their artful and artistic comments on them. And not even to have opened the gifts that were brought seems to me to show a lack of courtesy and appreciation. Even if on the guest of honor hadn't opened them, certainly the hostess herself has since apparently she had opened the ones sent before the party.

What is Wear at an Evening Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My son is to be married soon in a large church now, at seven o'clock in the evening, with a reception following the ceremony. The bride is wearing a wedding gown and veil; the bridesmaid, a long gown; the bride's mother, an evening gown and my son and his best man are wearing tuxedos. Will you please tell me what I, the groom's mother, should wear?

— B. M.

You, the groom's mother, should wear the shade of costume that the bride's mother is to wear.

suggest that you immediately get in touch with her; so that you can plan your costume to be not only of the same type as her, but of a color that will harmonize with the color of her gown. You see, you, as the groom's mother, are the woman guest of honor at the wedding; therefore you sit in the first pew on the right of the aisle in the church (opposite the bride's mother in the first pew on the left of the aisle), and, at the reception, you will probably stand next to the bride's mother in the receiving line. So it is important that, at your son's formal wedding, you dress similarly to the bride's mother. And you should find out from her, too, if the denomination of the church in which the wedding is to be, requires that women wear head coverings in that church. (It is the responsibility of your son to send a corsage to you, to harmonize with your dress, and also one to his bride's mother.)

Corpus Christi, Texas, Feb. 8 (AP) — Golf's war hoss trail led into the south today as the touring professionals, who climaxed Byron Nelson's torrid finish line with the Corpus Christi Open championship, departed for New Orleans and another $5,000 tournament.

The "Gold Dust Twins" of the fairways—Nelson and Harold (Jug) McSpaden — were in full stride. Nelson's 1 and No. 2 in earnings for the year as the boys of the links entered the last half of the United States winter schedule.

Nelson, winner of the Corpus Christi Open yesterday with a 72-hole total of 284, four strokes ahead of McSpaden, added to his second money.

In five fine tournaments played since Jan. 1 Nelson has gathered in two first places and finished no lower than a tie for second in the lucrative purses. Jug has collected $6,132 (maturity value of bonds). McSpaden, while winning no tournaments, has forged into second place in money totals, the total now being $4,332.

At New Orleans Nelson will meet the only other golfer able to win as many tournaments as he has since the winter tour started in November at Portland — Slamnin' Sam Snead, who quit at Tucson, Ariz., after three titles but resumes play this weekend. Nelson won one tournament before Jan. 1.

Having bought a donkey from a mate a roster took it out on his round. Almost at once it walked straight through a plate-glass window.

Next day, for a change, it insisted into a brick wall. Then the roster got annoyed. Going to the seller he demanded:

"Why didn't you tell me the moke was blind?"

"Oh, 'e ain't blind!" was the reply. "'E can't don't give a darn!"

Around the Town.

Despite the weekend's heavy snow fall local puck fans are anticipating an all-out tussle between Trenton and the speedy Kingston "Flyers" tonight.... True enough the Limestone City "aimless" barneys won a game in the Quinte service league, but they have managed to give the opposition plenty of competition and some keen hockey.... If they happen to run out another star like Randy Ellis tonight, Pedro Malka's Trenton senators will have their evening's work cut out.... In the curtain raiser the popular Kingston Frontenac Shamrocks Coach Toots Holway took the Belleville Juniors to Odessa for the O.H.A. Junior "A" Oshawa General Junior "A" game on Saturday night and the local kids got an eye full of bigtime junior hockey as the Junior Saints" beat the Generals 5 to 3.... The Holway-led clan got to work out on the catching defenceman McMurtle of St. Catharines and a fast set of forwards, playing Doug Green and Rance Bush, Belleville's trio of rearguardsmen learned something from their trip .....And we don't mean from the free-for-all fight that terminated Saturday night's junior game either. Laying over the remainder of games left in the "Little Six" there is a remote chance Belleville and Trenton could finish the regular schedule tied for first place.... However this is a rather remote as Trenton would have to lose to both Campbellford and Hastings and have Belleville beat Tweed tomorrow night to give the locals out in front alone.....However a win at Tweed Tuesday night would assure Billeville of no worse than second place in the final group standing.... Right now the Stirling "Combine" are finished with their part of the schedule with six wins and four losses.... Belleville however must game at Tweed while Trenton goes to Norwood tonight and entertain Campbellford back home Wednesday night.... Looks like a battle to the wire.

Junior Standings.

It's quite a race in the "Little Six" with Stirling leading and combined their part of the schedule. The standing at noon read:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Stirling	6	4	0	12
Trenton	5	2	1	11
Belleville	5	3	1	11
Hastings	5	4	0	10
Campbellford	3	6	0	6
Tweed	1	8	0	2

Remaining games: Tonight, Trenton at Hastings Tuesday, Belleville at Tweed; Wednesday, Campbellford at Trenton.

Remember When

Eight members of the Ottawa South Hockey Club exciter who were suspended by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada nine years ago today as the result of the "great impersonation" of Jerry Kerry by Eddie Gerard, an American player, the previous fall. Later the executive was reinstated.

Combines Win.

The Central Hastings Hockey League five-after night saw its first defaulted game of the season when Bonarlaw failed to put in an appearance at the Stirling rink with the result Combines took the game by default. In the other match, however, the Zinn-West Huntingdon "Combines" eked out a 4-3 win over Corbyville in a rousing game. Three successive goals in the middle stanza settled the issue for the Combines, despite the fact Corbyville rallied in the last frame to score two, but they couldn't notch the fourth and tying counter.

Beer Top Hitter.

Second Baseman Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox, who left the team before the season ended to go into the armed forces, was the No. 1 batsman of the 1946 season in the American League, statistics reveal. He succeeded Rudy York of the Tigers in a photo finish with a teammate, Bob Johnson. In third place was Johnny Lindell of the Yankees.

Outfielder Jake Powell dropped dead in the offices of the Washington club recently, and agreed to terms a 12 promising he would. Last year he did attack back in a few days. Powell is 41-6", wearing a silver plate in his skull, because of a serious accident. He is a Montgomery county police officer during the off-season.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 189
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge expert often prevails where many a gift always fails. He plucks from the air a trick here and there by carefully heeding details. Take in this deal:

	NORTH
	♠ 7 4 3
	♥ 7 5 4
	♦ 6 5 3 2
	♣ J 5
WEST		EAST
♠ 10 8 7		♠ 5 3
♥ Q 10 9		♥ 8 6 2
♦ A Q C 4		♦ 10 9 7
♣ 6 5 4		♣ 7 2
	SOUTH
	♠ A K Q 6
	♥ A K 3
	♦ 3
	♣ A K 10 9 3

South is declarer at a stretched contract of six clubs. West starts out with a diamond lead and wins the first trick. A second diamond from there is trumped by south.

To make the contract, declarer must plan in such a way that he will lose no more tricks. The third round of hearts is a worry. But the third dummy heart can be ruffed on the fourth south spade.

However, the handling of that and the trump suit requires some attention to future tricks also, anticipating need for dummy entries, south trumped that second diamond lead with the club ace.

The club lady was now led and overtaken with dummy's eightspot. This gave dummy an entry with which to lead back a diamond south trumped that with the club king.

Then the club ten was led and overtaken, in dummy with the club jack. This entry to dummy permitted the last diamond to be led from there. South trumped it with his last club.

Dummy was entered again, this time by leading the small south spade and winning with the jack. That permitted the club queen to be led for gaining up opponent's last trump.

On that trump queen lead, south stuffed a small heart. After that south took the remaining tricks with top spades and hearts.

This hand works out so slick, the plays in it may seem easy. But if you look closely you will see that declarer must plan every move in count. Especially in a hand that is so scarce of entries.

It is an example of making dummy trumps the master cards.

Boston Bruins Developing Into Point-Hungry Hockey Team As Ross Cracks Whip

Defeat Toronto Team on Saturday and Earn Tie With Rangers on Sunday

By The Canadian Press

Those Boston Bruins whose appearance is such an eyesore to boss Art Ross, are suddenly developed into a point-hungry bunch of hockey men. In weekend games they strengthened their hold on the National Hockey League's last play-off slot.

Apparently stung by the rude Ross remarks — he said they were the worst Bruin team he's ever seen — they outskated and outplayed Toronto Saturday 4-2 win in Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday night and then went back to Boston to hold Rangers to a 3-3 tie Sunday night.

The Bruins might have had a two weekend wins if Fred Thurlier had not clicked at Boston with less than two minutes remaining Sunday night. He gave Rangers a draw by batting in Bingo Kampman's loose shot.

Bruin's efforts, while helping themselves, brought little joy to the last place Chicago Black Hawks. Temporarily buoyed up by two victories and a tie last week the Hawks dropped a 4-3 verdict to the third place Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night while the front-running Montreal Canadiens extended their lead to 11 points with 5-2 and 3-1 victories over Detroit Red Wings.

The weekend points all but mathematically clinched first place for the Montrealers.

The victories gave the Canucks the wins and a tie in eight games with the motor city squad this year, and unless Jack Adams can rid his players of the inferiority complex they develop when they take to the ice with the Flying Frenchmen their chances in the Stanley Cup playdowns don't appear too glittering.

The three weekend points placed the Rossmen four points up on the Rangers although Lester Patrick's charges have a game in hand.

Paced by sophomore Ted Kennedy who collected three markers Sunday night the Leafs moved up even 10 points behind the Red Wings.

Incidentally, Kennedy scored one of the Leafs' goals and assisted on the other when Leafs lost to Boston.

COMBINES FORGE TO TOP POSITION IN HASTINGS LOOP

Corbyville Defeated 4-3 in Closest Contest of the Season

Stirling, Feb. 5. (Special)—Zion-Hill-West Huntingdon "Combines" forged out in front in the Oversea Hastings Rural Hockey League standing on Friday evening when in the only game played at the Stirling arena they eked out a close 4-3 victory over the Corbyville boys.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was not played as the Bonarlaw boys failed to show up for their game against the Century Jr. Acrobatic.

Tommon put the "Combines" out in front with the only goal scored in the first period when he took a pass from Wray at the six-minute marker to sink the boot-heel behind Forsyth in the Corbyville nets. The losers got back on even terms to start the second canto when Martin and Empson combined, but before the period ended the "Combines" had counted three times to nail the game away. Corbyville came back strong in the final but goalie by Jarrett and Thompson failed by one to equal the count.

Lineups—Corbyville— goal, Forsythe; defence, Walt and Cluay; forwards Grey, Sheffield, Thompson and Bube—Denyes, Pitts, Empson, Woods, Martin and Jarrett.

"Combines"—Goal, Clifford; defence, Thompson and Brough; forwards, A. Tummon, Wray and G. Tummon; Bube—L. Sills, R. Sills, McCurdy, C. Wright and Pargyr.

"FILM-STRUCK"

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

CHAPTER EIGHT

"I can get you a job in pictures," he said, lighting a cigar and speaking between puffs. Livia wanted to slap his face. But instead she walked quickly to her cabin and locked the door. She listened for his footsteps—but O'Hara remained on deck. There were many pretty girls in Hollywood. If you didn't get one, you got another.

In the morning Livia rose before the others were awake, took her small suitcase, and told the surprised Captain she must get to the mainland. He took her there in the speed boat. She left a note for the Countess.

During the wakeful hours in the early dawn, Livia had decided she was finished absolutely with movies. What an all -around fool she had been. All she wanted now was to see Brent and tell him so. He was real. He was a kind. He was a rock against which she could lean with absolute safety and security. She wanted to marry him more than anything she had ever wanted in the wide world.

Her excitement mounted as she entered the courtyard where Bruce had his bungalow. She saw a man in the little kitchen and cried joyfully:

"Bruce." But it was the Chinese boy who came to her. "Mr. Nolan, where—"

The boy smiled. "Missy Nolan—he get married. Yes, he marry this morning — beautiful girl. . . Anything the matter, Missy Charleson?"

"Missy Nolan—and such a beautiful girl," the Chinese boy repeated and said Livia, although he had made a side-splitting joke. "They coming back alone?"

Livia picked up her small suitcase and fled from the bungalow. Bruce, married! Bruce, the dependable, Bruce, whom she loved desperately—before she had lost him forever. But there was no one to blame but herself.

Livia went to Hollywood House. Mrs. Sayles was going through the weekly accounts, but dropped her pen and squealed delightedly when Livia appeared, followed by a man dragging her trunk.

"This time you'll stay!" she asked and clasped her plump palms together when Livia nodded. "I have a room empty."

Livia followed her silently up to the little, white-washed room, and started unpacking while Mrs. Sayles collapsed on the bed.

"These stairs will kill me one day," she panted cheerfully. "We ought to have an elevator."

"I want to pay a month in advance," Livia interrupted. "Here's $40." She was left with a few dollars.

Mrs. Sayles painfully lifted herself to a standing position. "If you have nothing to do tonight," she said at the door—"I have a couple of tickets for a movie show. Would you like to come?

"Yes, I would." Livia was grateful. For the first time she saw the kindness in Mrs. Syles' small blue eyes and in the lines around her mouth.

They were about to leave for the movie when Bruce telephoned.

"I'm out. I didn't live here—tell him, anything, but I don't want to speak to him." Livia said. She could not talk to Bruce now or ever. He would talk of his wife—or perhaps explain the circumstances of his marriage — and that would be worse.

"Miss Clarkson is not here," Mrs. Sayles told Bruce, blinking broadly at the others in the room. "No, I didn't know she had left the hotel. All right, if I hear from her, I'll phone you. Is she put the' receiver down. "You've quarrelled?"

"No, no—but I can't see him again."

"I understand," said Mrs. Sayles, "now let's go to the movies!"

"The next day was Sunday. Most of the persons living in Hollywood House worked in pictures, and on Sunday morning the rasping alarm clocks were silent, and they could sleep late. It was one of those deceptively warm spring days common to Los Angeles when the sun is bright and the foliage vividly green, and you think you do not require a coat—until you suffer.

Livia went alone to the beach at Santa Monica. The bus was crowded with family parties, carrying picnic baskets. They seemed happy in their plans for the day. And Livia regretted she had not invited Mrs. Sayles to accompany her. But the sight and smell of the sea revived her spirits. She felt stronger and able to shape her life to her pattern. She swam. The sun was hot on her face. But she shivered while dressing in the Municipal shelter.

That evening her temperature was 100. "Very fine!" Mrs. Sayles reproached Livia. She wanted to get a doctor, but this Livia forbade. As an alternative she submitted to strenuous home-made remedies favored by Mrs. Sayles.

Her temperature was down to 99 in the morning. But she was weak. Mrs. Sayles had visited her three times during the night and early morning.

"You'll stay in bed today," Mrs. Sayles said sternly.

"Just today." Livia smiled at Mrs. Sayles. "And thank you."

But five days elapsed before Livia was strong enough to look for a job. During that time Bruce telephoned twice and came to the door once. But Mrs. Sayles, true to her promise, said:

"I don't know where she is."

"Did he have a girl—a beautiful girl with him?" Livia asked like a spaniel.

"No, he was alone. Why don't you make up with him?" Mrs. Sayles said. She suspected a lovers' quarrel. Livia had shortened her ear to Bruce's marriage. To put this into words was more than she could bring herself to do. She could barely admit it to herself.

Vera visited her and had joyful news. She was going to have a baby.

"How is Bruce?" Vera said suddenly.

At first Livia lied: "He's fine." But Vera had watched Livia's moods all her life.

"What is it, darling? She sat on the bed beside her.

"Hey, you'll get my cold." But Livia clung to her.

"What is it? Bruce?"

After a short pause, Livia said: "Yes—Bruce." Then, "He's married." Vera's face expressed dismay and fear. Then she said, Livia said bitterly.

"But he loved you!"

"Yeah?" There was silence between them, then Livia said: "I suppose it was my fault. I behaved like a heel." And she told her sister of her attempts and failure to break into the movies. "But that's all over now. I'm sane again."

To change the painful subject, Livia said:

"How is George?"

Vera sighed. "He'll land in trouble one of these days. I know it. Yesterday a man came and asked lots of questions about George. He asked who was financing the bookmaking—something—and George soled her.

"George is smart; he can take care of himself." Her sister's worries made her forget her own.

Hoyd returned with her health. "I know there's a place for me somewhere in this city," she told Vera sighed. "It'll land in trouble but she was good-looking and had a good figure. She could model clothes, and dressed her pale cheeks with rouge and wore a becoming street turban, and left Hollywood House determined to have a job before nightfall.

She called at a big department store on Wilshire Boulevard.

The brisk, well-groomed, middle-aged woman interrupted Livia's attempt at easeful conversation.

"We do not hire the models in this department," she told her with detached kindness. Livia was self-conscious as she left the department. Did they all know she was after a job? She envied them their smug conviction of belonging.

She had tried the agency of employment — a man, thin and with an air of superiority, had taken Livia's name and address, also the fact that she was without modelling experience, and promised to let her know should the store require her services.

Livia tried three other big stores with the same procedure and refusal. They promised to inform her "when we have a vacancy."

The next day was Sunday. Most of the persons living in Hollywood House worked in pictures, and on Sunday morning the rasping alarm clocks were silent, and they could sleep late. It was one of those deceptively warm spring days common to Los Angeles when the sun is bright and the foliage vividly green, and you think you do not require a coat—until you suffer.

Liberals Drawing New Platform Says Newspaper

Quebec, Feb. 5 — (CP)—L'Action Catholique said in a newspaper story Saturday that Prime Minister Mackenzie King, according to Quebec Liberal sources, had drawn up a new platform which included the naming of a Canadian as Governor-General and the enforcement of Canada in the Pan-American Union.

The story gave as its source "a prominent member of the Quebec Liberal party," and added: "This near future will tell whether the forecast of this Liberal leader of Quebec is to be confirmed."

Mr. King's program, says L'Action Catholique, is reported to include "nothing more than the following points:

"Nomination of a Canadian Governor-General (Gen. Georges P. Vanier, at present Canadian Minister to France, to begin with);

"Adoption of an authentically Canadian flag;

"Adoption of a Canadian Nationality;

"Abolition of appeals to the Privy Council;

"Canadian Union and, to cap the story, the independence of Canada.

"The story said also that the Prime Minister was allegedly planning to oust "the notoriously Imperialistic" members of his cabinet and replace them with ministers with "a mentality genuinely Canadian."

"These are startling proposals," the story was continued. "Our informant even said before giving us his information:

Rockets Thrown Into Rear Areas Of U.S. Armies

By LEWIS HAWKINS
(AP War Correspondent)

At the Belgian-German Frontier, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Germans started throwing long-range rockets into rear areas of the United States 3rd Army front recently.

The effects of this harassing fire are not being disclosed, but it can be said the rockets have not been particularly destructive or deadly so far.

The projectiles, presumably being fired at a range of about 25 miles, may well be the same type of Nebelwerfer rocket artillery brought into action in the last few weeks against the United States 1st and 9th armies. They are not particularly heavy and probably are in about the same category as an eight-inch shell.

The Beverlywerfer is a six-barreled projector firing six-inch rockets weighing about 76 pounds each and carrying 5½ pounds of TNT in the warhead. The rockets, not very accurate, are variously called "screaming meemies" and "moaning minnies."

Much more destructive but even less accurate are the Wurfkoerper Rocket, many of which were seized intact at an enemy ammunition dump by the 90th Division. The Wurfkoerper Rocket prompted some reports of a new silent secret weapon at the start of the German offensive. Ordnance experts, however, said that all rockets were silent during the final stages of flight.

These rockets, fired from the crates in which they are shipped, are about five feet long and have a payload of about three feet in length and 10 inches in diameter. They carry about 110 pounds of explosive.

Hunter Discovers Rare "Snow Bug"

A hunter, in quest of a wary rabbit, came upon a startling discovery. He found a number of small, long-legged insects walking over the snow. First he thought them to be animated particles of snow, but on closer examination he found that they possessed six legs, a body and a small head. He placed a few of them in a piece of paper and stuffed them into the pocket of his hunting jacket.

The following day he brought the insects to the Royal Ontario Museum. Here he learned, from the insect specialists, that he had found a rather rare kind of crane-fly and that little is known about the life history of this cold-loving insect. They appear as wingless, adult flies in the coldest months of the year, but what happens to them when the warmer weather arrives no one seems to know. Incidentally, the insects were seized by the time they reached the Museum. Apparently this peculiar little "snow bug" can't tolerate heat.

COULDN'T SLEEP COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to anxious doves to a real night's rest, and awake feeling refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was bothered by feeling sight-tiredness, lazi-ness — never comfortable. Hall works days while tired-tired feeling keeps me tired at night when they needed rest. "Try Dodd's Kidney Pills," they said a friend. "It may be your trouble." I'm glad I followed his advice as now I'm sleeping like a log — thanks to

U.S. Troops Slash 2nd Concrete Belt Of Nazi Defences

Allies Advance 5 Miles, Cave in S. Alsace Pocket

BY JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 6. (AP)—Infantry of the United States 1st Army slashed into the first concrete belt of German fortifications today to within 1,500 yards of Gemund and 1,000 yards of Schleiden, last bastion downs of the Siegfried Line.

Just to the north, the 9th Division drove through the west wall fortifications to within 1,500 yards of Schmidt, north of the network of dams controlling headwaters of the Roer River. Two of the five dams have been captured.

The 3rd Army, fighting seven miles deep in Germany, captured the Siegfried Line village of Habscheid, six miles southeast of the farthest communication centre of Prum, Germans however fell back into Brandscheid, where the 3rd Army had driven in clear through the Siegfried Line.

The 2nd Division and the 9th Division entered the outskirts Gemund and Schleden, both towns of about 2,500.

On the United States 3rd Army front to the south, however, grim resolute Germans burst back into the fortified village of Brandscheid where Lt.-Gen. George Patton's troops had broken clear through the Siegfried Line late yesterday. Heavy fighting ensued and the issue was still in doubt.

3rd Army Advances on 8-Mile Front

Elsewhere, troops of the 3rd Army advanced 1 1-4 miles along an eight-mile front southeast of Habscheid, seven miles southwest of Prum, and Schlausmuhle, six miles west. At other points the 3rd Army was seven miles inside Germany and just over three from Prum, where a spiderweb of rails and roads serves the German front.

Patrol activity was reported from the 1st Canadian Army front in Holland as well as from the British 2nd Army front.

Late front dispatches disclosed that Patton's 3rd Army forces had reached as deep as seven miles inside Germany. Infantry who went through the Siegfried Line backed it in the dense Schnee Eifel Forest.

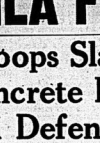
Permanent Defence 1 1/2 Miles Deep

They found the permanent fortifications about 1 1/2 miles deep.

Supreme headquarters said the 1st Army's 9th Division was well into the last main zone of double Siegfried Line defences south of Monschau. Previously a front dispatch had reported a new penetration.

The 2nd Division, just south of the 9th, was fighting inside the last one-to-two-mile wide Siegfried defence zone. It was three-fourths of a mile from Schleiden and two miles from Gemund, vital road and munication centres southeast of Aachen about 26 miles from the Rhine.

After closing the trap in southern Alsace and forcing the Germans from the Vosges mountains, French and American units hacked out against larger numbers of the enemy backed against the Rhine river.



South of Strasbourg, four American divisions and the French 1st Army widened to five miles their cut-off corridor which split the Colmar pocket between the Ill rifle and the Vosges foothills, where German rear-guards were hemmed in by a double line which were caving in the pocket with gains of up to five miles a day.

East of the cutoff, the road between captured Neuf-Brisach on the Rhine railroad bridge was cut and German troops were boxed along the Rhine back to the south with only pontoon bridges and boats for their escape. A dozen or more Alsatian towns were taken.

With Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley back in command of the United States 1st and 3rd Armies in his 12th Army group, the supreme gained steady pressure to the central sections of the west wall fortifications.

Gain Centred on 7 of 5 Dams

The 1st Army already has won control of two of the five dams controlling levels on the Roer, a barrley stream at the edge of the Cologne plain, and a line of small miles southwest of the three remaining dams was being strongly engaged in heavy fighting on the narrow Gulf river to the Heilenthal area. The 9th Division captured

Present Liquor Permits for Use For Next Year

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Liquor permits issued under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario today warned liquor permit holders not to destroy their current liquor permits which would normally expire March 31. He said these permits would be used again for the 12-month period ending March 31, 1946.

Mr. Webster said new books would be issued in order to save the province $90,000 printing costs. Permit holders will be issued a sticker to insert in 1944 books, when reserving their permits for said. These stickers, at the cost of one dollar, will authorize liquor purchases between April 1 .

Those who have not purchased permits in 1944 or before will be issued with an old book with sticker attached, he said.

high ground near Scheuren, which overlooks Schleiden, at the extreme eastern fringe of the double Siegfried Line.

The Germans pulling back their halted defence forces into an arc between Schleiden and Gemund, also at the eastern edge of the Siegfried fortifications, for a last attempt to keep the 1st Army from breaking out of the Roer dam box chain and bursting into the open toward the Rhine 20 miles northeast. The Americans fought within 14 miles of Euskirchen, a major traffic centre.

Belleville Pilot Brings Plane Home Minus Engine and Every Tank Holed

With RCAF Bomber Group in Britain— Signals leader of the Moose Squadron under operational operational flying, F-L. N. McConnachie, D.F.C., recently finished his second tour.

The six-foot-two-inch redhead from Calgary flew a first tour different in many ways to his second. He was a straight navigator in those days, and his place or business was the front turret of an RAF Wellington. The time was the second Libyan campaign. The work consisted mostly of strafing Rommel's tanks, motor transport and troops.

Between tours McConnachie remustered to Wireless air gunner and left North Africa's torrid sands and his RAF squadron for the damp mists of England and the Moose Squadron. Instead of flying a long wave hatch behind a team of machine guns, he found himself fiddling amid a mass of instruments deep in the innards of a big Canadian-built Lancaster.

The second tour proved even more exciting than the first. A dozen Luftwaffe fighters saw to that on

GARFIELD CASE, CONSERVATIVE, WINS IN G. NORTH

Possibility House May Be Dissolved Before He Can Take Seat In Parliament

Owen Sound, Feb. 6 (CP)—The Grey North federal constituency, which boasts a national platform for stormy arguments over the Liberal government's domestic policies, fell to the Progressive Conservatives in yesterday's by-election. The result immediately opened new speculation over a Dominion general election and dissolution of parliament.

Garfield Case, 43-year-old insurance man and former mayor of Owen Sound, scored a decisive victory for his opposition party over Defence Minister McNaughton, LL.D., and A. Earl Godfrey, retired Air Vice-Marshal and C.O.P. candidate.

Mr. Case, whose campaign featured a demand for the government's policies of partial conscription and reinforcements for the Canadian army overseas, had a majority of 1,236 over Godfrey, 4,711; McNaughton, 3,475. Case, who then ran as a National Government candidate, polled 6,099; Godfrey 3,136.

Liberal Vote in 1940

In the 1940 general election, Grey North was won by W. E. Tolford, Liberal, whose resignation because of ill-health paved the way for the by-election. He won by pluralities of 1,707 and 5,104 in a three-cornered contest. The vote in 1940 stood, 7,538; Y. C. Porteous, National Government candidate; Tolford, Lib.,

DRIVES CAR INTO TRUCK TO AVOID HITTING CHILD

Swerving his car to avoid striking a child who ran, tumbling across West Bridge St., Orland W. Mastin, 14½ Portia Pl., crashed his motor car into a parked truck Monday. Fortunately no person was injured and the damage resulting was not extensive. The ignition of the automobile was damaged to some extent, but as the driver suggested, it was fortunate the child was not struck.

THIEF ACTS QUICKLY IN STEALING CAR

Apparently it isn't good practice to even leave your automobile unlocked for a minute, at least, W. D. McIlveen, 32 College St., has definite proof of that today. Last evening Mr. McIlveen parked his car on North Front St. while he hastened into a friend's home to pick up a parcel. He left the ignition keys in the car. When he returned a moment later the vehicle was gone. "I only walked into the house, delivered the parcel and returned to find my car gone," Mr. McIlveen reported to police.

"I am hope you are the same," the note read. "I received your letter and was sure glad to hear from you. I also received your parcel. I am in Japan working every day and in good health."

SENDING LIGHTER FLUID DANGEROUS

Despite the fact that overseas soldiers may be in need of cigarette lighter fluid or matches, including these articles in parcels being sent to service personnel may result in many soldiers never receiving mail and letters by loved ones.

Officials of the postal department have stated that these articles frequently are the cause of fire in postal sorting quarters or in ships holds with the result that mail is damaged or lost altogether.

It is universally appreciated that receiving of mail from home is rated the highest among morale builders for troops overseas and no thinking Canadian will be willingly be responsible for lessening the flow of mail through inclusion of inflammable materials in parcels for overseas shipment.

SEVEN ARRESTED FOR INTOXICATION

Just what the occasion happened to be is somewhat of a puzzle to police, but something happened one evening was an occasion of liquid celebration as no less than seven celebrators were arrested for intoxication in Belleville. And this includes a woman, who refused to leave a city bus at the conclusion of a regular run Three men, who had consumed freely, but not well, were apprehended in a downtown restaurant, while engaged in fisticuffs. They also were charged with intoxication. The remaining three were apprehended singly after showing outward signs of having imbibed too freely of bottled refreshments. Those taking out the cafe disturbance will appear on charges of drunkenness. The woman, who refused to leave the bus, was charged with disorderly conduct, police officials revealed today.

FRANK P. CLARKE GIVEN NEW POST

Returned veteran from the fighting in Italy and formerly employed in the Belleville office of the Department of National Revenue, Mr. Frank P. Clarke, of Toronto, has been transferred to the Income Tax Division. He began his new duties with the Income Tax Office in Belleville on February 1st. He was with the Income Tax Division from Sept. 8th., 1944, until Jan. 31st of this year.

CASH DONATIONS TO WRONG ADDRESS

Change of service club executive officers sometimes causes confusion among the rank of members formerly acting in an official capacity with organizations outside of town residents continuing to send their cash donations to the former service club.

This is especially true of the local Kinsmen club with cash donations for the past three year being forwarded to the former, Mr. Harry Knott. This year Mr. Frank Laing is Kinsmen treasurer, but cash donations to the club's cigarette fund and other funds for British aid are still being forwarded to the previous treasurer.

Kinsmen officials wishing to help the various Kinsmen projects along are requested to send the donations asked to address communications to Box 1750, c/o Stephens-Adamson, Box 367, Belleville.

POLICE COURT

Harry Starr, R. R.#No. 8 Belleville, who was arrested in Belleville last week on a charge of stealing ten cents from a Kinsmen Club Poppy Day parade, Post Office today was committed to the Ontario Mental Hospital for observation.

After moving for the committal, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan asked for the dismissal of the theft charge due to the circumstances of commitment. Magistrate T. R. Wills consented to the dismissal after reviewing the medical certificates presented to the court.

Case Further Remanded.

Charged with breaking, entering and the theft of a rifle and shells, 20-year-old Archie Navin of Napanee, had his case further remanded and is being held in custody.

Charged With Forgery.

Roland McGrath, 18, of Belleville, appeared on a charge of forging a cheque, the property of his employer, C. R. Clapp, and at the request of the prosecution the case was enlarged for one week with McGrath being allowed bail on his own recognition.

Non-Support Charge.

A charge of non-support was read against Harold Allan, Belleville. "If the court will grant a week's enlargement I will endeavor to work out a solution to this problem in the meantime," suggested Mr. E. E. Pollwell, local barrister, who had been engaged by the defendant.

The names of eleven persons charged with intoxication were read from the court records, this including two women, all of whom had either pleaded guilty before the proceedings opened or did in court today to pay the conventional ten and costs.

Public Dumbfounded by Quickness Of Election Results in Grey North

One of the articles of war is the element of surprise.

And this element entered largely into the picture of the Grey North by-election Monday night when Conservative Garfield Case was returned victor over Colonel G. O. L. McNaughton, and Earle Godfrey, leader of the political faction minded of this city was concerned.

Exactly one hour and fifty-seven minutes after the polls closed at 6 p.m. the telephone rang announcing the election of Mr. Case.

It was the first lively stir of the time that caught the political faithful of this district, which is accustomed to waiting from three to four hours for anything like definite news of an election, left at the post, so to speak.

Many Were Incredulous.

As a matter of fact, a number of the telephone "informers" of this newspaper couldn't believe their ears when some of the editorial staff told them complete results at a time when they expected at the most an early trend of the voting.

Those who like their election fare served up in bulletin platters at intervals, instead of all at once, lay it at one gulp at a time when they think it is being gauged "who is kidding?" when told a few minutes after they expected election night that "war drums throbbed no longer" in this riding as he clinked up the receiver.

Lasted as a result, many who preferred to wait until what they thought was the proper time, when the votes would be tabulated from their figures and decided who was who, were disappointed. It was as far as telephone news was concerned. The first flash from the editorial staff called it a day, and went out to pay or collect their bets.

Good Organization.

It seemed only a few minutes after six o'clock had tolled, marking the closing of the North Grey polls, that press wires began to hum with the news of the election.

Repetition of returns from the various sections of the constituency to tabulation centres and thence to the waiting public on local radio, is a feather in the organization cap of those who ran the election in the Western Ontario constituency.

Wires speeded up in a consistent flow of figures and by seven o'clock or shortly after, Mr. Case definitely proved to be a definite trend of the election returns available to the public. By 7.57 p.m., 104 of the 127 polls in the constituency had returned final figures and the election had been conceded to Mr. Phones.

No wonder, then that the faithful of all three political parties in this city were figuratively stunned when they received final returns at their first turn at the telephone dials.

Much Surprise.

And their surprise was reflected in quick gasps of unbelief, elation or disappointment, all depending on which party horse they were backing.

For instance one of the early callers asked: "What time do you expect returns from the North Grey election?"

"It's all over," he was informed.

"It's what?" the other end of the line gasped.

"It's all over," a reporter told the transmitter, "Case is elected."

"The hell he is. He couldn't be," came a subdued voice.

"But he is."

"Well, I'll be d.....r."

A number of Liberals, who apparently hadn't been following the election closely, called up after a few weeks, wanted to know to which party Mr. Case belonged.

"Hmmm, Conservative, eh? Well, that's bad enough."

A local journalist voice chuckled through the receiver when told of the result.

Another Case for Hing.

"Another troublesome case for Mr. King to have on his hands," was his query as he clicked up the receiver.

And believe it or not, a lady who was told of the Conservative victory wanted to know where Mr. King finished in the fight.

Several apparently staunch followers of Mr. Mackenzie King refused repeat figures of the final returns. One who told there were no flies polls to be heard from proved an outstanding optimist when he said, "Oh, well, we've got a chance yet."

An excited lady fairly shouted over the phone that she was a nurse at the Civic Hospital in Toronto and left Belleville three or four days ago, and was dying to hear the result. When told, the receiver gave forth strange sounds that resembled to some extent the hydraulic hissing of a cooler over a radio set, and which ended in a squeak of delight, and thanks.

Other voices registered keen disappointment. Some did not speak when informed of the final figures, and silently cradled the receiver.

A good percentage of the calls was received from members of the fair sex.

At usual, members of the switchboard staff of the Bell Telephone Company here are sensitive to service to and from the editorial room of this paper.

Two Napanee Army Officers Awarded the Military Cross

Two Napanee Canadian Army officers serving overseas, Captain William F. Sharon, 30, and Lieut. Gordon W. MacGregor, 24, have been awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in action according to an announcement made this morning by the Department of National Defence at Ottawa. The announcement indicated 81 awards had been made, including 3 bars, to the Military Cross, three D.C.M.'s and 41 Military Medals.

According to the citations accompanying the awards, Captain Sharon, now acting major, was in command of a Canadian Canadian Engineer field squadron which was ordered to construct a bailey bridge across the Savio river, three miles south of Bruges, Belgium, last Sept. 9th.

"Major Sharon", the citation continued, "was on the site and under his direction work proceeded until the site was no longer tenable because of the heavy and accurate enemy fire from houses on the area."

Two days later under intense enemy mortar fire and artillery fire, a 90-foot bridge was completed which "has enabled us now to be in final to successfully expand the Allied bridgehead on the approaches to the city" operation Major Sharon remained on the site, his persistence and determined initiative, in conjunction with the example, and his personal courage being responsible for the completion of the bridge.

Lieut. MacGregor received his award for action in the Falaise area last August when his 17-pounder troop was deployed and engaged targets, including Tiger tanks, as his troop hung on for three days frustrating enemy attempts to break out of the Falaise pocket. One tank and 19 vehicles were destroyed, and ammunition dump was blown up and airps number of the enemy killed, wounded or forced to surrender.

"The exemplary achievement of this troop was due to Lieut. MacGregor's great coolness and gallantry," the citation indicated. "The troop undoubtedly contributed materially to the sealing of the Falaise pocket and prevented large numbers of the enemy and their equipment from escaping—a result due to the fine leadership and bravery of this officer."

Opportunities in Salesmanship Await Veterans in Post-War Period

Visualizing a job for each and every returned man as result of the general mobilization activity ever to be enjoyed by Canadian industry coupled with the heaviest consumer demand backed up by cash and by 1946, Mr. Deacon, of Deacon Brothers Ltd., told Kinsmen Club members Monday evening that a job in selling salesmanship only was needed to give full employment in the post-war period. "A tremendous opportunity in selling awaited veterans returning from overseas, according to the speaker who pointed out that since the beginning of the war industry had lost the art of salesmanship because of a ready market for capacity production.

Although he saw a big opportunity in selling for returned veterans, Mr. Deacon stated that this did not necessarily mean an answer to all problems as boys from overseas would have to undergo a readjustment to adapt themselves to the personal problems of selling here that members of a service club, such as the Kinsmen, could do a yeoman service.

Will Need Assistance.

"The biggest problem in the mind of the overseas soldier is whether he can get a job and whether he can adjust himself to again fit into the groove of a peacetime occupation," stated Mr. Deacon. "When they return it is all over. They step off the train and say you are glad to see them. But we must help them. They will appreciate your assistance in getting rehabilitated back into civilian life."

The speaker told of his administration for the Kinsmen Club, indicating that it takes a real effort to show a record such as has been made by the local club in the ten years of its existence. Their gym clinic work, their cigarette fund and Milk for British Fund were the story of sister district clubs, he said.

Knowledge Improves Manufacture.

In conclusion, Mr. Deacon told of conditions entering into the planning and manufacture of protective clothing for personnel of the armed services, indicating that varying temperatures and atmospheric conditions call for different types of clothing. It had been a difficult job but the knowledge gained by wartime experience would be of great benifit in clothing manufacture in the post-war period.

Several staff members of Deacon Brothers were present with Kinsmen dinner meeting, it being a meeting at which the executive to have industrial plant personnel visit their club during meetings to further acquaint them with the work being done by Kinsmen. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Harry Knott, with club appreciation being expressed by Kin Frank Laing.

President Harry Rollins was in the chair, while Art Cruft acted as song leader and Bill Bell as fine collector. Bill Navin substituted for Phil Huddleston at the piano.

Post-war Program For France Set Out By Gen. De Gaulle

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP) — General Charles De Gaulle, setting forth a three-point post-war program for the preservation of peace in Europe, said Monday night that France would not be bound by any inter-Allied decisions unless she had a voice in framing them.

In a radio broadcast which coincided with conferences of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin, may even now be in conference, the chief of the French provisional government demanded:

1. Occupation of the entire length of the Rhine River—the traditional natural barrier between France and Germany.

2. Separation of the river's western banks and the Ruhr industrial area from the rest of Germany.

3. Assurance of independence for the smaller countries of Europe.

Gen. De Gaulle predicted French troops gradually would become the predominant element in the occupation of Germany and said that the Allies had "shown great comprehension" of the French request for sole occupation of the Rhineland.

Outlining these aims as essentials, he asked assurance for the independence of Poland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, and the Balkan States, "in friendship with" the nations which will have to carry the principal burden of maintaining the peace of Europe."

Omitting Spain from his list of neighbor countries, Gen. De Gaulle said France intends to seek mutual security and economic pacts with Belgium, Luxembourg and Holland and, in time, to resume pact relations with "renovated Italy."

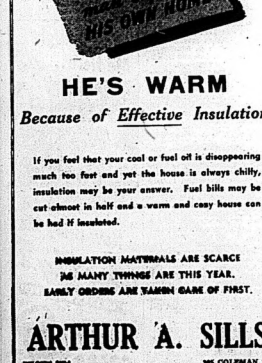
After the war France will be ready to negotiate for a world peace organization, he added.

"This organization will include the United States of America at its head and will promise to each state a supreme guarantee of its life and development in human society."

Billie Hughes Meets Joe Louis In Winnipeg

Champions of the squared circle of yesteryear and the present day met in a Winnipeg ring the other day—but there were no blows exchanged. They shook hands, posed for photographers . . . and smilingly went their way.

One was the dusky Joe Louis, undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, immaculate in his uniform of a sergeant of the United States army, and the other Billie Hughes, former lightweight champion of Canada, decades ago.



The meeting took place during the International Inter-Service Boxing Show held in the Winnipeg Civic Auditorium last month, at which Joe was a guest referee with Billie handling other ring assignments.

Billie Hughes, who gained fame years ago not only as a boxer and trainer of the famous Queen's University and Winnipeg Blue Bomber champion football squads, is well known in Belleville and resided here for several years. During his leisure here as a representative of a well known brewery firm, Billie assisted in the training of local boxers and athletic squads.

His den, lined with pictorial souvenirs of his service to King Sport was visited by many athletic and other sport enthusiasts of the city. Billie left Belleville some time ago to reside in his native Winnipeg.

Post-election Statements

Liberal

DEFENCE MINISTER McNAUGHTON

Owen Sound, Feb. 6 —(CP) — Defence Minister McNaughton, in a broadcast last night shortly after the defeat in Grey North by-election was ascertained, said that the "forces of Tory reaction have won the first skirmish in the great battle which must now be joined."

The stirring broadcast over the Owen Sound radio station read:—

"Tonight I speak to you briefly from North Grey where for the moment the forces of Tory reaction have won the first skirmish in the great battle which must now be joined.

"That battle is to decide the future of Canada for a long time to come. It is to decide whether our young men and women will have a proper opportunity to grow up in freedom of conscience, of faith and of expression — to have their lives in happiness and abundance or whether they are to come under the bondage of a completely uncongenial dictatorship which inaugurates under the false front of a Progressive label.

"We have fought this election campaign. We have been fair and square in every respect. We have done our best.

"We do not yet know the full reasons for today's results but you may be sure that they will be most completely looked into and guarded against in future.

"We have had a lesson. We are not likely to be reminded in that event that in the final count we will win through.

"I thank all the workers in the cause most sincerely for the great support given to me and mine.

"I regret that duties at the Defence Headquarters in Ottawa have kept me away from them for many days. I ask that all our friends be of good courage for the future. I ask that they carry on.

"Above all I have given my loyalty and devotion to the present Minister, Prime Minister and leader in the great cause for which the Liberal party stands. I will fight on and lead in the end our cause will triumph."

PRIME MINISTER KING

Ottawa, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Text of statement on the result of the Grey North by-election follows:

The result of the by-election in Grey North raises immediately the question as to whether or not any useful purpose can be served by having another session of parliament before a general election.

The constituency of Grey North was opened by the government in the expectation that, in the circumstances, no opposition would be offered to the minister and a subsequent session of parliament before a general election would thereby be assured.

It was obvious from the outset that the Minister of National Defence could not give his full attention to a political campaign and, at the same time, discharge his heavy war-time responsibilities. The returns make it apparent that had Gen. McNaughton's time in the constituency not been so limited, he would have been elected.

The returns also make clear that one cause of the success of the Progressive Conservative candidate was the splitting of the vote of those who are opposed to reactionary forces.

As everyone is aware, I have all along sought to avoid a general election while our men are fighting at the front.

The by-election has, however, raised the question whether by their attitudes in the present campaign, the parties which have offered opposition to the government in the by-election have not created and fostered the very circumstance which make a general election inevitable, and this at what may well prove to be the most critical of all stages of the war.

To this aspect of the situation, the government will give immediate and close attention.

FIRST COMES WRAPPER CONTENTS FOLLOW

London, Ont., Feb. 6. (CP) — Mrs. O. Meadows was a trifle upset last week when, of a long-awaited parcel of souvenirs from her soldier husband in Italy, only the outer wrapping arrived. She complained to the post office, and a few days later the missing box arrived, its contents intact.

THRIFTY'S FAT PLASTIC PLATES

Petersburg, Ill., Feb. 6 — (AP)— Now turkeys as well as buildings are seating the soy-plastic Illinois license plates. A Menard County farmer reported he caught one of his gobblers gobbling a chunk from his 1945 tag. Stray pups in Springfield and Joliet recently were seen nibbling at plates.

SAYS MEAT SPEAKEASIES EXCEED ONE THOUSAND

New York, Feb. 6 —(AP)— Paul Henkel, president of the Society of Restaurateurs, said yesterday that more than 1,000 "meat speakeasies" were in operation in the city, serving black market beefsteak and roast beef. "You can still get meat in these speakeasies if you tell them John, Joe or Tom sent you," Henkel said.

GARFIELD CASE

Owen Sound, Ont., Feb. 6 —(CP)—Garfield Case, winner in the Grey North by-election, said last night after the results were known that he did not look upon the victory as a personal one, but rather as one for "my people . . . and the boys overseas."

"With this mandate, may I assure you that I will go forward, not in any sense by repayment only those who have supported me, but each and every citizen in this riding and I hope you consider me your representative in his broadest sense," said Mr. Case.

He said he wished to congratulate his opponent—Defence Minister McNaughton, government candidate, and Air Vice Marshal A. E. Godfrey, C.C.F. candidate—for the clean way in which the campaign was fought.

He thanked those who had helped him during the campaign and expressed the hope that he would be able to discharge his responsibility to the entire satisfaction of everyone in the constituency.

Mr. Case, who broadcast the statement over the local radio station, spoke shortly before Air Vice Marshal Godfrey made a similar and thanked those who had supported him and helped him during the campaign.

JOHN BRACKEN

Ottawa, Feb. 6 —(CP)— Text of the statement issued by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National Leader, on the Grey North by-election follows:

The election of Grey North have spoken. Once they are counted, lead to the nation on the plebiscite. Now they have given a mandate only on the manpower issue. Their decision today will be a great encouragement to the men who are so valiantly carrying on overseas.

The results indicate three things: First, that when a government is faced with a crisis in war it should call upon its man-power fairly, not unfairly; Second, that the unity of the nation's sons are called upon to defend us in the days of peace; the provision for standing behind them with reinforcements in a great crusade, not instead; Third, that in a matter where the lives of our youth are at stake, there must be no approach to equality of sacrifice—declaring on military matters must be determined by military needs, not by political preference.

I need not say that I am deeply appreciative of the work of our organization in Grey North and also for the splendid support I endorse in our policy and in our candidate Mr. Case so positively indicated by the electors of that constituency.

C.C.F.

M. J. COLDWELL

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP)—Text of the statement issued by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. National leader, on the result of the Grey North by-election follows (125):

Air Vice-Marshal Earl Godfrey fought a magnificent fight. It was clean and raised the issues the country must face squarely. The (C.C.F.) did not participate in the mud-slinging that featured the closing days of the campaign.

The C.C.F. stands four square for reinforcements for our fighting men but demands, too, that industry and wealth shall serve the nation in the same manner and on the same terms as our men and women serve in war.

We did not win, but our candidate and his workers deserve the thanks of our entire movement for their self-sacrificing effort in the people's cause.

The educational work which they have done in the past few weeks will bear fruit in the days to come.

Grey North was in many respects very ground for our movement, but in such contests the message and the program of the C.C.F. have been brought to thousands of Canadians.

Youngest Member Of the Fighting Carters Home on Furlough

Bandaman Arnold Carter, youngest member of a fighting family of six, who are in the armed services, is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carter, of 52 Purdy St.

The youthful bandaman is a member of the crack Royal Canadian Navy Band, stationed at HMCS Stadacona, "Somewhere on the East Coast."

Four brothers and a brother-in-law of Bandaman Carter are in Canada or on the far-flung fronts where Allied Nations are battling for civilization.

Supply assistant Eric Carter is with the Royal Canadian Navy on board a Canadian warship doing convoy duty somewhere on the North Atlantic.

Sergeant Gordon Carter, a member of the famous British 8th. Army on the Italian front, is still fighting with his unit despite the fact that he has been wounded twice.

Flight Sergeant Clare Carter, an RCAF air gunner is flying with one where in Canada, while Lieutenant Jack Carter is with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and stationed at Hamilton.

2 NCO's Awarded Military Crosses Posthumously

Ottawa, Feb. 6. (CP)—Unusual but not without precedent in Canadian military annals, two non-commissioned officers have been awarded Military Crosses, usually reserved for officers, it was disclosed today when Defence headquarters issued citations covering 81 awards for gallantry in northwest Europe.

R.S.M. Wilbert Pindley McRae, Campbellton, N.B.; and C.S.M. Abram Arbour, 27, Winnipeg, both since killed in action were included in a list of 30 winners of the Military Cross.

McRae was cited for his cool organization work in ensuring reinforcements and supplies reaching a heavily shelled position while Arbour took over from a wounded company commander and assaulted an enemy force killing many and capturing the remainder.

Beside the 30 M.C.'s there were seven Distinguished Service Orders, three Distinguished Conduct Medals and 41 Military Medals.

Cheese Producers Ask Increase in Price

Members of the Ontario Cheese Producers' association in convention at Toronto last week elected W. O. Coon of Elgin, Ont., as their president for the current year, succeeding W. H. Montgomery, Carrying Place. J. L. Ballantyne of Atwood was elected vice president.

A convention through resolution expressed appreciation to the Ontario Government for its subsidy of two cents per pound on all cheese produced in the province during the past four years, and asked that it be continued, and also appealed to the Dominion government for a 2 3-4 cent increase in the basic price of cheese bringing the price to 25 cents the pound.

In Ontario this would mean an increased income of more than two and one half million dollars for producers on the basis of 95 million pounds of cheese produced last year. The resolution asking for an increase in the basic cheese price was also passed in Regina recently at the convention of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

John A. Bell, of Marmora township, was appointed as a director of the association for Hastings county, while Hector Arnold of Campbellford will represent Northumberland, and W. H. Montgomery, Prince Edward county.

C.C.F. Candidate Loses Deposit In By-election

Owen Sound, Feb. 6. (CP)—A. Earl Godfrey, C.C.F. candidate, lost his $200 deposit in the Grey North by-election on the basis of unofficial voting figures.

The Electoral Act provides that when a candidate does not obtain half of the vote polled by the winner the $200 deposited with the Returning Officer when nomination papers are filed, is not returned.

Unofficial figures gave Mr. Godfrey, 2,196 votes. Defence Minister Conservative, the winner, polled 7,238. Mr. Godfrey would have had to have polled 3,619 to avoid losing his deposit. Defence Minister McNaughton's total was 6,099.

SUB FAILS TO RETURN

EVACUATING WOUNDED FROM BURMA FRONT

Canadians are co-operating with British and American Air Ambulance units in India and Burma, relentlessly driving the Japs to destruction. Sometimes attached to Royal Air Force units, they fly their patients in converted bomber planes. Warrant Officer Joe Edwards of Regina, Sask., has a tricky job. He pilots a light (Stinson Sentinel) ambulance plane—landing and taking off from tiny emergency strips on the advanced fighting front. An oblique-wing Stinson Sentinel is shown above with stretcher cases are placed.

WE have the Right to SPEAK...

TO PLAN OUR FUTURE AS WE WILL

WE Canadians are democrats.

Adolf Hitler would never have had a chance in our country. The Fuehrer ranted and roared his way to leadership. His beer-parlour oratory impressed his countrymen . . . they were ready to be swayed, eager to be convinced. Here was a dictator's opportunity.

We Canadians don't do things that way. We don't like being led by the nose. We want to think for ourselves. We want to do things in our own way . . . to plan our future as we will. This is the way we have built Canada into the great nation she is today.

From a primitive land, uninhabited but for a few tribes of Indians, Canada — in a short 100 years — has grown from a terra incognita to one of the greatest trading nations of the world.

This has come to pass through the vision and pioneering spirit of our forefathers, through their determination, enterprise, self-reliance, and the deep-rooted knowledge that only through hard work, intelligently applied, can anything worthwhile be built.

We have made our war effort in the same way, contributing in the struggle of the United Nations to a degree that has amazed everyone — Hitler included.

We are well into our stride in putting this war assignment over, and when Victory comes, we will face the problems of peace with the same determination to do things in our own way.

We have not reached our present place in the scheme of things without mistakes, and we will probably make mistakes in the future. But, as in the past, so in the future, we will profit by our errors . . . building surely and steadily by individual determination and self-reliance to make life a strong and worthwhile thing.

Children and Rinks

Merry shouts of laughter are heard from the school boys and girls of Belleville in the hours after schools close and in the evening on the two rinks which the city council has provided this winter. Parents of the children have been cared for in history. Their clothing can endure the worst rigors of the climate for King Winter and his associate Jack Frost have no terrors for the robust children of today, dressed in the most sensible styles of clothing.

On the rink and in the snow they disport themselves and grow strong, ready to meet nearly every task in an age when the proper kind of food is stressed as of paramount importance.

The providing of such rinks is a tribute to the vision and public spirit of the city council.

Manila

At the time when Berlin is not far from the advanced forces of the Russians, the capital of the Philippines, Manila, is now under control of the American forces. The coincidence of these two events can lend little cheer to the German people and to the Berlin residents especially for the coincidence itself is very suggestive of that destiny of fate which has overtaken the German capital as it has happened to Manila.

The taking of Manila to the Americans is a brilliant comment on the swift advance laid by the brilliant military leader, Gen. MacArthur. It is also a commentary on the weakness of the Japanese war machine. The fall of the Philippines to the Japanese a few years ago was taken by the enemy as a proof of the inevitable defeat that the Japanese plotted to deliver to the United States and British. Now after the intervening years Japan finds she cannot retain the islands for the U. S. advance in Luzon to Manila has been an epoch-making event in the Far East struggle and a symbol of the ultimate doom of the Japanese people now and after Germany's fall.

Berlin can gather no hope in what it sees going on in the Far East. The destiny of superior weapons and power and of spirit of the United Nations has marked both the Japs and the Germans for crushing defeat.

Reading Serves in War

In no war in history has there been such a demand from the keenly interested services for books and all other sorts of reading, newspapers, magazines and letters. The young men of freedom and democracy are keenly interested in their home towns and cities and therefore read home towns and cities and therefore read with avidity every letter from home and family and relatives, every newspaper goes to the front and to all the other establishments where men and women of the services are. This is because the youth of Allied lands are alert youth, who have carried with them to the front and even back to the hospital if they are wounded their keen thirst for fact and knowledge, for romance and for all the interesting things that make up life. They are not like the soldiers of fortune of centuries ago who made a practice of warring anywhere in the world but they are the modern soldiers of democracy, who expect to return and enjoy and take up the life they left behind—the homeland they know and love so well.

That homeland's influence is their guide and friend when they are abroad and so they are eager for the thrills of the heart and imagination which come from reading. For these boys and young men and women are alert and are a part of the world that is at war and of the world on the home front.

So there comes back to the home folk the most powerful appeal for reading of all kinds. Just now the I.O.D.E. of all parts of Canada is at work raising a fund of $300,000 to send books wherever they are needed. It is a big task and a task of love and will therefore succeed.

A similar condition is to be expected in the United States which reports a tremendous increase during the last year of requests from the fighting soldier for "any kind of books." The Council on Books in Wartime has announced a planned production this year of no less than 85,000,000 books to be distributed free of charge to men in the American Armed Services.

Lieut.-Col R. L. Trautman said the other day in New York, "the fighting man's interest in reading books has reached the pitch where he is willing to pay another soldier for the privilege of being next in line to read his book." Production will be speeded up to the point that in July it will be at the rate of 8,000,000 copies.

Boys and girls of the New World nations have a zest for reading and the I.O.D.E. is seeing to it that their desires are met.

Electrons Put to Work

Electrons have been put to work making 24-foot-diameter propellers for American warships and can do the job in one hundred per cent less time than by hand when it took two weeks to make one.

The value of electrons is to control the exact automatically guides two steel-cutting tools over the surface of the propellers cutting both sides simultaneously. A steel finger moves lightly over the surface of the model controlling the motion of the size of the propeller blade. Movements of this travelling finger in turn control the movement of the actual cutting tools so that the propeller is chiselled to the exact shape of the smaller model.

This is an indication how quickly every new discovery of science is speeding up, developing industry and transforming the world.

These tireless impersonal little things, the electrons, are the servants of the scientific enlightenment of the world today and they are a sign of the great reservoir of power than can be harnessed in nature for man. War has used materials for destruction but on the other side the destruction is for the purpose of destroying the destroyer, the Nazis, who would plunge the world into slavery's chains if they could. Under the freedoms of democracy science will advance and save and aid man.

Germans Want a "Miracle"

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

Exhortations are pouring from German radio transmitters these days—exhortations calling for every man who can shoot to rush to the defence of the country and pleading for a "miracle" to stop the on-rushing Russian armies.

The Germans had their crack at Moscow and failed. Now the Russians are using their crack at Berlin, and failure is not indicated. But the principle of turn and turn about was never part of the Nazi creed. The German slogan at the moment is: "They can't do that to us!" That's where they're wrong. The Russians are doing it.

Thoughts are but dreams till their effects be tried.—Shakespeare.

WIFELY DUTY

This curious about the wives
Who help the men and cheer their lives,
Find home is none among the lot
But does what she would rather not
And daily tries the best she can
To hide the blunders of her man.
Still, I would say the saddest dames
Have men who can't remember names.

When he has been as cold as stone
To friend, and kin, he should have known
And said to Santa Claus: "Your face
I'm sure I've seen in many a place,
But at the moment, curse it all!
Your name I simply can't recall,"
She knows she's doomed in moments grim
To be a handy guide to him.

At parties she must whisper low:
"The lady's Mrs. Heavydough!
The man—you must remember him—
He's still my nicest cousin Jim.
My dear, turn off that icy glare.
The woman with the silver hair
Most every other day you meet;
She lives three houses down the street."

Oh, how do bachelors get about
Without a wife to help them out?

There's Elastic and Liquor In New York But No Butter

(By Kay Dillon of The Ottawa Journal Staff)

Visiting New York just for the first time in seven years, I was impressed with the many changes since my former stay in Manhattan. I was a happy visitor, as "many of the problems" the seven-day tourist did not affect me. I stayed with a friend in a smart central apartment, so the hotel situation didn't bother me. But all the large and small hotels, uptown and downtown, huge crowds, or lugage are piled up while the weary traveller roams the town looking for a room to lay his head. The restaurants are all crowded and very expensive, and Coffee Shops are full of the stars.

Cigarettes are a thing of the past, with just the merest chance of getting a package at one of the theatres.

The meat situation for private homes is something else again. I went on a tour of the butcher shops with my friend, and found nothing to buy. She had not seen a chop for a year. Restaurants, hotels and clubs have their priorities, there is nothing left for the householders. The only delicatessants were like Paradise to a Martimer, with all kinds of food, well and prettily arranged, and the prices not too exorbitant.

I had better only once, this in an Italian cafe. Everywhere else a dish of cottage cheese or a spoonful of jam was served with your bread or rolls.

Now the theatres . . . the brightest spot for the tourist. I was able to see a play "cheap" in the week, smart plays with sophisticated lines and pretty and attractive girls. Coming from a city of no theatres, it was a Roman holiday. Such a play as "The Song of Norway" was simply marvellous, with good music and superb ballet and well-done dialogue. With a jolly musical and girl show to follow, the good measure for the "tired business man" or the returned soldier on leave. An illustration leaves nothing to be desired.

The shows are not as well stocked as formerly and prices are high. Stockings are a "find" when you run out of such good quality as our own when we can get them.

Dresses are out of the question, with prices too high and generally inferior to our old clothes. Costume jewelry rates a tax of 20 per cent on the dollar. Shoes are persistent in the search you can obtain the same articles in the downtown stores for one-third the price. In one department hunt I actually discovered rayon panties with elastic in the legs and sizes almost forgotten in Ottawa. What was formerly 98 cents is now a dollar and you are lucky to get them—that is the attitude of the blonde saleslady. Grab it, grab them? Well rather!

A problem is to obtain cleaning tissues. "No tissues" is the cry of the day. Even in the best hotels many a clerk in dirty aprons and grimy cuffs attaches are another aching commodity . . . a little hard to find.

Now for the liquor situation, the problem child of Canada. Every second door is a bar with drinks selling at 70 cents. "Scotch" is available in most bars and in the cocktail lounges hotels and cocktail clubs, but not in the liquor control stores. Gin, however, where one goes to a dreary and cheerless counter for the monthly 26 ounces the New York shops are a thing of beauty and delight. All kinds of bottles of rum, gin, rye, sherry, port and what have you are there to choose from. They actually love to deliver, believe it or not. I have a calendar to prove it.

In one bar, popular with actors, I met the Fourth Estate, where the walls were decorated with crayon drawings, the drinks were 70 cents each, but alas the lowly hamburgers was $1.50. I could not imagine a reporter having that much money after buying a drink, even if the question is another worry. Gone are the days when you could telephone for a "cab" from the nearest stand. Now you stand on the corner and wildly wave your arms, and if you are going the way the cab is going the driver may take you in or he may shrug his shoulders and move on. The food is good, if you are lucky enough to have one, will always do this time of the year, but is a problem. So the lot of the tourist in New York today is not such a happy one.

Last but not least is the weather. I arrived there in the teg end of a mild snowstorm. The streets were filled with slush and mud and everyone was wearing rubbers. Then came the mild to mid-winter. The streets were dry and dusty and everyone was going to us—, then about the middle of the week the streets were clear and the sun shone. Never in all my Ottawa years have I been so cold as during the Christmas week-end in town on Fifth Avenue, except perhaps when on our Fanning Island Place. In the Village the wind whistled like a gale and I longed for the good old-fashioned overstockings.

All three candidates broadcast statements to Grey North, Mr. Case described his victory as "one of the big upsets."

". . . And the boys overseas," and not as a personal triumph," said Mr. Diefenbaker, added the "forces of Tory reaction have won the first skirmish in the battle for which we must now be joined" and added: "that battle is the battle for the soul of Canada for a long time to come". . . . He thanked the Liberal voters for their support and C.C.F. Party workers for their help.

Russell Keane In Two Races

Gen. McNaughton twice held the lead in the early returns but when the results for 30 of the 127 polls became known, Mr. Case forged to the front and steadily increased his margin. His victory was flashed by The Canadian Press less than two hours after the polls closed at six p.m., E.S.T.

The Progressive Conservative candidate led in the returns of the 13 polling divisions in the riding. The single exception was Peterborough Township where Gen. McNaughton was absent. Mr. Godfrey polled in all. In Owen Sound itself the member-elect received 2,635 votes, Mr. Dermot Minister 2,635 and Mr. Godfrey 1,197. In the 39 polls in Grey County, Mr. Case led in eight divisions, Mr. Porteous in four and Mr. Case in one.

Allies Wipe Out Nazi Gains Made Last December

Rome, Feb. 6 — (AP) — Fifth Army troops are now steadily along the Serchio River valley today after virtually wiping out gains made by the Germans last December and taking three towns against light opposition.

The Allied troops occupied Albiano and Castel Vecchio Sunday and recaptured Lama Di Sotio yesterday in an advance on a 19,000-yard front spanning the valley. The Nazis virtually restored the line held before the counter-attack of the American 92nd Division back several miles in December.

Berlin Warns Allies Preparing For Big Drive

London, Feb. 6 — (CP) — The Berlin radio, in a broadcast to German forces in the field, declared today that Gen. Eisenhower has completed his preparations for a new offensive from the Roer River line and that the capture of Cologne appears to be his first major objective.

The broadcast warned that the zero hour for an all-out Allied attack in the west is near.

Berlin indicated the main blow was expected in the Linnick-Duren area, but reported increasing artillery activity on the British Second Army front to the north. German commentators reported that increasing pressure by American forces east of Monschau was designed to pin down German troops and prevent reinforcements from being thrown into the battle farther north to meet a push there.

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Feb. 6 —(CP)— A Junkers 88 with its wheels down for a landing became the eighth enemy aircraft destroyed by Wing Cmdr. Russell Bannock, D.F.C. and Bar, of Edmonton and of Toronto, top Canadian in the destruction of robot bombs with a score of 18½.

He was flying his Mosquito over a German airfield when he saw the Junkers and his gunner, Flt. Sgt. Ingo into the ground for his first kill since taking over command of the City of Saskatoon night intruder squadron.

Wing Cmdr. Bannock's navigator is Flt.-Lt. C. J. Kirkpatrick, D.F.C., of Saskatoon.

FO. J. Hardy of (Power-Line Ave.) Timmins, Ont., parachuted from his flak-damaged Typhoon just south of his Holland airfield and his descent interrupted the chimes of gentlemen, Merry Christmas.

"Their jaws dropped," he chuckled later in his own mess. "I'd get out on that."

FO. Larry Spurr, 22, of Middleton, N.S., was missing two days in Belgium. This is what happened:

His City of Oshawa Squadron Spitfire was shot up by heavy Nazi flak; he crash-landed somewhere in No Man's Land; was almost shot by American soldiers who thought he was a German in disguise; was carried off to celebrate Christmas Eve at a U. S. Army Engineer's mess; and had Christmas dinner at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters, on the way back to his unit.

"My luck was perfect all the way through," he said.

"They were going to introduce me to the Army commander, but I had to go somewhere else so I missed him."

Two squadron commanders—Sqdn. Ldrs. Bill Ormsbee, D.F.C. of Hamilton, Ont., and Gordon Lapp of Medicine Hat, Alta.—have finished their second tours simultaneously in the Canadian fighter wing in Holland.

Australian Letter

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 6—(CP)— Almost all of the eastern half of Australia, embracing South Australia, Victoria, New South Wales and Queensland suffered from an extreme heat wave during the latter part of January.

There have been some drought-relieving rains over a large area but this huge area, with rainfalls of several inches in coastal regions, but they brought valuable relief to farmers and cattle suppliers and ended the worst of the bush fires which broke out during the dry spell.

However, in the far interior of New South Wales and in northern Queensland no worth-while rains have fallen at all. In those areas temperatures have ranged above 100 degrees for many days and there have been hot winds to blow off valuable top soil.

Less Wool: The world now knows that as a result of the drought Australia, which normally exports 100,000,000 bushels of wheat yearly, is faced with the necessity of importing wheat for home requirements. A report just published gives the first indication of the serious effect of the drought on wool production.

This shows that for the first half of the current wool season 11 per cent fewer bales were received in stores than during the corresponding half of the last season, while the average weight was eight pounds a bale less.

In cities and towns residents already are paying the price of the drought in extraordinary shortage and darkness of vegetables.

NIGHT FEEDERS

Few people realize that some of the more common and injurious insect pests found in gardens feed only at night. This explains why in many cases the work of these marauders is plainly visible but the culprits themselves remain undetected. Probably the most common night-feeders are cutworms and garden slugs. Both of these are nocturnal in habit, lying hidden in the soil during the hours of daylight at the base of the plants upon which they have been feeding. To be effective, control measures for such species must be applied in the late evening or after dark.

How CWAC's Dress To Endure Rigors Of Coastal Breezes

Halifax, Feb. 6 —Do not underestimate the freezing power of an Atlantic coast breeze—nor the ability of a "CWAC" to cope with it.. A Canadian Women's Army Corps detachment engaged in coastal defence work is frequently on duty in the open under climatic conditions which, to say the least, are rugged. But O.T. equipment, supplemented by that ready friend of service personnel, the Canadian Red Cross, renders them comfortably immune to the rigors of below zero weather, as their irrepressible spirits and splendid morale testify.

Underneath it all the girls wear "woolies"; not the soft, fine "woolies" that cannot be bought today, but husky, double-knit, four-ply snug looking creations, that add at least an inch to the girth of the wearer. Then comes a turtle neck, double strength khaki sweater, a button-to-the-neck coat sweater is next in line, topped by the regular battle dress of the Canadian Army. Four pair of heavy woolen socks under bulky looking rubber boots is a "must". By this time the slimmest "CWAC" presents a definitely sturdy appearance, but the girls believe in no half measures. After knitted Balaclava helmets under the regulation hats (these down), and woolen gloves under reinforced leather mitts of the last item, a head-to-thigh sheep skin lined windproof coat, with a collar that completely obscures the head. Thus protected, the girls clamber into open trucks which transport them to the scene of duty.

Of course this sounds like an impasse for the most gullible individual but it isn't. One reporter with a wry grin conceded to wear a sheep skin over battle dress, with none of the embellishments which prompted a feeling of keen respect for the C.W.A.C. detachment who will venture forth in that weather —at all!

Onion Shortage in Britain But Certainly Not Here

By Laura C. Pepper
Chief, Consumer Section
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

An onion offered as first prize in a home show, selling at Belgian charity auctions for $300 and up and, coming closer to home, unofficially rationed . . . one to a customer. The absent onion is sorely missed and has a multitude of functions that only Canada at the moment. How the British would envy us!

Making the best use of available foods is plain commonsense in peace time, in wartime it becomes a patriotic duty. There are two aspects to "making best use". When pets to "making best use". When a food is in short supply, it means economy in use, stretching, not shopping around to get more than a fair share. When supplies are abundant it means increasing use and variety.

Now is the time to treat the family to onion soup in the French style, to Hamburg smothered in onions, to serve flavour crisp as a garnish. If cream gravy is a favorite in your house, onion cream gravy is doubly as nice to make a hit. In the testing kitchen of the Dominion Department of Agriculture the home economists "pan" the meat, first, as in the recipe for panned onions given below. The flour is blended with the fat and the onions and the milk added. This gravy is excellent with pork chops or liver, and with sliced hard-cooked eggs added it makes a tasty, quickly prepared supper dish.

Panned Onions.

2 tablespoons drippings
4 cups sliced onions (4 to 6 medium onions)
Salt and pepper to taste.

Melt fat in frying pan or heavy saucepan. Add onions, cover and heat on the burner, and cook slowly until tender, about 15 minutes. Stir occasionally to prevent sticking. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Six servings.

Apple and Onion Casserole.

6 medium onions
6 medium apples
6 slices bacon
3-4 cup tomato juice
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup soft bread crumbs

Peel onions and cut in 1-8 inch slices. Peel, core and slice apples similarly. Cut bacon into small pieces, saute and remove from pan. Pour off all but one tablespoon of the fat. Add crumbs, tossing to coat with fat and brown slightly. Arrange alternate layers of onions, apples and bacon in a greased baking dish. Add salt to tomato juice and pour over other ingredients; top with the browned bread crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F, for 30 minutes. Uncover and cook 15 minutes longer. Six servings.

Onion Soup.

6 medium onions, sliced
2 tablespoons solid-flavored fat
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 quart well-seasoned bouillon
6 slices toast
1-2 cup grated cheese

Cook onions in boiling water to cover for thirty minutes, then rub through a sieve. Melt fat, blend in flour and gradually add the milk, stirring until thickened. Add sieved onions and bouillon. Heating well. Simmer twenty minutes. Place a slice of toast in each soup plate, add soup and sprinkle with grated cheese. Makes about one quart.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A WAR JOB vs. CERTAIN DISASTER

The fact that a job is so easy to find at present would solve many more problems than it does if the persons involved were always ready to welcome a problem's solution. Do you doubt that? Let me quote an example:

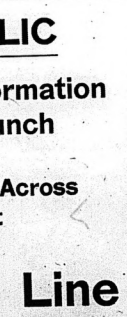
The problem is: Shirk Lenore F., aged 22 years, both of whose parents were recently killed in an accident, go to live with her slightly younger married sister a month ago?

This may not sound like a problem at all, but Lenore writes me:

"I have inherited enough money not to be a burden to my sister and her husband, Steve, who have kindly invited me to share their home. But naturally I cannot forget that I was I whom Steve first came to see and that he still likes me, and to tell the truth I like him in spite of his deserting me. My sister Edna, is said to be prettier than I and I suppose that is how she won Steve over.

"I just did nothing and let him go for I knew plenty of other men, although I didn't care much about having Edna married first. Steve has a war job here and will not go overseas. I will admit that they seem terribly happy together. What do you really think, Miss Fairfax, about my joining that household? I have practically decided to do it. You see I am now all alone in the world."

(Signed) Lenore.



If Lenore is determined to act the part of a war bomb in her sister's happy married life, my advice will scarcely count with her. But there is really no excuse for her doing so, and to accept the hospitality of a man with whom she had at least the beginnings of a romantic affair, promising the while nothing beyond a platonic friendship revive, if the man isn't very steadfast—would be in very bad taste, as well as cruelly unkind to her sister.

At 22, the young woman need be dependent on no one. Let her take a war job, rent an apartment of her own, marry the right man when she finds him and keep away from Edna and Steve. It is possible that she owes them both a grudge and is willing to accept this very dangerous opportunity to retaliate? This I am willing to believe. But I cannot too strongly recommend the war job.

IT WOULD SEEM that pure silks are coming up from South America and also are being imported from Switzerland. A pearl of great price this summer will be the little suit fashioned of rough crepe silk, pure silk. There seem some and they are usually in pastels, with a few browns and blacks, and all simply made, with square boxy jackets.

Young Women's Guild Given Review of Social Credit Govt. in Alta.

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Wm. Harrison, 14 Ferris Street, recently, with a good attendance. A business meeting was conducted during which tentative plans were outlined for an open meeting.

Miss Joy Nichols in charge of the worship period took as her theme "What of the Future?", with some thoughts on beginning a new year based on four prophecies regarding the future from different sources. The service ended with a prayer of sentence for wrong doing and a plea for strength to do the Father's Will.

The topic for study was entitled "Social Credit Review", ably led by Miss Hazel Thompson, who gave a concise review or the theory of Social Credit as espoused by Major Douglas, economist of Pump Tree Court, London. It was interesting to note that the age old credit could not function as such in an agricultural community as that of Alberta where it came to power under the Aberhart regime in 1935. An attempt was made to increase industry and to have an amount of credit to the value of the citizen but the federal government prevented this by not allowing the use of the provincial treasury banks. Mr. Aberhart was a powerful speaker, a keen preacher and evangelist and received the support of the people of Alberta until his death.

In 1940 Mr. Ernest C. Manning was returned to power with 50 out of 57 seats.

Achievements Outlined

Miss Alice Heaman outlined the achievements of the government in Alberta from 1935-43, beginning with the payment of the provincial debt by reducing the interest from 5 per cent to 3 1-2 per cent. Agriculture was aided through distribution of purebred cattle; a health of animals service; broad extension service for dairying; poultry raising; home economics for farm women; and aid for farm mortgages. Industry was helped in various ways and there has been permanent labor legislation. Laws have been passed for consumer cooperatives including home building.

The public health services lead in North with free clinics and medical and surgical care for tuberculosis, all cancer, all poliomyelitis, and all maternity patients; progressive nursing services; and an increase in health units for prevention of ill-health. The school system has advanced until it is a model for some others on this continent. They have made larger school units with better supervision and have raised the teaching standards and rates of pay.

Post-War Plans

Mrs. Coulter gave a paper on the post-war plans of the Alberta government. In her introduction Mrs. Coulter stressed the importance of co-operation and that Christian ideals of brotherhood be remembered in this connection. It is important too that the ground work be done now for the returning men.

Alberta sets forth public control as opposed to private control of interests. They propose a pension equal to a private for three years to each returned man and his dependents, with a home and an opportunity to work at a suitable job; that agriculture be encouraged through interest-free loans; that needed homes be built and shorter working hours be established to assist employment.

During the social hour refreshments were enjoyed.

Navy and pink striped taffeta makes the neat tab and gloves, since this is the type of suit that takes blithely to dashing accessories.

'Swear-Box' Buys Kine-CWACs Mascot Collie

Technically-minded and ever busy are the kine-theodolite operators, especially trained members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

Having tasted the rigors of life as a "Kine-CWAC", one could readily overlook a little language in the "not approved" category, but one particular group of these specialists in Canada, have become their own strictest censors, and will allow no deviation from the straight-and-narrow in their midst.

Flaced conspicuously inside their sleeping quarters is a "swear-box" to which every offender must sacrifice payment suited to the extremity of her language. Proceeds are used for the good of the group in general and the occasional "Irish" temper has proved a lucrative asset to the platoon.

Dividends from the first swear-box clean-out bought Gunner, who waged his way into the hearts of everyone in the unit at the age of six months. Gunner is probably the most spoiled collie this side of Valhalla and is likely to remain so. There's not a girl in the platoon who wouldn't sacrifice her last pair of Gunner improperly fed. He is always starving.

Of course, meeting Gunner at the age of "nearly 2", one can understand his popularity and one feels that the "Kine-CWACs" certainly deserve a mascot. The only problem is—who is responsible for his rehabilitation?

Stockholm, Feb. 6 —(AP)— Gen. Hermann von Hannecken, German military commander in Denmark, has been replaced by Col.-Gen. Circulation of Books From Corby Public Library Shows Small Decrease

Although showing a slight increase in all departments, circulation of books from the Corby Public Library for the month of January, during 1944 showed a decrease as compared with 1943. It was shown in the report submitted by Librarian Mrs. Ethel Bell, to the library board at their annual meeting held Friday evening.

Total circulation of books in all department was 109,410 as compared with 110,000 in 1943.

Use of books among adult readers during the year was 74,502 including 60,616 fiction, as against a circulation of 75,400 during 1943. Boys' and girls' books issued for home use during the year totalled 34,013 as compared with 32,401 during 1943. Circulation last year included 16,144 fiction books and slightly over 7,000 non-fiction books.

Memberships Higher.

Adult book borrowers at the library increased by 336 during the year with memberships for 2,000 December 31st totalling 6,566. Juvenile borrowers totalled 2,821, an increase of 6 over the previous year.

Although as a whole book circulation at the library had held fairly steady in the view of increased memberships it was considered that book borrowings should have been slightly greater and the library board's report recommended that additional books be purchased. Lack of funds was cited as the reason for the decrease in adult reading. The library association in recommends a library having two books per capita whereas the Corby library has only 17,937.

Demand for some of the new books had continued great according to the report with reservations still being made for books published since December, 1943. There was also a steady demand for non-fiction books.

1,333 Books Added

During the past year 321 adult non-fiction books had been purchased as well as 668 fiction books, while 364 books had been purchased for the boys and girls' department. Total number of books purchased during 1944 was 1,333 which expanded an unfit for further use.

Periodical books had been donated to the I.O.D.E. for the Navy, to the Guelph reformatory and to the city jail.

The township library system had been re-organized during the year with Sidney township; not very active during the past three years, joining with 11 schools and Thurlow with 18 schools. Just before the end of the year Tyendinaga formed a library unit and joined with 11 schools participating. The township library system is a co-operative library movement for rural schools organized some six years ago with the local library acting as a central lending centre and also in an advisory capacity.

The financial statement of the local library included in the library's report showed receipts of $8,278 including a grant of $6,000 from the municipality, while on the expenditure side salaries had amounted to $3,900; $675 for light, heat and water and the balance made up for books, periodicals, book repairs and other expenditures.

Civilian Internees At Manila Kept On Starvation Diet

By BARBARA CLEAR
(Canadian Special Correspondent)

Manila, Feb. 6 —(Reuters)—Nine hours ago I was one of 3,700 civilian internees here. Now prison doors were opened when American troops hacked their way with knives through Japanese resistance to rescue us from our internment camp.

I had been interned since Jan. 3, 1942, and for the past five months we had been gradually starving to death. In June, 1943, we were getting 1,500 calories a day—enough to keep a bed-ridden patient barely alive. By October, the Japanese cut down our diet to 1,200 calories. In December another cut was made to less than 1,000 and in January it dropped to 720.

When the Americans landed on Leyte Japanese discipline became more strict and when the Lingayen Gulf landings were made on Luzon they became extremely strict. Doctoring, except internes, were giving death certificates showing cause as malnutrition to the Japanese reminding that must be allowed to join the British Legion, an ex-service-men's society. The Legion decided at a conference here.

Victoria, Feb. 6 —(CP)— Saanich district police today charged Johnny James, 33, on a charge of murdering Clarence Dick, 39, following a fight between the two men on the West Saanich Indian Reserve at nearby Brentwood early Sunday. Officers said Dick died from a knife wound in the heart.

CAN'T JOIN LEGION

London, Feb. 6 —(CP Cable)— Members of Britain's home guard—privates, corporals and sergeants, officers and business who couldn't join the Legion, but who worked in the day of Dunkerque to defend Britain—must not be allowed to join the British Legion, an ex-service-men's society. Brentwood and Legion decided at a conference here.

Berlin Says Tokyo Fears Russia May Enter War vs. Japan

London, Feb. 5 (CP)—The Berlin radio reported today that there was fear in Tokyo that Russia may enter the war against Japan as a result of the Big Three conference now generally believed to be in session.

"Undoubtedly the problem of the common prosecution of the war against Japan is the agenda of the Big Three," wrote the Japanese commentator of the newspaper Asahi as quoted by the German Transocean Agency. "Both Japan and the western powers are setting themselves what is Russia's position regarding the war against Japan now the war against Germany has entered its decisive phase.

"Just as in the war against Germany a decision also must be reached in the war against Japan. For this reason we must keep our attention especially focussed on this question today more than ever before."

Quoting German foreign office circle, Transocean said there were indications that the Big Three conference now was in session and was being held on a warship in the Black Sea or in a Black Sea port. German radio propagandists have stepped up their campaign for backditch resistance.

Kingston RCOC Team Defeats Fast Trenton Squad by 5 to 1 While Mohawks Tie Sixardees

Army Team With Brown and Szabo Too Much for Raymond and Company

Kingston R.C.O.C. "Army" raced to tonight for three last period goals to beat the Trenton "Flyers" 5 to 3 while Deseronto "Mohawks" twice came from behind to battle "Sixardees" to a three-all tie in a service hockey league doubleheader at the Hume Arena Monday night.

Using a big, rugged, fast-skating sextette the Kingston Army spotted Padre Malka's "Flyers" their first and only tally and then sped them for two goals in the first period and added a trio more in the last stanza with a scoreless middle session as the Flyers were kept off the scoring sheet for the last 52 minutes of the game.

Headed by Adam Brown, former Detroit Red Wing star in the N.H.L., the Army team skated too fast for the Flyers to race back and give Goalie Laing plenty of protection with a five-man defence, although Laing stood out with a sensational nights work in the nets as he seemed to repeatedly rise to dizzy heights between the Army goal posts.

Eleventh hour, it was Szabo, speedy Army wing, who walked off with the scoring honors of the night, notching three goals, two of which were of the solo effort of the most thrilling nature.

Exhibition Nature

As it was an exhibition game the squads resorted to some trading and fast passing to delight the fans with fast skating and lightning-like combination plays that gave both goal keepers a busy night in front of the nettes. Trenton scored first, and it was also their lone counter of the game, when Paul Raymond raced in fast-off left wing to drive in Ginastar bliss line pass following which play drove hard both ways with the Army carrying more two-way hockey to harass the Flyers on their offensive attacks. Szabo evened the count by beating Robertson at close range on a pass from Crowe and St. Pierre made it two for the visiting Army by whipping the rubber past Robertson on Desbiens' pass.

Streak in Face

Laing was struck in the face and sustained a nasty injury on the first play in the middle session, but following medical aid returned to his post to give a sterling exhibition of goal tending and blank the Flyers by the remainder of the match, as the middle session went scoreless.

Early in the last period Szabo broke away and in a neat stick-handling effort raced through the Flyers' defence to beat Robertson cleanly before he set up another goal for Brown and then Szabo gave the fans another thrill by driving home his third counter while being tripped and completely off balance.

After the game representatives of the Fire Marshal's Department learned that smoking no longer would be permitted in the Hume Arena during future hockey games.

Battled to Draw

In the opening RCAF Quinte service league game Sixardees and the Mohawks battled to a 3-3 draw. Bill Pfaff opened the scoring for the Sixardees to register the only goal in the initial stanza with McInnis getting the assist. McInnis made it two for Sixardees early in the middle session on a three-way combination play with Pfaff and Horton while Cummins whipped home Mc-Lellan's pass for the Mohawks' score and Lalonde set up the equalizer for Burley. In the last period Horton put Sixardee one up, but Lalonde's solo drive with a backhand shot evened matters once again and that ended a game that made no difference in the league standing.

The battle for first place in the Quinte service League will be played-at a the Hume Arena on Wednesday night when the Mountain View "Bombers" and Trenton "Flyers" meet in their final game before the league play-offs move in next week. At present Trenton is trailing by a point and must beat P/L Jimmie McCha's Bombers to create a tie for first place, the Bombers boast of a new defenceman . . . by the name of Bevins, they announced, after practice at noon today.

Richard, Lach Lengthen Lead In Scoring Race

Montreal, Feb. 6—(CP)—Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens lengthened their lead over the National Hockey League scoring race last week, official league figures showed today, while Boston's Bill Cowley crowded The Blake of Canadiens out of second place.

Richard picked up four points during the week, to move into a tie with line-mate Lach, who added two to his total. Blake got 50 points for the week put him one up on Cowley, 31 and Blake 30. Syd Howe of Detroit holds fifth place with 42 points, five ahead of team-mate Doug Bentley and Ted Kennedy of Toronto Leafs.

Richard has a goal mark to 29, four off the modern league record, and one to go in the goal shoot of his nearest competitor. Lach leads in assists with 41, eight off the league mark and 10 ahead of his closest pursuer, Cowley.

Gus Bodnar of Xgan kept a firm hold on bad man honors with 58 minutes in majors and minors. His closest competition came from Bob Dill of Brooklyn with 45 minutes, misconduct as well.

BIG LEAGUE TEAM GOES TO PACIFIC

By ALVA DOPKING

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 6 —(AP)— The world's all-big league baseball squad, as a prelude to its tour of the Pacific fighting front, starts here Feb. 8 against the Army Air Force all-stars, it was announced, which is also sprinkled liberally with Major League stars.

Lieut. Jimmy Dykes, Navy team manager, said his squad would depart soon after the game for a spot which will take it to the Marshalls, Guam, Saipan, Leyte and possibly Australia.

All Major League clubs except Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Cardinals are represented in the squad which is split into two teams for exhibitions for the fighting men in the forward areas.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 6 —(CP) — After all the advance build up of last week's N.H.L. meeting, it was disappointing to find things run off so smoothly. Of course, an encouraging feature was the word that the two clubs may seek entry to the league at the next annual meeting in Montreal in June, a decision they are really serious about post-war expansion of the loop.

And there will be some things stirring when Maj. Conn Smythe gets going with his new rule experiments on the amateurs. At that, it's a mere step from the non-contract impovisations among the non-contract boys before the N.H.L. experiments with them.

Clothespin Feat:

Most interesting means of communications we've heard of in some time are in vogue at the Soo, on North Bay, Ont. When the referee wants to call attention to goal scorers to the public address system, the details are given to the timekeeper, who scribbles it on a piece of paper, clips it on a clothespin and, then, hoisted up into the gondola above. Primitive, but effective!

They the Great:

Big Eddie Shore's put in a strong plug for Tiny Thompson that will make Tiny wish considerably less glittering considerations in getting the greatest of goalies. When Eddie and Tiny were teammates in Boston, Thompson used to bet Big Eddie he couldn't get two pucks by him in five rushes during practice sessions. Nels, a spry potent-sniper in his day, said, "Tiny never came out much better in a financial way during these little deals."

Old Acquaintances:

Sammy McManus, one of the Allan Cup-winning Moncton Hawks 19 years ago, is still around the Maritime ice circuit. Sammy is playing with Saint John Beavers, a team of veterans who have been familiar in hockey circles down east as long as McManus has. Others are Bim Barton, Moose Leblanc, Bill Guilfoyle, Dan Snaderski, Bert George Apsley and Colin Sherwood.

JIMMY BIVINS WINS EASILY

Washington, Feb. 6. (AP)—Jimmy Bivins, big Cleveland heavyweight who has fists that would make Joe Louis envious, easily outpointed Lee Savold, veteran Chicago slugger, in a 10-round bout here last night. Parks, felled for nine seconds twice in the third round, couldn't come out of his corner for the fourth and was awarded a technical knockout victory.

The possibility of future action seems in store for Bivins, ruled by many months, tested only three rounds to dispose of Georgie Parks, one-time American heavyweight champion. Savold, a veteran of 90 bouts, was considered a set-up for Bivins-Parks winner.

At 188 pounds, Bivins enjoyed a 20-pound weight advantage over Parks.

New York, Feb. 6. (AP)— Tom Lieb, who once proposed building an athletic "Hall of Fame" in Florida to keep out-of-state institutions from snatching the best football stars, has come up with a new idea for equalizing gridiron competition after the war. Tom's proposal, briefly, is that conferences adopt player limits, as in baseball; at the start of the season, each team's roll would turn in its squad list and then he'd have to stick to it. . . "It is ridiculous," he declares, "for the school due to bowl game receipts, to grab off all the available talent, each year carrying a squad of 80 and playing only eleven. The boys who do not play are cheated out of competition that would really do them good."

Not So Goofy.

Here's another that Letty Goetz was telling us the other day in Basketball Writers' dinner. . . One of Letty's duties as recreation director for a bombsight company—we make the bits, the other guys make the sights—is umpiring softball games. . . In one tough game between two of Letty's teams, a man in the winning run then dashed to the plate to protest Goetz's decision. . . "I just told him", says Letty, "that if I were you I'd be saving umpires are blind, so what have you got to complain about?"

Bombers Must Win To Keep Up With Flyers in Race

When the Mountain View "Bombers" lost to the Trenton "Flyers" 6-5 in the first meeting earlier in the season, it was pretty much a fluke, according to manager Paul Raymond, one of the Trenton Canadiens' men who turned the trick. However, coach Jimmie McCha has had his Bombers in practice at the Hume Arena this morning and did some fine defensive methods to stop the "Flying Frenchmen" in the next Bombers and Flyers meet with the Quinte R.C.A.F. service league championship at stake Wednesday evening at the Hume Arena.

It will be the final meeting of these two strong teams, who are battling for first place, for all points count. The game concludes the Bombers part of the schedule and they must win to assure themselves of a berth in the play-offs, as the Flyers have a game in hand versus the Mohawks next Monday night. "We must win and we can stop Raymond. It will be the last game of the season," predicted P/L. McCha after practice today.

"I'm leaving the Trenton station on the 5 and the Bombers need no a win before my departure," was all coach Padre Malka had to say regarding this important meeting.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

As a precaution against the activities of gamblers, President Will Harridge of the American League and League announced at New York last night he would follow the decision of President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League in forbidding the managers to give out pitchers' names in advance. President Ford Frick of the National League said he would stamp out any sign of gambling in ball parks, adding that extra care has to be taken because of the many young players in major baseball.

The spectators in New York last night were offering "inside" information on horse racing would be resumed as Belmont Park in the spring if Germany is defeated off quickly. They were also saying there might be late-season racing at Gulfstream and Tropical parks in Florida with the same proviso.

Gunder Haegg and Haakon Lidman, Swedish track stars, yesterday were granted visas in London to have made special arrangements to leave shortly for New York to participate in the track meets scheduled at waiting 10 days for inoculation procedure before departure.

Manager Al Murray of Galt Red Wings in the O.H.A. Junior "A" series yesterday signed Cecil Cruhi, defence ace of Port Colborne intermediateonists, to replace goalie Bruce Phillip of Toronto. After the latter had had a run-in with the referee in Saturday's game at Maple Leaf Gardens with St. Michaels and was suspended indefinitely.

The annual international softball tournament, in which Canadian teams have participated, will be staged Sept. 12-17 at Lakewood Stadium, Cleveland, it was announced last night by president Raymond Johnson of the Amateur Softball Association of the United States.

What was claimed to be a world record for two furlongs was set yesterday at the Hippodrome track, Mexico City, when Big Racket, ridden by Jockey Ellsworth Pyrtz, covered the distance in 20 4/5 seconds, comparing with the old mark of 21 1/4 seconds, set in 1800.

With a margin of seven points over Bob Gracie of Pittsburgh Pirates, Paul Courteau of Ponce de Leon Reds continued to lead the scoring parade in the Intermediate Hockey League with a total of 60. Bob Watson of the Pirates stood third with 56 in the table announced last night.

Nils Trembley of Quebec Aces is leading the Quebec Senior League scoring race with 44 points on 30 goals and 24 assists, followed by Joe Carthy of Montreal Royals one point behind, according to statistics issued from the circuit headquarters in Montreal last night.

They'll Do It Every Time

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

Inexperienced.

Police Judge: "Well, Sam, about your son stealing those chickens. Have you had him off this time, but why don't you show him the right way?"

Sam: "I've done tried hard, Judge but he goes and gets hisself caught anyhow."

Looking Ahead.

Regarding the post-war sports period Arthur Daley, in the New York Times, seems satisfied there will be the inevitable boom. He recently commented on the subject as follows:

"A group of athletic directors from various Eastern colleges was discussing the inevitable boom in sports which everyone confidently expects will follow the end of this war. Just as the fabulous Golden Decade followed the last one.

"Can you imagine what it's going to be like?" said one graduate manager, a weird gleam in his eye. "We'll not only have the athletes we have now but all the former varsity stars will come trooping back to the campus for greater competition than ever before."

Then up spoke Capt. Owen Humphreys of Navy. "I'll bet that most people will agree with your prediction," he stated, and then added bluntly, "But I don't. This isn't like the last war, which lasted a little more than a year. I doubt greatly that a man will be born off to war for at least years will have the slightest desire to return to college—at least as an amateur. They'll all want to marry and settle down. Maybe they won't go off to the fronts as boys but they'll come back as men."

"That's right," agreed Comdr. William R. (Killer) Kane, the new Navy Pre-Flight Physical Training program. "From my own experience I know that they mature awfully fast in the combat zones. Boys of 18 or 20 become men almost overnight."

This was a new but logical slant on something everyone had taken for granted. The popular impression always has been that the varsity stars would flock back to Alma Mater and the collegiate game would not only pick up where it left off but would do so at an accelerated pace. Sports in general will boom in unprecedented heights, but intercollegiate athletics, it seems, may receive a complete setback for a couple of years and square away. However, another brief period of peace, if due, It can't miss."

Junior Picture.

PO. Stan Jackson's Trenton junior team is back into first place in the "Little Six" last night by beating the Hastings "Amalgamates" 4-3 in Trenton. Today we find Trenton on top with 13 points and a game to play. Stirling is second with 12 points and no league games left, while the Belleville Bees have 11 points and can move into a tie with Trenton by winning at Tweed tonight. That leaves but one game left, Campbellford at Trenton on Wednesday night. With the Hydro Town out of the play-off picture Tools Holway's charges must win at Tweed tonight if they hope to gain top or at least second place in the final standing. As the top two spots give the first and second squads the odd game in three for the group play-downs and Bees hold their destiny in their own hands, as there is a decided edge on the home ice. A say raid the play-offs commence Friday night and it will be the Bees' brother they open at home or on the road.

Kingston Army Good.

Major J. C. Irvine, of the R.C.O.C. Kingston, brought his "Army" puckiters to the Hume Arena "R" an exhibition service hockey game last night and the "Soldier Boys" headed by Alex Szabo, former Detroit Red Wing star, and Mike Szabo, no relation of the thrilling work of goalie Laing, were much too speedy for the Trenton "Flyers." The Army, new for the Army just about indicates the play. The "soldiers" are a big, rugged, fast-skating team who back-checked as speedily as they drove to the offensive, which is the secret of modern hockey. It was a real exhibition game, with plenty of speed and razzle, dazzle passing to entertain the fans and give Belleville puck patrons just some conception of the splendid brand of hockey that is being played in the Kingston City League. Which is what "Army" officials hope to do.

However, in the Quinte RCAF. service league the title of the season comes up Wednesday night when Trenton "Flyers" and the Mohawk Five "Bombers" meet for the group leadership.

Remember When.

John L. Sullivan became the last of the bare-knuckle boxing champions, 50 years ago tomorrow, when he lost the heavyweight title championship from Paddy Ryan in nine rounds. Sullivan was never defeated in a bare-knuckle fight afterward and carried the title to his grave. He was defeated for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world by James Corbett.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 159
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge expert often puzzles where most of us dub along. Mulk. He plucks from the sky a trick here and there by cracking hoeding details. Like in this deal:

NORTH
♠ 7 4
♥ 7 5 4
♦ 8 3
♣ Q J 8
WEST	EAST
♠ 10 8 7	♠ 5 3
♥ Q 10 6	♥ 9 8 2
♦ A 10 9 4	♦ J 10 7
♣ 6 5 4	♣ 7 2
SOUTH
♠ A K Q 6
♥ A K 3
♦ 5
♣ K 10 9 3

South is declarer at a stretched contract of six clubs. West starts out with a diamond lead and wins the first trick. A second diamond from west is trumped by south.

To make the contract, declarer must plan in such a way that he will lose no more tricks. The third round of hearts is a worry. But the third diamond can be shifted to the fourth south spade.

To make the contract, declarer must plan in such a way that he will lose no more tricks. The third round of hearts is a worry. But the third diamond can be shifted to the fourth south spade.

However, the handling of that and the trump suit requires some attention to future details. So, anticipating need for dummy entries, south trumps the second diamond lead with the club ace.

The club trey was now led and overtaken with dummy eightspot. This gave dummy an entry with which to lead back a diamond, south trumped that with the club king.

Then the club ten was led and overtaken by dummy with the club jack. This entry to dummy permitted the last diamond to be led from there. South trumped it with his last club.

Dummy was entered again, this time by leading the small spade and winning with the jack. That permitted the club queen to be led for picking up opponent's last trump.

On that trump queen lead, south shuffled a small heart. After that, south took the remaining tricks with top spades and hearts.

This hand worked out so slick, the plays in it may seem simple. But if you look closely you will see how declarer must plan in every move. Especially in a hand that is so scarce of entries.

It is an example of making dummy trumps the master cards.

CANADIENS LEAD N.H.L. IN POINTS AND PENALTIES

Visited the Penalty Box More Frequently Than Any Other Team

(By The Canadian Press)

National Hockey League statistics seem to indicate that anyone who wants to succeed need not always do the right thing. Looking at the statistics compiled from records in the weekly statistics, we see that the Montreal Canadiens have visited the penalty-box much more frequently than other clubs, while a similar glance at the league standings show the Habitants on top of the heap.

In fact, the lineup in regard to penalties runs just about the same as the standings, with the exception that Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers have traded places. All the teams except Detroit and Chicago have spent more than twenty minutes in the sin bin this season—maybe the mid-western atmosphere has a soothing effect on one's disposition.

The Canucks, in addition to 264 minutes in the cooler, also have 3 misconduct and one match penalty last against them. The Rangers are a distant second with 229 minutes and one misconduct, while close behind, the Toronto Maple Leafs have 227 minutes and one has a penalty.

But the large number of penalties has not taken the edge off the Habitants' scoring prowess, for the Montreal club is leading in this department, with 165 goals scored in 36 games, while Bill Stewart's Rangers have to rate as the top goal-tender with 81 goals scored against him for an average of 2.25 a game.

Old-Time Boxing Fan Reaches Some Strong Conclusions

By RUSS NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

San Francisco, Feb. 6 (AP)—An oldtime boxing fan, Michael Mahoney of San Francisco, has been around at the United States best fighters since 1905, and has come up with some interesting—almost violent—conclusions.

He points out that some of the "boys in the business never won a title because they either (a) got discouraged after a loss, or (b) never got a chance at all."

On the other hand, he says, "there have been some terrible champions," he writes. "Jack Johnson was given an awful lacing for 20 rounds by a nondescript Jeffries. Hart (Hart was decided, 1905). Joe Choynski, an over-stuffed middleweight, and Joe Gans, also a few rounds (three rounds, 1901)... Battling Nelson, Jack Dempsey (Shows) McFadden, and New York Jack O'Brien could have cut Joe Louis down in the week...

"If Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis had come around forties in the turn of the century they would not have been known as the Manassas Mauler and the Brown Bomber. Look at their competition.

"I name these as the best men in every division:

"Heavyweight—Jim Jeffries; Tom Sharkey, No. 2.

"Light Heavy—Bob Fitzsimmons.

"Middleweight — Kid McCoy; Tommy Ryan, No. 2.

"Welterweight—Mysterious Billy Smith; Joe Walcott, No. 2.

"Lightweight — George (Kid) Lavigne.

"Featherweight — Terry McGovern.

"Bantamweight—Jimmy Barry.

"Flyweight — English Jimmy White.

And how do Mr. Mahoney's boxing selections strike you?

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop before supper, partly for pop's appetite and partly for his figure, and some man was standing on a corner trying to make people stop and listen to him, saying, I've 25 good of your soles brothers and sisters, give me a minute of your time. Would you lose your sole brothers and sisters, for the sake of a minute? he said.

Being a man with kind of long hair, and I said to pop, Pop, could anybody really save your sole in a minute?

Maybe an unusually healthy sole could be saved in a minute, but any sole might at least be put on the right track, pop said. My sole feels very comfortable at the moment, but I have my doubts about yours. Your mother says that since almost told her a lie this morning, he said, and I said, Well Jimminy, almost isn't all a ways, pop.

Even almost is bad for the sole, pop said. It shows that your moral compass was pointed East for Evanston, instead of due South for Dependable Sincerity. So maybe your sole needs attention. Maybe we better go back and hear what the man is saying, he said.

Which we did, and he was saying, And now, brothers and sisters, I'll come to my point. In these days of rubber scarcity, you'll find it practically impossible to get reasonably rubber soles when they wear out. But with the aid of simple preparation that I have here, at the astounding price of only 26 cents or a quarter of a dollar, you can save them by patching them with this. Now a few easy flicks of the wrist, he said, and pop said, By golies he's obtaining the solution under false pretences. A low trick like that will probably be illegal when the world starts its post-war state of perfection. The man's own sole is in danger, and I thought it would do any good I'd tell him so, he said.

Only he didn't, claiming he thought it wouldn't do any good.

RESULTS AROUSE

Premier Assemble.

In last night's statement and in previous utterances Mr. King has said that Defence Minister Col. Ralston's presence in the Cabinet was essential if Canada's government was to hold another brief session of Parliament facilitating for the passage of money bills for the war effort and government services. Gen. McNaughton's return to Italy or North now makes this impossible.

Mr. King also has said he had repeated this in his latest statement—that he has sought all alone to avoid a general election while Canadian troops were fighting at the front.

Last week the Prime Minister announced in a message to the Grey North voters that he would call a by-election before March 17, when the five-year term of the present parliament expires.

90 Days Must Elapse

As 60 days must elapse between the writ of election and nomination and a general election the earliest date for polling could be April 9, assuming that no session is held. Should a by-election be called it could be considered to be unlikely—it could be expected to continue to the last possible day, April 16, that would make June 18 the earliest possible election date.

The government already has made provision for Canadian service personnel to vote in the general election for one of the candidates in their home constituency.

Regulations contain the machinery which will enable service personnel in Canada, at the fighting fronts and in various areas throughout the world to vote directly or by proxies and enable service personnel interned in neutral countries to vote by proxy through their next-of-kin.

Political circles here considered it likely that the reinforcement issue, of which the Grey North by-election and the granted campaign were developments, would also play a large part in the general election.

Gymnastic Program To Feature Health Week Program at BCI

Special program in connection with the observance of National Health Week is planned by P. T. instructors at Belleville collegiate this week with gymnastic displays and lectures on health to be given Wednesday morning at the school auditorium.

Emphasis on health as a national and individual asset will be the underlying thought in connection with the program which will consist of a talk on the importance of health by Medical Officer of Health Dr. G. S. Cronk; a moving picture of athletic sports, girls dancing under the direction of P.T. instructor Miss Isabel Morton, with honing and wrestling, parallel bars, pyramids and mat work under the direction of P.T. instructor Honor Townsend.

Pulpit recognition of National Health Week was given at Sidloway Street United Church during the morning service by Rev. J. A. Dills who preached on "Religion and Health."

Quoting scriptures God's promise of health to those who obey the commands of His statutes, Mr. Dills pointed out the relationship between health and Christianity. Disobedience to His commands, Mr. Dills pointed out, brings disease. As illustration he pointed to the rising prevalence of venereal disease, this being the result of disobedience.

Dire results of anger, fear and worry to the mental health of the individual were pointed out by the speaker who indicated preventive measures were most important than a program of healing.

CHAPTER NINE

Finally Livia stood up.

"I must get home," she said apologetically, "I have the jobs."

"Of course!" said Mrs. Fletcher.

"Really? When do I start—and where?"

"You've started. Come, I'll show you to your room," said Mrs. Fletcher, gently taking Livia's arm.

"Room!" Livia's eyes were pin points of alarm. "Room? What do you mean room? I—" She turned to the woman to the spa-like man, who was moving up the door, but still watching her and still picking his front teeth with his thumb nail. "Will realization of the job' came to Livia.

She ran to the door. She thought the man would stop her, and she screamed with the full force of her young strong voice. But he moved away from the door. Livia ran for two blocks before she felt safe.

Then evening she told Ted:

"I'll take the job in the drive-in."

When Ted and Joe Sullivan called at the house in Beverly Hills the door was opened by a trim maid who protested:

"There is no one called Fletcher here."

They insisted on seeing the owner, and were taken to a room where an old gentleman was reading a book. He was courteous and polite, but insisted he, and only he, occupied the house.

STORY GAL: 3

"Yes, either gave us the wrong address—or dreamed the whole affair." Joe stated Livia. But Ted, seeing the horror on Livia's face told him sharply to shut up.

The drive-in opened for business at eight in the morning, and closed at twelve. The waitress worked in two shifts.

It looked easy from the other side of the tray, but the work was surprisingly difficult. At the beginning, Ted, himself, accompanied Livia in her blue and yellow uniform. He carried the trays for her, showing her how to clip them to the side of the car. Livia listened, stated on clipping the fourth tray herself and precipitated the contents into the lap of a young man. Livia's face was scarlet.

"I'm sure sorry," she told the man. He smiled into her worried eyes.

"That's okay. I'll soon dry."

She did not dry any that trays that day, but managed to mix up seven orders and was confident about reaching her way through the clamoring waitresses.

"You're doing fine, honey," Ted cheered Livia. But she felt hopelessly inadequate.

The varied from a nickel to a quarter, and the end of her first week, Livia had earned $7 in tips plus $15 salary. But against that Livia had broken $6 worth of cups and plates. Ted wanted to defray this himself.

"I'll throw up the job if you do," Livia threatened.

The breakage diminished, and the tips increased as the weeks passed. Soon Livia was always exhausted at the finish of her work.

She cited girls were employed in the drive-in, one of a chain of fifty. They were blue serge and cape with the gold buttons and stripes running the length of the trousers. They were young and mostly good-looking. And after they had accepted Livia's presence Ted felt they liked her—with the exception of Ann Sherman, a blue-eyed, red low-haired girl, with a beautiful figure. Ted had dated her several times before the advent of Livia. She hated Livia, with all the force of her small soul.

Livia had been working for six weeks when a handsome movie star drove in. Both she and Ann were without customers at the time, and they raced to serve him. He smiled at their eager faces, then gave his order to Livia.

Ann sulked. Just, before going home she approached Livia, her mouth set in a thin line.

"How much did he tip you?" she demanded.

"Who?" Livia asked.

"You know who, I saw him give you a dollar."

"Then why did you ask me?" demanded Livia.

"Because I think you should share it with me."

"Let's ask Ted," said Livia. And now all the hatred in Ann flashed out—

Just because you're running after Ted you think you run this place," she flung at Livia.

"What's the matter?" Ted dispersed the group of girls. Ann looked sulky.

"Why don't you tell him?" she demanded. The silence was broken by Ted.

"Well, what is it?"

"Nothing," said Livia and hurried to serve a customer.

Going home with Ted, Livia was thoughtful. She, herself, was not worried about Ann. But perhaps Ted would suffer. He was in line for the vacant job of supervisor for the entire fifty drive-ins.

Scandal, or a charge of favoritism might affect his chances.

"After this, we'd better not be so friendly," she said to Ted.

"After this I hope we'll be more friendly!" he replied grinning. "I've got that job—with a $30 increase a week. Swell, isn't it?"

"Let's get married!"

"But, Ted—"

"You know I love you," he interrupted her. "What do you say?"

"But nothing. We'll take tomorrow off and get married."

"No—not so soon. I—"

"Then you will marry me?"

"I know it's old fashioned to say it—I'll think it over," Livia said hesitantly. She was not in love with Ted, but he mustn't be hurt. "Okay," he said cheerfully. I just wanted you to know how I feel about you. You're my girl—don't forget that."

"All right, Ted, I'm your girl," she said firmly.

A week later Bruce's car appeared at the drive-in. The beautiful blonde girl was sitting between Bruce and another man. Bruce's wife!

The man hailed Livia.

"Service—we're in a hurry."

He repeated, "Hey, there, we're in a hurry!" She recognized the voice of Terry Davidson, who was engaged to Bruce's sister, Elizabeth. She dare not answer. Bruce and his wife must not see her in her present job.

"Are you deaf?" said Davidson angrily. Bruce walked quickly inside the kitchen. But her luck was out. The man who had replied to Ted followed her.

"Are you busy?" he asked.

"Well—no—"

"There are some people waiting to be served." His voice was kind but firm. Livia followed him outside.

"Your order?" she asked David-son.

"You've been long enough," he grumbled. He did not recognize her. "Bring me an egg and bacon sandwich and coffee." He passed the menu to the woman sitting next to Bruce, "What do you want?"

Livia was staring at her as though he did not believe what he saw.

"Livia!" he shouted joyfully, "Livia!"

"I'll bring your sandwich," she muttered to Davidson and hurried away.

"Excuse me," Bruce said, left the car and ran after Livia.

A customer chasing a waitress was unusual even for Hollywood. Cars stopped eating, talking, driving or taking orders, and watched Bruce run after Livia.

The new manager hastened into the kitchen after them.

"I must ask you to leave this young lady alone," he stuttered. "I warn you, she'll lose her job—shall I call the police, Miss Clarkson?" Bruce turned from Livia and advanced slowly toward the manager, who retreated nervously.

"It's all right," Livia assured him. "I—er—I know him. It's all right."

"When you're finished your tete-a-tete," the manager said, "you might let me know because there'll be some customers who want to be served." He left them. He wanted to see her. But he was afraid Ted Curtiss would repeat the performance on him.

"You don't have to hold my arm," Livia looked angrily at Bruce. "I won't run away." Bruce eased his grip, but did not let her go.

"Where've you been hiding?" he asked. "And why?"

"She's beautiful," Livia said.

"Who's beautiful?"

"Your—the girl in the car." Bruce was nonplused, but answered vaguely:

"Yes, I suppose she is. But you haven't answered my question. Why did you run out on me?" She became very angry.

"It's not enough that you break my heart, but you must put me in the wrong as well."

"What are you talking about?"

"As if you didn't know!"

"I don't."

"That girl—"

"What has she got to do with it?" Bruce was puzzled, but answered vaguely:

"Yes, I suppose she is. But you haven't answered my question. Why did you run out on me?" She became very angry.

"It's not enough that you break my heart, but you must put me in the wrong as well."

"What are you talking about?"

"As if you didn't know!"

"I don't."

"That girl—"

"What has she got to do with it?" Bruce was puzzled, but answered vaguely:

"Yes, I suppose she is. But you have an unfair way of getting at the truth." He smiled at their eager faces, then gave his order to Livia.

Ann sulked. Just, before going home she approached Livia, her mouth set in a thin line.

"How much did he tip you?" she demanded.

"Who?" Livia asked.

"You've started. Come, I'll show you to your room," said Mrs. Fletcher, gently taking Livia's arm.

"Room!" Livia's eyes were pin points of alarm. "Room? What do you mean room? I—" She turned to the woman to the spa-like man, who was moving up the door, but still watching her and still picking his front teeth with his thumb nail. "Will realization of the job' came to Livia.

She ran to the door. She thought the man would stop her, and she screamed with the full force of her young strong voice. But he moved away from the door. Livia ran for two blocks before she felt safe.

That evening she told Ted:

"I'll take the job in the drive-in."

When Ted and Joe Sullivan called at the house in Beverly Hills the door was opened by a trim maid who protested:

"There is no one called Fletcher here."

They insisted on seeing the owner, and were taken to a room where an old gentleman was reading a book. He was courteous and polite, but insisted he, and only he, occupied the house.

STORY GAL: 3

"Yes, either gave us the wrong address—or dreamed the whole affair." Joe stated Livia. But Ted, seeing the horror on Livia's face told him sharply to shut up.

The drive-in opened for business at eight in the morning, and closed at twelve. The waitress worked in two shifts.

It looked easy from the other side of the tray, but the work was surprisingly difficult. At the beginning, Ted, himself, accompanied Livia, in her blue and yellow uniform. He carried the trays for her, showing her how to clip them to the side of the car. Livia listened on clipping the fourth tray herself and precipitated the contents into the lap of a young man. Livia's face was scarlet.

"I'm sure sorry," she told the man. He smiled into her worried eyes.

"That's okay. I'll soon dry."

She did not dry any that trays that day, but managed to mix up seven orders and was confident about reaching her way through the clamoring waitresses.

"You're doing fine, honey," Ted cheered Livia. But she felt hopelessly inadequate.

The varied from a nickel to a quarter, and the end of her first week, Livia had earned $7 in tips plus $15 salary. But against that Livia had broken $6 worth of cups and plates. Ted wanted to defray this himself.

"I'll throw up the job if you do," Livia threatened.

The breakage diminished, and the tips increased as the weeks passed. Soon Livia was always exhausted at the finish of her work.

She cited girls were employed in the drive-in, one of a chain of fifty. They were blue serge and cape with the gold buttons and stripes running the length of the trousers. They were young and mostly good-looking. And after they had accepted Livia's presence Ted felt they liked her—with the exception of Ann Sherman, a blue-eyed, red low-haired girl, with a beautiful figure. Ted had dated her several

Why Englishman Was Not Rescued By U.S. Rangers

By FRED HAMPSON
(A. P. War Correspondent)

An Evacuation Hospital on Luzon, Feb. 6 (delayed)—"I thought they were the Americans ary here", said 2nd. Lt. Bond.

"I thought they were there to kill me. I played dead and went back to sleep. Amazing, wasn't it?"

That was why the elderly Englishman, captured by the Japanese, recuperated when the United States 6th Ranger Battalion raided the Japanese garrison at Cabanatuan prison in the early darkness Jan. 30 and whisked the prisoners to safety in a swift raid.

The imperturbable Englishman's bunk was in a dark corner and he was overlooked by the hurried Rangers.

And Rose enjoyed a good night's sleep. He awoke to find himself the only living occupant of the barracks.

"Blimey," said Rose with some astonishment, "they didn't stay after all."

By the time Rose washed, shaved and made himself breakfast, some Filipinos arrived and hustled him off to a guerilla camp since the Japanese—angry about the raid—were still there in the area.

Rose, 46 years old and still suffering from a machine gun shrapnel wound which had never healed, escaped just two days after the others.

He was a purser on a British ship plying between Hong Kong and Singapore before the war. The ship left the Manila Bay for safety by Dec. 19, 1941. He was wounded, evacuated to Corregidor hospital and captured.

Snow Plow Blade Dislodged Causes Accident, Tie-up

When the front portion of the blade of a government snow plow became dislodged on Highway No.2 two miles west of Marysville, on Monday, it struck a motor car driven by Squad Ldr. J. D. McCallum, of Deseronto. The government snow plow was driven by Ivan MacFarlane, of Napanee. Fortunately no person in the automobile suffered injuries although the car was damaged. When the front blade became dislodged the tractor portion of the snow plow mounted the bank and nose-dived into the north ditch. Provincial Constable Hamilton investigated and assisted in clearing the highway from the traveled portion of the road.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Profittaking dulled the gilt edged group in the early market session today and the index slipped back moderately, industrial oils and golds down slightly. Substantial gains were held by the industrials and base metals at noon. The trading tempo showed little change at midday.

Teck Hughes touched $4 for a gain of 25 cents and gains of 5 cents were held by Wright-Hargreaves, Griffiths, Coulson Malartic, Pioneer and San Antonio. Falconbridge retained the lead in metals, climbing 50 cents to 5.50 on 6,000 volume.

In the industrial section prices were stronger for the liquor and utility stocks. Distillers-Seagrams gained more than a point.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Feb. 6. (AP)—The Stock Market resumed its selective advance today under leadership of Rails, after absorbing considering early profit cashing on the five-session upswing.

Near the fourth hour plus signs of fractions to a point or more predominated.

Ahead most of the proceedings were Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, American Telephone, Pennsylvania, Easton, Eastman Kodak and United Aircraft.

Plus signs were sprinkled through the Canadian list. C.P.R. was up 1-8 and Lake Shore gained 1-4. Dome Mines was off 1-4.

The War Today—
Steady Pressure by Eisenhower Will Likely Produce Results Soon

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The European war has just about touched the peak of its crisis on both eastern and western fronts, for now (if ever) is the time when the Germans, having reached their Oder line of defence, will make their great retreat across Poland, should they begin to make their final desperate stand.

And desperate it is, for the Nazi leaders are deliberately sacrificing Germany to their own hopeless personal interests and to Hitler's maddest chapters. The inevitable finish of this sorry affair is foredoom, will be Gotterdammerung—the end of the world.

On both fronts the Allies are exerting more and more pressure against the Germans' main fortified positions. The two great millstones at last have begun to grind firmly between them and are grinding more than an hour to control. No one was injured.

Tommy Farr Pleads Innocent

Brighton, England, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Tommy Farr, former British heavyweight boxing champion, pleaded innocent in police court here today to a charge that he assaulted a young naval cadet after reference had been made to Farr as a "third rate boxer."

Counsel for Cadet John Bottomley, D.S.M., said Farr broke Bottomley's nose with a Scotch decanter his hands in his pockets.

He said Farr offered to fight all the cadets at Bottomley's group in his tavern for $1 each. He contended that as soon as the cadet knew he was not in the ring now was that he could not find an opponent at his price.

Heads Group Formed To Oppose Teaching Religion in Schools

Toronto, Feb. 6 — (CP) — Rev. A. C. Cochrane, Presbyterian minister from near Orillia, Credit, last night was elected president of a newly-organized association for religious liberty, formed to oppose religious education in Ontario public schools.

Dr. Cochrane, who has been active in councils and his own church in opposing religious instruction in the schools, said: "In the Northern Ontario village of Chile, 13 miles from Cochrane, a teacher member of Jehovah's Witnesses taught the tenets of her religion to all the pupils of her school. When the Board of Education heard this, they let her go but she got another job in a school not far away and continued her own religious instruction."

Dr. Helen Infield, elected chairman, said: "We have already been informed of flagrant abuses by individual teachers." She added that the manual of instruction was a poor guide and "each course is entirely subject to the views of its teachers."

SIXTEEN LIVES LOST WHEN CABLE BREAKS AT PAYMASTER GOLD MINES, TIMMINS, ONTARIO

This is a view of the shafthead during rescue operations. Only one of the 16 survived the plunge and he died on the way to hospital.

Here is a view of the Paymaster Gold Mine, Timmins, Ont., where 16 miners lost their lives when a cable broke and the cage in which they were riding plunged 1,500 feet.

Pte.-Sgt. Russell (Mickey) Dillon, R.C.A.F., who had been working at the mine only three weeks. Recently discharged from the Air Force after a tour of operations, as the result of a ruptured eardrum, he was sub goalie for Ottawa Flyers the year they won the Allan Cup.

Canada's Northland Theme of Talk To Rotary by Rev. Grant Sparling

Outstanding efforts drawn by the magnet of war from the ingenuity of man are the colossal feats of engineering that have been performed in Canada's northland, the Rev. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church told the Rotary Club on Monday.

The speaker, a former chaplain in the Royal Canadian Air Force, and who spent considerable time in the northwest and in the vast territory between Edmonton and White Horse, painted a graphic word picture of conditions as he saw them and of the huge activities that eventually opened Canada's northern oil and goldfields and highways for the insatiable appetite of her war demands.

Unlike the traditional sailor "who saw the world through a porthole" he visioned the vast territory that extends from Edmonton to White Horse through the porthole of a Lockheed Lodestar freight plane "on his knees." "I had to kneel in order to see the country as the port was so placed that it was impossible to use either sitting or standing."

Made Survey.

With a Roman Catholic colleague, Mr. Sparling was ordered on an official survey of scattered R.C.A.F. landing fields in a chain of stations along the 1,000-mile flight to the northern post of White Horse.

Over rough terrain, to Fort St. John, the big aircraft felt its way with its 18 passengers seated on crates of supplies. Leaving this stop, the ship flew through blue skies over the beautiful Peace River district, on its left the Rocky Mountains and a thin yellow ribbon that was the Alaska highway. Spiralling blue smoke marked construction camps, dust puffs denoted the onward march of vehicular traffic. On to Fort Nelson and its rough bush country. Across the Rockies which seemed like a giant hand with cruel claws reaching for the tiny ship."

Held First Church Service.

The big aircraft landed at Watson Lake where Mr. Sparling conducted the first Protestant service held in the northland under R.C.A.F. jurisdiction. After two days' stay, the party left for White Horse. To the left and far below glimmered the waters of Lake Laberge, famed in R. W. Service's "Cremation of Sam McGee." Landing in the northern post with its war-swollen population of 15,000 odd souls in 1939, the party saw the old fashioned river paddle steamers resembling the mates of white horses from which the settlement got its name.

Mr. Sparling visited several outposts of the R.C.A.F. during his aerial visit, and made extensive reports on conditions as he found them. On the return journey the big Lockeed aircraft negotiated the 1,000 miles between White Horse and Edmonton between dinner in the first place and supper in the Alberta city.

Referring to the Alaska Highway, Mr. Sparling stated that seven months and twelve days after the first stone was dug on Feb. 12, 1942 in Dawson Creek, the 1,631 mile road was completed at Fairbanks, Alaska. Constructed mainly by American engineers and labor, the road will revert to Canada after the war. Terming it a "colossal feat of engineering," Mr. Sparling stated that the road was built at the rate of eight miles per day. Over mountains and rivers, across treacherous marsh swamp, the road, 24 feet in width pushed its way to completion. Two hundred bridges were built during the period of construction.

3,000 Barrels Oil Daily.

Transportation of oil, that proved flowing gold in the later days of war, from Fort Norman on the Mackenzie River, 75 miles south of the Arctic Circle, afforded another challenge to engineers. Discovered in 1920, some of the oil was supplied to areas within the territory until the Alaska Highway was built. This source of valuable fuel was a Godsend in 1940 when war was declared, but the question of delivery proved a colossal task. A pipeline, 600 miles long was installed between the Fort and White Horse and took two years to build. Along this line are stretched 75 stations which take care of the 3,000 barrel daily output of oil. Incidentally this kind of oil has a paraffin base which allows it to flow in a temperature of 70 degrees below zero.

Material for the construction of the line proved another problem. It had to be transported by rail from Edmonton, transferred to steamers to cross Lake Athabaska and up the Slave River. From a point here the cargo had to be portaged to the Great Slave Lake and thence by steamer again to its destination.

Annual Upkeep High.

During the first winter a road, 1,000 miles long was built to transport the supplies and material. It was just a "tote" road and was opened by an argument between two vehicle drivers when they met at the junction, instead of the usual ceremonies.

Speaking of the future of Canada's northland, Mr. Sparling told the clubmen that some have estimated its annual upkeep at the one and six millions of dollars. Some are of the opinion that it never will be to its old status while others think it will open up another rich area for the nation.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Dr. Robert Howard while club appreciation was expressed by Rotarian Bill Turner. President Pink Pinkston was in the chair.

German Offensive Written Off As Complete Defeat

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Paris, Feb. 6 — (AP) — A Supreme Headquarters war review today wrote off the German Ardennes offensive as a "complete defeat" for an enemy who has suffered 1,260,000 casualties since D-Day, and a strategic error on Hitler's part upon which the Russians now are capitalizing.

At the same time the review, issued yesterday, disclosed that the United States 9th Army, which was transferred to Field Marshal Montgomery's command at the outset of the offensive, was returned to Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army group as soon as the 1st linked up with the United States 3rd Army in that battle.

No mention was made of the United States 9th Army, which with the 1st and 3rd made up Gen. Bradley's group. (A dispatch from Associated Press correspondent Wes Gallagher, dated Jan. 19 and delayed by the censor, said the 9th was left under Field Marshal Montgomery, 21st Army Group Commander, presumably for future military operations in which British, Canadian and American forces would work as a unit.)

The review placed the western front losses since the Normandy landing at the equivalent of 110 divisions. It divided the total into 800,000 prisoners and 400,000 killed and wounded. Allied losses were only a fraction of the enemy's.

In summing the assault phase the review said, the Germans lost enough to refit 15 armored divisions.

"It was the continuous aggressive action of the 12th Army group between September and the middle of October that kept the 6th S. S. Panzer Army to the west of the Rhine, and thereby prevented it from being available in the east when Stalin and the magnificent Red Army launched the great Russian offensive," the review declared.

E.L.A.S. Accepts Amnesty Proposal

Athens, Feb. 6 — (AP) — The E.A.M.-E.L.A.S. delegation has accepted the Greek government's amnesty proposals, it was announced last night by John Sofianopoulos, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Information, who said the conference seeking to settle the country's civil strife probably would resume sessions today.

Sofianopoulos said the E.A.M.-E.L.A.S. delegates were ready "to continue negotiations in order to prevent a break which would inevitably lead to disastrous consequences for the country."

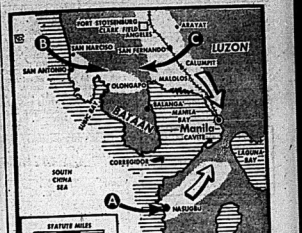
The government proposals, transmitted to the E.A.M.-E.L.A.S. delegates in a letter Sunday night, were said to have offered general amnesty except for criminal prosecutions for terroristic violations of the laws of war and the Greek penal code.

Predict Death Toll of Forty

New York, Feb. 6 — (AP)—Navy men and police, predicting a probable death toll of 40, grimly surveyed the charred hulks of two ships and the flotsam of New York Bay for additional victims of the inferno of high octane gasoline and oil which killed 17 by present count and injured 122.

The disaster occurred yesterday when an incoming vessel, the Clio, rammed the 16,000-ton tanker Springhill, loaded with 120,000 barrels or high octane gasoline. An explosion and flame enveloped the tanker, spreading to a nearby Norwegian vessel, the Virl, loaded with diesel oil.

Twenty-two men still are missing. Of the injured at least six are in a grave condition.



Three other vessels were damaged.

YANKS REACH MANILA

U. S. Eighth Army troops have reached Manila in the Philippines and 25 Canadians held by Japs there may be liberated. The three recent vital operations which led to the sealing off of the Japs at Manila are indicated by the dark arrows. U. S. Eighth Army troops landed on the Balangas coast (A) of Luzon, 41 miles southwest of Manila, and placed the Balangas capital inside a two-army pincer, whose jaws were only 66 Philippine miles apart. The Eighth Army's 11th Division swarmed ashore without loss of a man at Nasugbu and struck up the coast toward a junction with elements of Lieut.-Col. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army, which pushed south and westward (C) along Highway 3 towards Eighth Army forces (B) driving from the Subic Bay landing.

ON THE RIGHT ROAD TO MANILA

American soldiers look at a road sign in Tarlac, Luzon. The sign had been bit by a shell—but there is enough of it left to point the road to Manila, capital of the Philippines, which the Yanks have now reached.

Storm Across Our And Sure Rivers At Seven Points

Invasion Gives Continuous 120-Mile Front to Cut West Wall

By ROBERT C. WILSON
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Four divisions of the British Second and 3rd Army invaded Germany anew on a 32-mile front today, storming across the Our and Sure Rivers between Echternach and a point in northern Luxembourg five miles northeast of Clervaux.

Shock troops crossed the rivers by boat and bridge at seven points and attacked the Siegfried Line. Immense naval arms fire from the Channel to Switzerland was concentrated, but early artillery reaction was light.

The German invasion gave General Eisenhower's armies a virtually continuous 130-mile front in western Germany between Holland and the industrial German city of Saarbrucken.

In the north, the United States 9th and British 2nd Armies are beyond 26 miles of the Siegfried Line. The United States 1st and 3rd Armies are at or through the first west wall fortifications on a 57-mile sector from the upper Roer river near Schmidt to Echternach.

Initial gains by Lt.-Gen. Courtney Hodges's 2nd Army men a half mile inside Germany and among pillboxes of the Siegfried Line.

The new 3rd Army invasion of Germany started before dawn. The 6th Armored, 17th Airborne, 5th and 90th Infantry Division were used in the drive.

Farther north in the area where the 3rd Army had bored clear through the Siegfried Line, foot troops advanced 1 1/4 miles in wide in three miles of Prum, major enemy supply and transit base.

The 1st Army, flanking the 3rd to the north, encountered stiffest opposition in the last half mile of the eastern belt of the last known Siegfried Line fortifications. The 2nd and 9th Division won control of two thirds of Hellenthal, three miles south of Schleiden, and fought for the remainder.

Other of Lt.-Gen. Courtney Hodges' 1st Army men fought within a half mile of so of Schleiden, Gemund and Schmidt — all bolt positions at the extreme edge of the double belt of fixed fortifications.

French and American troops swiftly beat down the German fortifications south of Strasbourg, capturing numerous Alsatian towns and rounding their prisoner toll since Jan. 20 to more than 16,000. In the imposing and threatening Colmar pocket had been split in two. The western prongs in the trap were less than 50 square miles.

The eastern part of the pocket was compressed against the Rhine south of Neuf-Brisach, the old moated Rhine fortress which supreme headquarters said finally had been cleared. The western approaches to the Rhine bridges to Breisach were captured.

Steady drizzles and continued thaws hindered activity on the front.

The 1st Canadian Army fresh in Holland and the British 2nd Army front along the Maas and the Rivers in Holland and Germany remained quiet.

Says Nazi Women Patrol Streets In Berlin

Stockholm, Feb. 7 —(AP)— A Swedish traveller said today that women wearing Volkssturm armbands were patrolling streets and barricades in Berlin, and that Volkssturm men were being trained in street fighting by specialists who fought at Cassino, in Italy, and at Aachen.

This informant said girls belonging to the Hitler Youth and "Bliss Maedel" were working on street blocks and other improvised defences in "Fortress Berlin."

The newspaper quoted German sources in Stockholm as saying Germany's central administration would be moved to southern Germany—probably to Dresden—but that the people would be evacuated 75 believe their government was remaining in the capital to the last.

The decision to move remaining government departments southward was reported reached Monday night in a meeting held by Gestapiet Goebbels.

Many members of the Foreign Office, together with the Gestapo and the General Staff, were said to have fled to Krummhubel, in Riesen Gebirge 60 miles west of Breslau and 170 miles southeast of Berlin.

Superfortresses Raid Japs in Thailand And in Indo-China

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) Separate fleets of Superfortresses struck at Japanese military installations in Thailand and Indo-China, today.

Flying from India bases, the B29s of the 20th Bomber Command, spread the twin attack by daylight. A war bulletin from General of the Army H. H. Arnold, commanding the 20th Air Force, did not disclose additional details.

Results of the missions will be announced when operational reports are received from the bombers.

Possible targets were Bangkok, capital of Thailand; Saigon, chief city of Indo-China, and the fleet base at Camranh Bay, 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

MacArthur May Get Assignment From President To Invade Japan

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(AP Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's "on to Tokyo" cry has been echoed in speculation among the military people here that he may well get from President Roosevelt the assignment to invade Japan.

Actually the idea that the liberator of Manila would probably want to go beyond the Philippines has a bit some of the ranking officers here as a surprising but — now generally accepted — step in the logical notion. Moreover, it fits in with published developments in the final stage of the war to crush Japan.

The task is three-fold: to keep command of the seas and the ocean supply lines leading to Japan and the China coast, to invade Japan and to invade China.

The odds on favorite for the China invasion assignment, despite his recent run-in with President Chiang Kai-Shek, is Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, the United States Army's new ground forces commander. Gen. Stilwell knows the Chinese better than any other top flight American officer and is considered by most of the military men to be well equipped to plan the future grandstrategy for China.

But the China assignment is a full time job that may continue, as it has since first, long after the invasion of Japan. These will be months of negotiating and working by separate problems of strategy and supply with the Chinese high officer centres on Gen. MacArthur for this top role in what will be the last act of victory in the Pacific.

The third of the leading characters is Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, whose responsibilities are those of the naval commander in the Pacific as he has since the beginning of the war.

The problem of how to divide the command of the seas and the ocean supply lines leading to Japan and between MacArthur, Nimitz and the China coast, to invade Japan and to invade China.

The odds on favorite for the China invasion assignment, despite his recent run-in with President Chiang Kai-Shek, is Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, the United States Army's new ground forces commander. Gen. Stilwell knows the Chinese better

TRAPPED JAPS IN SHEER VENGEANCE SET MANILA AFIRE

American Infantrymen Pick off Defenders Barricaded on Both Sides of Pasig River

Manila, Feb. 7. (AP)—American infantrymen picked off Japanese barricaded on either sides of the Pasig River today after the trapped defenders, in sheer vengeance, had set Manila's heart afire.

Under smoke-blackened skies, Gen. Douglas MacArthur told his men "you will shortly complete the liberation of the Philippines", and declared that "the end is in sight, the worst military defeat in its history".

"I personally have the names of certain very sinister Germans who have been getting out lately with false passports and I know not only the names on the passports but the identity of the creatures that they conceal."

Lord Vansittart specifically criticized Eire's refusal to give assurances that war criminals would not be allowed to hide there.

Eire has challenged the Allied right under international law to say whom she would admit, but announcing that no one would be allowed to enter who would jeopardize the country's neutrality.

Sir John Simon, Lord Chancellor, said he did not think Lord Vansittart's statements was "evil timed," and declared: "I cannot imagine a worse time for stressing the Allied unity than they should not admit crime-stained fugitives than by shouting at them that the British Houses of Parliament or one of them has received Hitler's love by the right."

Attacking other neutrals as well as Eire, Lord Vansittart said:

"Portugal, supply our enemies with vital materials. Sweden, even allowed passage of German troops. Spain, Franco Spain, more and material support to our enemies, but actually sent troops to fight our Allies."

'Certain Very Sinister Germans Getting Out With False Passports'

—Lord Vansittart

London, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Lord Vansittart told the House of Lords today that he personally knew of "certain very sinister Germans" who have been escaping from Germany safely on false passports.

Lord Vansittart, former undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, made the statement in calling on the government to announce that the rights of neutrality did not extend to granting asylum to war criminals.

"If we admit the rights of neutrals in this quarter," he said, "these men will use neutral countries as a cover to organize sabotage and political assassination in Germany and elsewhere, and they will use those countries as a base for organization of new German war potential.

"I personally have the names of certain very sinister Germans who have been getting out lately with false passports and I know not only the names on the passports but the identity of the creatures that they conceal."

Strong Attack Launched Southeast of Bologna and Objectives Gained

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP Staff Writer)

Rome, Feb. 7—(AP)—The strongest attack in Italy since October has driven 600 yards into German lines southeast of Bologna and gained the objectives in spite stiff enemy resistance, headquarters announced today.

United States troops of the 5th Army who launched the attack Monday and broke a long winter stalemate pushed toward German strongholds of the Gaggio Montano-Gothic Line guarding the Po Valley road hub in front of Bologna.

The strong opposition encountered indicated there has been no weakening of German defences despite reports the Germans were shifting some troops from Italy to guard their Russian-threatened home front.

Limited Objectives

From line dispatches said the attack did not constitute a large scale offensive but headquarters described it as aiming at "limited objectives."

The heaviest artillery bombardment of months preceded the drive, which was supported by bad weather. Some 15,000 rounds of ammunition were fired. Numerous casualties were reported.

Germans raked American columns with some 1,500 shells. Thirteen mine fields were encountered.

Allied advances also continued in the Serchio valley near the west coast. The villages of Monte Bono and Renaiai, east of the Serchio river, were occupied against only light opposition.

Only patrol clashes were reported on the British 8th Army front in the Adriatic side of Italy. Patrols of the 8th Army encountered heavy machine-gun fire in many areas.

Heavy Nazi Shelling

German guns laid down one of the heaviest shellings of recent days on the 5th Army lines and communications immediately south of Bologna. In a two hour and 40 minute burst or action, the Germans pumped more than 400 artillery shells and 200 rounds of mortar fire into the area of Livergnano and other points lying along the main road to Bologna from the south.

For the first time in several weeks long range German 170 millimetre guns also opened up, landing their explosives in the area of Porretta, nearly 30 miles southwest of Bologna.

Allied fighter-bombers flew close support of the 5th Army attack while medium bombers again were hitting the Brenner Pass supply lines. Two Allied planes were lost. Three MEI09s were shot down.

REORGANIZATION OF GERMAN GOVT. A POSSIBILITY

Hitler Would Give Up Title of Fuehrer With Von Papen as Chancellor

Stockholm, Feb. 7 —(AP)— The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said today it believed that a reorganization of the German government under which Hitler would give up the title of Fuehrer to become the German president, with Franz von Papen as chancellor, was imminent.

The information was attributed to rumors in Berlin which reached German circles here.

Von Papen, an ace of the German diplomatic service, was ambassador to Turkey when relations were strained with Berlin last Aug. 2.

The reports had the earmarks of a Nazi trial balloon, Aftonbladet to sound out Allied reaction to reorganization. A revamped government would have any chance of selling to anti-Nazi Germans.

It came while Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin were reportedly in conference with war problems including Germany's fate.

Aftonbladet, which in the early stages of the war had a strongly pro-German attitude, said Hitler's retirement, for the good of the war he "is no longer able to manage both the matters of state and war leadership."

By becoming president of the Reich, Aftonbladet believed Hitler would be "laying a favorable basis for taking up international negotiations," the paper said.

KAI-SHEK SENDS MESSAGE TO MANILA'S CAPTURERS

Chungking, Feb. 7 — (AP) — President Chiang Kai-Shek sent his congratulations to President Roosevelt, Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz today on the liberation of Manila, the Generalissimo's headquarters announced. "The lustre of your recapture of Manila gladdens our hearts," he cabled to the Chinese people, who look forward to speedy junction of American and Chinese forces in the task of driving Japan from the mainland."

SOLDIER ON PROGRAM DISCOVERS HE IS HEIR

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 7 — (AP) — Pfc. Lloyd Barnes, Camp Adair, Barnes, Calif., wounded veteran of the South Pacific and patient at an army hospital here, found it profitable to appear on a military program. A lawyer who had been trying to locate a relative of the late Joseph A. Pratt of Okanogan, Wash., sent Foster speak. The soldier found he was his cousin's heir. PRINCIPAL POINTS TO BE COVERED BY 'BIG 3' LISTED

Whitehall Very Angry About Announcement Meeting Now Being Under Way

By FRASER WIGHTON
(Reuters Political Correspondent)

London, Feb. 7 — (Reuters)—Two years and six months after the momentous Teheran meeting, the Big Three are reported in historic session again and the agenda for the meeting, disclosed yesterday by Sir Winston Churchill to be taking place "at this very moment," would be no less formidable than that undertaken in November and December, 1943.

The disclosure by Sir Walter, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, to Prime Minister Churchill's attendance at the conference with President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin presented him addressing a Trades Union meeting in London was the first intimation from any British source that the long-awaited meeting was taking place.

William Broadbent, the Daily Mail's veteran diplomatic correspondent, reported yesterday that Sir Walter was not authorized to make the announcement and Whitehall is "very angry about it."

Principal points to be covered by the conference may be listed as:

1. The final destruction of the German military machine.

2. The broad draft of the conditions to be imposed on Germany after her unconditional surrender, "unconditional surrender" terms, it is believed, that such a draft already exists.

3. The switching of the might of the Allied war machine to the Far East immediately upon the collapse of Germany. The prospect of an earlier than was expected defeat of Japan, consequent upon the Philippine invasion and the British Burma offensive, may result in an alteration of the strategy so far planned for the Pacific theatre.

4. The political questions arising out of the liberation of Europe and the Balkans. Harry Hopkins, Mr. Roosevelt's adviser, is reported to have stated in Rome "the impossibility of leaving the Balkans until after the war."

5. Polish relations, the status of France as a partner in the Allied control of Germany, and the Dodecanese question.

Big Three Meeting Stirs Balkan Hopes For Greater Post-War Collaboration

By FRANK O'BRIEN
(AP Staff Writer)

Ankara, Feb. 7 — (AP) — Hope beat strong among the Balkan nations today that the "Big Three" conference, now reported in progress, may open the way to peaceful, post-war collaboration through the great powers in dealing with southeastern Europe.

There was a steadfast conviction in the Balkans that the conference is being held in some part of the Black Sea region and that its proximity will speedily bring to a head many problems which historically have troubled the peace of Europe.

Bulgarian-occupied Bulgaria, Rumania and Yugoslavia, British occupied Greece and Turkey, viewed the conference with mixed feelings of hope and fear.

If the meeting ends without an unequivocal agreement giving British and American political methods and economic practices an equal footing with Russian influence in Russian-occupied countries, there is likely to be a conviction in the Balkans that the western powers have made a bargain — and turned their backs on southeastern Europe.

Under such good relations with Russia, but her unique position as a bridge between the Mediterranean Black Sea, Europe, the Middle East and the Balkans gives her added reasons for desiring good relations on all sides and not coming under diplomatic and economic domination of any one power.

The solution of the Greek tragedy also may depend on a conference decision. Most Greeks prize self desire a conference-established equilibrium between the Left and Right forces which would produce a desired reforms without another civil war.

Bulgars generally deplore the excesses of their armistice government and wonder what has become of the civil rights, freedom of speech, press and assembly guaranteed by the Atlantic Charter.

Rumania, where things are better than in the first unpredictable days of the Russian occupation, gains from the conference recognition of a cobelligerent and an agreement that the armistice terms with Russia and the Allies will be applied as written.

In general, the Balkan peoples do not wish to trade war-liquidated Nazi dictatorships for any other outside dictatorship or home-grown "iron fist."

Russians Attack Heavily on Entire Length of Front

Nazi Broadcasters Admit Hun Defences Are Cracking

London, Feb. 7 —(AP)— Berlin broadcasts asserted today the Red army's massive blows had broadened its ominous bridgeheads over the Oder river 26 miles or less east of Berlin and in the Silesian corner to the southeast.

Marshal Gregory Zhukov expanded his foothold over the great water barrier in the area of Kustrin, 60 miles from Berlin, and 12 tanks smashed "temporarily" into the centre of Kustrin itself, Berlin said, adding that Soviets were assaulting heavily "along the entire east front from Slovakia to Ehel Prussia."

The admissions that German defences were cracking along almost the entire length of the Oder came from enemy broadcasters who, in tones of alarm, told of the massive Russian drives upon the heart of the Reich.

50-Mile Front

In Silesia, the Germans reported new gains by Marshal Ivan Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army which had breached the Oder on a 50-mile front and plunged 12 1/3 miles beyond the stream in a drive aimed directly Berlin from the flank and the Berlin-Prague defence axis.

German broadcasters reported numerous crossings of the Oder in the Kustrin-Frankfurt area east of Berlin and farther southeast at Steinau, 23 miles northwest of Breslau. Konev's break-through was southeast of Breslau.

Zhukov was hammering the Kustrin-Frankfurt zone with a record concentration of artillery, Moscow dispatches said. He has not yet claimed a crossing.

In addition to gains reported numerous crossings of the Oder in the Kustrin-Frankfurt area east of Berlin and farther southeast at Steinau, 23 miles northwest of Breslau. Konev's break-through was southeast of Breslau.

Zhukov was hammering the Kustrin-Frankfurt zone with a record concentration of artillery, Moscow dispatches said. He has not yet claimed a crossing.

In addition to gains reported yesterday in the Kustrin bridgehead, the latest official Moscow reports disclosed only minor German counter-attacks and further progress in clearing out the Germans defending Budapest.

Moscow gave no details of the fighting on the 1st White Russian front east of Berlin, where Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's forces were posing the most immediate threat to the German capital. The latest official Moscow announcements dealt with both Zhukov's bridgeheads, being besieged and that Zhukov had captured Kustrin, 35 miles northeast of Berlin.

Great Fortified Defences

The frustrated defences on the Oder in Silesia, Konev's army "broke through the heavily fortified permanent German defences on the western bank of Moscow said, and captured such important communications junctions and powerful defence points as Lowen, Thomaskirch, Grottkau, Lowen and Schweinitz.

A supplement to the Moscow midnight communique said the crossing was achieved only under "enormous difficulties," the river at this point being swollen by 500 yards wide and frozen only at the edges. Several small bridgeheads were won first. These later were joined into one continuous front extending from the southeast of Breslau to the area of Appeln, capital of upper Silesia, which was captured last week.

Considerable Sum Needed To Attain Book Fund Quota

The officers and crew join in thanking each and every one for every success in your wonderful undertaking in the happiness and welfare of the members of the forces. The books were distributed to the various messes and the Navy as a whole is greatly indebted to this good women."

So reads an excerpt from a letter received from crew members of a ship adopted by the I.O.D.E. expressing appreciation for gifts of books, and the generous spirit through this organization which is doing so much to give comfort to members of the armed services.

Good reading materials are in urgent demand by members of the forces. Thus the life of a book on active service is short, much too short considering the tremendous demand. And thus the only way to supply needed reading material is through the purchase of new books. To purchase new books requires money and it is for this end that the I.O.D.E. is conducting its current Library Campaign through which it is expected to raise $300,000 across Canada.

Belleville's share of that amount has been set at $1,000 and although contributions have been steadily coming in the goal is still far from being reached. Any one may call bank branches, or regents of the I.O.D.E. chapters, Mrs. Neale or Mrs. Donovan, will gladly accept your contribution.

Unity in Peace and War is Base For Sound Nation Says Airman In Letter to Rednersville W.I.

"There is but one way to defeat our military enemy—a concerted effort in all directions, manufacture, industry, military, social research, policy and all the fields, that go, to make a nation. The same resolution to understand the other, and to remain united and progressive people must result in the peace. If this does not happen, then we shall all others born in hatred, will conceive in hatred, and shall glean nothing from this mass terror."

The above is an excerpt from a letter written from the battlefields of Europe by Flight Lieutenant Joseph Foley, D.F.C., of Kingston, Ont., to members of the Rednersville Women's Institute.

Flt.-Lt. Foley won his decoration a few weeks ago for conspicuous gallantry in the air, and is the first Kingstonian of Wellington to bring the honor of the D.F.C. to his native village.

We have no doubts concerning who shall once again be victors in this struggle," the young officer writes. "We still are flushed with the fever of continuous victory and the success of putting-set-backs behind us. I think we all have appreciations concerning peaceless civilization. We know a victorious army is not the whole answer to our future happiness as a nation.

You Easily Swayed.

"We are a gullible people. We are easily led, easily to the route of error. We are moved by its mob behavior, by the politic, it sometimes represents, for all the while we pride ourselves in our democracy, individualism and the act of thinking. I think of a recent incident in our own country. Shall we conscript, or shall we not? Shall we promote racial hatred or shall we not?

"One of the squadrons with which I am now working is composed of French Canadians. They represent some of the finest lads I have met. We find our democratic nation not too small to use human. We find ourselves, sometimes sometimes wonder what our nation expects as error to think when such a vital thing, the existence of a nation, the giving of life, is cheapened by such childish animosity. We have learned to respect people by the way they have represented themselves to us—and that Americanism has been one of such deep comradeship and loyalty and understanding that there is discrepancy to no one.

"These are the things or Canada that we remember. These are the qualities that we think are worth fighting for and for which many of your sons and friends have paid the supreme sacrifice.

"Then we read with much bitterness, the stupid quarrels of our own great dominion, and we have not much argument to offer in defence when the Allies point the stupidity to us, shall we be the laughing stock of our Allies and of our enemies because our politicians call parties—not country—and bring into power through the blood of the sons of Canada?"

Flt.-Lieut. Foley closes his letter with words of appreciation to the members of the Institute for favors shown him in the past.

Corbyville Takes Decided Edge In Playdowns

Stirling — (Special) — Corbyville took a decided edge in the first game of the central Hastings Rural Hockey League semi-finals played in the Stirling arena Tuesday evening, when they swamped the Centennials, expected to hang up a decisive 6-0 victory. As a result they will enter the second game of the series, total goals to count, as decided favorites.

Winners of the above series will go into the league finals against the Eion Hill-West Huntingdon "Combines" to start next week.

The Corbyville boys practically had the game sighted again in the first period as they banged in four goals without a return. Loose work around the net by the boys's defence helped the winner's cause, while Ritz in the Corbyville nets turned everything away which the opposition could fire at him.

Goal getters in the lightning first period were Martin, Sheffield and Farrell with the first named player counting twice. Assists were earned by Thompson and Wall.

Gray opened the scoring for goal in the second canto on a pass from Sheffield, while Gray took Thompson's passout in the third to end the scoring. Penalties were quite evenly divided between the teams giving the odd one in seven.

Lineups:

Corbyville — Goal, Ritz; defence, Woods and Gray; forwards, Thompson, Sheffield and Gray; subs, Bills, Farrell, Guay, Wall, Martin and Carlton.

Centennary — Goal, May; defence, M. Wale and Hall; forwards, Donnelly, Cole, D. Waite; subs, Thornton, Bellis, Nicholson, F. Wale and Bellis.

8 LEGISLATURES TO BE IN ACTION DURING EBRUARY

Manitoba and British Columbia Houses Opened on Tuesday

Ottawa, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Prospects of a federal election holds national attention closely on Ottawa capital, but across the nation eight of Canada's provincial legislatures are quietly swinging into action — or will be before the end of February. And they are practically unnoticed in the political tension of the moment.

The Dominion's ninth province, Prince Edward Island, where the last election was held in 1943 and the next isn't due for two years, made no announced plans for immediate opening of its legislature.

Manitoba and British Columbia opened their provincial houses yesterday — a day after polling ended in the heated campaign of the Grey North federal by-election. So the Throne Speech promises of the two western provinces were all but lost in the political excitement of the Ontario riding.

Quebec, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Alberta will hold or are building their first legislative sessions since a provincial election.

In Saskatchewan, Feb. 15 is the opening date for the first regular session of the legislature since Premier T. C. Douglas, Regina minister turned politician, led the C.C.F. to its first victory in any provincial general election in the Dominion.

In Quebec City today former premier Maurice Duplessis whose Union Nationale forces were elected last Aug. 8, takes his administration into the legislature for a new session. In Alberta Premier E. C. Manning leads a reinforced Social Credit government — fathered in 1935 by the late Premier William Aberhart — back into the legislature Feb. 22. The last Alberta election also was Aug. 8.

Ontario House to Open Feb. 15

Ontario's legislature is scheduled to open Feb. 15 — the second session for Premier George Drew's Progressive Conservative administration elected in August, 1943.

In New Brunswick, Premier J. B. McNair, whose Liberal government was elected Aug. 28, has yet to announce the opening date of the legislature but it is expected to be before the month's end. Nova Scotia's legislature is due to open Feb. 15th.

Post-war plans highlight the legislative programs across the country.

Health, education and rural electrification were given special mention in the Throne Speech at the opening of the Manitoba legislature while plans in British Columbia called for establishment of a Hydro-Electric Commission to develop provincial power and a broad highway program.

Alberta's Housing Plan

A proposed $1,000,000 housing program is included in Alberta's plans while Quebec's administration promises a youth ministry and abolition of the two per cent retail sales tax.

In Ontario Premier Drew will probably plan continued implementation of the administration's 22-point program. Highlight of the program — assumption by the province of half the cost of education — has already been undertaken.

Letter Tells of Dutch Gratitude to Canada

"You can say to every one in Canada that we Dutchmen are grateful with all our hearts to Canada and her noble folk for the big part they have played in our liberation," writes Mr. G. Petit and family of Nijmegen, Holland, to Mrs. E. E. Scraton of this city.

Mrs. Stratton's son, Earl, who is with the Canadian forces fighting in Holland was a recent guest of the Dutch family and received exceptionally fine treatment in their home.

"Every night", said the Dutch writer, "we pray to God that He will bless you and your noble folk. Please do the same for our dear Fatherland, which we love so much and for which so many of our poor folk are suffering under the cruel rule of the Nazis.

"The Germans gave us so many heartaches. It is a pity Canada is so far away because we would like to come to your farm to tell you so many things about Holland. We could tell you many good things Earl did for us and which we shall never forget. You can be proud of such a good son. We enjoy ourselves very much when he is at our house".

Details of Crash Given Parents Of Son Killed

Picton, Feb. 7 — Details of the plane crash in a mountain side, the officer stated. There were scattered snow fields, a strong wind and poor visibility, all of which may have been contributing factors in the accident. The force of the impact completely destroyed the aircraft and all the crew were instantly killed.

Officers killed in the crash were Pl. Lt. E. P. Oakford, Elmworth, Alberta; P/O. F. W. Latham, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Lt. W. J. Pettigrew, Jacquet River, N.B.; Pvt. H. Hobson, Burgh, Winnipeg; WO. J. N. Macdonald, Montreal; Sgt. R. C. Rice, Kingstown, N.S.; Sgt. D. G. Bevington, Vancouver.

He spoke on Russia and of Stalin, who was a school mate of his.

Poultry Products Co-operative Holds Meeting

Picton, Feb. 7 — The important role played by Prince Edward Poultry Products Co-operative was discussed at the annual meeting held here. Co-operative Manager Howard Leavens stated that business was up $12,000 over last year, though prices for eggs and poultry were lower. This year, the emphasis is on quality. Last year, a surplus of forty cars of poultry was exported to the United States.

Frank Ham, president of the Co-operative, said Lennox Farmers had benefitted much by the Prince Edward Co-operative. Howard Leavens, president Prince Edward Fruit Growers, R. R. Read, auditor, and D. P. Pyke, bank manager, spoke briefly.

Garnet Taylor, Wellington, said he thought the Co-operative movement might be the solution to one of the evils which have caused two wars in one generation.

Guest speaker was Leonard Harvey, secretary U.F.O. Co-operative (Ontario), who exploded several economic fallacies. There are no supermen in business, he declared. Success is the result of democratic citizens contributing to an industry. He felt that it was wrong to say "every man has his price." There are tremendous numbers of people who are not for sale for ideals and are "not for sale". It is usual to blame somebody else for our troubles, but we ourselves can change the conditions we deplore he said. It has been proven, through the Federal Farm Agricultural, that farmers can be organized, and it has also been proved that co-operatives can work. These are in contrast to those who say they cannot be. Mr. Harvey spoke on the value and needs of co-operatives.

J. Owen Herity Tells Kiwanians Of Mexico

The beauty of Mexico and the western part of the United States was graphically described to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday by J. Owen Herity, member of the club and manager of the Chamber of Commerce. This address has been delivered before other service clubs in the city and fraternal organizations and each time it becomes more interesting. Mr. Herity therefore divided into the main portion of the address praised the Kiwanis Club for the number of members they had serving in community enterprises. Ald. Jack Trudeau was elected president of the Associated Boards of Commerce recently. Lorne McDougall is serving as president of the Kiwanis Club and director of the Chamber of Commerce and Rotarian Cliff Smith is president of the Rotary Club and director of the Chamber of Commerce, while Frank S. Pollwell is serving as mayor of the city. Mr. Herity claimed that Lorne and Frank should both enter matrimonial bliss instead of the bachelor lifethey now apparently are enjoying.

Mr. Herity was introduced by A. B. Collins, who concluded with the phrase "He is a man beloved by all, an outstanding citizen, scholar, writer, lecturer, diplomat and an ambassador of goodwill on the North American Continent. Mr. Herity stated his trip was somewhat of a surprise and he represented the Rotary Clubs of Canada on a committee of seven to deal with returned men's problems and received the invitation through Dick Wellen, a Rotarian friend of high standing. He told of the Rotary Clubs of Canada and their members explaining there was only one Rotary Club in each city no matter the population. Mr. Herity visited the club on Pounders Night and two of the original founders of Rotary were present.

Leaving Chicago Mr. Herity visited Excelsior Springs, Lexington, Missouri, where all the soldiers of a Rotary meeting and had a song fest in his honor. He also visited Salt Lake City, Reno, Nevada, a state where there is no public debt, no income tax and no succession duties. Dealing with Mexico, Mr. Herity stated eighty per cent of the population was pure bred Indians or mixed Indians, the people being of equal stature but withal a most hospitable people. The speaker stated that Mexico was enjoying the greatest boom in the world having one hundred capital industries and 99 per cent of the children going to school. "The only thing you don't want to do is to hurry a Mexican," said the speaker. Lorne McDougall presided with Harold Carruthers in charge of the community singing and Fred Lewis collecting the fines.

C.N.R. Engineer Retires After 40 Years of Service

After handling the throttles of Canadian Northern and Canadian National locomotives for a period of approximately 40 years, Mr. Robert Bolton, 263 Charles Street, passenger engineer running between Belleville and Brighton, has retired from the service on January 20th.

Born in England Mr. Bolton came to Canada as a boy. Developing a liking for railroading he entered the employ of the Canadian Northern as an engine wiper in July, 1902 and after three months started as a fireman. He became a locomotive engineer in 1905 and has since made the handling of locomotive throttles his life's work. All his railroading has been done in the Bay of Quinte district, having been stationed first at Deseronto, then at Napanee, Tweed, and Trenton, coming to Belleville 13 years ago.

A family man, he and Mrs. Bolton have a son Cpl. Charles Bolton overseas with the R.C.A.F., stationed with a motor transport unit, and a daughter, Rose Rose David on the facific coast. Their son-in-law, Flt. Lt. Leo Gay is well known in Belleville having been stationed at Trenton for some time before being transferred to the west.

Fox Plays Tag With Two Hounds

"Fox and Hounds" the game that still delights youthful Canada, was played recently on the farm of Wesley Gray, and Conception Bay Thurlow, with natural actors in the cast, and natural scenery as a background.

Mr. Gray, it appears was watering his stock when he noticed three animals, a fox and two dogs, kind of a game in a snow-covered plane about a mile from the farmyard.

He watched with some interest as the smaller of the dogs, rather than the other two, had little difficulty in evading their pursuit. Closer scrutiny revealed the animals to be two hounds and a fox. One hound larger than the other—had difficulty in negotiating the deep snow, while the smaller one, which appeared to be something of a huntsman, endeavored to head off the quarry.

But Brer Fox, much lighter than his pursuers, had no trouble in keeping well out of danger. He scampered across the snow well ahead of the heavier dogs and later disappeared through a fence into another field.

Mr. Gray was of the opinion that the dogs were in the employ of a fox hunter who had much more difficulty keeping track than did his dogs.

County Councillor James Hagerty stated that reports from the middle and northern sections of the county, reveal that foxes are quite numerous this winter.

In some parts of Northern Ontario, he said, they have become a real menace to farmers and to some counties have decided to pay a bounty of $5 for each fox pelt delivered to officials.

RUSSIAN WRITER ASSAILS VATICAN

G. Kofman in Red Star Calls Pontiff "Preacher of a Soft Peace"

By DANIEL DeLUCE
(AP Staff Writer)

Moscow, Feb. 7 — (AP) — K. Gofman, writing in Red Star today, called Pope Pius the champion of Germany and the "preacher of a soft peace" and apparently served notice that the Soviet Union would resist any Vatican interference in Germany, Austria, Hungary and Poland.

Gofman's sharply-worded international review, without referring to the meeting of the Big Three, said the time was ripe for the Allied powers to settle the post-war fate of Hitler's Germany.

The author singled out Dorothy Thompson, New York columnist, as an example of elements in the United States and Britain which he declared "try to break down Allied unity in the last stage of the European war, accusing the Soviet Union and Britain of unilateral actions."

Arrogueria Supporting Russian Policy

Using quotations attributed to Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's associate, and editorials in the Kansas City Star and the New York Herald Tribune, the author gave arguments supporting the Russian policy in behalf of the security system of Europe and against the Allied political record in Italy.

Hopkins, the writer said, exposed the presence of Fascists in Italy's government and army.

But against the Pope the author mounted his strongest attack. He began with the charge that the Vatican's wartime policy had been pro-Nazi and had included attempts to "save Mussolini and prevent the democratization of Italy."

Gofman cited a French News Agency report that the Pope was preparing a new message which would run contrary to the Allied program for post-war Europe.

"The Vatican's anti-Soviet campaign on the Polish question is being carried on by the Catholic Press in England and the United States", he declared. "The Vatican's policy in Italy has been taken as a precedent for expansion also in Germany, Austria and farther east over Hungary and Poland. The Vatican is the last political leader for a Communist-Polish bankrupts such as Raczkiewicz, Sosnkowski and Arciszewski, (Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, president; Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, former commander in chief of the armed forces, and Tomasz Arciszewski, premier of the London Polish Government.)

"The Vatican is trying to turn back history, revive Russian-Polish hostility. Under the slogan there is no Catholic Fascism', terror bands are being organized to fight against democratic Poland".

In New York, Miss Thompson's secretary said the columnist was out of town and not available for comment on the Red Star article.

Home and School Assoc. Of B C I Holds Meeting

General endorsement of the aims and policies of the newly-formed Belleville Collegiate Home and School Association, and the work it has undertaken to do, was given at the first meeting of the organization last night in the school auditorium, by a large attendance of parents, teachers and officials.

Under the chairmanship of President Harold Mott, the inaugural get-together of potential and active members developed into more or less a sight-seeing tour of the school and many of its classes which were in full swing for the benefits of the Home and School visitors and clubwomen.

The business session of the meeting was brief, in order to give more time to the inspection of classrooms and classes and the building as a whole.

A highlight of this part of the meeting, and as a matter of fact its first order of business was the presentation of a handsome chairman's gavel to President Mott, by Principal W. S. Turner. The gavel is a product of the skilful hands of Donald Boyle, B.C.I. student, and was made in the woodworking shops of the Vocational School.

Two Motions Endorsed.

Two motions received the unanimous support of the meeting. The Association Executive, through one of the motions received the authority to spend the amount of $10 monthly, without the necessity of referring to the general body. The second motion embodied the appointment of Mrs. Ray Mott, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Wishart, Miss Dwyer, and Mr. Robins, to the association executive.

Mr. Gilbert Blackhouse, chairman of the membership committee in a brief address urged the co-operation of all charter members and others in increasing the membership to the goal of 1,000 members, amount to 25 cents per member. Members visited the various classes in the vocational school and were conducted through their phases of activities by teachers and instructors in charge. The committee of department of the school was also instructed by the visitors.

Refreshments served in the school cafeteria climaxed the first meeting of the association. All subsequent meetings will be held on the first Monday of the month, it was announced by President Mott.

Argentina Swarming With Hitler Agents Says Russian Paper

London, Feb. 7 (CP)—An editorial in the Russian naval newspaper, Red Fleet, broadcast today by the Moscow radio, declared Argentina was "swarming with Hitler agents."

It is well known that there are Hitlerite funds totalling many millions in Argentina and that money is being used to provide a basis for creation of a new German war machine are incessantly pouring into that country," the editorial said.

The newspaper said that, despite statement by the Argentine government that it would not grant asylum to war criminals nor permit them to invest money or acquire property there, the facts tell a different story.

"Every day from Stuttgart there arrive in Barcelona German planes with Hitlerites who then proceed to Argentina," it charged. "The country is swarming with Hitlerite agents. German investments in Argentina are estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars, controlled chiefly in war industry."

Dramatic Liberation

In the impending fate of Germany, the Japanese warlords and their henchmen can read their doom. "On to Berlin" has been the Allied battlecry which has led the Allies into Germany to threaten Hitler and his gang and the whole wretched caste and has brought the Russian armies almost within gunfire of the Nazi German capital.

The fall of Manila, in the words of General MacArthur, ends "one great phase or the Pacific struggle and sets the stage for another . . . We shall not rest until the enemy is completely overthrown . . . We are well on our way, but Japan itself is our final goal . . . Our motto becomes "On to Tokyo!" Of the Japanese reign in Manila, he said the enemy's "complete destruction is imminent."

It was with a dramatic flourish that the end came to the Nipponese sway in "the Pearl of the Pacific" with the arrival of American paratroopers from the south. It was the knockout blow that ended Japanese aggression there.

The reconquest of the Philippines has come with a swiftness which has undone the enemy and rather surprised the whole world. General MacArthur has lived up to his great name as a strategist of highest rank in the tempting steadily the enemy to judgment of battle.

Typical of the release from the bondage which has been held over the islands by the aggressors was the freeing of more than five thousand prisoners who had known for more than three years the agony of imprisonment under Japanese conditions. Well might these liberated people feel that already in large numbers the forces of democracy have written the end of Japan's evil sway over the islands and lands of the Pacific. "On to Tokyo!"

"Public Opinion, Better Health Standards"

We are ready to believe that Mr. Average Citizen wants good health for himself, his wife and his children. He wants better health—in fact he wants the best possible health. But, is he going the right way about attaining what he wants?

One of the most accurate answers to that lies in his annual expenditures, in municipal taxation, for public health services of his community. It is safe to say that the per capita expenditure on public health in the well-established Canada would not buy a first class seat at an opera. It also is safe to say that the average expenditure per capita in many municipalities is very low.

In fact, this average per capita expenditure would range around the dollar-mark. On the other hand, the cost of preventable illness in Canada has been estimated by our authorities as at least $27 per capita per annum. In other words, for every dollar we spend on public health services we are throwing away $27 in preventing illness.

How can this be changed? Only by an advanced public opinion. A constant stream of challenging health facts and suggestions may build up an enlightened public opinion to demand a better health basis and highest standards of health legislation.

This work of public health education is the basic function of the Health League of Canada, which for 25 years has been cooperating with our official departments of health to raise our whole status in public health.

Great Air Raids Continue

Everyone remembers how during the past couple of years news of the mass air raids by Allied planes have been the great news of the war against Germany. Today, though a great deal of the war effort is being carried out by the great Allied invasions on land, on the Siegfried Line front and on the Italian front, we become more and more aware that the great air navies of Britain with the R.A.F. and of the United States continue lending impressive aid to the land operations.

Back in the early days of the war, the world could not have projected its imagination so far into the future as to see such demonstrations of modern scientific power as raids by planes numbering thousands. There was a time when the air raiders smashed at communications and war industries, to minimize the production of German armaments and prevent the transportation of war materials and finished products and also struck at oil wells and refineries. Today the work of harassing communications is very important and the planes serve effectively. They take part in the fighting and with all Germany and the whole eastern front within air range of bombing fleets the strategical advantage of bombing becomes very great and plays no small part in the war in this closing stage when the enemy is being bound in on all sides, impossible of escape from justpunishment.

Meanwhile the territory to be bombed is shrinking steadily. Planes can play no unimportant part in the land battles in which Germany is being steadily pushed to her extremity, which will be unconditional surrender according to Allied plan.

British Housing for Elderly

The experiments which voluntary agencies are carrying out for the housing of elderly people with slender means will be very substantially augmented if the London County Council can carry through their post-war scheme for providing one-room flats for the old folk. Their scheme will be dependent on the sympathetic cooperation of the Ministry of Health, as State subsidies will be necessary to keep the rent of the flats within the means of the elderly folk.

There will be nothing "institutional about the L.C.C. scheme. One-room flats will be included in housing estates in London and cottage estates outside, and the tenants, single people as well as married couples, will be made to feel that they belong to a community, and not that they have been segregated because they are old.

The flats will be so arranged that those who are able-bodied can run them for themselves. Other tenants, who though frail are not in need of what is known as "institutional treatment," will be in the care of a residential supervisor, who will give them what attention they require. Provision will also be made for those who do need institutional treatment.

Central Heating

(Montreal Herald)

It is hard to understand why the coal shortages of recent years have not produced some central heating project.

Although many Montrealers apparently know little about it, central heating is not an untried utopian experiment. It is a tried and proven system.

Homes of several towns and small cities in the United States are heated from central plants.

Heat produced in such a plant is piped to buildings in a restricted area and consumed and charged on the same basis as electricity or gas. The consumer uses and pays for just as much heat as he requires.

Central heating plant system several years ago and residents of the best sections of the western city today receive their heat in this convenient way.

Efficiently operated either as a municipal or private enterprise project, central heating appears to supply the answer to the acute heating problems of many Canadian communities—perhaps including Montreal.

It has one peculiar advantage for times like the present. Large central plants can consume fuels against which the household furnace rebels.

The cheapest and least easily combustible grades of coal and coke—and even sawdust or peat where these are available in quantity—can be used.

In addition to the money saving which this represents, it seems to provide the logical solution to shortages of domestic anthracite.

British scientists have evolved a new treatment based on penicillin which will master the common cold. The new treatment will not be available until after the war. This is because manufacture of the British-discovered drug is reserved for battle casualties and special diseases.

STILL IT STAYS

So it was at Calvary:
One man died that good might be.
Still it stays; and none knows why:
For the right, men have to die!

So it was at Galilee:
One said brotherhood should be;
One for love stood firm and straight;
Him they crucified in hate.

This He said: "To others do
As you would-they'd do to you!
Here as brothers all abide."
And for teaching that He died!

Still it stays: misunderstood
Are the brave who hold for good.
Still, for truth and God on high
There are many who must die.

OFF THE RECORD

"Wrong number, eh?—Well, how about giving me yours so I can get even."

Hillmen of Burma Are Loyal Allies

Not so long ago, the Nagas, mountain tribes, were headhunters; they are now staunch allies of Britain in Burma, says British Information Service. When Field Marshal Alexander was pulling his army out of Burma in 1942, Nagas labored to keep the roads open despite the monsoon washouts. When the Japanese occupied the country they tried very hard to win the Nagas over, because their services as interpreters, government officials and policemen would have been invaluable. But the hillmen are fierce patriots and the enemy efforts met with no success.

The tribesmen have enlisted freely in the Assam Rifles and the Assam Regiment, and at one time during the fighting last summer Nagas captured more Japanese prisoners than the whole of the Fourteenth Army. They were also credited with the largest single bag of prisoners on the Assam front, namely nine. A Naga interpreter who had served in France in the last war found the nine Japs in a village and gathered a group of villagers and arrested them.

Intelligence Experts

Intelligence work is the Nagas' specialty. They work right among the Japs and gather priceless information for the British staff. Many of our air strikes were based directly on information brought by the Nagas. And besides giving such valuable intelligence to the Indian Army they have also fooled the Japs by giving them false information. They have frequently harbored Jap deserters and guided them into our lines, and have aided our prisoners escaping from enemy custody; and their co-operation has been an important factor in preventing the infiltration of Jap agents into India.

Villages which have been in enemy hands for as long as three months, have still maintained resistance, kept contact with British units and even possible have sent runners with information. They have brought in many wounded British soldiers and airmen, on improvised bamboo stretchers, for miles through apparently-impassable, sometimes fighting off enemy patrols to get them through.

Aided by Woman

Much credit for the organization of Naga tribesmen and for the establishment of observation posts in their hill country must be assigned to a 30-year-old London woman, Ursula V. Graham Power, who has lived alone among the Nagas for six years, studying them, taking photographs and collecting material for a book.

She has gained extraordinary influence over the hillmen who regard her with respect and loyalty, and she has a faithful bodyguard of two loyal Naga tribesmen who accompany her everywhere. When the Japs were reported to be within 15 miles of her hilltop headquarters and she was advised to come out, she signaled, "I am going forward to find out what is going on," and "I am 10 more rifles." She set up a system of warnings by beacon and runner so that our armies should know from which direction the Jap raid toward the vital Assam railway was coming.

Equally stout allies are the men from the Chin Hills. For many years past the tribesmen have enlisted in a battalion of the old Burma Military Police, of which six battalions now constitute the Burma Frontier Force. Recently the Chins have also developed a system of armed levies which makes every villager a guerilla fighter.

Other Hill Fighters

There is also a group of tribes in the Kachin Hills who have developed a guerilla organization similar to the Chins. Their levies constitute the biggest of the hill forces. One unit of them, known as the American Kachin Rangers, protected the American air fields on the Port Hertz-Myitkyina road. The Northern Kachin Levies are under British command. Their commander, Officer is Lt.-Col. Ford, formerly of the Burma Rifles. Of their senior officers, eight are British, two Anglo-Burmese, five Karen and two Kachin.

Another more or less guerilla group is the Lushai Brigade. The Lushai and Chins have been traditional enemies for centuries but are now united like brothers against their common enemy, the Japanese.

All of this enthusiastic support for the Allied cause was a great deal for the devoted work of generations of British officers in the remote hill country, who have created a deep mutual affection between themselves and the people they have served. These fillmen are simple people who cannot be expected to grasp the profounder implications of side alma, the powerful inducements to betray have been offered them by the Japanese—generous bribes on one hand and brutal tortures and death on the other. These inducements have been scorned, and the Allied cause has been immeasurably helped by these staunch and clever allies from the hills.

Whey Used for Penicillin

(From the Montreal Family Herald)

The Canadian farmer's gift to healing has been made known by Hon. Ian Mackinzie, Department of Agriculture with the announcement that whey collected from seven factories in Ontario there are 1,081 patrons, 907 of whom sold their whey and 144 of whom fattened to take their whey home for feeding to hogs.

The average milk price for the eight months, paid by these factories to the farmers who sold their whey was 2.46 per 100 lbs., and the average price paid by those who took their whey home was $2.62. The average price paid by six factories in the same district which did not sell whey was only $1.94, thus giving the farmer who sold his whey a return of more per 100 lbs for milk on the average for the eight months, or an average of $13.50 per factory.

Minister Explains

When whey marketing was first proposed, it met with considerable opposition from those who feared that hog production might suffer from the loss of whey as feed, officials said. The Agricultural and the Agriculture Department carefully checked the collection of whey. It presented its whey marketing program to the dairying patrons, who themselves decided on the purpose of part, at least of their whey through this new outlet.

A check on production disclosed no evidence of any curtailment in hog raising.

Present requirements of penicillin call for about 45 tons of milk sugar a month. With recent increases in the capacity of plants producing penicillin, 1945 production of this drug may require more than 60 tons a month.

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE

The grandfather clause was a provision in the constitutions under which a person's right to vote was based on his descent from a voter. It was a device to prevent Negroes to vote while preventing Negroes from voting.

The 15th Amendment of the Constitution, which became effective in 1870, declared that the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Georgia, North Carolina, Louisiana and several other Southern States, which sought to disfranchise Negroes from voting, attempted to circumvent the 15th Amendment by writing into their state constitutions educational requirements and property qualifications for voting.

For the benefit of illiterate whites who could not meet the literacy requirements, a further tradition grew up that if a man's father or grandfather had voted in certain elections, he himself was entitled to vote.

This grandfather clause was finally declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in 1915. Oklahoma had put such an amendment into the Union until 1907, adopted a grandfather clause in its constitution.

In 1914 the Supreme Court of the United States declared the Oklahoma provision in conflict with the 15th Amendment, and therefore unconstitutional.

While there was no mention of race, color or previous condition of servitude, the court held the effect was to disfranchise former slaves and their descendants.

In the other states the grandfather clause expired by self- limitation.

Women's Christian Association Hears Fine Reports of Achievement in 1944

The Home for the Aged has completed a very satisfactory year, and the Belleville General Hospital a very active one, it was shown by the annual reports presented at the annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association in the Board Room of the hospital on Tuesday afternoon. During the year 1944 it was reported, the Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary spent a total of approximately $1,200 directly on the hospital, and since its organization it has spent $5,200 for hospital work.

One major difficulty in regards to the hospital is lack of bed space. To overcome this condition, the Provincial Government has made available to the Women's Christian Association $100,000, half the sum necessary to erect a hospital for chronic and convalescent patients. The City Council and the County of Hastings Council have jointly granted $60,000 toward the erection of this hospital, but the sum required is still required. A direct plea is made to the citizens of Belleville to give the financial support the W.C.A. needs for this very worthy undertaking.

Mrs. Abrams President.

Chairman for the meeting was Mrs. R. Wray, president of the organization. Rev. C. O. Gundy opening conducted a short devotional period after which the secretary-corresponding secretary, Mrs. Carl Reed said the report had been typed of the monthly meetings and of the correspondence which was sent to the local paper. W.C.A. notes, a missing girls to the Home for the Aged mentioned, a resume of work at the Home for the month, services held and any outstanding items of business, discussed at the monthly meetings. A resume of the year's local paper. Twenty-one letters were written, 27 cards of condolence and seventeen business letters sent. Mail was received from the treasurer for clearance.

In her opening remarks to the organization Mrs. R. Purdy, outgoing president, stated, "Since its inauguration sixty-five years ago, this undenominational organization has been carrying on its work for the betterment of the people of Belleville." Mrs. Purdy expressed regret that she was unable to be present in the Home for the Aged, She, also, mentioned Mrs. Lynch, who as chairman of the Hospital Auxiliary has had the difficult task of seeing that the proceeds from a trust fund left to the W.C.A. by the late Senator Bleecker are wisely spent and distributed among the needy Belleville indigents. Pte. Sero is leaving Wednesday for Camp Borden, and Mrs. Sero will live at her parents' home for the present.

Governors Thanked

On behalf of the W.C.A. Mrs. Purdy expressed thanks and appreciation to the Board of Governors, which directs the affairs of the hospital. She expressed regret over the resignation of Mrs. Wm. Ross after ten years' service as recording secretary and Mrs. A. E. Hoyle a member of the Home Board. She extended a welcome to Mrs. Gordon as new directoress of student nurses. Thanks was expressed to Dr. Cronk for the gift of a still for preparing distilled water to the hospital, also to the advisory board for its valuable assistance in making important decisions.

"At the end of last year there were fifteen reported in residence at the Home," stated Mrs. Purdy. Thompson, chairman of the Home Board. "Four of these died and to the fact that decorating had been done early in the year by Mrs. Harrison. A very successful garden was also looked after by Mr. Hart's son in the past year. On behalf of the People of the Home for the Aged, Mrs. Thompson expressed appreciation to all who had remembered the inmates with gifts and entertainment. She also extended appreciation to the clergy of the city who held services there during the year, to the Salvation Army who were so thoughtful, to Dr. Cronk and Dr. Miles who gave their time and service in caring for the ill at the Home and to Mr. Jack Holley for his service. Lt.-Col. F. H. Wills, speaking for Kiwanis club provided tobacco twice a week for the men at the Home which is greatly appreciated. In her closing remarks, Mrs. Purdy expressed each one of the Home Board members for her help and co-operation, and the president and members of the W.C.A. for the splendid co-operation they have given to the Home, high praise is also due Mrs. Harrison, matron of the Home, and Miss Hudson of the Nursing Staff and interest taken in the patients.

Resume of Work Done.

Mrs. H. R. Wray, representing the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, gave a resume of its work since its organization in the year 1936. The object of the auxiliary, she said, "is to promote kindly feeling toward the hospital throughout Belleville and the wide district the hospital serves." In 1936 the auxiliary spent $221 on refurnishing the waiting room at the hospital and $60 for new lamp shades. In 1937 it joined the Ontario Hospital Association, and in the same year it donated $300 for furnishing of a private room in the hospital, purchased a mobile anesthetic machine for $400 on it. In January 1940 a further $200 was given on the X-ray machine. The balance of $305 was given toward the mobile machine making a total of $1,505 in the year 1941 the auxiliary purchased a Zarmite press at a cost of $60. During the year $60 was spent on social welfare, a sum of $600 was donated for use in painting wards and rooms in the old wing.

In 1943, a laundry press at a price of $526 was bought. The auxiliary also held in the supply room, $200 for which sugar bandages were made. A very successful year, said Mrs. Wray, "is that more and more people are becoming hospital minded and are joining the work of the auxiliary." A social welfare committee was given $100 in the year for the purchase of small comforts for the patients who cannot afford them In June 1944 $250 was given to the building fund and also a blood bank which had been a gift of the Red Cross. A cheque of $200 was issued in September of the year for the purpose of a three-way electric toaster. During December, the auxiliary paid $368 for an oxygen unit. The sum of $26 was again spent on gifts at the Christmas season, and during the year $10 per month was given for social welfare in the hospital. The meeting of the auxiliary is the third Thursday of every month in the Nurses' residence.

Miss Lynch, in presenting the Liberty report, said that fuel had been given to 69 families and food to 12 families.

Tells of Tour Of West Indies

One of the most interesting and enjoyable meetings of Holloway St., W.M.S. was held last Thursday evening when Mr. Alec Gordon, in his own inimitable manner, told of his trip to the West Indies on a tramp steamer in 1939, and showed movies pictures of it.

The meeting opened with the repeating of the Lord's Prayer and the singing of the National Anthem. During the business session and several new members were enrolled. During the business session Mrs. Dr. Mills urged that more take advantage of the Leadership Training Classes,—this week they are held on Thursday evening in Tabernacle Church.

Norma Frederick then called on Isobel Richardson and her Christian Missions group to take charge of the Worship Service. The theme of the devotional period was the life of Mary Reid, a missionary, who died only last year, after fifteen years of faithful loving service to the lepers of India. The story of Mary's life was given in the form of a little play enacted by Dorothy McCormick, Lois Liddle and Ann Sadgrey. A discussion on leprosy was led by Isobel Richardson and many facts about the disease and its cure were revealed. The Scripture lesson about the leper, Jesus cleansed and much of the Scripture comment were read by Alice Hessman. The hymn, "Come Divine All Love Excelling", was used during the worship period and Beth Robertson led in prayer at the evening leper colonies in India and Africa.

The guest speaker, Mr. Gordon, was introduced by Mrs. Burtch, who referred to him as one who has gained recognition for his musical compositions, two of which Mr. Gordon played later in the evening.

In an easy, humorous manner, Mr. Gordon related incidents and incidents of his trip and strange customs noticed at the different ports of call. The movies taken by him were very interesting.

The girls of the Christian Missions' group served apples at the close of the meeting.

Health-Building Vitamins

BY HELEN FOLLETT

MAYBE you're tired hearing about vitamins. But better not be; they are your good friends. If you have a varied diet you will get the vitamin A, B1 and riboflavin you need and you've no idea how much they do for your appearance, for besides keeping you within range of your youth and making you step lively. Your skin is being full of zest and scoot.

Here is what the experts tell us: vitamin A helps to keep the eyes clear and bright. Vitamin B1 helps to keep the skin from flaking, and don't forget that dry skins wrinkle earlier than oily ones. Vitamin B1 helps to keep hair that is as crisp as autumn leaves and as soft as the touch. If you have brittle nails that chip off by themselves and get jagged you'd better get friendly with B. Vitamin C will pinch hit for the rouge compact, paint interiors, carnations and poppies, all sorts of glowing flowers and orange juice.

In your choice of foods you are strengthened by vitamin D because it helps the physical system to use calcium and phosphorus, elements that are not only necessary for the health of bones but for the vitality of the human hide.

Every year we realize more and more that the temple of beauty is built on a foundation of health, vitality and animation.

The finicky eater might as well chuck her make-up kit out of the window. She loses out on many food elements that are necessary for good appearance.

Raw foods must, see food, poultry, cereals, fruits, dairy products, and foods of vegetables. A green salad once a day is recommended by physicians and beautician. Buttermilk is a good drink, one that is favorable to the creating of a beautiful complexion.

Begin the day with tomato or grapefruit.

Leafs' Powerful Second Line Of Kennedy, Davidson and Hill Helps Give Bruins 5-1 Beating

Ted Kennedy Scores Two Goals and an Assist in Win Over Boston

(By The Canadian Press)

There was a time this season when Toronto Maple Leafs were conceded one top notch forward line —Sweeney Schriner, Lorne Carr and Gus Bodnar — to throw at their National Hockey League opposition. But not now. The Leafs have at least two.

Recent games, such as the 5-1 drubbing Leafs gave Boston Bruins last night have shown the scoring potency of the forward line spark-ed by tricky, stick-handling Ted Kennedy of Port Colborne, Ont., with Bob Davidson and Mel (Sud-den Death) Hill on his flanks.

The Kennedy-centred trio has collected eight of the 11 goals Leafs scored in their last three games and Ted, one of the better rookies last year and even better this, scor-ed six of them. Go Hels (Of Polson) Stewart who taught this 20-year-old centre a thing or two of the hockey lore that he himself picked up in years in the big league should be proud of Kennedy.

Ted scored a goal and an assist when the Leafs dropped a 4-3 deci-sion to Bruins last Saturday in Bos-ton. Then he notched three goals against Chicago Sunday and scored two goals and an assist against Bru-ins in Boston last night.

It might have been three again except that once when he knocked the puck into the net in the third period the goal was disallowed be-cause a team mate was in the goal crease.

The game gave Toronto Leafs their first win of the year on Bos-ton ice. For Boston it was the worst licking of the season at home.

Toronto, by virtue of last night's win over Boston moved to within six points of the second-place De-troit Red Wings and with a twin bill with the last-place Quebec Bulldogs coming up, they may be able to close the gap. Since the first and third-place teams square off in one playoff bracket, Leafs and Toron-to and Detroit would prefer to tac-kle either the Bruins or New York Rangers in the league leading Montreal Canadiens, the fireworks can be anticipated in the fight for the second play-off bracket.

HERSHEY BEARS KEEP RECORD

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears kept intact their unbeaten record on St. Louis ice last night when they battled Pirets to a 1-1 draw in an American Hoc-key League game.

Tommy Forgie scored for Bears just at the close of the first peri-od, dashing goalie Hec Highton's hopes for a hat-trick in shutouts. Johnny Kukkula got the tying goal early in the second period on a lucky shot that bounced off team-mate Nakins Smith's stick and then off the stick of an opposing player before landing in the net.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 7. — (CP) — The generally-accepted statement thru the years that football holds top place as a sports attraction in Bri-tain never found more confirmation than during this war.

There was some doubt when the call to arms came that soccer would survive in any organized profession-al form. But by a great struggle and the blessing of a sports-minded gov-ernment, pro leagues not only con-tinued but rose to a peak few thought possible.

League games throughout the country now only raised immense sums for war charities but paved the way for wartime informationals and services' clashes featuring the games' brightest stars.

Then the time came to take the game to the audience — the front-line fighters — and it was a tre-mendous success when an All-Star English team from the Football As-sociation inaugurated wartime con-tinental internationals by playing French and Belgium teams in Paris and Brussels last fall.

A Scottish All-Star team followed, flying to Belgium early in the New Year and playing to capacity crowds of 25,000 mostly service men, in Brus-sels and Bruges.

Now, subject to final arrange-ments with Allied Supreme Head-quarters a tour of the Low Coun-tries will be made by a composite team of 24 British players who will divide up for an Army-R.A.F. match March 24 and an England-Scotland tilt the following day.

The "Dismal Dans" who predicted an end to professional football dur-ing when big halls were requisitioned for government use and enter-tainment in fact was raised from 36 per cent to 48 per cent of the gates proved a shock before the war. Coun-tries will be made by a composite team of 24 British players who will divide up for an Army-R.A.F. match March 24 and an England-Scotland tilt the following day.

One-third of that came from monthly tournaments staged by the London Queensberry Club where fans pay between $30 and $25 for fight cards, for some of which no prompter would have dared charge more than $7 or $8 for ringside seats before the war.

The charity figures are consider-ed astonishing for a sport restricted by heavy taxation and denied the use of its biggest arenas. However, boxing is in the midst of a great boom with practically every tourna-ment a sell-out.

It no longer takes a champion-ship fight to draw, and the best and lesser lights are reaping a harvest. The scalp has created a boxer shortage and although show after show features the same names, new-comers from amateur ranks in the services constantly are being intro-duced. Some have jumped above peacetime levels.

Nel Tarleton of Liverpool, Brit-ain's oldest boxing champion at 32, will defend his British and British Empire featherweight titles against Young Al Phillips of London at Manchester Feb. 22. Win, lose or draw, Tarleton will retire from the ring after the bout.

"FUNNY BUSINESS" OUT

Hastings, England (CP) — Wing Cmdr. Sir John Hodsell, inspector-general or civil defence, told civil-ian defence workers here that "we have got to see that all the Ger-man scientists are put safely out of the way so they can't start this 'funny business' all over again."

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(CP Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 7 — (CP) — In line with the current trend of post-war speculation about professional hock-ey, Leo Dandurand is looking for establishment of another major league after peace comes, the former Montreal Canadiens official thinks enough good players will be developed to keep two leagues go-ing, he told Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara. The present hustle-bustle trend of the game gives the little man a chance to show his wares, so after the war they'll want a chance to keep in the big time limelight again. Presumably Leo is thinking of formation of another league in ad-dition to the expected expansion of the N.H.L. itself. Perhaps we might be seeing a hockey world series every three days?

Whither Bobsledders?

Where are the intrepid bobsled artists of past years who used to cavort about the lakehead area of Ontario, asks Dick Elliott of the Port Arthur News-Chronicle. About 20 years ago the bobsled was almost a household article in the city, he says, but now it's considered "as ter-rifying as finding yourself on a runaway street car."

Happy Returns:

Eimer Ferguson, one of Canada's outstanding sports writers, was 60 years young on Monday, reports his colleague, Al Parsley of the Monit-real Herald. Fergie has been around the Canadian sport scene many years, starting out in Moncton, N.B., and moving to Montreal early in the century. An authority on near-ly any sport you can mention, he's known best to the listening public for his work on the Saturday night hockey broadcasts, and the troops overseas know him for his recorded re-broadcasts.

Niagara Baseball Again:

Bill (Niagara Falls Evening Re-view) Gaynor is quoted as reporting the Niagara ball loop will quit the On-tario Baseball Association this year if they are forbidden to use United States imports. It will be far better for the future of the game if the teams have to use home talent in-stead of relying on imports, says Bill. Only a few clubs can stand the gaff of heavy importing of stars, and that's bad for the poorer clubs in smaller centres. We saw just what happened a few years ago when the import craze hit senior and junior puck circles all across the country, and the home-grown players found it practically impossible to get a job in a service station.

GALT RED WINGS IN THIRD PLACE

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Red Wings today were firm-ly in third place in the O.H.A. ju-nior "A" circuit behind the league-leading Toronto St. Mikes and St. Catharines. The Wings last night scored their seventh victory out of eight starts on home ice, defeating Toronto Marlboros 3-1 in a game in which only three penalties were handed out.

Bill Currick led the Galt attack with two goals and an assist on the other, scored by Krumpholz. They had a goal in each period. Marlies' only goal came in the second peri-od, from Leachman.

The victory puts Galt only four points behind St. Catharines, who in turn are four full games behind the leading St. Mikes.

Both junior and senior O.H.A. cir-cuits now are idle until Friday, when St. Catharines travels to Ham-ilton for a senior game and Toronto Young Rangers play at Hamilton in a junior fixture.

JIM COLEMAN OFFERS TROPHY

Toronto, Feb. 7. (CP)—Jim Cole-man, Toronto Globe and Mail Sport Columnist, today offered a trophy to be awarded annually to the most gentlemanly player in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior series. Making the offer in his col-umn, Coleman said the trophy would be known as the Red Tilson Memorial Trophy in memory of Al-bert (Red) Tilson, who died in Regina to play hockey with the Chiefs of Genevra in the O.H.A. and was killed in action overseas last year. Tilson was on the roster of Toronto Maple Leafs or the Nation-al hockey league.

Coleman said that if the idea met with approval of O.H.A. officials, the trophy would be presented for the first time at the conclusion of the present season.

B.C.I. CAGERS TAKE 2 GAMES FROM TRENTON

Senior Boys Win 57 to 16 While Local Senior Girls Triumph 18 to 3 at School Basketball

Belleville Collegiate Interscholas-tic cagers won two games of bas-ketball from Trenton High School kids at the B.C.I.A.V.S. yes-terday when the local boys' senior trounced the Trenton senior lads 57 to 16 as Miss I. Morton's senior girls defeated the Trenton girls 18 to 3 in a brace of C.O.S.S.A. high hoop games.

Showing too much scoring power around their opponents' basket, Coach Red Townsend's B.C.I. seni-or boys raced through to a 26 to 5 lead at the halfway mark and con-tinued to dominate the scoring by notching 22 points to the last half as Trenton rallied to score 11.

Bankier High Scorer

Gord Bankier, high-scoring for-ward of the Church St. "Collegians", headed the winners in the scoring column with 26 points, as he ran amok to sink ten baskets in the fin-al half to score sufficient points to beat Trenton single handed. Bill Spafford was next in line with 14 points. J. Blaney was the only Tren-ton player to sink more than one basket, as he racked up four points. Despite the one-sided score the game was fast throughout and wit-nessed by a large gallery of enthu-siastic B.C.I. cage fans.

The line-ups — Belleville Colle-giate—Bankier 26, Wood 4, Garrow 3, Massey 2, Spafford 16, Watson and Lyall 4, Trenton High — Blaney 4, Lesperance 3, Harry 2, Flynn 2, Whitely, Taylor and Whaley. Ref-eree, Alex Rickard; umpire, Shirley Marinoff. Tops

The girls' game Coach Isobel Morton's homesters played a strong defensive game to blank the Tren-ton senior lassies in the first half as Belleville leap 6-0 with baskets by Shirley Massey, Audrey Camp and Elizabeth Keeler. Then B. C. I. continued to dominate the scoring to sink five baskets for ten points as Trenton picked up their three scoring points for the match. This in half it was Shirley Marinoff with eight points and Keeler through in strong style to assure her team of victory. Audrey Taylor picked up the other Belleville basket in this half. The locals proved too stiog defensively for Trenton. Helen Booth scored all three Trenton points.

The line-ups — Belleville Colle-giate — Taylor 2, Marinoff 10, Bun-nett, Camp 2, Keeler 2, Hunter, Pappas, Hinchcliffe, Fox, Blather-wick and Flindall. Trenton High School — Leavey, Wellmand, Blute, Westland, Hamilton, Potter, Par-ker, Hutchison, Carbutt, Heath and Burke.

Out of the Bag.

The prisoner was on trial for stealing ducks. His counsel ad-dressed the jury at great length, pointing out, firstly, that he had not been proved conclusively that the prosecutor had any ducks; and secondly, that the ducks found in the prisoner's cottage were not his ducks at all. Thirdly, thirdly, that the prisoner had established an alibi.

Just as the judge began to sum up the prisoner interposed and asked if he might say something. As an indulgence, this was per-mitted.

"All I want to say," remarked the prisoner, "is that I wish I'd never seen the darned ducks."

Juniors Are In.

Toots Holway's Belleville juniors cinched second place in the "Little Six" by blanking Tweed 8 to 0 at Sam Curry's, adopted town last night. As a matter of fact the local girls have an outside chance of finishing a tie for that place with Trenton. In order to accomplish this, however, Campbellford would have to step into Trenton and win tonight, a feat that is hardly likely. In the event of a tie, however, the season's scoring averages will de-termine which girls will be eligible for No. 1 slot and Belleville would have the edge. Tweed repeated the season's records we find Belle-ville hasn't played a game since January 19th when Stirling beat the locals 3-1 here and that's a formidable record for the other clubs in the circuit to ponder as the play-offs get under way Friday night against either Hastings or Stirling. The only reason Toots Holway's sextette failed to register a win against the city regular sche-dule was the Stirling "Combines" but today the locals are undoubted-ly the hottest team in the group. Last night's shutout was the third application of the whitewash brush applied by te locals in their last five games, during which time Belleville has scored 36 goals with six against, which isn't at all bad for five successive junior games.

Tonight's the Night.

It is understood the Deseronto "Mohawks" will be asked to default Monday night's game in the Quinte ROAF, service league as it will have no bearing on the final stand-ing. If the Mohawks concede to let permit the play-offs to start Mon-day, then all importance is focused on tonight's Trenton-Mountain View game as the battle for first place. The Bombers have lost only one game in the group schedule, that being a 6-5 decision to the "Flyers", since then Coach Jimmie McCrae has added Bill Wil-liams to the Bombers' net, which definitely makes a marked improvement to the Prince Edward County airmen. With first place at stake both teams will have all available material on hand for tonight's "battle for first place". However, since their last meeting both have had important key play-ers. Mike Dehura has been dis-charged from Trenton while only Monday, Ray Savard, hard-hitting Bomber defenseman, received his discharge from the R.C.A.F. also. Sergt. Ernie Cowling, who has been managing the Bombers of late also received his honorable dis-charge, and Coach Pudre Maika of the Flyers is slated for a posting shortly. However, the rank and file of the personnel of both squads is in-tact and the season's best game is looked for when the Bombers and Flyers tangle here tonight.

Recall These Lads?

Latest list of overseas casu-alties mentions that two former Tren-ton Air Force players, well known to sports here before the war, are reported missing following the re-cent heavy bombings over Ger-many. They are Group Captain Carling-Kelly and Joe Stephenson (re-verted) Joe Stephenson. Carling-Kelly was playing coach of the fast champion Trenton "Flyers" and Joe Stephenson was business manager of the team. The two are gentlemen and sportsmen of the first degree were "Cub" Carling-Kelly and Joe Stephenson and it is hoped they successfully bailed out after being shot down. Group Captain Carling-Kelly only recently made commander of the Thunderbird Squadron and is be-lieved to have been shot down in his initial operational flight over enemy territory.

Remember When.

Canada's stock in the 1936 Olym-pics took a big jump nine years ago tonight at the Carmisch-Par-tenkirchen Winter Games when the Canadians overwhelmed Latvia 11 to 0. But the Olympic finals that year saw England score a surprise 2-1 victory to give the Canucks their first Olympic hockey defeat in the history of the winter games. Even then the English used Jimmie Foster, a Canadian, in their nets. But that was of little consolation when Canadians read of the de-feat.

Twice as Many Now.

Only about half as many major league players were in the service of World War I as are now in the armed forces. When the previous conflict ended, the American League had 144 in Uncle Sam's uni-form and the National 103, a total of 247. According to a recent count, the big leagues had given 467 to World War II, 294 by the American and 233 by the National. The United States has been engaged in this war for more than three years compared to a year and one-half in 1917-18 and has nearly three times more men in service.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 98
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Nuts who went nuts trying to learn the cumbersome system are now nuts about Horse sense bridge. Now, the worst they can do is no worse than they have been doing.

Look at this nutty hand:

♥8
♦A K J 10 9 8 5 4
♣Q

After that baby showed up in a bridge game, the players got all hot and bothered about it. So did the kibitzers. Was it an opening of one, two, three, four, or five diamonds?

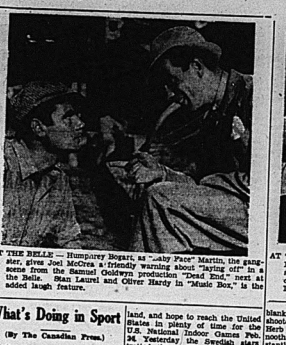
Five diamonds would show a long suit and nothing else. It also admits the hand has not enough for a one bid. This hand has all the needs for a one bid. So it is not a five diamond opening.

Four diamonds would show a long, practically solid suit of at least seven cards and a sure outside trick. This hand has no sure trick on the outside, so, it is not a four diamond opening.

Three diamonds would show an absolutely solid suit of exactly seven cards. This suit is not absolutely solid and it has more than seven cards. That and other things keep it from being three diamonds.

Two diamonds would show a hand that includes at least nine tricks. This hand counts only eight; an ace, a king, two queens, two short cards in spades, a short in hearts, a short in clubs. It is not a two bid.

One diamond would show at least five tricks, four high cards, and sure tricks in a biddable diamond suit. This hand contains all of that with extra in tricks.



Thus, of all the opening bids you could think of for this hand, one diamond is the only honest one. So, how can anybody in their right mind put up any argument against it.

You may determine the values in this hand by some mathematical method. But it will turn out to be nothing but a one bid.

Many different cults get the same results.

AT THE McCARTHY — The girls see a ghost in "Murder in the Blue Room," now at the McCarthy Theatre. Betty Kean, June Preisser and Grace MacDonald, when not frozen by fear, sing, dance, and clown in the merry mystery. Second new hit is "San Diego I Love You."

BELLEVILLE JRS. BEAT TWEED 8-0, NOW IN PLAYOFFS

Will Meet Either Stirling or Hastings in First Round of Playdowns

With Billie Holway moving up to the front line to fill in at centre and scoring half of their goals, the Belleville Juniors blanked the Tweed kids 8 to 0 in a "Little Six" junior O.H.A. game at Tweed Tuesday night.

It was the Belleville Juniors' fifth consecutive victory and third shutout in five games. The win also moved the locals into a tie with Trenton for first place and assured the Hastings-Quinte entries of no worse than second place in the final group standings as Trenton plays Campbellford at home tonight. Belleville and Trenton will meet in a home-and-away playdown with Belleville meeting either Stirling or Hastings in a best-in-three series.

Strong Defence

Last night's final group game for the Bears saw the locals playing strong defence on the smaller Tweed ice surface to give goalie Dick Fitzpatrick his third shutout in the last five starts. Ramon Bush and Doug. Green stood firmly for practically 60 minutes in front of Fitzpatrick to turn in a splendid defensive game. In the absence of Don Barnett, Nelson Holway moved up to centre between the Meagher boys in a shift that proved prolific, when it came to scoring. Holway got one and four of Belleville's first five goals, two less of the solo marker. Bernie Meagher picked up a goal and two assists, while brother Allan rang the bell once and had a pair also. Jerry Moher and Bill Grestrix made the other two Belleville marksmen.

The entire Belleville team turned in the best hockey effort as a team against the Tweed team to date in improving each time out. Local fans hold high hopes for the Belleville kids in the group play-offs, that open here Friday. For Tweed goalie Johnston stood firm even though the locals whipped eight past him. Gehan, Connor and Beatty also played good hockey for the struggling Tweed crowd.

The line-ups — Belleville: goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Bush and Green; centre, Holway; wings, Allan Meagher and B. Meagher; subs, Moher, Day, Greatrix, Lyall and Reeves. Tweed: goal, Johnston; defence, Gehan and Beatty; centre, Connor; wings, Dales and P. Bush; subs, Radcliffe, Elliott, Graham, Thompson, Cotton, Hall and Lavallee.

Referees: "Speedy" St. Louis and Johnny Orr.

PARKER BLASTS JOHNNY GRECO

New York, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Dan Parker, New York Daily Mirror boxing writer, said in his column today "It would be interesting to find out the real cause" of nausea which afflicted Johnny Greco when the Montreal welterweight lost a decision to Bobby Ruffin at Madison Square Garden last Friday.

"Greco's nausea in the ring was supposed to have been induced by a morsel of moth-eaten mackerel or spiced sturgeon eaten after he had weighed in early in the afternoon. The normal stomach consists of about three hours. What was the fish doing in Johnny's gut at 11 o'clock, three hours after he had eaten it?" Parker said.

Further down in his column Parker said that Greco's regular handlers were not present for the fight.

Ottawa Commandos Beaten by Quebec

Ottawa, Feb. 7. (CP)—Ottawa Commandos showed signs of life about 55 minutes too late last night and wound up by absorbing a 3-2 defeat from Quebec Aces in an unfinished Quebec Senior Hockey League contest.

Aces scuttled their scoring to the second period, when Adhemar Ouellette paved the way for the first goal by Ulric Pandreau and rapped home the second on a pass from Renaud. Bidden Richery supplied Quebec's third rally on a pass from Bobby Thorpe.

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—Wanted, for post-war delivery: One new sport or other attraction that will draw 16,000 fans when they're not being used for baseball and Dodgers. Or a minute Shag Shaughnessy, International League president says a trend toward wider use of ball parks, with owners, he said, are beginning to realize that the expensive plants stand idle some 360 days a year and that they can profitably rent them out for fights, circuses, etc...One minor league club within figured to lose about $60,000 last season with a poor year, realized more than $30,000 profit by renting out the park...What they really need, however, is something new that will correspond to hockey, basketball and football shows, which now are the big money-makers built originally for boxing.

Observation Post:

The other day when Ed Barrow of the New York baseball discussed baseball prospects, Ed remarked: "You got to be quantity rather than quality this year. We must sign up a lot of green hands to be on the safe side."...And that's that just what Branch Rickey was saying a year ago!...And what a howl he got from those Dodger fans.

BYRON NELSON HAS LOW AVERAGE

New Orleans, Feb. 7 — (AP)—Byron Nelson, the Texarkana, Tex., master of the links, will enter the $6,000 New Orleans Open Friday with an average of 69.4 for 30 rounds of golf in nine tournaments.

Nelson's amazing consistency this winter made him top money winner in 1944 with more than $40,000 and has built a stack of currency totaling $3,700 since Jan. 1. He has done no worse than a tie for second in five tournaments this year, won at San Francisco, Phoenix and Corpus Christi.

Number two man in performance, as well as earnings, is Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Sanford, Me., who has an average of 70.2 in 26 rounds. His earnings for 1945 total approximately $4,000, slightly more than those of Slammin Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who had to pass up the Texas and Corpus Christi Opens because of a lame back.

ABANDONED AS AIR BASE

Kunming, China, Feb. 7. (AP)—Kanyang Field, 30 west of Kunming (Kanchow) has been abandoned as an air base along with Suichwan, and the United States 14th Air Force are working out in London, England, and hope to reach the United States in plenty of time for the U.S. National Indoor Games Feb. 24. Yesterday the Swedish start stroiled three miles in Kensington Gardens.

BANCROFT

Bancroft, Feb. 6 (Special)—On Saturday afternoon the Bancroft Rockets played two hard-fought goals, winning in Cumbermere by the score of 12 to 4, then coming right back in the same afternoon to take the Maynooth Bruins into camp by score of 8 to 4. At Cumbermere the hometown Miners played a very rugged game and were consistently throwing stiff body checks to slow down the visitors' forwards. However, in spite of the heavy going the visitors were able to count twelve goals and had to be content with about brilliant work of Snowden in the nets. Otherwise, the score would have been much higher. The first period saw Severin and Brough counted two before the hometown counted for the Miners; Brough scored another as did Kavanagh for Bancroft before R. Schwieg denied the twine for Cumbermere to bring the score to 4-2 to end the second period. Brough scored three while Kerr netted two, Schwieg scored another for the hometown. In the final session Severin sank two and Carpenter one for the visitors while Ouhy counted Cumbermere's fourth goal. Penalties were to Adams and Severin of Bancroft for high-sticking and boarding and to Bellisle of Cumbermere for boarding.

Referee: Herb Nieman of Maynooth.

Bancroft 4, Maynooth 3.

The Bancroft second coast right back to Maynooth and took the ice against a fresh Maynooth squad and drew down like barrels in the tune of 8 to 4. Brough and Adams with one each and Crawford with two were Bancroft's first period goals while Forbes and Herb Nieman tallied two for the Bruins. In the second canto Severin with two, Stringer and Brough with one each were Bancroft's marksmen and Robinson added another for Maynooth, Carpenter drew a penalty. Referee Herb Nieman and shortly after Ed Nieman drew a penalty for dumping Carpenter. Walter Nieman, in the absence of Ed, officiated after having 4 goals scored on him, in favor of Royden Davis and Roy did a fine job of blanking the tired Bancroft sharpshooters for the rest of the game. Herb Nieman tallied for the Maynooth team again which team constantly had the Rockets hemmed in their own end during the last period.

Referee: Henry Stewart of Maple Leaf.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

Major Conny Smythe, again named the governors of the National Hockey League, said at Toronto last night that if something is not done "to clear up the hockey situation" the N.H.L. plans to ask the Federal government to make available for hockey 300 players now eligible for military service.

Smythe said the 300 figures that 300 players "absolutely exempt from military service" could keep things going in the major and minor hockey league. He said the leagues should have a working margin of three or four months to make arrangements for next season but with the present unsettled hockey situation he was not positive.

At Ottawa yesterday an official of National Selective Service said a "no comment" regarding Smythe's earlier statement asking 150 men for N.H.L. play.

Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens came out yesterday with the claim that Lieut. Bill Durnan is the best goalie in 20 years in the N.H.L. "He leaves about all Charlie Gardiner, Frankie Brimsek, Dave Kerr and Alec Connell do," Durnan has it all over them because he has the most competitive spirit," says Irvin.

Ken Watson, ace skip of the Winnipeg Strathcona Curling club of Manitoba curling champion in 1936 and 1941, was high in the opening rounds of the 87th Manitoba Dalziel at Winnipeg yesterday, played in below zero weather. In the Birks-Dingwall Watson beat Bob Alexander of Brandon 6-5 and Jack Kopy of Winnipeg beat J. Williams of Swaffan, Man., 8-6.

At Hamilton, A. R. Tarleton won the Hamilton British Consols curling play-off title today, beating R. W. Cassels 13-8 to enter playdowns at Toronto.

A new six team soccer circuit to be known as the Ontario Major League has been formed at Toronto with Major A. L. Steele, Canadian Legion, as president. Five Toronto teams have entered with a sixth to be selected.

Herb Pennock, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, in mailing player contracts out today. The list included 13 pitchers, five catchers, eight infielders and eight outfielders.

Gunder Haegg and Haakon Liddman, Sweden's travelling trackmen, are working out in London, England.

CHAPTER 30

"I'll drive Terry home," Elizabeth said. "You'd better stay here, Bruce. If you lose Livia again I'll never forgive you."

Elizabeth waved to Livia as the car drove out.

It was all a dream. For the first time in a month Livia dropped a tray. Bruce helped her pick up the broken china and glass. They laughed at everything. Nothing was too silly remembered Ted. What would Jay when he heard she had gone?

"He's long will it take to get someone?" she asked.

"Perhaps a day," the manager replied, "there are many girls who value a good job."

"All right, I'll work here another day."

Before leaving with Bruce Livia telephoned Ted. He took the news well.

"He's a lucky guy." Then casually, "When are you getting married?"

"Very soon. I'd like you to meet him—"

"No, thanks. I'm very busy."

"I'll see you tonight perhaps when I get home?"

"Please, Livia—let's not have a drag-out farewell. This isn't the movies, you know." She was a little hurt, for there was nothing more to be said. So she repeated: "Thank you for everything. Good-bye."

The Chinese boy was all smiles when Livia arrived with Bruce at the bungalow.

"Missy Nolan tell me she see you." He giggled. "I make big mistake, tell Missy Nolan, wife own ina phone. Missy Nolan, she! I think wife. But now Missy Nolan say you gonna be Missy Nolan.

Terry Donleon marrying Bruce's sister! It oppressed Livia. She was glad Bruce did not approve the match.

"I'm trying to break it up, but Elizabeth thinks she loves him—and she's obstinate," he told her later as they drove in the direction of Lookout Mountain. How far away Hollywood seemed to Livia.

He kissed her, holding her tightly in his strong arms. She clung to him passionately.

"Oh, darling, you've no idea how much I love you," she cried softly. "Let's stay here for the rest of our lives." He smiled.

"What d'ye think I am — some? Come on—enter ye home—now while you can."

She looked back at the mountain—bleak and grey in the day-time—but now softly whitened with moonlight.

"When we're rich, we'll build a house on this very spot," Livia said. He kissed her gently. And they drove down the narrow winding road.

They were to be married Saturday morning in Santa Barbara. Three more days. They would have been the happiest three days of Livia's life, but for Elizabeth.

Elizabeth had met Terry Davidson when he came to Colorado for the Premiere of "Lost on the Prairie." The Chamber of Commerce had given a dinner party for the visiting Hollywood celebrities, and Judge Nolan and his family were invited. Elizabeth was seated next to Terry at the long table. Terry made no bones about liking Elizabeth. Her father was wealthy. Later, when the judge disinherited his only son, Bruce, for preferring what he called "ragabondage" in Hollywood to his family interests in Colorado, Terry again visited Elizabeth and learned from the judge that all his property was to go to Elizabeth.

Terry remained in Colorado several weeks, made friends with the Judge, and love to Elizabeth. When Elizabeth explained to her father that Terry was willing to give up his Hollywood career and settle in Colorado, the Judge had given his consent to their engagement.

And now Bruce had invited Elizabeth to Hollywood. He wanted to see Terry in his natural habitat, minus his party manners. Terry, realizing Bruce's dislike, pressed for an early marriage, but Elizabeth said: "Let's wait another month, Terry. We want to be sure."

Terry yielded with ill-concealed irritation. His option at the studio was not going to be renewed, and he was sick of making pictures anyway. The life of a country squire in Colorado appealed to him tremendously.

"I wonder why you came here if not to get married right away," he said to Elizabeth. She had entered the room at that moment. He restrained an impulse to punch Terry's face and went out quickly.

It was an old dodge, but Bruce decided to try it. The next evening when Elizabeth had gone to bed, he said to Terry slowly and deliberately:

"I hardly know where to begin."

"About Elizabeth?" queried Terry.

"Yes."

"You mean our quarrel? That was nothing. Elizabeth's desperately in love with me." He could not resist boasting to Bruce.

"Sure," said Bruce. "I wasn't thinking of that. It's about Elizabeth's financial prospects. I know this doesn't make any difference to you, but—" he watched Terry closely—"Dad's last revision of ownns in a phoney silver mine."

Terry grinned. If they thought he was that sort of fool.

"Too bad," he said easily, "but that makes no difference to us." Bruce produced a telegram from his pocket.

"It came this morning," he said. "Dad's been taken seriously ill. The message were true, Elizabeth would have nothing, which means he—Terry had nothing. In that case way was he marrying her? He read the wire again, Bruce did not think it necessary to explain that for once his father had agreed with him on a course of action.

"I thought you and your father were estranged?" said Terry suspiciously.

"I suppose he wanted me to break it gently to Elizabeth," said Bruce. "Poor old boy, very decent of him like this—"

"Yes, I see what you mean. Well—I must be getting home."

As the door he turned.

"Will you do me a favor? Will you tell Elizabeth that I may have to be in town and will be gone for a few months?"

"Why don't you write her a note?" suggested Bruce.

"All right," said Terry.

He did, sealed the envelope and handed it to Bruce.

Bruce waited a step behind him to the door. He was unable to resist the impulse to look at his almost brother-in-law through it. He laughed at Terry's outraged face. Terry picked himself up and yelled:

"You damn fool. As far as I'm concerned, you can give your precious sister back to her family."

"Bruce!" Elizabeth was frenzied. She had come into the living room.

"I'll break every bone in his body," Bruce started after Terry. But Terry decided this was the wrong time to continue the conversation and fled.

"That's the end of him anyway," Bruce muttered, closing the door.

But it was not the end of Terry. When a small nature is tricked, it never forgives and forgets. Terry, nourished his hatred, always ready for an opportunity to use the lovely.

Elizabeth, never very strong, collapsed. The wedding of Bruce and Livia was postponed. And when Elizabeth promised Livia said cheerfully:

"You are my only bridesmaid. A girl's got to have a bridesmaid, or it isn't a wedding."

Elizabeth smiled wanly—and relapsed into silence. Day by day for hours without saying a word. Bruce sometimes wondered whether his cure had not been worse than the disease.

"But you were right to expose Terry Davidson." Livia comforted him. If only Elizabeth would get over it. Perhaps if she went home? But the suggestion brought the fever to the pale cheeks.

"I just can't go back there and explain to Dad," she whispered. "Let me stay here—for a while anyway."

"Of course, darling—anything you say."

Sometimes, as Livia sat by Elizabeth's bedside, she wished impatiently that she would get better. Livia was nervous and restless. She had waited so long for Bruce, and the new obstacle to their marriage seemed ominous. But she was careful to keep these thoughts to herself.

One day Elizabeth said suddenly, "You're unhappy, Livia."

"Oh, no. What makes you think so?"

"I'm a nuisance, aren't I? You and Bruce would be married but for me—that's it, isn't it?"

"No," Livia tried to make her denial convincing. But it is true. And today she had an additional worry. Bruce was in a plane. His job was to stunt-dive low over the desert. Most of the old-timers in the airman had refused the job—even though it paid $500.

"Why should we?" they said. "We're doing all right."

The air in the sandy valleys between the mountains was treacherous. A plane diving could be seized suddenly and destroyed. Bruce laughed at Livia's fears.

"If I were to start worrying about air pockets I might as well give up my job," he told her.

The telephone jangled in Livia's retreat. It was Bruce.

"How's Elizabeth?" he asked her. "Fine. And you—how was it?"

"A cinch," Bruce said cheerfully. "The only mistake I made was doing it in one 'take'."

"Bruce!" she protested.

He laughed. "I'll be back in two hours."

"I wish he had a safer job," Livia said to Elizabeth, who was watching her face.

"You're not really happy," said Elizabeth suddenly, "I wish I knew why."

"You're getting fanciful, my child it comes of lying in bed thinking." Livia said briskly.

"Perhaps," said Elizabeth thoughtfully.

When Bruce arrived, Elizabeth announced:

"I want to go home."

"Don't listen to her, Bruce. She has a nonsensical idea that she's interfering with our marriage." Bruce sat down by Elizabeth.

"You go home—when you're ready to travel."

Elizabeth smiled at him. "Did I ever thank you for being so beautiful then continued bravely—"for showing me the sort of person Terry really was? Supposing I'd married him—and found out afterwards." Her voice broke a little. "I can talk about it now. I'm practically cured. And I do really want to go home. I want to see the ranch—and Dad. I want to breathe again. I feel sort of choked here in Hollywood."

The next day Elizabeth was more insistent.

"But I can't let you travel alone," Bruce told her.

"I'll go with Elizabeth," Livia volunteered.

At first Elizabeth protested.

"I want you and Bruce to get married."

"We'd have to wait another week now anyway," Livia assured her. "Bruce has a location job in San Diego."

* * *

In the plane there were some passengers. Livia listened to them. They were going to Colorado for the picture named after the state. She read about the movie some months ago and thought it was finished.

"I think they're crazy to send us there after the 'Lost on the Indians' up shots," one pretty girl grumbled.

"It's their money, kid," a man consoled her.

"Yeah, but it's my head," moaned the girl. "Airplanes give me a headache. I wish the Wright Brothers hadn't invented the damn thing."

Worry crept into Livia's heart. But she resolutely drove the thought away. She was going to be Bruce's wife, and that was better than any premonition.

One of the men in the movie party had been staring at Livia curiously. Later Livia heard him ask the stewardess to give him her name. She was investigating a crushing remark for him, when he abruptly left his friends and slipped into the seat opposite Livia and Elizabeth.

"I'm Frank MacDonald," he told Livia. "I've been looking for you a long time. Why didn't you been hiding?" Livia had heard of Macdonald. He was a talent scout for a big studio. But that did not give him the right to pick her up in a plane.

"Well, now you've found me," she said coldly.

"I saw your screen test," he continued. Livia shifted uneasily in her seat.

"Awful, wasn't it?"

"Pretty bad," he agreed. There was a slight pause broken by Elizabeth:

"You're extremely rude," she said to MacDonald, who nodded absently as though in agreement. He studied Livia, noting his eyes are traveling swiftly over her face and body, finally nodding appreciatively on her red-gold hair.

"Your face is too round—but we can fix that," he said absently. Livia's heart raced at double speed. But she said calmly:

"What are you trying to tell me?"

"How would you like to work at my studio?". Without letting Livia reply he continued: "As a stock girl at $75 a week. You have a lot to learn, but I think you've got something."

Russian Church's Message to Rest of Christian World

Calls for Extermination of Fascism for All Time

Moscow, Feb. 6. (Reuters)—The Soviet Press today gave prominence to a message sent by the Council of the Russian Orthodox Church to Christians of the rest of the world on the occasion of the election of a new patriarch.

The Council's message called for the extermination of Fascism for all time.

"Sometimes voices are heard calling in the name of forgiveness and mercy and these voices come from people who dare call themselves Christians", it was quoted as saying. "This shall not be".

The council gave its blessing to "the toilers of all the world and the leaders of the peoples striving for their well being and the improvement of their brothers".

The Army newspaper, Red Star, today published nearly three columns of material reprinted from other papers on the election of the new patriarch.

Errol Flynn Flees Women Admirers In New York Theatre

New York, Feb. 7. (AP)—The tall, debonair gentleman took one look at the crowd of women converging on him, then ran through the theatre lobby to the door marked "men's room", pushed through the door and locked it securely behind him.

Only then did Errol Flynn, center of a thousand trying matinee picture situations, feel safe.

It happened Monday night at the Theatre Guild's production of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," a long later, turned out to be a main attraction—and all because he gallfawed at a shotgun wedding sequence in the play.

On the stage Ado Annie — the "Girl Who Can't Say No"—was accepting a marriage proposal tendered by her father's shotgun, Flynn, whose repeated marriage to 20-year-old Nora Eddington, a recent mother-in-law, was a matter of widespread speculation, laughed loudly and the audience joined in.

At intermission time ushereties, well-dressed women and a few hysterionic bobby soxers, heads a determined rush for him. He retreated to the fire escape, surrounded by unavailable—and our Errol didn't sally forth, until they all had gone.

ODER LINE CRUMBLING

ALLIES POUR INTO NEW BREAKS OF SIEGFRIED LINE

Capture Schmidt Near Last German-Held Dam on Roer

Pruem, a Major Transit Centre, Under Artillery Fire

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 8 — (AP)—The United States 1st Army drove clear through the last remaining defenses of double Siegfried Line to within 2 miles southeast of Aachen today, captured bloody Schmidt and neared the Roer river dams and reservoirs which had been a major factor in checkmating the western front offensive last November.

(The German communique said "preparations for the big Allied attack continue along the Roer." The enemy said a major offensive was imminent with Cologne, the Rhine and industrial Ruhr as objectives. American troops outside Dueren are 30 miles from Cologne. Capture of the dams might open the starting signal for the onslaught.)

The largest of the dams, the 985-foot-thick Schwammenauel, is just over two miles from Schmidt. A combat team of the 78th division reached the northern bank of its vast reservoir.

The dam system is capable of sending an 18-foot wall of water down the 36 miles of the Roer to Obermond. Any troops which had crossed the river to the Cologne Plain last fall could have been trapped by the man-made floods within four hours.

Unified (Eastern 2nd) Army soldiers poured through southern outskirts of the well-fortified farther south to within 1¼ miles of Pruem.

The 78th Lightning Division drove into the ancient Eifel town of Schmidt last night and had cleared it of the Germans by daybreak, nearly Kommerscheidt was occupied. Schmidt, scene of combat force driven along the north banks of the Schwammenauel reservoir, backed up behind the largest dam in the system. Schmidt is 13 miles inside Germany.

Pruem, a major transit centre for German defenses in the centre of the Siegfried Line, was approached by 3rd Army troops from several directions. The most northern case within sight of the town, capturing Schmidt, just to the northwest.

The 1st Army's new invasion positions on the 24-mile front where four divisions of the line fighting in the west wall reinforcements, swiftly reported.

(Berlin spoke again of an imminent Allied offensive along the Roer, but said the German Fifth and 7th Army had attacked on the Saar front. The enemy asserted that "the area east of Saarlautern between Dillingen and Schleider, most probably will be the fight field of the impending offensive and we know what the waiting period is only the full before the storm.")

Night Signal Blast

The United States 1st Army, which also has battled through the double Siegfried Line at the hands of the Roer, moved down the last two miles to the German-held dams controlling nearly 200,000,000 cubic yards of water which could flood out the American 9th and British 2nd armies along the Roer to the north.

Behind the capture of the dams might stand the Germans' last offensive.

The French 1st Army, with four American divisions, reduced the Cross-Hunsruck pocket south of Strasbourg to less than 6 square miles along the river and east of the Rhine-Rhone canal. Scattered in the seven miles south of Nenf Brisach, Organized resistance was broken up in the Vosges west of Colmar, stragglers were being rounded up and caged.

Overnight, British heavy bombers in great strength attacked enemy troops and equipment at Kleve and Goch where the Siegfried Line defenses cut in the Reichswald Forest.

Premier Drew Claims 50,000,000 Can Live in Ont.

Toronto, Feb. 8 — (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario predicted last night that "when the time comes" 50,000,000 or more persons can live in Ontario "in greater prosperity than we have ever known."

Addressing an East Toronto Progressive Conservative rally, the premier said it was not true that he had adopted a "come one, come all" immigration policy. "First, post-war duty of this country would be to look after Canadians in the services and then Canadians in war plants.

"Not until we've attended to that can we look after our own can we look after our own can we look after immigration. But I think our problem is not going to be finding people but finding population."

In the immediate future, Ontario would provide the "greatest opportunities of any area in the whole world."

Unless a Dominion-Provincial conference is held soon "the tremendous overhead of government built up by war powers" will be destroyed by the end of hostilities, we may well have chaotic conditions in this country," said the premier, proclaiming he had been urging such a conference for a year and a half.

Raises No Objection

Referring to a report that Canada may join the Pan-American Union, the premier said:—

"I raise no objection to that in due time, but let us first make sure that the Pan-British Union is sound for years to come. But you won't get that with the present premier of Canada or with the present leader of Canada's Socialist party. And as for a national airline, they're not going to stop singing 'God Save the King' and start singing 'God Save the' head of the government here no matter who is prime minister of Canada. No one is going to break down the Union Jack in Ontario as I'm head of the government."

Huxley Hopes for 'Maximum' Co-ordination at Big 3 Meeting

Editor's Note: Uppermost in the minds of men today is the Big Three conference with its potential effect on the course of the life and conscience for generations to come. What at last should come out of it for the good of mankind?

The following article was written for the Associated Press by Julian Huxley, British scientist-philosopher.

If ever there was a case of fools rushing in, this seems it." Dr. Huxley said when asked to do the piece. "But you asked for my views and here they are."

By JULIAN HUXLEY

London, Feb. 8 — First of all, in the conference of the Big Three, there was bound to be discussion of purely military matters. Then I think everyone would hope for maximum co-operation. There should not arise even suspicion that one of the powers is striking without fullest consultation with others.

However, the time has come when political issues of the greatest problems must be tackled otherwise the unity of the three countries may be imperilled by the fact of success itself. I hope in the first place that the Big Three, with the aid of their foreign ministers and expert staffs, will come to some complete agreement on the need for security that they can take to the United Nations Organization conference in San Francisco.

The next major subject for discussion will presumably be the peace settlement. That is the one announcement that the settlement will be a matter of the Allies, not a patchwork or unilateral settlement. That principle once settled, we come up against the question of frontiers. It is impossible for the Big Three to settle frontier details now; but they can and I hope will agree to a principle that frontier settlements need not wait for a peace conference at some comparatively distant date.

BIG THREE PLANS FOR JOINT ACTION EXPECTED IN WEEK

Will Mark Beginning Of a New Period In United States Foreign Policy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 8. (CP)—Announcement that the "Big Three" have reached speedy "complete agreement" on military prosecution of the war today crowned Nazi hopes that a disagreement among Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin might be the prelude to the total defeat of Germany.

The hopes reflected in the defensive tone taken by German propagandists in broadcasts to embattled Germany and Europe after it was told officially that the historic conference was under way in the Black Sea area.

The Allies want to get the German people to surrender", the Berlin radio said. "In past years the enemy could not persuade the German people to capitulate. They will not succeed now either".

The significant feature of the broadcast was the skilful barrage-ing motif. Normally, broadcasts on the German soldiers are factual discussions.

Kenora, Ont., Feb. 8 — (CP) — Ontario will budget $200,000 more in 1945 than last year for the Department of Game and Fisheries, Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Game and Fisheries, announced here yesterday in an address delivered before the three-day convention of the Northern Ontario Outfitters' Association.

Political Parties Getting Ready For General Election

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 8 — (CP)—Canada's major and minor political parties have knuckled down to the business of organizing and planning for the forthcoming general election.

From headquarters in Ottawa the Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leaders are pressing their local organizations to place candidates in the field and get busy.

All leaders of the principal parties are expected to be candidates again — four in the western Canada and one in Quebec.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced he will seek re-election in Prince Albert, Sask., the riding he has represented since 1911. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National leader, will run for a seat in the Commons, probably in Ws. Man., and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, will seek re-election in Rosetown-Biggar, Sask. John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, and Liberal Lethbridge, Alta., and Alistair Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, Beauharnois-Laprairie, Que.

If Mr. King either by a delayed election or by winning the election should still be prime minister on June 4 he will have held that post longer than any other Canadian. Sir Wilfrid Laurier exceeded Sir John L. MacDonald's record of 18 years, 11 months and 26 days.

KANGAROO COURT MARTIAL RESULTS IN DEATH OF TWO

Medicine Hat Camp For War Prisoners Scene of Savage Act In July 1943

Lethbridge, Alta., Feb. 8 — (CP)—The murder of two German prisoners of war by fellow captives following a "kangaroo court martial" at Medicine Hat, Alta., prisoner camp, was disclosed today in a newspaper story in the Lethbridge Herald.

The newspaper said information about the murders became known shortly after they were committed in July, 1943, or September, 1944, but could not be revealed until now owing to censorship regulations.

The two "slayers" were a middle aged German trooper, was hanged on an improvised scaffold inside one of the camp compound buildings. The second, found dead in his bunk, was believed to have been strangled.

The Herald said it learned the hanging victim was sentenced to death after he made derogatory remarks about Hitler and voiced the opinion Germany was sure to lose the war.

A secret trial, known as a "kangaroo court martial" was convened at which members of the Gestapo were reported to have been leading part.

Shortly after the trial a crude scaffold was erected in one of the large camp halls. The executioner used planks found in camp and beams from the barracks benches. Electric wire, torn from a fixture,

BROAD PASIG R. FRONT LINE IN HEART OF MANILA

Scenes of Wanton Destruction in Liberated Sector North of River

By FRED HAMPSON
(By Wireless to Canadian Press)

Manila, Feb. 8 — (AP) — The Pasig River, its bridges blown up by a desperate foe, is the new front line today in the heart of Manila in a town ravaged by sporadic house-to-house fighting, with the last organized and great fires set by Japanese suicide squads.

The sprawled and blackened bodies of Japs and Filipinos and enormous casualties so far accounted for on Luzon, dotted scenes of wanton destruction in the liberated sectors north of the river. South of it, demolition groups search for more fires.

The liberating Americans, whose Luzon casualties total 7,016, are superior in armored might and have a monopoly in air and naval power but only desire to save as much as possible of this pearl of the Orient.

A force of 700 R.A.F. and Canadian bombers last night swept over troop and equipment concentrations in Kleve and Goch, east and southeast of Nijmegen between the Waal and Maas Rivers. A strong force of R.A.F. bombers and Lancasters raided Goch.

The Kleve attack was made from "well below 5,000 feet", was announced by A.C.-in-C. Communique as highly concentrated and accurate.

Canadian losses were not given. Installations Hit

While the bombers hit these two targets, a large force of R.A.F. Mosquitos struck at railway yards and communications centres — Hamm, Krefeld, Mainz, Osnabrueck, Bonn, Hannover, Duesseldorf and Duisburg. The attacks were staggered over a 2 1-2 hour period and kept half of Germany on the alert until after midnight.

At Air Ministry said 13 aircraft of bomber command and two of fighter command planes were missing from the operations last night.

MASS ONSLAUGHT PERHAPS PRELUDE TO GROUND DRIVE

Strong Force Bombs Troops Between Rhine and Weser

London, Feb. 8. (CP)—R.A.F. Lancasters blasted German E-boat shelters at Ijmuiden on the west coast of Holland with 12,000-pound earthquake bombs and smashed this hideout by daylight for the second time in two days.

Spitfires escorted the bombers across the North Sea. No enemy planes were encountered and the attacking force returned.

The Air Ministry announced that Italy-based American heavy bombers had returned to the Vienna area, following up their attack on oil refineries there yesterday.

The German radio issued a series of air raid warnings reporting bomber activity at Bonn, Munster, over the Nordhausen area, Hannover, Brunswick, Bremen and Hannover as well as over Holland.

A force of 700 R.A.F. and Canadian heavies last night swept over troop and equipment concentrations in Kleve and Goch, east and southeast of Nijmegen between the Waal and Maas Rivers. A strong force of R.A.F. bombers and Lancasters raided Goch.

The Kleve attack was made from "well below 5,000 feet", was announced by A.C.-in-C. Communique as highly concentrated and accurate.

The position is that the only place where the Siegfried Line had been really smashed is at Aachen where the penetration is months old.

The only movement which, by any stretch of the imagination could be called a break-through, is that in the northwest of Pruem, where troops of the United States 3rd Army yesterday captured the small villages of Honifeld, Schleich and Hesscheid, all three miles northwest of Pruem in an advance of 3/4 miles.

This actually brings 3rd Army troops on a narrow front of perhaps only 1,000 yards near Schleich, the steel and concrete line of pillboxes which was the Siegfried Line as it was plotted and constructed by military strategists years ago.

The Americans are attacking the Siegfried Line as it is, and as it was first built, and there is a world of difference between the two.

The Siegfried Line as such is a tough proposition.

Consisting of a mounting four rows of dragons' teeth and pillboxes sound to provide security in modern warfare, the Germans added hundreds of additions to the depth of the line and, in places, changing the area northwest of Pruem.

It is in that area that the old line is thinnest, because the ground is so wooded, rough and hilly and easy to defend that concrete pillboxes are not as necessary as in more open country.

In the hills, ravines and forests, artificial obstacles have been built and their conquest will be difficult.

Moscow Says 'Berlin in Panic Witnessing Smashing of Last Obstacle in its Forefront'

Seven Bridgeheads Secured In Sector East of Berlin

London, Feb. 8 —(CP)— The Moscow radio said today the "Oder Line has been pierced and Berlin in panic is witnessing the crumbling of the last obstacle in its forefield."

A prior broadcast by an American chain commentator said Marshal Stalin's casualties were heavy expecting an official announcement that the 1st White Russian Army had established seven bridgeheads across the river in force, "signifying the complete breakdown of the Oder Line."

Berlin accounts said the Russians had hammered out seven bridgeheads on the Berlin front, one of them 90 miles northeast of the capital, and a dozen others along 186 miles of the river from Raitbor in Silesia to Crossen, 50 miles southeast of Frankfurt.

Mass S.S. Troops in Capital.

The Moscow radio said Heinrich Himmler had massed S.S. troops in the capital, Roads south and west of Berlin were reported jammed with traffic of refugees in flight.

While Marshal Stalin had not confirmed the breaking of the Oder line on the Berlin front, Soviet advices said Marshal Gregory Zhukov's massed artillery was pounding at the weakest link of the capital's defense, the low western bank of the Oder between Kustrin and Stettin, where it turns northward to Berlin.

Berlin said one bridgehead was at Kustrin, 40 miles south of Kuestrin and 41 miles east of Berlin.

The broadcast from Moscow said Himmler had been entrusted with the defense of Berlin and a defence council had been formed in the city.

Gauleiter Goebbels, originally entrusted with the city's defense, has fled to southern Germany, Moscow declared. The Germans yesterday denied that Goebbels had left Berlin. Moscow backed out the statement that the battle on the approaches of the stream and told only of the liquidation of German pockets on the east side of Oder.

But Moscow dispatches said Kuestrin, 40 miles east of Berlin and one of the chief fortified centres of the Oder defence system, was about to fall, with Soviet communiques stating in the streets under cover from artillery fire. Kustrin was only two miles from the northern outskirts.

The Soviet communique, telling of the Kustrin battle, said in a single day on the central Oder front Red Army troops had broken into the "fortified region of Kustrin."

The crucial Oder river battle which may decide the fate of Berlin, was fought mainly, Moscow said, on the Kustrin front.

Under Concentric Attack.

German military commentators said Kuestrin was under "concentric attack by strong Russian formations."

The Russian communique, announcing victories northwest of Kuestrin where the low western bank of the Oder offers the least obstacle to the storming of German's last natural defence line in the east, said Ait-Drvetin, southern suburb of Kuestrin had been captured.

South of Kuestrin and the Warta rivers, Zhukov's men captured Kuestrinkir, the Russian-German battlefield of 1759 three miles south of Frankfurt.

Reports later than the Russian communique said the Russians had gone on and fought on into the suburbs of Frankfurt—perhaps the suburb of Dammvorstadt, a mile and a half from Frankfurt and connected with the main city by a 90-foot bridge.

Autitz, nine miles south of Frankfurt, also fell.

Obersinndt, Zhukov was broadening the base of his east-bank wedge for an all-out operation against Berlin. He appeared to have gained complete control of the east bank from Pyritz, 97 miles north of Berlin, east of Berlin, to Zaekerik — a stretch of more than 50 miles.

The Germans told of at least seven Soviet bridgeheads across this reach f the river and said heavy artillery moved into one bridgehead between Kustrin and Frankfurt had the Kustrin-Berlin railway in range.

Implying that the main battle for the enemy capital was well under way, the German radio said Soviet heavy artillery was shelling the Berlin-Kuestrin railway.

Earlier the Russians had announced that 15,460 Germans were killed during the fighting between Monday and Tuesday and named the commanders of four top-ranking colonels among them.

36 Towns Captured.

Russian front now more than 50 towns in their drive yesterday on Silesia, south of the Berlin area, on Berlin, where Marshal Ivan S. Konev and Berlin admitted the Soviet advance west of the Oder.

The German radio said this drive by Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine Army was aimed against the industrial area of Schwiedinitz, 40 miles southeast of Breslau and Breslau on the Oder.

Fires still raged under Soviet siege with no further Moscow or Berlin reports of developments in that area. Berlin reported the Russians had evacuated Steinau, north of Breslau, but this was not confirmed by the Russians.

Eastward fight wing, slashing toward Stettin, was reported by the Russians to have taken a town then lost Pyritz, 22 miles southwest of Stettin, and 97 miles north of Berlin.

The Germans said all Russian attempts to wipe out the German garrisons in Kuestrin, Glogau, Posen, and Prussian capital, Posnan in Western Silesia, had failed. Intensive scarred capital of Hungary, had been repulsed yesterday.

Limited Offensive Stalled Against Great Resistance

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, Feb. 8 — The limited offensive of United States forces on the 5th Army front in the mountainous southeast of Bologna was stalled today against strongly fortified and heavily defended enemy positions, the Allied High Command announced.

The infantry were halted after forcing their way forward up to 400 yards during two days of bitter fighting, but the mountainous terrain made difficult by a sudden thaw in the Apennines mountains.

Attacking troops gained the crest of one ridge but were forced to dig in and have engaged against counter-attacking German troops yesterday.

German resistance to the attack, which opened Monday, was prompt and vigorous and included artillery support.

Enemy resistance stiffened also in the Serchio valley near the west coast, where the town of Colle was taken. Fifth Army units lost some ground in the north of Castelnuovo but regained it in a new thrust and beat off several enemy counter-attacks.

A report from headquarters of Lt.-Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, commander of the 5th Army, said the American attack resulting the base of Ortega ridge nine miles southeast of Castelnuovo and seven miles by road to the south of the Serchio River highway — via Emilia — on Tuesday night.

Tenants of Shared Accommodations Now Enjoy Possession Rights

It has been announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, effective February 1 that tenants of shared accommodations and rooms in Kingston and Trenton now enjoy rights in regard to possession similar to those granted tenants in other parts of Canada.

This means that landlords renting shared accommodations and rooms must not terminate a tenancy except on Board forms and the notice must be in writing. Such notice can only be given if the landlord or his family or the quarters himself or a member of his family is required.

It was further explained that a tenant whose presence is considered inconvenient may be required to vacate under provincial law. In such cases landlords must obtain an order from a Court of Rentals Appeals Officer, Kingston to evict tenants under this clause.

Further information in regard to these rights and to the rental order may be obtained from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board office at Belleville.

C.N.R. Vets Ship 53,100 Fags Overseas in Jan.

Although it is the largest establishment of its kind in Canada, regularly supplying smokes for long boys overseas, officials of the Canadian National Railways' cigarette fund are not letting the grass grow under their feet, and during the month of January have shipped a total of 53,100 cigarettes, servicemen and prisoners of war in Germany.

And the boys overseas are really appreciative of the smokes they receive, judging by the letter of appreciation as is indicated by the many cards and letters received by Mr. Albert Jones, chairman of the fund, thanking him for the splendid service during the past year and trusting the smokes will continue to be forthcoming.

Bill Morgan writes "Thanks a million for the cigarettes you sent me, came at the right time. We were having a Christmas party, 'Bit of us and we were all out of smokes until we received your cigarettes from the C.N.R. fund. From then on, believe me, those cigarettes were the life of the party."

"I was on my way to Paris, on leave when I received your parcel, a present of cigs, many thanks," wrote Sgt. Bill Bennett. "I am now in Paris is a pretty place, but give me good old Belleville. Keep the cigarettes coming."

Expense of sending these cigarettes, cutting out the middle man through contributions from the women's club of the C.N.R. Vets organization and appreciation to his employers for help to the project is R. E. Pigden, who recently expressed by the veterans' president, Mr. Albert Jones.

Commenting on the replies received from overseas, Mr. Jones stated these letters and cards showed that what work is agricultural and encouraging a good job, well done."

'Friday Is Stamp Day' In Campaign

To back up our forces on the fighting battle fronts it is up to Canadians on the home front to provide the munitions needed to produce the weapons and other needed equipment.

That is why the Food Industry of Canada has been requested by the government to announce a nation wide "Friday is Stamp Day" campaign, when the sale of war savings stamps is the objective set for this particular effort and the grocery public in Belleville and district is asked to do their rightful share.

The objective for Friday and district is $4,000 stamps or $16,000 in bonds, and it is intended that customers will play their part in reaching the objective, 100 per cent. effective.

The Food Industry has pleaded its complete support to the "Friday is Stamp Day" drive and throughout the campaign which will continue until March 9th store personnel will play their part in asking customers to purchase war saving stamps with their orders.

So, please bring an extra quarter or two along for war savings stamps on Friday and for each succeeding Friday and for each succeeding week during the period of the campaign. Remember, every quarter spent is a rental of one bullet and speed the victorious return of Canadian sons and daughters!

To the north, around Schaidten and Gemund, southeast of Aachen the country is more difficult to defend, and the Germans have two defence zones there. The Americans, however, have not reached it, but have hardly started to tackle the second pillbox formations and undoubtedly there are fixed defences all the way to the Rhine.

The description of the Siegfried Line was given at supreme headquarters of the army.

In the sector east of Monschau the Siegfried Line is built in two zones. The western zone follows the line of the frontier and has been penetrated for the whole of its length north of Ramscheid.

The second or eastern zone is based on the line of the Olef River through Schleiden and Gemund, and following the general bearing of the line of the River Roer reservoirs and is continued northwards through the Hurtgen Forest.

At the southern end of the Forest it has considerable depth. On the west side of the Roer River in the vicinity of the Schmidt and Berg sectors.

Between these two zones east of Monschau are defenses which have been overrun. American troops now are in contact with the principal defences of the eastern zone near Schleiden and Gemund.

Farther to the northwest, American troops now are engaged with strong defences in the industrial, and north of Schmidt.

It is therefore apparent that this description does not take into consideration the fact that numerous additional defences have been prepared during the last few months to the east of the original Siegfried Line.

The Americans, however, have not reached it, but have hardly started to tackle the second pillbox formations and undoubtedly there are fixed defences all the way to the Rhine.

The description of the Siegfried Line was given at supreme headquarters of the army.

In the sector east of Monschau the Siegfried Line is built in two zones. The western zone follows the line of the frontier and has been penetrated for the whole of its length north of Ramscheid.

The second or eastern zone is based on the line of the Olef River through Schleiden and Gemund, and following the general bearing of the line of the River Roer reservoirs and is continued northwards through the Hurtgen Forest.

At the southern end of the Forest it has considerable depth. On the west side of the Roer River in the vicinity of the Schmidt and Berg sectors.

Between these two zones east of Monschau are defenses which have been overrun. American troops now are in contact with the principal defences of the eastern zone near Schleiden and Gemund.

Farther to the northwest, American troops now are engaged with strong defences in the industrial, and north of Schmidt.

It is therefore apparent that this description does not take into consideration the fact that numerous additional defences have been prepared during the last few months to the east of the original Siegfried Line.

Contributors To Kinsmen Fag Fund Thanked

Personal contributions to assure the continued shipment of Canadian cigarettes to Belleville boys serving with the forces under the auspices of the Kinsmen Fag Fund were thanked by Harold Greer, this month, according to statistics received from the Kinsmen Club here today. "It is only through voluntary contributions from various prospects sponsored by the Kinsmen, that the regular shipments of cigarettes to Belleville boys overseas," explained Fag Fund Chairman.

Scores of replies were received from overseas, many of them expressing thanks for the cigarettes already received and adding hope for the receipt of more in the future. "It's a great job the Kinsmen are doing for us boys over here," wrote A. R. Robinson. "Cannot tell you how I feel here in the cold winter of Holland," added Bombardier Bailey, while scores of others added similar sentiments.

The attack in the Italian theatre carried out more than 2,000 sorties against German rail and oil supply hubs yesterday in their most active day recently, but also suffered their largest recorded loss in planes.

HUXLEY HOPES

This involves the future of Germany. We have proclaimed we are not fighting her people, but that we should not preclude our making terrorist enslavement for the sake of future security. I hope the idea of splitting up what is left of Germany into a number of separate nations will be turned down, as it is bound to, as being both a solution to last.

Much more important is the economic future of Germany. We cannot allow Germany to build up great armament potential ever again. But neither can we afford to keep Germany's production to too low a level.

Most Needs on Valley.

This dilemma must be discussed and some policy decided on. The Russians, I would appear, even the hardest possible peace. If so they will, I hope, abandon Stalin's to the idea that even Germans must have something to live and work for.

On the political side, I hope the question of an alternative Government for Germany be discussed, and I expect that the Free Germans now in Russia under Von Paulus will be brought forward. Whether such a government, to be proclaimed in the event of the continued hostility of the Allied bands, Alternatively, a government of Germans which might have the duty of tackling the difficulties among the Allied and foreign powers.

BIG THREE PLANS

from the King and Queen to visit London while en route to the conference.

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Big Three plans for joint political action in the Pacific are expected here within the week.

Calling for active American participation in Pacific peace settlements, they will mark the beginning of a new phase in United States foreign policy.

The plans are being worked out by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin in an historic conference now believed to be at least half-finished throughout at the White House.

Presumably the meeting is on Pacific problems, with the Prime Minister, in order to allow Marshal Stalin and Chiefs of Staff more supervision of Red Army operations.

A joint announcement late yesterday by the heads of the three conference, was released in London and Moscow as well as from the White House. This finally put the Pacific war on an equal footing with the European war.

The Germans put in four counter-attacks in company strength with tanks in the Pruem area. All were repulsed.

Front dispatches reported no movement of the 1st Army sectors. Fresh reinforcements are being brought into the Aachen area of Germany opposite Luxembourg, but the troops across the divided Sure and Our Rivers remained out and widened their lodgements. Front dispatches said the 90th Division took Wallendorf on the border at the confluence of the two rivers.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Feb. 4 (CP)—Two Canadian instructors at an R.A.F. Coastal Command Sunderland flying boat training unit in Scottish took a crew of R.A.F. airmen pupils on a routine anti-submarine patrol and ran into some unexpected excitement.

The big British aircraft was attacked by a Nazi aircraft. The Junkers was believed damaged in the fight but the Sunderland won't.

F/O. C. R. Ulrick of Hillcrest, Alta., 24-year-old flying instructor, was at the controls and F/O. R. A. McDonald of St. Andrews West, Ont., was gunnery leader.

The JU88 pounced on the Sunderland in broad daylight soon after the patrol started. Enemy tracer was passing underneath the flying boat when one of the R.A.F. pupils opened fire from the rear turret. His fired 800 rounds and could see his tracer going into the enemy aircraft. The Nazi broke off the engagement.

A Saskatchewan pilot with an R.A.F. Mosquito squadron of Coastal Command participated in a recent shipping strike which left an enemy merchantman burning in waters.

"As we approached the target we passed over a small town and German heavy flak batteries opened up at us, together with the ships and light shore batteries," said F/O. Lamont of Bradwell.

"The leaders had to fly through a box-barrage of flak but by the time the house in had raised our Harnett said it was impossible to get a clear picture of the results of the attack since in breaking off the Gord engagement the planes turned out to sea over an 1,800-foot high.

Equipment officer with a mobile Typhoon airfield in Holland is Fl. Lt. A. George Broomfield, 21-year-old Toronto artist who has been elected to membership in the Royal Canadian Academy as a result of paintings during his three years overseas.

He did several while stationed in Newfoundland, one of the better known being "Near Gander", which was exhibited across Canada. His other works have been illustrative of the work of Bomber Command in Britain.

Real turkey dinners with nuts and all the other trimmings were served to British troops in the Burma Jungles, thanks to Canadian airmen.

Many Canadians are flying in the Dakota transport formations which played airborne Santa Claus to the front-line fighters. Three Canadians of them made up an extra Christmas holiday ration—not very much but very appreciated—for the extra half pound of margarine, half pound of sugar and 11 cents' worth extra, of meat brightening the food treat for Britain's sixth war Christmas.

And the very fact that the stores are open and broken up once for all has a significance that made the sixth a brighter and more hopeful Christmas than any of Britain's past five wartime celebrations.

Three Canadians 'Mentioned' For Attempt To Save

London, Feb. 8 — (CP Cable) — Three Canadian airmen who sought to keep the crew of a four-engined bomber after it plunged out of control in a house in northern England and then dashed into the blazing wreckage of the house in an effort also to save two occupants have been mentioned in dispatches, it was announced today.

The airmen, members of the R.C.A.F., Flight Lieut. Graydon, of Ft. Sgt. James Irwin, Liberty, Sask., Ont., and Cpl. Arthur Townsley, Toronto.

They were returning to their station from a dance when they saw the aircraft strike the house. Disregarding the exploding ammunition and signal flares, the three climbed into the burning aircraft and carried out the crew. All but one, they had been thrown clear were killed.

From the bomber they rushed into the blazing house but all they could do was remove the bodies of several children.

"Fl. Sgt. Irwin did what I think was a super-human feat," said Cpl. Townsley.

"We had lifted a fallen section of brick wall to reach one of the bodies of children. Irwin held it up while I crawled underneath and got a child's body out. It took the three of us to get that section of the wall, yet Jim held it up alone while we were under it."

The War Today— Signs of Impending Hun Collapse Offer Emergency Opportunity

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

If General Eisenhower isn't on the verge of a mighty offensive against the German Rhine defenses, he certainly is giving a most convincing imitation of breaking with such intention.

The supreme spokesman says there's no doubt the storm is about to break. Allied fighting men stand on or inside the Siegfried Line along a 400-mile line, from Roermond in the north to war-blasted Saarbrucken in the south.

All this runs counter to what one would expect under normal conditions, because this is a bad time of year for a major attack.

Snow, Floods and deep mud have turned the terrain into a nightmare. The fighting weather is vile. In short, unless Eisenhower were impelled by some great emergency, one bodies representing to undertake an all-out offensive before the end of winter in the spring.

Looking across at the eastern front we see a similar phenomenon. There the Muscovites would, under normal circumstances, be on the move when they reached the strong German defences along the river Oder. But the Red Armies are continuing their onslaught all along the line, fighting at a mighty offensive against the German Pomeranian defences. It certainly is giving a most convincing imitation of breaking with such intention.

BROAD PASIG R.

The fate of these Japanese was sealed by the presence of the United States 11th Airborne Division further south. These troops, 8 1/2 miles south of the Pasig were held up, however, by a stiff scrap around Ichinichi airfield at Suburban Pasay, near Manila Bay.

Corregidor Invaded

Out in the bay, the guardian fortress of Corregidor, which the Japanese use as holding to deny American naval entry into the great harbor, was pounded again by 204 tons of explosives dropped by 100-engined bombers.

Across the bay at Bataan, a grim jungle fight at the peninsula base between United States 38th Division forces and well-concealed Japanese was reported.

Fires set by the enemy north of the Pasig River Monday night were smouldering but other fires started up Wednesday south of the river—that part of Manila best known to tourists. The south of the city includes the Manila hotel, the Army and Navy Club and the High Commissioner's residence.

London Letter

By CHARLES BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 8. (CP)—Formation of an academy of medicine, unifying the many bodies representing academic aspects of the profession, is being vigorously discussed in the noted British doctors.

The project was urged in the Times by Sir Stewart Duke-Elder, surgeon-oculist to the King, endorsed by Lord Dawson of Penn, former president of the Royal College of Physicians, and Dr. Charles Webb-Johnson, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, and viewed with some reservation by Lord Moran, current president of the R.C.P.

Apart from its academic aspects, Canada has an indirect interest, since the home of the R.C.P. adjoins Canada House on Trafalgar Square, and acquisition of the Medical Building as a new extension of the Dominion's offices is regarded as a post-war project.

Sir Stewart Duke-Elder urged uniting up an authoritative body to foster scientific progress, maintain professional standards, and stimulate research. He said liberated countries looked to Britain for a cultural lead to replace the leadership previously exercised from Berlin, and "there is no more potent ambassador than medicine".

The essential first step toward unification would be "a brunch together on a common site of the three royal colleges—of physicians, surgeons and obstetricians and gynaecologists and of the special branches . . . of medicine might find a home together in the Palace of Pilate".

In a letter running more than a half-column in the Times Lord Moran rejected the proposal. "We all agreed", he wrote, "that there was a good deal against the three royal colleges together on the present site. In 1941 the Comitia of the R.C.P. had decided against the Bomb-damaged Inn Fields site, and settled Poller had been in case of a move, that R.C.P. should rebuild "on a site . . . say, in the Regent's Park area". (In the North London constituency of Islington, Inn Fields, the R.C.S. had everything to gain and nothing to lose. "If the sister college is willing to consider alternative sites, it would be a notable contribution to a cause which we in common have at heart."

But, he went on "It is one thing to try to bring the three colleges on to one site. It is quite another to try to submerge their identity in a so-called academy of medicine. The history of the Royal College of Physicians, which has kept all its records for four and a half centuries, is part of the history of England. To destroy these traditions in the hope of new emporium is surely to be a little lacking in the historic sense".

Britain's Food Store Used In Invasion

(By Brenda Bendixsen, in the Vancouver Daily Province)

The latest now-it-can-be-told war story to come out of Britain is that of her 20,000 "shadow larders"—the vast, hidden stores of food which were established from 1940 on to feed the British and keep them fighting if they were cut off lately from their normal supplies by German invasion. At the height these stocks reached 54,000 tons, which were distributed in 20,000 scattered points in small towns and villages in a county "invasion belt" stretching about 20 miles inland.

Only now, with the announcement that the food is at last to be collected and distributed among the regular food stocks, is the full extent of the preparations revealed. Until now, the details have been one of the most closely-guarded secrets of the war, although some 10,000 members of the "shadow larder Army" who were responsible for the collection of the food—and would have been responsible for its distribution—had necessarily to know about it.

This army numbered in its ranks mechanics, railroad men, school teachers and thousands of housewives. They had no uniforms, no publicity. Their only badge, a blue arm-band with "Food" written on it, was never to be worn unless the planned-for emergency arose.

Yet behind the scenes they put in many hours of work on the shadow larders. There were rehearsals to be held every so often, usually in the village hall. Sometimes these came the women of the neighborhood to learn the procedure down to the last, but vitally-important, detail of how large a quantity they would need to carry home a five, say—or longer—supply.

Then as now a 14-pound ration per person, meant to last eight days, contained 7½ pounds of emergency crackers, 1 pound of corned beef, 7 ounces of margarine, 1 tin of condensed milk, 4 ounces of tea and a can of "pig" or stew—usually the famous "pilot" soup which the ministry of food had prepared from specially nourishing recipes. At the rehearsals all the food was duly collected on ration books and turned in again at the exit to the hall.

Between rehearsals the Food Army was kept busy seeing that the stores were in order. All the cans were inspected periodically, doubtful ones rejected and replacements made. Usually there were more than three tons of food in one place and those places varied from schools and garages to the cellars of decorated spare room of the local rectory.

The leading food officers, however, had even more than this to do. For them was the terrific job of organization which lay behind the whole plan.

What the collections must have meant in terms of limiting they already scanty food supply—as well as in terms of effort and time is hard to realize. In statistics of the civilian consumption of principal food items. The thousands of cans of condensed milk, which would have helped "fight" the Germans, would, for instance, have nicely padded the weekly milk ration which for adults was often as low as two pints. The cans of corned beef, too, could have supplemented the weekly allowance of 23 cents' worth of meat per head.

But the vital stores were never touched, although Britain was sometimes desperately short of food. All through the winter of 1942, the British were urged to eat as little as possible of that staple, of diet. Africa was taking up every available inch of shipping space, according in Parliament the following May. Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, Wilfred Wellock revealed just how grim the situation had been.

Now that we have the glad news that Tunisia is taken," he said, "I can say that for three months after the Germans in North Africa, the total shipping available for not only Britain but Russia barely sufficient to bring in even the small amount we ate during that period. Now, too, perhaps I honorable members will appreciate why my noble friend, the minister of food, was so anxious during the winter that we should eat potatoes, not bread."

The first time the stores were used was before the invasion of Europe when the call came through from the armed forces for the 54,000 tons of food—for "urgent operational reasons". Hour after hour, school teachers, miners and mechanics set to work to collect and dispatch the vital food. And although probably not one of them failed to realize the significance of the order, they kept as silent about Britain's invasion plans as they had for her plans should she be invaded.

Now as the Allied armies press onward against Germany, and the danger of a German invasion of England seems to be past, the stores have been built again, this time for food. All of them have been distributed among the general food supplies of the country. Some

The Ledo Road

President Chiang Kai-Shek of China has greeted the official opening of the Ledo Road to China from India with these words, "We have broken the siege of China."

These are heroic words from the leader of China which has for long endured Japanese aggression and still keeps on fighting.

Montreal Herald speaking of the remark says that "the Generalissimo is given to brave words and bold proclamations and his bravest and boldest declarations usually prove on analysis to be based on long-range hopes. He has his potential scorn for time. His optimism is not taken by temporary adverse conditions.

"Thus the phrase quoted is symbolically true, even if the achievement of it is of limited significance from the material point of view."

The Herald quotes further from the statement:

"For this turn of events we and our Allies have paid no small price but we have proved to the enemy that neither the will power of China nor the will power of her Allies do win the war can ever be shaken. Let our soldiers fight on together with the Allied forces for the final and total victory."

China, most ancient of states, has the will to fight on. Many long since would have thought her end had come but the President from the beginning said that China cannot be beaten. His latest words after the opening of the Ledo Road confirm the truth of what he has said. China fights on and will fight "on to Tokyo."

Britain's Machine Tools

The announcement of the relaxation of British government control of machine tools, and of the purchase of all outstanding machine tools held from the United States on lend-lease, draws attention to the achievements and prospects of the British machine tool industry.

Britain being the original scene of the industrial revolution, was also the first home of machine tools, too big or too laborious for hand tools; e.g., in railway construction, shipbuilding, textile machinery. The construction of precision tools, for the mass production of smaller goods, began in America with the need for large quantities of small arms in the Civil War. Britain, while always maintaining her advantage in the manufacture of the larger machine tools, has in the past 25 years, and especially during the present war, made remarkable advances in the smaller types also.

In the initial stages of this war, American machine tools helped to remove "the bottle neck" which the shortage of tools in Britain threatened to cause to her rapidly expanding armaments production, but the British machine tool factories worked day and night, (and may have kept up this tempo throughout the war,) with the result that no less than 75% of all machine tools now in Britain are home produced. The production achievements recorded in the statistical White Paper of November, 1944, are thus an eloquent tribute to the war effort of the British machine tool industry.

Thanks to a machine tool especially designed for the job, the time taken on the process of aero-engine manufacture was reduced from 70 hours to 15 minutes. In addition to their part in British war production British machine tools have also played an important part in building production in other Allied countries, for example, Russia and India. Up to March, 1944, $36,350,000 worth of British machine tools had been sent to Russia, the number of metal cutting lathes alone amounting to 6,491 by April, 1944.

Within Germany

Twenty-three million Germans are homeless wanderers or refugees within Germany.

This is what Hitlerism and German militarism have done for Germany besides many other things. Nothing more striking than this fact should be needed to prove to the Germans how sinister has been the influence of war-making Germany upon her own people, besides what she has made the rest of the world endure.

Without fail the crime comes home to roost at last and Germany must pay. Germans accepted Hitlerism, Nazism and Prussian militarism and they fought against every human principle and every mark of progress, democracy and civilization.

Now in Germany's approaching doom, she has on her hands this straggling mass of men, women and children, creating one of the most gigantic problems by the very nature of their condition and numbers at a time when military Germany is being forced back and back towards Berlin. But of course for the government of Germany all is but a military matter and the consideration of refugee Germans won't count for militarism's iron hand and icy heart do not consider individuals. The only anxiety Hitler would have over this vast growing population of war refugees would be whether they would interfere with the war he has already lost but us still backing up with his futile speech and dwindling powers.

Nazi Germany gave itself over to the reign of selfishness, aggrandizement and loot. And where has it brought her and her people—to the judgment of the world and to suffering.

The nation that exalts selfishness and makes it the chief point in its program is doomed. Germany is that nation and Germany's woes will go on until Germany is made to realize that this has caused her defeat and troubles and until Hitlerism, Nazism and Prussian militarism and imperialism are rendered impotent by crushing defeat. Germany must be made to expiate her crimes against her neighbors and the world. The would-be conqueror must and will be conquered.

Urges White Paint on Cars

(Canadian Paint and Varnish Magazine)

"Paint unquestionably contributes materially to the prevention of accidents," says J. G. H. Foster, general manager of the Ontario Safety League, Mr. Foster in advocating the use of white paint on the rear ends of automobiles and the use of luminous paint for highway markings, says:

"I have always felt that if we could have every motor car and truck should have some white paint on the rear end. This would undoubtedly reduce the number of rear-end crashes, especially at night when vehicles are sometimes required to park on highways when out of order. A need on highways also is luminous paint to give better direction at night to drivers possessed of doubtful eyesight.

Salvage in British Waters

From the outbreak of war up to December 1944 over 2,000,000 gross tons of merchant shipping had been salved in British home waters and over 460,000 gross tons in foreign waters. These figures do not include salved warships, nor any merchant ships or landing craft salved in captured ports or beaches. This colossal task has been carried out by Britain's Admiralty Salvage Department which has been working at high pressure since the beginning of the war and in recent months has been particularly concerned with the clearance of Allied ports supplying the B.L.A.

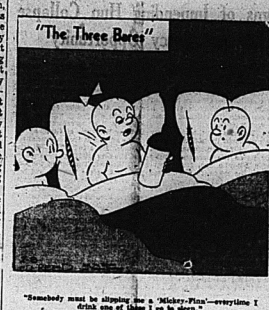
NOSTALGIA



Never to feel the cold winds bite,
Never to see a field of snow,
Always to live, by day and night,
Where only the palm trees grow!
Ask of the boy on some tropic isle
What he'd give to be cold for a little while.

Never to hear the north wind moan,
Never to look on the maples bare
Or a nest with its summer tenants flown
Or a snowplow clearing a thoroughfare!
Ask of the boy in some jungle grim
How good would a snowstorm seem to him?

Never to wake to a shovel sound
Or the crunch of wheel on a frozen road,
But an earth where lizards and snakes abound
And a flimsy hut is a man's abode!
Ask of the boy in the jungle mire,
What he'd give to be home by a blazing fire.

RAINBOW CHASERS

A person looking for a short cut to riches is said to be searching for the philosopher's stone.

The ancient alchemists believed that somewhere in nature there existed a substance that would convert ordinary metals into gold.

This imaginary substance was called the philosopher's stone because it was supposed to have a philosophic basis and was linked with the theories of matter advanced by the philosophers.

The idea of transmuting base metals into noble ones seems to have originated among the Greeks at Alexandria in the early centuries of the Christian era.

In medieval times the philosopher's stone was regarded not only to have the property of transmuting the baser metals into gold but also the power of curing most of the ills that the body is heir to. Accordingly it became synonymous with "the elixir of life."

Some of the medieval alchemists supposed the philosopher's stone to be a powder.

The dual function of the philosopher's stone is referred to in Shakespeare. In King Henry IV, Act III, Scene 2, Sir John Falstaffe, who has secretary designs on Master Shallow, says "I will make him a philosopher's two stones to me."

According to one version of the legend the philosopher's stone was buried at the foot of the rainbow. Another version has it that if a person were to dig at the spot where a rainbow touches the ground he would find a pot of gold.

Rainbow chasers dreamers who try to achieve the impossible are sometimes called "rainbow chasers," because they set out to be seeking the philosopher's stone or the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow, probably you do not know that a

IF THE HOME IS FIT FOR THE BABY

Kindly suggest a few doctors and hospitals who will not refuse to admit the husband and the rest of the family to the delivery room.

(Mrs. H. F. J.)

What, only the family? Shouldn't we have the neighbors and the members of the bridge club on hand too?

Right now I don't know of a doctor who is willing to have the husband present during delivery. As for hospitals, all I know is what I have said here repeatedly—they will try to exclude the husband from the delivery room as long as they can get away with it, because they naturally prefer to keep the public ignorant of what sometimes happens in the delivery room—I mean the frightful breaches of surgical aseptic.

But I can recommend one fine place to be a baby. Make it a place where your husband may remain at your side, where a real man at Alexandria in the early centuries of the Christian era.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Craving for Carbohydrate

I crave laundry starch—and I want to stop doing it because I believe it is a bad habit. What causes a person to crave starch . . ?

(Mrs. T. S.

It can't find the bread and cake substitutes you suggest in "Rules for Reducing" (E. A. M.)

Age 34, height 5' 2", weight 117 lbs. I get plenty if I try to deprive myself of candies, sweet cookies, cakes, and sweetened carbonated beverages, although I admit if I continue to indulge in such substitutes too, should stop.

(Miss E. F. C.)

Answer—I believe the craving for excessive quantities or proportions of starch comes from starch, sugar) is due chiefly to deficiency of vitamin B complex in the refined diet. Food stores, especially, purporting to supply "health" foods, should stock up non-carbohydrate or low carbohydrate bread and cake substitutes. You should study "Rules for Reducing" (for copy send 3c. stamp and stamped, envelope bearing your address) and remember "Make the Meals" by Clarence A. Mills, M.D. (Harper & Bros.) which should be available in your public library.

Arthritis

Have you a problem on arthritis and neuritis? If so will be grateful for a copy in full detail, addressed envelope enclosed. (D. H. A.)

Answer—Pamphlet on Arthritis is in preparation. Nothing about neuritis—that is too vague or general to attempt to discuss as a definite ailment.

A Policyholder Reports

"Some years ago I insured my life with The Mutual Life of Canada and every year since then I have carefully read the Company's Annual Report because as a policyholder I am, with 180,000 other policyholders, a part-owner of the business.

"I am a practical man, and big figures, as such, do not convey much meaning—I want to know what they mean to me as a policyholder and to my dependents.

"Take 1944 for instance. More new policyholders joined The Mutual Life than during any other year in the Company's long history. That means a stronger company, more people united with me for a common purpose—personal and family protection. (We own 285,000 policies for protection, exceeding $723,000,000). It is evidence that the Company has gained a good reputation through its service and outstanding policy results.

"$14,854,000 was paid to policyholders in death claims, matured policies, dividends and other payments last year, benefitting many individuals and families throughout Canada. My policies are still in force and their values are constantly increasing. The assurance of security for the future that they guarantee gives me peace of mind.

"Of the amount paid out by the Company in 1944 I received my share of the dividends, or premium refunds as a substantial reduction of my premium. $93,000,000 have been paid out in dividends to policyholders since The Mutual Life was first organized in 1869, which means that the actual cost of insurance has been reduced by this amount.

"I also noted with pleasure that The Mutual Life invested heavily in the two Victory Loans of 1944 and that a large percentage of the assets, which total $252,000,000, is in War and Victory Bonds. I am interested in these assets because they belong to us—the policyholders—and represent the stability behind our insurance.

"It pleases me to know that the Company is conducting its operations from year to year so carefully that the SAFETY of my insurance is unquestioned, and so economically and efficiently that the earnings of the Company give me my insurance at the LOWEST POSSIBLE NET COST.

"You see, life insurance to me is a personal thing, and my Company's reports on its operations for the year mean more than a presentation of figures—to me they mean a strengthening of my present and future security and that of my fellow policyholders and our dependents."

Tribute is Paid Montgomery's Leadership

The appointment of Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery to the tactical field command on the western front in Normandy during the critical period of the German counter-push into Belgium and Luxembourg assured the Allied American and British armies of efficient field leadership and probably of a shorter war, says The Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

His earlier appointment in a similarly perilous situation on the African front provides sound military leadership at a critical time, and not only shortened the campaign but speeded it to a victorious conclusion when a disastrous defeat had been numbered.

Able Commander.

Marshal Montgomery is without a peer as a battle-commander in the European theatre.

General MacArthur is of course the master military strategist of all these in the triple combination of air, land and sea warfare demanded by the Pacific war.

And there is certain parallel in the treatment MacArthur and Montgomery.

General MacArthur, after turning the tide, of apparent invasion and conquest back in the south Pacific and early Australia and New Zealand, was the victim of a policy of inadequate supply and stinted command in the Pacific war for nearly two years before he was finally given the equipment and the authority for the campaign which he has relentlessly driven across the vast range of Pacific islands to the very heart of the Philippines.

Marshal Montgomery has had almost the same experience.

Monty's "Eclipse"

After commanding and inspiring the great drive from El Alamein in Tunisia and saving the Suez Canal and the oil-rich Near East, and even after conducting the most perilous landings against the underside of Sicily which ended the military collapse of Italy, he went into comparative eclipse.

And this in spite of the fact that the "Montgomery of mechanized warfare which defeated and humiliated Rommel, ideally fitted the pattern of requited military strategy on the western front in Europe and, indeed was a fundamental requirement for victory.

Marshal Montgomery has a special and superb genius for commanding the huge and fast-rolling vehicular forces employed in mechanized warfare.

He has this genius, in fact, almost exclusively among the military commanders of this war.

Mistake Corrected.

It has been a mistake to relegate him to the relatively minor and inferior role he has played so long on the western front, and it is an appropriate and proper remedy for that nearly tragic mistake that he is now elevated to a command commensurate with his great talents.

Marshal Montgomery has the complete confidence of the American forces under his command, and his leadership is an inspiration to them.

He has, moreover, utter confidence in the American soldier as a fighting man, profound admiration for his courage and resourcefulness and deep affection for him personally.

He formed a very high opinion of the American soldier in Italy and Sicily," Marshal Montgomery told the press at his conference after his new appointment.

Affection Formed.

"I have spent my life with the British soldier, but I have formed a great affection for the American soldier, who is a very brave fighting man. He has the quality in battle which makes a great soldier."

It was the good fighting spirit of the American soldier, he declared, which was "basically responsible for Rommel, ideally fitted the pattern of his defeat."

The ideal relationship thus prevails between Marshal Montgomery and his new command.

He is a field commander upon which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied war operations in Europe, can place the utmost reliance, and in which he can have utter faith.

The appointment reflects the wisdom of General Eisenhower, and unquestionably reflects his own personal choice of an associate capable of hastening the victorious end of the European war, for which the peoples of America and Britain are earnestly praying.

Lack of Clothing Brings Suffering To Netherlanders

Well-Stocked Shops Cleared by Nazis Under Civil Administration Established During Occupation

By MARGARET ECKER
(CP War Correspondent)

Eindhoven, Holland, Feb. 8, (CP).—A pretty, little blonde, braided Anna and blue-eyed Pieter, are being kept warm in bed by their mothers as much as possible these winter days in Holland because of a clothing shortage.

It seems like a punishment to the little boys and girls because outside the ground is white with snow that lies deep enough running up the canals are frozen just right for skating.

But little Anna has no woollen underwear and Pieter has a pair to wear inside his wooden boots, and when the children do go outside they shiver pitifully in the thin north wind. Years of undernourishment don't help resistance to cold.

Children haven't even the consolation of plaything inside by a warm fire. The best Dutch mother can do is to manage, if it's lucky, enough wood to keep a small stove in one room in the house. The Germans as they go about their work have left Dutch homes bare with cold.

Hendrik Godin, Ldr. F. J. MacNamara, of Ottawa, as civil affairs officer in charge of a transport column, brought a small convoy of clothes to Eindhoven. But the clothes were comparatively few and the needs of the people are great so only a small number of the people in the area can get the help they were before. Most clothing supplies can be given only to refugees or the bombed out.

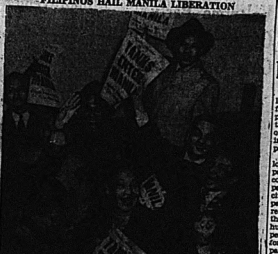
Hardly any people in Holland have underwear and many growing children have only makeshift outer clothing.

The people will tell you that for two years it has been impossible to get any clothing. Ration coupons were distributed but there were there any stocks in the shops. No Black Market.

The Netherlanders had no black market to fall back upon—and the law-abiding Netherlanders were reluctant to deal in any market that savored of the illegal.

A vague racial blood link with the Germans is partly responsible for the lack of clothing in Holland. Because they felt Holland was Nordic as themselves, the Nazi conquerors established civil administration over the country with "privileges". For one thing that meant that there were no exchange or trade barriers between Germany and Holland. German stations in the country could buy everything they wanted without question, and they cleaned out the shelves of the Holland shops which looked well stocked after Germany's easy terity years.

Belgium and France on the other hand were under military administration, and trade with them supposed to be no exchange of German money for francs. In practice it didn't work out that way but it did in some measure prevent the complete looting of shops the day the people of Belgium and France are chic and well dressed. The people of Holland are in rags.



Operational conditions do not permit the using of transportation to bring the clothing to Holland.

This happy group of Filipinos are shown celebrating the liberation of Manila following the news that victorious American troops were rapidly wiping out Jap resistance throughout the city. The Japs had occupied Manila three years during which the Filipinos suffered great hardships and starvation.

MacArthur Untangles Rope Shortage By Philippines Push

New York—Most war scarce of all vital commodities, abaca, known commonly as manila hemp, may soon be off the danger list.

As MacArthur's dim wave forward in the Philippines they are freeing lands on which this critical fibre is grown and with them are experts who are arranging for the shipping and shipping of the commodity.

Used for a myriad of marine tasks the thing is in short supply since the Japs seized the Philippines. Over 90 per cent of all abaca was grown in the islands before the war. Nearly all the manila hemp imported into the United States comes into the manufacture of ropes and cables for ships. It is particularly well suited for this use, having a high degree of resistance to sea water, durability and tenacity.

So critical did the shortage of the cordage fibre become after the fall of Luzon that substitutes, generally inferior to the Philippine product, had to be used on naval and merchant ships. Government plants producing inefficient Burlapsean-type hemp were established by the government in the midwest. These products, however, proved unsatisfactory for marine service use.

In 1942 experimental plantations of abaca were started by the United Fruit Company in Central American series. Previous experimentation in the Philippines, the West Indies and the Malay States had failed. In Central America, much to the surprise of cordage experts, however, the plant flourished and grew. Abaca planting was kept to a small scale in Latin America, because of the greater cost of the fibre there compared with that of the Philippine product. With the fall of Mindanao, largest producing island, the United States authorities requested the United Fruit Company to begin extensive plantings in Panama, Costa Rica, Honduras and Guatemala. This year's crop is expected to amount to 60,000,000 pounds, approximately two-thirds the normal imports from the Philippines.

Abaca planting succeeded in Central America, according to scientists, because the climate there is similar to that of the Philippines, and because planting was done from suckers rather than seeds. The abaca plant is very similar to the banana plant found throughout Central America.

When Japan took the Philippines she knew she was cutting off our supply of the vital cordage fibre. She had planned for the attack even before Pearl Harbor. More than half of Mindanao's population was Japanese and nearly all the plantations were in Jap hands.

The Japs have broadcast claims that the abaca fibre was a great part been replanted with other fibres. The only supply of cordage fibre the United States has been done is not as yet ascertained. Any crops from fibre, third largest producer of the fibre, is abaca fields there are in good order and stripping is already in progress.

DIRT'S WORST ENEMY

Tracking Down Owners of Goods Lost on Trains

Chicago — G.I. Joe, who does a lot of travelling these days, often forgets to take some personal possession when leaving a train, thereby adding a client or one of the greatest "detective" agencies in the world, the Pullman Company.

The company checks its cars for lost property after the departure of passengers and has developed an efficient, speedy and-find-the-owner department with representatives in 80 cities. During the past year, when passenger traffic on the railroads reached the highest peak in history, this department returned several hundred thousand dollars worth of personal property which had been forgotten or mislaid by Pullman patrons.

Reaches to Front Lines.

Pullman goes all-out in its efforts to find owners of lost articles. This is particularly difficult in the case of servicemen who have to be traced to lands across the seas and sometimes to the front lines before delivered to them in the front lines of the Pacific.

P. B. Callahan, general manager, cites the case of a soldier who left an electric shaver on a train going to Minneapolis. The only clue was a 30-year-old sales slip by which the owner was traced from Minneapolis to Spokane and thence to France where he was serving with the invasion forces.

Owners of lost articles have been traced to South Pacific islands, Alaska and Iceland. The department never gives up until it has exhausted every clue.

Varied Articles.

Callahan said that civilians lose everything from eyeglasses to snowshoes and in most cases their losses are more spectacular than those of servicemen.

"For example," Callahan said, there was a woman who lost a bag containing $125,000 worth of jewels, and her husband were travelling from Boston to New York. After leaving the train, she discovered that she had left a little green bag containing the jewels beside her seat. She notified the Pullman Company which telephoned to points ahead on the train's schedule. The bag was found by a porter at Philadelphia and it was sealed and returned to New York on the next train."

$100,000 Ring Lost.

Another porter found a $100,000 diamond ring on the floor of a coach aboard a train between Atlanta and Augusta, Ga. He turned it in and immediately and the owner soon claimed it. Callahan said porters display exemplary honesty and did after day turn in wallets containing from a few dollars to thousands of dollars.

Travelling agents of the company frequently travel halfway across the continent to return an owner of lost property—or one will be forwarded it for another parcel. Prolonged searches, sometimes lasting up to two years, are characteristic of the diligence with which the company performs this unusual service.

Pullman officials say passenger loss may be minimized if they will put identification on easily mislaid items such as eyeglass cases, keys, watches and wallets and put names and addresses on both inside and outside of all luggage and parcels.

Improvements for the Skin

Blend Your Foundation Cream In With Care.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU, now and then, marvel at the sight of a soft, velvety, perfect complexion that is the result of a blend of an artist? You're right, lady. The owner and carrier of that complexion is an artist. The skin should be conditioned so it will accept cosmetic paint and calcimine, on friendly terms with it. If the cream you use does not be lubricated every day of its life, it will crack, adhere to a dry skin; it grows in patches. Because it brings moisture from the pores, cold cream is not the best medium to use before making oneself a new face. Our old friend serving shoe clerk tells me. They lation, therefore, call it a foundation cosmetic. Put it on sparingly in little dots and dabs over the entire facial area and on the neck. Unlike these applications by rubbing with flattish fingers. Keep on with the friction until the cream is thoroughly absorbed.

After the skin is conditioned, place a suggestion of rouge high on the cheeks, fluff the compact pad lightly over the eyelids.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

SHOULDERS ARE STILL EMPHASIZED

The fashion set-up this season seems to describe an elongated triangle. Shoulders are broadened to the limit by sleeve pads. The waistline is neat and slender. Hips keep to normal proportions, and that's nicer than the sel-like shape of the days of the boyish figure. Remember?

There should be a pleasing curve from waistline to thigh. If ankles are trim and calves are not fat-ted, you qualify. You are precisely and exactly what you should be. You'll be a credit to the fashion designers. When you look into a full length mirror you'll be pleased with yourself. Grand!

Some girls are not so lucky, and it is to those that this dissertation on slenderizing is addressed. They may need to develop firm, rounded breasts, slither down the waistline, flatten the tummy. A big order? Oh, not so bad. They merely have to stand, sit and walk properly, and give their muscles a daily workout. Results are worth the effort. Girls spend enough time, goodness knows, on their faces, cultivating the velvet-soft and colorful complexion. Why not spare a few minutes each day for figure remodelling?

You may have to nag at yourself to make exercise a habit. It's like the first plunge into cold water; you dread it, but, once in, you like it. Like reducing, it isn't terrible; you just think it is. Once the practice starts, once you give a certain amount of time to the well-being of your musculature, you'll find it a diversion and a restful pleasure. Takes your mind off things you don't care to dwell upon.

Start the day right. Get your exercise over with; you'll feel noble and righteous. The lazy girl can begin her routine by stretching in bed. Stretching freshens the blood streams.

Extend the arms and legs, even the little pink toes. Stretch the neck, turn the head from side to side.

Place the hands, palms downward, under the hips. Lift the legs slowly until the toes touch the headboard of the bed. Take a deep inhalation, lifting chest and breasts; lower legs slowly.

To acquire good shoulder lines and to develop the bust, fold your fingers tightly in the palms of your hands, swing them in high, wide, far-back circles. Your mirror stand tall when you do this. Swing one arm six times, the other six times and repeat. The exercise not only develops the chest, but has a good effect upon the interlacing muscles that extend from the ribs to the shoulders.

Before going to bed, stand tall, breathe deeply, inhaling through the nostrils, exhaling forcibly over the lips. Five minutes of this by the clock; no guessing.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEEKMAN

FOR A SERVICE MAN'S WEDDING.

Dear Mrs. Beekman,—

I have been asked to take part in a wedding to take place soon, since the prospective groom is expected to arrive in a week or so from overseas. The bride-to-be and I are making the plans for the wedding, and we would appreciate your answering the following questions.

What is the difference between a first bridesmaid and the other bridesmaids? What are her duties? With five or six bridesmaids, where does the first bridesmaid walk in the processional?

If there are ushers in the wedding party, do the bridesmaids walk into the church with the ushers, alone, or in pairs? If there are no ushers, and a maid of honor, first bridesmaid, and two other bridesmaids, how is the procession-al arranged?

—A. N.

I really don't know what you mean by a "first bridesmaid." Is one of the bride's friends or relatives is to more honored than the attendant, she is called, if she is unmarried, a "maid of honor;" if married, a "matron of honor." There are sometimes two honor attendants: either two maids of honor, two matrons, of honor, or one maid of honor and one matron of honor; and they may either walk together, dressed alike, or their dresses may be of harmonizing colors, and they may have the one directly in front of the bride and her father being the one who is the actual witness.

There are usually an even number of bridesmaids, and they walk in pairs in the procession. If there are ushers, they walk first in the procession, two by two. If they go to the altar, the bridesmaids walk in all first in the procession, in pairs. (If there if an "extra" bridesmaid, I would suggest that she walk before the pair or pairs of bridesmaids, so that she would not seem to be an "honor" attendant at the maid of honor; and last in the procession the bride and her father.

The best-planned recessional is the reverse of the procession: first the bride and bridegroom next, the maid of honor (usually walking alone, although she may walk with the best man); then the bridesmaids, two by two, and last, the ushers, two by two.

Marmora and District

Canadian Legion's New Hall Is Officially Opened

Marmora—The new hall of Marmora Branch No. 327 Canadian Legion was officially opened by District Commander, Lt.-Col. Chisholm of Peterborough, on Monday evening in the presence of a good concourse of comrades and visitors. The new headquarters of the Legion which will still retain the name of the Memorial Hall alloted to them in the building formerly known as the Carscallen Block. It has been fully paid for and has been renovated within and furnished to meet the requirements of its organization. After President William Mumby had welcomed comrades and visitors the initiation of five candidates for full membership was carried out. Past President Fred Bedore acted as proxy for other candidates who were unavoidably absent. At the same time Associate membership was conferred on Rev. Father H. J. Farrell, Rev. John M. J. Brownlie, Reeve W. R. Linn, of Marmora, Reeve John A. Bell, of Marmora and Lake Township, Reeve C. H. Ruskard, of Deloro and Dr. H. Crawford. For the dedication of the memorial tablet in the building, the District Commander called upon Rev. Father Farrell and Rev. E. M. Cadigan.

Father Farrell, wished the comrades every success in the new undertaking and endeavor and said that the branch was well organized and had the responsibility of returning soldiers, sailors and airmen. He asked God's blessing on the work and the welfare of the families of the comrades, the hall itself and and everyone present.

Rev. E. M. Cadigan referred to the different span of years in the lives of the older comrades to that of the younger ones and hoped there would be many hours of comradeship and increased friendships. At the close of the address, he offered a short prayer.

After the hall had been declared officially dedicated and opened by the District Commander, he officially appointed Col. A. V. Yates, M.C. and Jack Hamilton to office in branch. In returning thanks for the honor conferred upon him Col. Yates eulogized the members of the Branch who had kept it together in a difficult time and kept a beacon in the minds of others, the ideals and principles and work of the Legion.

Primate of All England Pipe-Smoking Family Man

By George Murray in the Transatlantic Edition of the London Daily Mail

The Right Reverend Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Bishop of London, is facing a task which will tax all his abilities. He has been translated to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, which means that he has been given the highest office of its kind in the British Empire.

There are two English Archbishops—those of Canterbury and York. Canterbury takes precedence, but in the "Primate of All England", whereas his reverend brother is merely "The Primate of England".

Canterbury is the head of the English Established Church. Its ritual, its finances, its organization everywhere—and that means all over the world—are ultimately his concern. But his immediate work lies in the Province of Canterbury, which covers half of England and also takes in 36 overseas bishoprics ranging from Newfoundland to Madagascar and Mauritius.

It can be seen therefore, that Dr. Fisher, as first of the Lords Spiritual in the ancient realm of England, with occupants of the Throne of St. Augustine, will have his hands full.

But, more than that, he follows a man who will be hard to succeed. is predecessor, William Temple, himself the son of an Archbishop of Canterbury, was famous for his outspoken views on social problems of the day.

The Primacy is usually a symbol of caution and conservatism in political matters. William Temple made it the opposite.

He carried out a flaming crusade on behalf of progressive ideas and did battle in editorials, in contradiction to his critics, that it was very much the duty of the Church to interfere in politics.

How, then, does Dr. Fisher measure up to the great demands which will be made upon him? What are his qualifications for the supreme office to which he has been called?

It can be said that he was almost the only choice after the death of William Temple. He is 67—a mere baby as Primates—and is known as a brilliant scholar and a first-class administrator.

Unlike most of his predecessors in modern times, he has never been a parish priest. For nearly 20 years, he was headmaster of Repton, one of England's great boarding schools for boys. It is curious that, he should have succeeded Temple even in that post. But whereas Temple was 33 when he became head of Repton, Fisher was only 27—an astonishingly early age to become head of such a school. It is a striking tribute to the high intellectual attainments of the Right Reverend Doctor.

In 1932 Fisher was appointed Bishop of Chester, and in 1939 Bishop of London. Thus he has been a bishop for only 12 years, and is comparatively unknown to the public.

Such rapid advancement, though it has its disadvantages, must certainly be taken as a tribute to his outstanding abilities — without which, indeed, no man can hope to become Archbishop of Canterbury.

The question whether or not these abilities are such as to make his reign notable can only be answered by time. It may be that Dr. Fisher may prove to be among England's great Archbishops.

As a person, the new Archbishop is a pipe-smoking, rather lawyer-like gentleman—the father of six sons—four of whom are in the armed forces—and the husband of a woman who is one of the most active public speakers in the country.

On occasion he has not hesitated to show his conviction.

He got into trouble with the hierarchy by allowing a special commemoration service to General Booth when he died—after the row in St. Paul's Cathedral. A keen Evangelical himself, Fisher thought he replied that they all owed a lot to General Booth.

Of another occasion he played a barrel-organ in one of London's more fashionable squares on behalf of a favorite charity.

But such unorthodoxies are as nothing compared with the unorthodoxy of William Temple. On the whole Dr. Fisher runs true to form. He is one of the directors of a Marriage Guidance Council and of a Public Morality Council. He is against the opening of theatres on Sunday. "The somolence of Sunday must be preserved," he says, somewhat facetiously. He is, however, concerned by the spread of drinking during wartime, and deplores, as a result, the perversion of good comradeship to evil ends.

His strictures do not fall upon tobacco. "I cannot work without smoking", he says.

And, a final human touch: "It is very difficult for any reasonably honest man to be absolutely honest" when it comes to income tax returns".

Much of Dr. Fisher's time as Bishop of London has been concerned with finances—especially his own. Like most English bishops he is weighted down by the enormous expense of maintaining the palace in which these princes of the Church are expected to live.

He was comfortably off in Cheshire. There he received £6,000 a year and kept a house of only 13 rooms. On his translation to London his stipend rose to £40,000 a year, but of this £24,000 went in the upkeep of Fulham Palace, traditional Tudor home of the bishops of the capital.

Fulham Palace may have been a financial wreck to the Doctor, but think what it must have been to the Doctor's wife who has had to manage the household.

The palace is a building which rambles about so much that nobody ever seems to have agreed about the number of rooms with anyone else. Estimates range from 64 to 200—but the most authentic reports say there are 70 rooms.

Mrs. Fisher does not claim to be domesticated. "I think I could boil the bishop's shaving water at a pinch", she says—beyond which she will not go.

But, as a bishop's wife, her time is not her own. She is, for example, president of the Mothers' Union, the nation-wide organization of the country's best clergymen—the family women— and her many other duties take all day and every day to perform.

To be a bishop's wife in these days of high income tax and no domestic servants is no joke. Even less of a joke is it to be the wife of an Archbishop, Lambeth Palace, official home of the Primate, is twice the size of Fulham Palace. It is 700 years old and has 100 rooms.

But Mrs. Fisher's problem has been reduced by the Germans. No fewer than 150 rooms at Lambeth Palace have been made uninhabitable by air raids.

So the new Archbishop, his wife, and his six sons look forward to a life on a newer and higher plane.

But not just yet. The enthronement of Dr. Fisher is not to take place until the weather gets warmer. Owing to the coal shortage in England there is no central heating in Canterbury Cathedral.

PETITE CHINESE SAVED PAINTINGS FROM JAP HORDES

Chang K'un-i Exhibits Famous Works of Art in Western Canada; Escaped from Hong Kong in 1939

Winnipeg, Feb. 8.—(CP)—Legendary fame, both in the paintings which guides her brush, surrounds Chang K'un-i, hailed today as China's greatest living artist.

Miss Chang arrived in Winnipeg recently to exhibit her paintings and those of her father and daughter-father, the late Kan Weng-Piaomo as China's national artist-sage, Mr. Kan was buried with a state funeral of his death in China in 1932.

Doll like, not quite five feet-tall and weighing only nine stones, Miss Chang outmaneuvered the Japanese at Shanghai, Canton and Hankow, taking with her from each, Kan Weng's priceless works of art.

She has been in the United States since 1939 when she escaped from Hong Kong and sailed for San Francisco. During the presidential mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, commissioned her to paint whatever she can, saide. Miss Chang "carries with her and displays proudly a letter from Franklin Roosevelt, thanking her for this work.

Enlisted As Nurse.

The black-eyed, gracious little woman is the daughter of a wealthy Chinese family. In 1937 while still in China, she enlisted as a war nurse. When it was discovered that she was at the front, Madame Chiang Kai-Shek and important Chinese officials ordered her back to Nanking to save herself and as many of her-adopted father's paintings as she could. "Many can nurse, only you can paint", the decree read.

Miss Chang has exhibited her paintings in many American and Eastern Canadian cities. She now is on a tour which will eventually take her to Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver, and back to her home in New York.

She is enthusiastic about life in America. "What I like best about it is the harmony or work between head and hands", she said. "Chinese ladies here work with both their minds and their hands That is good Better than in China where a lady works only with her mind and her servant with her hands".

But Miss Chang is eager to return to China. When the war is over she plans an exhibition tour of Europe and then —home.

Truth About That Thirty-Hour Week

(The Canadian Hospital)

Some of us who work nearly twice that many hours would like very much to work only 30 of the 168 hours in each week. We would like also to have Saturday free, as is now enjoyed the year around in so many plants and offices. But we wonder if these 62 per cent. who in a recent poll so glibly vote for a 30-hour week have any idea of what they are saying.

We presume, of course, that they would want the same amount in the pay envelope for this short period as for a full week; they would soon want more, for there would be just that much more time to burn up gas, or go to shows, or think up other ways of spending money. That, inevitably, would mean a higher cost of unit production and a higher selling price for the article produced or sold. Unfortunately Canada is small, contained economic unit and depends upon its export trade for its prosperity. In the post war period we can only retain our foreign markets—and our prosperity—if we can compete successfully against other nations on these world markets. If our production and transportation costs prove higher than those of other nations, our export trade collapses and down goes the level of our national wealth and scale of living. Hitherto Canada and the United States have overcome the higher cost of labor by mass methods of production and by attention to consumer demands. Other nations with cheap labor costs have now adopted our production methods.

World competition is going to be keener after the war than ever before. After the first rush of world reconstruction has passed and buyers can do a bit of shopping for what chance will Canada have on a 30-hour week, if other countries obtain, say 50 per cent. more production for their labor costs, as would be the case with a 45-hour week in Canada? Buyers will go to hordes of highly-skilled workmen and unlimited materials should decide to continue its present 66-hour week?

Organizers and political spokesmen who endeavor to enhance their personal interests by arousing the hopes of others that life can become one grand semi-holiday never learn their unthinking followers that these rosy hues would indicate that the dawn of a new era of prosperity is the setting of the sun for Canada. Its place in the markets of the world and our future scale of living will depend on the ardour to which we are willing to work.

FAMINE MORTALITY

Deaths from starvation in Bengal province alone were estimated at 100,000 a week during the 1943 famine in India.

Vichy Today

(New York Herald Tribune)

They are taking wounded Frenchmen to Vichy now to recuperate in that little watering place from blows sustained in the war for freedom. It is a curious turn in the wheel of Vichy's fate yet not as curious as the one which brought a "government" of the hopeless to the city to make its name a byword throughout the world.

Where are those other "men of Vichy" whose efforts to turn back the clock in France led them to link their country's destiny with Hitler? Once they fled to Belfort, but Belfort was not safe for them. Once they were reported in Baden-Baden, which seemed logical for a group of old men with no health in them, wandering from spa to spa.

But now it is said, and generally accepted, that Petain and Laval with what is left of their entourage, roost in the castle at Sigmaringen, high above the Danube. And this residence has its own appropriateness for Sigmaringen is in Hohenzollern, whence a certain obscure family went north to Prussia to rule Imperial Germany and plague the world. The castle, which is reputed to be the home of Petain—Marshal of France—is the seat of the princes of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, who thoughtfully provided kings for nations in need of them.

It is reported that the tricolor flies over Sigmaringen; Germany adheres to her recognition of the Petain government (maliciously pointing out that the United States once kept her company in Vichy) and kills "De Gaullists" on behalf of the old Marshal's adherents who come before French firing squads. It is a squalid ending for a squalid regime, conceived in defeat and dedicated to the proposition that slavery is the normal state of man. What Vichy, the city, is both purged by the suffering of the men who fought and are fighting to protect that ignoble doctrine, the Hotel du Parc itself, capital of Petain's "National Revolution", is a hospital. Vichy is a tragic town today, but it is no longer degraded.

BRITONS DEMAND HEAVIER PENALTY FOR CRUELTY

Recent Case Causes Much Interest and Other Instances Are Noted

London, Feb. 8 — (Reuters)—Britons are angry over increased cases of cruelty to children and are demanding heavier punishment for persons responsible.

The case which appalled the country most in the last few weeks was featured on front pages of every London daily newspaper yesterday because G. Tasker, Independent member of Parliament for Wallasey, has called for a full report from Home Secretary Herbert Morrison.

A young married man and his wife were each fined £10 ($40) for ill-treating a 1/2-year old stepson boy from Surrey. A younger brother had died in the couple's charge.

Mr. Reakes, a Justice of the Peace and a solicitor, raised three issues with the Home Secretary: the fine was inadequate; an inquest should be held on the younger child; and a ruling that all evasions of cruelty, especially those under school age, should be seen regularly by a health visitor.

Newspaper Relates Other Cases

To support their clamor for stiffer punishment, London newspapers featured two more cruelty cases in court which resulted, they claimed, in inadequate sentences.

The first case — a mother broke her little girl's arm with a poker and struck her little daughter on the head with a wooden shoe, that both children had to go to hospital. For this she was not sent to prison but was bound over to keep the peace.

Yet, a man who charged a few pence too much for a packet of hairpins was sentenced to hard labor for a month," said an editorial in the London Evening News.

The second case developed when a soldier home on leave charged his wife with neglecting her four children, aged 16, 14, nine and four years respectively. The soldier found the children alone in the house, foodless, and without money. The wife who did not had been associating with another man, offered no defence and was sentenced to six months in jail.

Snow-Covered Ameliasburg Looks Good to Soldier Away Five Years

Snow-covered Ameliasburg looked very nice in the northern part of Prince Edward county when it strikes any other part of Canada to most people, but yesterday it seemed a bit of Heaven to Corporal Allen Sobie, one of four fighting sons of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Sobie of that district, who arrived home on "rotation" duty after five years overseas.

A Member of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the Corporal was overseas with the First battalion. He trained through the autumn years in England, went to France on the now famous raid that cost the regiment its Indian colonel, and later served in Italy where he remained until recently.

He is a "member of the second family of Prince Edward's" and his old brother, Private Kenneth Sobie was recently killed in action in the Caligion campaign.

Another brother, Sergeant William Sobie, is serving with his regiment in Belgium, while yet another Private Lloyd Sobie, is training in the army at home.

Corporal Sobie was born in Consecon and moved with his family eleven years ago to their present home "across the bay."

Picton and District

Five Members H. & P.E. Regt. Home on Leave

Picton, Feb. 8 — Five members of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, among those who returned home on 30 days' leave from Italy, have arrived in Kingston early yesterday morning.

Those home are Sgt. Cecil Harrison, Cpl. Allan Nourse, Sgt. Albert Carr of Picton, Fred Howarth of South Bay and Cpl. Allan Sobie, Ameliasburg.

All had seen five years' service in England, Sicily and Italy. They speak little of their own work but are unanimous in their praise for their unit. It is generally agreed by them that the most spectacular achievement of the regiment was at Assoro in Sicily, when they climbed the almost precipice, taking the Germans by surprise, but that their bitterest fighting was at the Moro River crossing.

Every foot of ground is contested, said Sgt. Carr. There are many canals and the high banks offer an opportunity for the enemy to put up strong resistance. Snipers are very numerous.

The men were not impressed by Sicily as a whole, or by its people. The custom of keeping pigs and sheds adjoining homes disgusted them. All had visited Rome and several had seen the Pope.

Sgt. Harrison was slightly wounded last October. He was greeted by his wife and three children. One of them, the younger son, John, was born, after he left for overseas in December 1939.

Cpl. A. Nourse was engaged in clearing land mines and despite the dangerous work, escaped injury. He enlisted the day war was declared. His brother, Sgt. Gordon Nourse, is with the army on the West Coast and earlier was overseas. He was greeted by his mother, Mrs. Allan Nourse.

Cpl. F. Howarth was met by his wife. He had escaped injury, though in many actions. He stressed the importance of letters and parcels from home. They are a big factor in keeping the men going, he said. Smokes are always a welcome gift.

Cpl. A. Sobie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Sobie of Ameliasburg. His brother gave his life in action last October.

Sgt. Carr was welcomed by his wife and three children. He was injured in action last December.

The trip was made from Naples to a United States port, with a transfer to another ship in England.

Report Premier King May Quit Leadership Says Victoria Colonist

Victoria, Feb. 8 — (CP) — The Victoria Colonist published today a special dispatch from Ottawa saying that "reports are in circulation on Parliament Hill that Premier Mackenzie King may resign as leader of the Liberal party before the coming Dominion Federal election."

The newspaper added: "If he does Hon. J. L. Ilsley, finance minister, or Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, will assume the mantle, and party support between the two is evenly divided."

LAUNCH VIs IN PAIRS

A Forward R.C.A.F. Airfield, Feb. 8 —(CP Cable)— The Germans are launching their V1s against England in pairs, probably from the same platform, Canadian fighter-bomber pilots reported today after an attack against enemy rail lines near the German border.

Pilots said they saw twin trails of frosted projectiles rise 20 miles ahead of them almost from ground level to great altitudes.

"At first we thought they were jet-piloted, streaking along on a formation they were so close together," said Flt.-Lt. F. J. McAlpine, Windsor, Ont.

FOURTH SET OF TWINS

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 8 —(AP)— Mrs. Peter Surandsky, 36-year-old wife of a truck driver, gave birth to her fourth set of twins. The girl, Jacquiline, arrived at 5:16 p.m., and her brother, Jack, at 5 p.m. They were the 19th and 14th children born to the couple. All are living.

Pte. Henry Weber Escapes Gallows

Camp Roberts, Calif., Feb. 8 —(AP) —Pte. Henry Weber, 'real pal' of the shadow of the gallows today, his death sentence changed to life imprisonment, his wife continuing her fight for him.

The 27-year-old American soldier, a shipyard foreman at Vancouver, Wash., before being drafted, was sentenced by court martial to hang for slugging a drill, and his case attracted wide attention.

Yesterday, by direction of the commanding general of the camp, the court martial reconvened, revoked the death sentence, sentenced Weber to life imprisonment at hard labor, gave him a dishonorable discharge, and ordered his pay book changed.

In Portland, Oregon, his wife conferred with an American civil liberties official. She denied life imprisonment for her husband is 'still outrageous.'

There are three classes of camps, those for officers, other ranks, and for members of the merchant marine. Inside the enclosure of wire the camps are much the same. Widdifield said, the prisoners elect up a system of responsibility for internal management of the camps. The prisoners hold of the system of paying prisoners, not in cash but in script, at the rate of a few cents a day. Similarly, the Germans pay their prisoners, and settlements of the international balance of accounts are periodically is made through Swiss authorities. Prisoners' money can be obtained by prisoners if they wish to work in certain occupations under guard.

Mr. Widdifield told of periodic visits to the camps by the Swiss consul, who makes reports, forwarded to Germany through Switzerland. Similarly, we in Canada, receive accurate reports on German prison camps through Switzerland, he said.

A Dollar Can't See Through a Telescope

When it comes to a long distance venture like saving for the future, dollars alone can't see very far ahead.

Left alone, dollars are lazy by nature.

They just lie around in people's pockets until they are spent.

But the moment a dollar is paid on a life insurance policy, it starts to work.

The hundreds of millions of policyholders' dollars invested in Canada today are performing a three-fold service:—

1. They are setting up financial protection for the policyholders' old age or the future security of their families.
2. They are backing Canadian fighting men wherever our forces are in action.
3. Their investment now for future use acts, meantime, as a brake on consumer spending and so helps to fight inflation which would menace our fighting men and civilians alike.

Actually life insurance dollars are among the busiest dollars in the world.

Such dollars are never idle. They are always circulating for the benefit of all.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE

Mountain View "Bombers" Outsmart and Outplay Flyers Of Trenton To Win by 5-3 Score

Williams in Nets for Wins-nerx Unbeatable in Final Stages of Contest

Making a strong third period comeback after trailing for the first two thirds of the game, the Mountain View "Bombers" gained sweet revenge over the Trenton RAAF main station Wednesday evening when, at the Bureau arena, the final scheduled game in the local service league duly outmanned and outplayed the boys from our Trenton way to bang up a nifty 5-3 decision.

Period scores were 2-1 and 3-3 for Trenton with the boys from the bombing and gunnery school on the hill counting three times in the final stanza, after going scoreless in the 20 minutes. Dan Cowley who carried most of the offensive load for the "Bombers" with this victory, of the kind that is dangerous to the opposition goal tender every time he stepped onto the ice, William Jones had a smart game for the "Bombers" mite, and at times Hierby stood between his net and defeat as Trenton forwards broke thru so fast. Jim Wilson and Duquette for the winners were other effective thorns in Trenton's side, while for the losers it was again Raymond and his wingers Rasmisky and Gingras who drove in for most of the counters.

Mountain View got away to a good start in the first period when Wilson soloed to put his team in the lead. Raymond came back near the halfway mark, however, and evened matters with a counter of his own while Peck put the Trenton lads into the lead on a shot which eluded Williams in the "Bombers" nets.

Players Mix

Rasmisky and Aube mixed matters briefly in the first period after the former rushed the former's goalie in a mixup around the nets. Both players were chased to their wrestling compensation but feeling ran high throughout the pastime and stiff work carried high, especially in the middle stanza. Tripe verse "Bombers" however had a busy time chasing players to the bench.

Trenton went two goals up near the end of the second period as Raymond clicked on a three-man play with Gingras right through the Mountain View citadel. The veteran Cowley got the "Bombers" back in the running on a pass from Duquette, however, just as the period ended.

The third period was definitely all Mountain View and for the greater part of the time the Trenton lads were all bottled up in their own end of the rink as the opposition forwards swarmed all around. Scored from Faceoff

But score they did with Cowley driving through for the tying counter from the initial faceoff. And with that biting counter Trenton's hopes of making it two wins in a row for the season faded. Sensing victory, the goal-hungry "Bombers" swarmed in on Robertson in the Trenton nets and he all but stood on his head as he battled and bodied out pucks driven at him from all directions.

At the halfway mark Mountain View went into the lead for the second time in the game and this time stayed ahead as Wilson and Duquette combined. Solo thrusty by Trenton proved unavailing as the game ended with six Trenton forwards driving in a vain effort to get the equalizer.

The Lineups—

Trenton — goal, Robertson; defence, Rashnard and Rae; centre, Raymond; wings, Rasmisky and Gingras; subs, Currie, Marshall, Perras, Thompson and Merpah said Peck.

Mountain View — goal, Williams; defence, Brock and Swanson; centre Cowley; wings, Aube and Boudreau; subs, Wilson, MacMullen, Cowley, Goring, Pigge and Beresford.

BARONS SWEEP INTO CONTROL OF FIRST PLACE

Two Points Ahead of Indianapolis Capitals and the Buffalo Bisons

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons swept into sole control of the American Hockey League leadership last night when they upset the lowly St. Louis Flyers 5-3 on Clevelands Barons, with 52 points, now are two points ahead of the Indianapolis Capitals and Buffalo Bisons.

In other games last night, Bisons defeated Providence Reds 4-3 at Buffalo, and the rejuvenated Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Hershey Bears 7-3 at Pittsburgh.

The Cleveland-St. Louis game developed into a walk. In the final period when Johnny Hady, St. Louis defenseman, was ejected for misconduct penalty, for threatening promenade official with his stick. Later he exchanged blows with Ray Benzie, Barons' hefty defenseman, and both drew the coop for five minutes.

Barons built up a 2-1 lead in the first period and downed a score of 5-3 by the end of the second. Lou Jankowski set the pace with two goals and two assists for Cleveland, while George Agar got two goals and one assist. Defenseman Dan Symrd and Johnson added the other tallies for the Barons. St. Louis goals were provided by Art Giroux, with two, and Nakina Smith.

Fourth Successive Victory

It was the fourth successive victory for the Barons and a timely one to edge out Capitals for a play-off berth. Capitals, meanwhile, bowed Hornet's triumph with three goals, while Bill Gracie contributed two and Bob Wallace and Jack Hamilton's lone notched singles.

Hershey's goals by Bill Gooden, Alex Ritzen and Hec Fonne.

Hershey had a clear indication of their aggressive nature in the first period and whipped in 4 goals before Bears scored their 1st. Jamieson's goal followed and in the second period Bears added the only marker, Ponzo's goal for Hershey's second with 18 seconds left in the game.

Bisons' victory broke a four-game losing streak, while Providence Reds had twice tied the score. Gen. Buffalo's semi, Buffalo ahead with an early first period goal with Gerry Bellamare recovering for Reds a minute later. Regan gave Bisons the Bisons ahead again and Bellemarre again retrieved the deadlock. Wimpy Jones scored with a turned shot to be the winning tally, and the only third-period goal came from Paul Mundrick.

JIMMY FOXX PLANS COMEBACK

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 — (AP) — Jimmy Foxx, one of the greatest home run hitters of all time, plans a serious comeback effort this year —at the age of 39.

And it may be with the National League Phillies.

Within 10 pounds of his best playing weight and imbued with the same enthusiasm he had 20 years ago when he first reported to the Athletics, Foxx stopped off at the Phillies' office yesterday and asked general manager Herb Pennock whether he'd be interested in him as a good first or third baseman.

They had a long conference, behind locked doors.

When it ended, Pennock refused to comment, but Foxx said he wanted a last crack at the majors and declared himself confident that he would be about as good as ever.

"I'm not through," he said.

DETROIT WINGS WIN

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 5 —(CP)— Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League turned in a 10-6 win over the Windsor team in an exhibition game before 4,000 fans last night.

Toronto lead 5-4 at the end of the first period, as they bombarded Wings' reserve goalie, Norman Smith. Harry Lumley, Wings regular goalie, took over in the second period and held the Sailors to one more tally.

SURPASS IN STRENGTH

Brisbane, Feb. 5 — (CP) — Army Minister Forde said in a broadcast yesterday that Australia is using or is ready to use military forces surpassing in strength anything she had mustered in either the last war or this war.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

An old Scotswoman, taken ill, told her daughter to send for the minister. "Ye mean the doctor, mither, more modern than her mother and sent for the doctor."

He found little the matter; and, when he had gone, leaving word, the daughter fully instructed in the treatment, the old body called downstairs: "Mary, who was yon young man?"

"Ye ken the doctor, mither."

"Ah, aye!" — after a short pause — "I thocht he looked a bright fameesellar for the meenister."

Play-Off Times

Trenton assured themselves of first place in the Little Six by beating Campbellford 12 to 0 last night. Now the play-offs in the loop are settled as Trenton goes on to playing Stirling in the semi-finals while Bancroft and Tweed are matched in a similar series commencing at the Thanksgiving Day week-end night. The winners will ultimately clash for the Little title.

In the final standing Trenton gathered in 15 points, Belleville 13, Stirling 7, and Madoc and Tweed 10 just to prove how close the loop race for junior hockey has been in the give district fans the best of the times.

Did Yez Know.

Here are some interesting and pertinent facts concerning sports brought-to light by Doug Vanthof in the Windsor Star. "Brothers Paul and Tiny Thompson, who played amateur and National League hockey for 20 years, both were on the same payroll until last season. That was the year when Tiny, one of hockey's immortals as member of the Boston Bruins, became a scout for the Chicago Black Hawks managed by Paul.....Signs of the times: Wendell Clark, Detroit Wh called himself Charley Watts, failed to show up for the game in San Francisco, his aged second, once a good boxer but not in recent years. The last 15 years, climbed into the ring with a ton de plume of Nicholas Michigan and went the full rounds.....He finally sat down exhausted and asked the referee to call it yet.....Frank Golch, greatest of all wrestling champions won 832 out of his 180 matches.....His six defeats were dealt by Jim McMillen and Farmer Burns in 1908, by Farmer Burns in 1909, Tom Jenkins twice in 1909, and Paul Beall in 1909.....One night in Denver Golch, who weighed 250 pounds, whipped five Jap jujitsu experts at once.....At the finish three of the Japs were unconscious while the other two had broken legs."

Welcome Home.

Following the completion of his tour of "ops" over Nazi Germany, Flight Lt. Sears is back home visiting his family on Bleecker Avenue. Sears returned just in time to see his favorite hockey team in action—the Belleville juniors, who with their play-off here tomorrow night. Incidentally PO Sears was one of the officers of the original Belleville group, who organized juvenile hockey here seven seven or eight years ago. Later he was secretary of the team and even while overseas followed the Belleville juniors with interest. His brother Ted, erstwhile blue boy and Canadian battler had Harvey in distress in the opening rounds, but the Englishman rallied strong to win the unanimous nod.

No Worries Here.

Negro major baseball leagues will be organized in 1947, announced by any Organized Ball circuits operate, according to J. L. Wilkinson, co-owner of the Kansas City Monarchs. Wilkinson is more concerned about the condition of his star hurler, Satchel Paige, than he is the organization of the league. Paige, the Army age, has been ill with a heart condition.

A Smart Goalie.

The smartest goaltending the fans have looked at in a long time was displayed by Williams of the Mountain View "Bombers" when they defeated Trenton Flyers last night. He was simply unbeatable, especially in the third period when he made 10 of his 27 stops. His opportunities to hit the twine but were thwarted by Williams came out to make a marvelous stop and Williams were the stumbling blocks in the undoubted string of the Flyers. Paul Raymond is still the best man on the ice and he was dangerous every time he took hold of the rubber and he was always shooting away from the net. His first goal was a picture one, Williams being completely baffled by the shift and shot. It will be a great series when these two teams in the playoffs.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 5 — (CP) — There seems to be a slight difference of opinion between baseball and hockey sportsmen over what should and what shouldn't be done for them to ease the manpower situation.

Baseball, which on the surface seems to have less to worry about than the ice game in the matter of possible loss of players, doesn't seem to be worrying unduly — at least if you judge by what president Ford Frick of the National League said the other day.

Rebutting rumors that the U. S. national pastime would ask Washington to let 4-F men keep on playing ball instead of going into other lines of endeavor, Frick turned thumbs down on the idea. Apparently, he believed there will be enough men to keep baseball going —if after a fashion — even if these players are sent to the official showers.

That's quite a different story from that of Conn Smythe's threat that 150 hockey players be made available for play in the coming season. Apart from the recent selective service order forbidding discharged men without overseas service playing in games south of the border, the Canadian sport boss has failed to say appreciable extent.

Of course, the league itself last year imposed a rule preventing anyone also belonging the puck around the O.H.A. leagues from any activities military exempt or had his proper clearance papers from selective service — war work deferments barred.

That much-discussed action originally was termed an attempt by the O.H.A. to create a spiritual Canadiens' wheels, but didn't work that way. By way, in fact, have averted a possible government edict in the same ends if criticism had become too loud about these thusky young men' playing hockey.

In any event, there doesn't seem much in the way of professional hockey carrying on as it did this season, unless Smythe has some straws pointing to possible future players from Parliament Hill that might upset the applecart. The NHL did very well indeed with the players available, and we haven't heard many anguished laments about the decline receipts dropping to record lows.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 601 -
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The cumulative system has some wonderful rules with regard to signals for every occasion. Most bridge players are good enough for either efficiency that adopting it. Take the first response to an opening bid of one. With complex ideas, you are not sure of them-selves. On some occasions, you simply follow four simple steps.

The first step is this: Pass with not more than two tricks. Don't bid just because you have an ace or a couple of jacks or a king or queen. Wait for three tricks.

The second step is this: bid something if you have more than two tricks with two high cards among them. Without two queens or better, pass; even with more than two tricks.

The third step is this: When you bid, follow it with no takeout; assist, Only with no takeout or assist, bid no-trump. Or if you have an ace or a couple of jacks or a king or queen. Wait for three tricks.

The second step is this: bid something if you have more than two tricks with two high cards among them. Without two queens or better, pass; even with more than two tricks.

The third step is this: When you bid, follow it with no takeout; assist, Only with no takeout or assist, bid no-trump. Or if you have an ace or a couple of jacks or a king or queen. Wait for three tricks.

The fourth step is this: Jump the number of your bid if you see certain tricky fire game. If the jump is on the first round, you must also have two sure tricks.

Now your partner starts with an opening bid of one diamond and you have this responding hand:

♠A 10 3
♥A K 10 9 4
♦A 4
♣K 4 3

Go through the four steps. Have you more than two tricks? Yes. Then you do not pass. Have you more than two tricks with two high cards among them? Yes. Then you bid something.

With enough for a bid, follow it with a takeout. With less than six tricks, do not jump. Therefore, your first response is a non-jump take-out to one heart.

Some players jump only because they have so many and a half of this or that. Some players merely jump out of their skin.

AT THE BELLE

AT THE BELLE
Gladys "Zoot Suit"

Many of Humphrey Bogart's biographers would have you believe that his career started with "The River" that he wasn't screen material. He insisted that he was so they set about proving that he wasn't wrong. They put him in a "Western" and made him ride broncos.

Bogart was born in New York City on Christmas Day 1900. His father was a noted surgeon. His mother, Maude, Humphrey was a well known magazine artist.

The Bogarts lived just around the corner from the William A. Brady's and Humphrey's boyhood playmates were young Bill Brady and his sister, Alice. It was the older Brady who rescued Humphrey from a stock broker's office and gave him a job as assistant stage manager. Eventually Brady let Humphrey act and let him try to act in a play called "Swim." Both Humphrey and Humphrey got bad notices; but Brady had faith in the young actor, and gave him another chance. This time he made good.

For several years Bogart was a juvenile. Then Robert Sherwood wrote "The Petrified Forest" and he was chosen to play the part of the gangster. He did such a job of it that people still talk about it.

He repeated the role in the screen version and was on his way up the ladder of screen fame. Other outstanding films in which he has appeared were "Casablanca," "Passage to Marseilles", and "High Sierra".

Lauren Bacall is Mrs. Bogart. So is Belle theatre, he plays the role of a gangster—"Baby Face"—during a fellow as striking in his way as was "Red" Grange. Now, this Samuel Goldwyn production stars Sylvia Sidney and Joel McCrea. Wendy Barrie, Chas. Trevor and Allen Jenkins are also prominently featured in the film. "Dead End", based on the stage play by Sidney Kingsley, and directed by William Wyler, regarded among Hollywood's Ace Directors.

Laurel and Hardy in "Music Box"

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are featured in "Music Box" which will be presented on the same program with "Valley of the Lake," a beautiful screen Novelette production in Technicolor.

VERBALBOUQUETS KEEPING PACE WITH CANADIENS

Team Setting Blistering Pace as Squads Head for Finishing Line

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens are setting a blistering pace down the N.H.L. loop lanes these fading hockey days and about the only thing that is keeping pace at the moment is the barrage of verbal bouquets, some a lot more startling than the Montreal-ers's 11-point league lead.

Ever since Jack Adams penned Maurice (The Rocket) Richard as "greatest hockey player I've seen in 20 years," the compliments have been coming thick and fast and from responsible quarters.

Today's young newcomers have been compared with the hockey great of the past till the fans must be wondering if they really heard all that talk a while back about the "quality" of wartime play.

Toronto Leaf manager Conny Smythe told a Toronto sports writer at that Richard was not only a fine player but a "great leader." He didn't compare him with stars of the past. That was left to Dick Irvin of Canadiens who said that Bill Durnan was the best goaltender he'd looked at in 20 years in the National League.

That's taking in a lot of territory because in the past two decades such stars as Lorne Chabot, Frankie Brimsek and George Hainsworth, Charlie Conacher, Howie Morenz and a host of others have passed across the hockey stage and the experienced Mr. Irvin and Mr. Adams have seen most of them.

Latest on the list is Bob Goldsworthy is Ted Kennedy, Toronto's 19-year-old line sensation who zapped home three goals in Leaf's 5-4 victory over the Hawks and two more against Boston in Toronto's 2-1 win over the Bruins Tuesday night.

Said coach Happy Day of the Leafs: "I think Kennedy is the best teen-aged boy to reach major hockey since Howie Morenz." Kennedy, too, is no brickbat.

For the record Kennedy is sixth at the moment in the N.H.L. scoring race, with 21 points, against Maurice The Rocket's 25.

Seven are comparative veteran campaigners Elmer Lach of Canadiens, Bill Cowley of Boston, Blake of Canadiens and Bill Howe of Detroit.

Racing Associations Want To Co-operate

Winnipeg, Feb. 5 (CP) — Charles Hon, assistant manager of R. J. Speers, said in an interview last night any racing association would welcome any steps which would eliminate bookmaking.

He was commenting on a Calgary report that a meeting of Alberta thoroughbred horse breeders had formed an association which will apply to the provincial legislature at the next session for legislation to permit trade bets on horse racing in downtown Edmonton and Calgary for direct transmission to the pari-mutuels at the race track, when racing is in progress.

He said that as he knew it it was illegal to take wagers any place but on the course during the days of racing and that the question was covered in a federal statute known as the Criminal Code.

"I would be, and I think any racing association would be, heartily in accordance with any steps taken to do away with bookmaking," he said.

New York, Feb. 5. (AP)—If the National Football League wants to get rid of a few weak clubs, Chick Meehan would be glad to have them. . . Apparently shut out of Yankee stadium with his Trans-America League, Chick has been looking for new fields and listening to two suggestions that there still is room for another major grid league and that the 11-club National League is unwieldy. . . A solution would be for the Nationals to whittle itself down to eight clubs and give the overflow to another league. . . Or it could split into two eight-club sections and each could play home-and-home schedules with a real "World Series" at the end and make for more profitable exhibitions. . . .

MACK IS ADMIRER OF COL. MACPHAIL BOSS OF YANKEES

Veteran Manager Says New Owner Will Put American League On Its Toes

Los Angeles, Feb. 5 (AP)—The 39-year-old boss of the Philadelphia Athletics, Connie Mack, is regarded as a conservative member of the old school of baseball, but he believes the advent into the American League of the Dominion of Larry MacPhail is a stroke of good luck.

MacPhail, says Connie, is going to keep the rest of the league on its toes.

"I'm a great admirer of Col. MacPhail," the veteran tactician said during a fanning bee with a group of baseball men. "He did a great job at Cincinnati and at Brooklyn. I'm glad to see him in with the Yankees. He can keep interest in baseball at all while hot pitch. He really put night baseball over. He has ideas, pep and color and so do his teams.

"He could be is completely in accord with the major leagues' decision to retain the commissioner powers.

"By all means, baseball needs a commissioner—one with plenty of power, too", he elaborated. "But I don't think we should be in too much of a hurry to pick him. There are any number of men, both in and out of baseball, well fitted for the position, but if we take our time we should find just the Right Man."

The fanning bee got around to the annual question of when Mack is going to retire.

"They cannot" he asked. "I'm looking forward to baseball after the war. We'll all have good players then and revived interest in the game. Then too, it has been a long time since we won a pennant in Philadelphia. Maybe it'll be our turn pretty soon, and I shouldn't want to miss that."

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

In a move to redesign hockey playing rinks, Jim Dunn, owner of the Toronto N.H.L. Leafs has arranged to have high school teams play at Maple Leaf Gardens this winter on an ice surface which will be devoid of blue lines. Only a centre line will be used for the calling of offsides. The plan has been adopted as a test for consideration of the pro loop governors.

The Prairie Association Ltd., has been organized at Calgary by Alberta breeders for the purpose of applying to the next session of the legislature for an act permitting the taking of wagers in a central office for races on Calgary and Edmonton tracks. The idea would be to eliminate bookmaking.

Larry MacPhail, new president of the New York Yankees, and Chick Meehan, organizer of the Trans-America Football League which plans to operate after the war, are expected to hold a conference next week to discuss the possibility of Yankee Stadium for pro Grid features, it was stated in New York last night.

President Mervyn (Red) Dutton spent yesterday in Montreal, but did not confer with Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell or Arthur Mac-Namara, director of labor, in effect in Service, regarding the request of the N.H.L. Board of Governors for the privilege of using 150 non-fit players in the major circuit next season. Both officials, however, said they would be inclined to co-operate.

George Herman Ruth, once known as "Babe, the King of Swat", celebrated his 51st birthday with a party in his New York home last night. The former slugger, now weighing 200 pounds, recalled in an interview his record of sixty home runs back in 1927 and classed the Yankees of that year as the greatest all-round ball club he ever played on. Babe is now partly incapacitated because of a knee operation eight months ago.

Formerly a star in the Toronto Commercial Hockey League, Leo Nevins last night scored ten goals for Beale Printing Centre No. 2 team when the soldiers defeated Dominion Now 14-3 in the first of the finals of the Brantford, Ont., local league. Murray Dowey, who had a trial with the Toronto N.H.L. Leafs at Owen Sound last fall, was in the net for the pamp team.

CHAPTER 11

"Sorry," said Livia with finality, "but you're six months too late. I'm getting married to Miss Nolan's brother. She introduced us, Elisabeth."

"Bruce Nolan?" She nodded. "We've got to hold a meeting and have a caucus. This is 1941." "I hate the movies," MacDonald was surprised at her unusual outburst.

"Crazy," he said getting up, "I'll be in Colorado for a week."

TO BE CONTINUED

If you change your mind, you know where to find me. He wrote his address on the back of an envelope. "It's a waste of time," she told him.

"Sure, sure, but keep it."

"All right — but don't hold your breath until you hear from me."

"I won't," he pressed her and rejoined the movie group.

Elisabeth pressed Livia's hand. "Bruce will make you happy," she said.

"Of course he will. Why do you say that?" Livia's voice was high and sharp.

They were coming down now. The Nolans bucked and wheeled like a harpooned whale. Elisabeth looked so pale that Livia thought she would faint. She was glad when the plane touched earth. And she was so occupied in looking after Elisabeth that she did not notice the departure of the movie people and Frank MacDonald. And she rarely thought of them during the next few days at Judge Nolan's ranch.

It was Elisabeth's idea that she should be introduced to Judge Nolan as the future wife of his son. "I want him to know you first, and love you as I do. Then we'll come."

So all he knew about Livia was that she was a friend of Elisabeth's. The judge was shocked when he realized how ill Elisabeth had been.

"Why didn't you tell me?" he stormed. "But that's the way with all the members of my family. I'm the last one they confide in. Do you know that obstinate son of mine—Bruce?" he suddenly asked Livia.

"Yes, I know him." Livia replied "and I don't think he's obstinate." The judge looked at her. He opened his mouth to speak, but remained silent.

Later, when they were sitting on the wide veranda he thanked Livia for bringing Elisabeth home.

"You'll stay with us for the summer, won't you?" he said. Livia smiled into eyes that were a true replika of Bruce's and looked at the fine head with its shaggy white hair.

"I wish I could—but I have to get back."

"What for?"

"I'm getting married," Livia said and winked at Elisabeth.

"Oh — is he an actor?" he demanded abruptly.

"In a way," Livia admitted.

"I'm going to bed," Elisabeth said. Livia jumped to her feet.

"I'll go with you," she said. She remained with Elisabeth until she fell asleep.

The next day Livia rode with the judge over the estate. She had been prepared to dislike him. But despite herself, she was drawn to the old man. He was deeply grateful to Livia for taking care of Elisabeth, and he displayed his best manners. It would be nice to have a man like him for a father, Livia thought, and wondered what he'd say if his should meet Earl Dixon.

How strangely Dixon had disappeared. Was he dead? She shivered in the hot sunshine.

The next day Frank MacDonald telephoned Livia.

"You're reconsidered?" he said cautiously.

"No," Livia replied vehemently. "Fine. I'll bring over the contract and you can sign."

"You can bring it — but I won't sign it." Livia slammed the receiver down and burned indignantly at Elisabeth, who was reading a book. She started to speak to Elisabeth, but changed her mind. It was useless to discuss Bruce further. She wanted to sign that contract. Perhaps if she explained to Bruce, he would understand.

"I'm going back to Hollywood," she told Elisabeth.

"That contract—you're accepting it?"

"Yes — it was a relief to admit this last. I can't help myself," she said, looking away from Elisabeth's clear eyes, "Maybe I'll fall again. I'd never forgive myself—or Bruce—if I let this opportunity slip by. Bruce will understand and we can be married just the same."

"And if he doesn't?" Elisabeth asked softly.

"Then I'll sign the contract anyway, you do understand, don't you? I love Bruce. But—"

"Don't be so unhappy, about it. Go back to Hollywood and tell Bruce. Perhaps he'll see it your way."

"Perhaps he will," said Livia dubiously. They both knew he would not.

"I'd like Miss Clarkson to see it first," said Bruce to an agent who had driven a horse and buggy to Fernando Valley. Bruce had visited it when he belonged to Buck Baker. Buck was dead, and the land he had left Bruce had put the estate on the market.

There were twenty acres of good fertile land with oranges, lemons, walnuts, figs, and vine bushes, and the magnificent trees that had been named for a pair of famous screen lovers. The house was strongly-built with oak beams supporting a living-room that covered the entire ground floor.

"When will your fiancee be back in Hollywood?" the agent asked. "I have another prospective customer for—"

"She's in Colorado now," said Bruce. "But I know she'll like the place. I'll pay a deposit now. Hold the property for me."

Bruce had due back in San Diego, but he stopped off at his bungalow to pick up some clothes. And found Livia!

"Darling!"

He held her close in his arms, kissed her eyes and hair, then put her at arms' length to look at her.

"I've just bought a house for you," he smiled. "You're coming with me to San Diego, and we'll be married tomorrow in Mexico."

"Sit down a minute," Livia said. "I've something to explain."

"About Elisabeth?" he interrupted. "How is she?"

"No, not about Elisabeth."

"Father?"

"No, not your father. It's me."

Bruce waited, his face still glowing with the surprise of finding her here.

"I've just come from Monarch Pictures," Livia said slowly. She waited for him to grasp what she had said, but Bruce was still smiling, and she continued quickly. "I've just signed a contract with them. I'm not supposed to marry

MR. JOHN WRUSH

At this season of the year many people feel tired, wornout and nervous; appetites are lost and they have no energy to do a thing; bowels become constipated, and frequent suffering from indigestion, dizziness, headaches and rheumatic aches and pains. Now is the time to take a short treatment of Dynionia Tablets. Compound for effective aid like that experienced by Mr. John Wrush, 36 McNab St. North, Hamilton, Ontario:

"I felt rundown and tired most of the time I got up in the morning and my stomach was upset. I suffered gas and everything I did set distress in my stomach. I had a miserable feeling and a bitter taste in my mouth, no appetite, no sleep, and no good before my eyes. My back ached and there were pains in my joints and muscles. I couldn't get myself started at night, because my nerves were on edge. I had tried a lot of different things, but nothing seemed to help me. Then a friend of mine told me about Dynionia Tablets. I decided to get some. Before I finished the first bottle I noticed an improvement; so I kept on taking them and now I relish every meal. I have settled all that miserable feeling and sour stomach. My bowels are more regular and I haven't had that dizzy feeling or spots before my eyes for a long time. Most of the aches and pains have gone out of my joints and I have slept my nerves relaxed. As a result I can truthfully say that Dynionia Tablets have helped me. I have more energy."

Go to DOUG'S, THE DRUGGIST Belleville and find out how Dynionia can help you, too.

Plan To Wind Up Current Aid to Russia Clothing Campaign

Prices Board Order Does Not Prohibit Cash Donations to Aid to Russia Fund

Ottawa, Feb. 5 — (CP) — The Prices Board announced yesterday that arrangements now rebuking up the current aid to Russia campaign for clothing have been worked out between officials of the fund and the Prices Board.

(Announcement was made this week of a plan requiring voluntary organizations to obtain government permits before collecting clothing.)

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, in a telegram to officials of the Aid to Russia fund has said that all appeals including those through the radio and press are to be immediately discontinued. Deliveries or donations of clothing made as a result of the campaign to date may be accepted not later than Feb. 20. Permission to wind up the campaign, Mr. Gordon's wire does not authorize the purchase of clothing. "I want to make it clear that the Board order does not prohibit cash contributions to the aid to Russia fund," Mr. Gordon said in his wire. "The United Nations relief campaign just announced includes aid to Russia and cash contributions thus made will be used for the purchase of necessary clothing through the co-ordination and approval of the clothing division of the Prices Board.

"Our whole effort is designed to ensure an orderly flow of our own supply problems and I would regret in any way which the Board's order were misinterpreted in such a way that cash donations to such worthy purposes as aid to Russia were reduced."

TIRE, TUBE AND RIM TAKEN FROM CAR

Perhaps the zenith of all robberies occurred early today when a tire, tube and rim were stolen from a car parked on the east corner of Bridge and Front Streets. As is his usual custom, George Fitzgerald, No. 4 East Bridge St., parked his car at Hayward's Service Station for the evening. When he returned in the near tire, tube and rim were all gone. The car had been jacked up and the tire removed as perhaps hundreds of pedestrians walked nonchalantly past without realizing a robbery was progressing.

NAPANEE MAN GIVEN REFORMATORY TERM

Archie Naven, 20, of Napanee, Ont., was sentenced today to two years less a day on each of three charges of breaking and entering, and three months on a fourth charge, to run concurrent, when in the home of a child by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court. The sentences will run concurrently.

Naven was arrested by Police Inspector Clare Hayes on the 31st of January and charged with breaking and entering Stirling's grocery store, Front Street, the home of Earle Godfrey on the Moneypenny Company and the office and store, front of Gabriel Callaghan.

Consider Demand For Secretary of State And Office for Wales

London, Feb. 5 — (CP) — The demand of Wales for a secretary of state and a Welsh office is still being considered by the government, Prime Minister Churchill has advised Miss Megan Lloyd George, Liberal member of Parliament and daughter of the former Prime Minister.

The Welsh parliamentary party which comprises the Welsh membership of the Commons regardless of party affiliation is seeking consent to publish the whole correspondence on the matter.

Group Capt. Davoud Back in Kingston

Kingston, Feb. 5 (CP)—Group Capt. Gordon Davoud, Canadian Typhoon fighter bomber commander in the R.A.F.'s tactical air force, arrived at his home here last night for a visit with his mother, Mrs. V. F. Davoud.

He said he would leave immediately for Ottawa and would go on to Vancouver to visit his wife. Purpose of his trip home was to do "a couple of jobs" for the air force which he could not discuss for security reasons. He would return to Kingston in about two weeks, he added, before returning overseas.

Group Capt. Davoud formerly was commanding officer of the City of Kingston Squadron of the R.C.A.F. overseas.

RUSSIANS OPEN OFFENSIVE NEAR BRESLAU CANADIANS LAUNCH NEW ASSAULT AGAINST RUHR

Drive Penetrates At Least 4½ Miles Into Siegfried Line

Kleve, Northern Terminal Of Line, Menaced by Push

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 9 (AP)—The powerful new 1st Canadian Army has penetrated 45 least 4 1-2 miles into Germany's vaunted West Wall Siegfried line today, turning the northern jaw of an Allied pincer drive against the Ruhr.

Burning Kleve, northern terminal of the Siegfried Line, was imminently menaced. The new attack front widened to seven miles. Formidable forest defences in the Reichswald, thunderously weakened by a terrific artillery and air bombardment, were being popped up swiftly. Five German and two Netherlands towns fell. More than 1,200 Germans, including two lieutenant-commanders, surrendered.

The British 2nd Army, 15 miles to the south advanced to within a mile of the vast Schoyndal-Emmerich defensive triangle, flood waters on the Roer River—a barrier to the Ruhr and the Cologne Plain.

The United States 3rd Army advanced to within a mile of Prum and reached the Prum River eight miles inside Germany.

Strategic Situation Broken.

The French 1st Army broke the last German bridgehead south of Strasbourg and swept to the Upper Rhine banks on a 90-mile front from north of Strasbourg to Swiss Switzerland.

Like an avalanche which moves slowly at first, Gen. Eisenhower's offensive in the western front armies was gathering power.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They have aches in the back and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisonous waste from the blood. If they are sluggish poisons stay in the system and disturbed rest, backache, headache often follow. Large Jack Rabbits Damage P.E. Orchards

Prince Edward County has been invaded by an army of tree-destroying jack rabbits.

The big fellows weighing from 11 to 14 pounds have been raiding orchards in the vicinity of Wellington, Ormsby and Black Creek and Consecon in unprecedented raids.

The Jacks apparently prefer the late Spies and Baldwins of Wellington where local nimrods have had no difficulty in shooting them.

The other day Tom Lighthall, Harry Bowers, Nick Welsh, Ralph Moore and Dorsett Durant returned from the hunt with eleven big rabbits in the bag with the largest weighing sixteen pounds.

Orchardists are reported to be doing damage to young apple trees, chewing the bark near the base.

Many Prince Edward farmers are organizing hunting posses in an effort to exterminate the rapidly increasing long-eared pests.

Agricultural Com. Wants Survey Of Moira River

Hastings County Agricultural committee has added its voice to appeals for the drafting of organizations for a survey of the Moira River with the view of instituting a reforestation and soil conservation plan.

At the first meeting of the committee executive held in Stirling, Warden Hamilton remarked that he forwarded to the provincial government a petition for the survey. Executive officers appointed at the meeting included Col. Roscoe Vanderwater as chairman, with vice chairmanship being held by Wilfred Spencer of Ranton township. Executive named included Ed. Pryor, Stirling, Clarence Graham of Tweed and Fred Campbell of Foxboro.

Demobilizating at their inaugural meeting conditions relating to the betterment of agriculture were the foremost importance on their agenda. Committee members decided to inquire for information regarding compulsory soil vacation for Bang's disease, and of the problem as it has set up in Peel county.

Also included in the discussion at the first executive meeting of the committee was the advisability of having Hastings as a free attested area for T.B. testing of cattle. Petitions asking that Hastings be made a restricted area have been completed since 1936, but the question of there being sufficient number of veterinaries to carry out the program and of finance for reimbursement of farmers who may have their herds turned down is still in abeyance.

Says Goebbels Won't Try To Escape

BY THOMAS HAWKINS

Bern, Feb. 8. (AP) One Nazi leader among them all has kept his head through the crisis of the Russian campaign and remains the major force and inspiration to help keep Germany's fighting strength from faltering.

He is Paul Joseph Goebbels, limping genius of propaganda, highly educated, a shrewd judge of facts and a thinker, while at the same time a most adept painter of facts as they are not. Goebbels has kept his head although his realistically expects to lose if physically in the not too distant future.

Others who know and have watched Goebbels for many years confirm that the little doctor, who has reared a family and knows propaganda, for fighting as long as he can. He says he will not try to escape. People who have talked to him feel he will say further that he is the only Nazi whose acts and words can still arouse the fighting spirit among the Germans.

For others it is another story if one is to accept the tales of travellers from Berlin.

Hitler, so it is told, does not even now accept the possibility of defeat. In recent declarations to his intimates, one of the United States Mission for Economic Affairs, advising air transport operators in Britain that "a limited number of Douglas (C-47) Dakotas were available at $100,000 each, and Goebbels is also said to believe that Berlin now is only a symbol of onetime German power.

Hitler was reported clinging to his Gerchtesgaden tower where he directs from a map on which German troopers surround him in redoubt narrowing circles. Hitler's most recent confidante named included Ed. Pryor, Stirling, Clarence Graham of Tweed and Fred Campbell of Foxboro.

No Choice for Himmler

The soft-voiced but hard-hearted Himmler is something else. He, too, is reported to have been at Hitler's headquarters recently for talks with Hitler, but there is no doubt about the great new preparations for making the Berlin-Nazi Axis an effective fortress. He is the brains and executive head behind these preparations.

Per Himmler there is no choice. He is known to have been at Rundstedt's side before the Russians got there in an effort to organize an effective earth-according. He has been in touch with Quisling in Norway and Antonescu in Rumania, and with Eastern front constantly.

Viewing any time who have seen him; is the unhappiest of the lot. He had his new plans drawn down at Caren Hall with about 30 guests, but even those left him alone. Penalve he lacked the charm that made the host he used to love to play. There was change in mental health Goering was said to have drunk little. About April or May he attended a board meeting of his steel trust in Berlin. Diplomatic circles say he is deeply depressed and spoke openly of defeat.

Rumors say that he is seeking every way to assure himself of safety when the collapse comes.

Wing Cmdr. Stephenson Reported Missing

Wing Commander Joseph Stephenson, former Trenton Flying School officer commanding at the Trenton Air Station, has been reported missing in enemy action, according to his wife, now residing in Windsor, Ontario.

The news is almost coincident with that of the wing commander's landing-in Belleville on Tuesday afternoon on the Trenton staff and who was the "bedtime" Commander Stephenson.

Stephenson was known in this city as was Mrs. Stephenson. He was a member of the permanent force of the R.C.A.F. and it is believed unofficially his high rank to revert to that of a squadron leader in order to go into combat overseas.

The entire crew of the bomber was flying in Squadron leader's machine which gives rise to some hope that they are prisoners of war.

IN MEMORIAM

COLDEN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ann Colden, who passed away, February 9th, 1941.

At early morn, when all was still,
She closed her eyes, it was God's will.

Now she's free from worry and pain,
We would not wake her, to suffer again.

'Tis sad, but true, we wonder why
The best are always first to die.

Her memory remembered by Doris and Arthur.

COLDEN—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel May Colden, who passed away February 9, 1941.

Her memory is very pleasant, face as a pleasure to recall,
As to a kindly voice we loved for each
And died beloved by all.
Dear one, we hope to meet her,
Some day we know not where,
To clasp her hand in the better land.

Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

Britons Resent 'Indecent Haste' Of U.S. Salesmen

London, Feb. 9. (CP)—The British aviation journal Aeroplane said today United States salesmen "are showing indecent haste in their dealings to dollar the world's market", and said letters had gone out from the United States Embassy offering planes for sale to British officials.

London newspapers have reported a letter signed by Rutledge Bennington, U.S. of the United States Mission for Economic Affairs, advising air transport operators in Britain that "a limited number of Douglas (C-47) Dakotas were available at $100,000 each, and Goebbels is also said to believe that Berlin now is only a symbol of onetime German power.

Hitler was reported clinging to his Gerchtesgaden tower where he directs from a map on which German troopers surround him in redoubt narrowing circles. Hitler's most recent confidante named included Ed. Pryor, Stirling, Clarence Graham of Tweed and Fred Campbell of Foxboro.

Demobilizating at their inaugural meeting conditions relating to the betterment of agriculture were the foremost importance on their agenda. Committee members decided to inquire for information regarding compulsory soil vacation for Bang's disease, and of the problem as it has set up in Peel county.

Also included in the discussion at the first executive meeting of the committee was the advisability of having Hastings as a free attested area for T.B. testing of cattle. Petitions asking that Hastings be made a restricted area have been completed since 1936, but the question of there being sufficient number of veterinaries to carry out the program and of finance for reimbursement of farmers who may have their herds turned down is still in abeyance.

Co-operatives Termed 'Octopus' At Hearing

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Winnipeg, Feb. 9 (CP)—The Co-operative Movement in Western Canada has been characterized as both an octopus ready to swallow independent businesses and as a benefactor in evidence before the Royal Commission on the taxation of co-operatives.

The commission, with Mr. Justice Errol M. McDonald of Montreal as chairman, began a eastward sojourn today, loaded with information received at Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina and Winnipeg.

Twenty-seven briefs—18 from co-operative interests and 13 from independents or boards of trade—were reviewed here. Following presentation from eastern Canadian organizations the commission will recommend whether co-operatives should continue exempt of income and excess profits taxes.

At the closing sitting here yesterday, John Marshall of the Manitoba section, C.C.F., described the co-operative movement as one of economic and social value capable of rectifying many political protests. World Develop "State Socialism"

This contrasted with the view expressed by H. Moore of Winnipeg, Secretary of Food Distributors of Manitoba, that growth of tax free co-operatives would develop a monopolistic "state socialism."

Private interests—livestock and retail merchants, implement, fuel and automotive dealers, insurance agents, independent dairies and others—all cried they received "unfair" and "discriminatory" treatment by the Dominion government's taxation policy.

The Income tax payers association said that the Dominion treasury had been deprived of about $50,000,000 of revenue a year by not taxing co-operatives. The association, and the boards of trade all pleaded for equality in taxation" while A. E. Dilts, representing independent dairies, said the present taxation favored the latter with the objective of preventing inflation.

Most of these interests charged that profits from tax given co-operatives acted as a subsidy from the government which was paid by other businesses, corporations and individuals.

The co-operatives — poultry, cheese, butter, milk, honey, grain and livestock producers, wholesale distributors and their marketing agencies—claimed they were products of "classification" and farmers experienced from other trade channels.

Advantage Cited

The co-operatives gave farmers advantages in prices, stabilized markets for agriculture produce, were a factor in uniting rural groups and carrying on community projects, the briefs said. Corporations "exist for profits" for shareholders, who sometimes were few in number, they maintained.

Co-operative members shared in income through patronage dividends in accordance with the volume of business they transacted through the association. This patronage dividend was variously termed a refund on excess charges and a savings but never a "profit." The patronage dividend became part of a member's income, however, and subject to income tax as such.

Many co-operatives in Manitoba recommended the Dominion government be urged to enact a Dominion Co-operative Act as a way of settling doubts and controversies in the legal status of a co-operative society.

The War Today—

Big Three May Soon Call On German People To Desert Hitlerdom

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

The growing intensity of the Allied assault which is boring into Germany from both west and east has strengthened the belief among observers that the Big Three, now in momentous conference in the Black Sea area, are likely soon to call on the German people to desert Hitlerdom.

Much must depend, as I see it, on the speed with which the Allied armies are able to pile up the threat against Berlin. The broadening of the attack on the western front by the launching of the Canadian-British offensive is a most hopeful development.

Should it be the design of Messrs. Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin to issue such a summons, it's logical to assume that it would come at the psychological moment when the Germans have been squeezed just hard enough — a master-calling and delicate timing. That moment might be the fall of Berlin, or when the capital is invested and its capture is clearly imminent. One of the greatest blows that could be inflicted on the morale of the German middle Rhenish barrier to cross.

people would lie the loss of their first city.

Moral Effect

The moral effect of such a summons would be greatly strengthened if the fall came while the Big Three were in session. Certainly no summation could be more effective than the one coming from the dramatic Black Sea parley of the world's greatest leaders, who have been widely advertised as meeting to settle the fate of Germany.

Desertion of Hitler by part of his people probably wouldn't end the war. But it would put an awful crimp in the Nazi effort to carry on. Of course a good many folk in the United Nations almost hope that the Germans will keep on fighting until the Allied armies have had a chance to trample the length and breadth of Germany with hob-nailed boots.

The threat to Berlin is increasing hourly; for success continues to ride with the Red Armies in their terrific attack on the eastern defences of the metropolis. As things now stand the Russians will get to the capital much ahead of the western Allies, who still have the forces on the west of the German

1944 Fire Record

A very sharp upward trend in the fire loss for both life and property in 1944 is reported in the quarterly bulletin with preliminary figures just issued by the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department for last year. The greatest loss of life in any single fire in this province in many years was the Moose Jaw fire in Hamilton on May 24th last in which ten lives were lost. The total of deaths due to fire last year was 98 while the injured numbered 261. The bulletin states, "the loss of life by fire in 1944 was about fifty per cent higher than for the previous year."

The record of the last three months of last year showed killed numbering seven men, one woman and three children, and the injured who numbered forty-nine, 43 men, 13 women and 3 children.

If the loss in lives was higher during the year, the cost of fire was higher too in material and financial loss, the property destruction from over 2,000 more fires than the previous average was higher by more than two and a half million dollars than the year 1943.

Here are the material losses—in 1944 there were 18,421 fires causing $13,282,437 loss and $11,143,384 insurance loss, while in 1943 there were 16,309 fires causing a loss of $10,643,928 and an insurance loss of $8,906,813, bringing an increase in the actual loss of $2,638,509 and insurance loss of $2,236,571. These figures are subject to revision in the annual report.

Of eleven large fires in the last quarter of 1944 the causes of eight were not determined and were listed as "unknown," of the others being listed as caused by defective heating apparatus, another by furnace and the third by smoking.

Of 5,051 of the fires listed by origin in the last quarter, the cause is given as follows: chimneys, flues, etc., 168 fires; stoves and furnaces, etc., hot ashes, coals and wood in open fires, 195; sparks on roofs, wooden shingles, fabricated roofs, 2; exposure fires, 16; careless smoking, 174; matches, 327; lights (other than electric), 146; electricity, 530; lightning, unroofed buildings, 280; lightning, roofed before 1922, 1; spontaneous combustion, in barns, 3; combustion, all others, 50; petroleum and its products, 163; incendiarism, 8; miscellaneous, 283 and unknown, 772.

Why such the increase in both categories of victims and monetary loss? The report goes on, "Similarly the loss paid by insurance companies was more than $2,235,000 in 1944 than in 1943. An analysis of these preliminary figures fails to show any outstanding cause for this very large increase other than general lack of repairs and maintenance due to war shortages of materials and man-power. While fire investigations showed that incendiary fires with the insurance money as the motive have started again, after having almost totally disappeared through recent war years, these have not been times in which the amount of loss was large. Generally high grade and short range the planes are chiefly of value for interception, but their possible value as attackers of ground troops may be heightened by the fact that they cannot be heard until after they have passed.

men received the King's Police and Fire Service medal for outstanding bravery in a fire at Corinna. Firemen do a noble service. Anyone who has watched a brigade at work realizes the danger these men face in their task which requires courage, a stout heart and the ability to cope with a dangerous situation for every fire can be dangerous.

Timber Wolves Go To War

(Ottawa Journal)

Some of those who go down to the sea in ships owe their comfort to the Ontario timber wolves. Even in cold circumstance, that wolves should be giving his active and very personal support to Canada's war effort, but it is the fact.

This comes about through what is called the Seamen's Fur Vest Party War Project of Ontario, an authorized war charity which collects old fur coats and new furs which are then turned into warm garments with which sailors can brave the Atlantic gales.

In last year, which was its third year of operation, the Project encountered a decline in contributions of old fur coats—for reasons one can understand—but the slack was taken up by the Ontario government which donated the season's catch of timber wolves, 1,089 pelts. Thanks to this source of supply, and to the co-operation of furriers and fur workers, production in the year struck a new high of 4,400 fur vests.

In its three years the Project has distributed 11,581 fur vests, 9,686 of them through the R.C.N.V.R. Auxiliary, 642 through the British Minesweepers' Auxiliary, 286 through the R.C.A.F.O.R., smaller numbers through other organizations. They are helping keep our seamen healthy and happy in trying conditions of war operations, a task that must be a source of great satisfaction to all who have aided this splendid work.

The Co-Optimists

(London Daily Telegraph)

Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito exchanged messages of greeting on the third anniversary of the tripartite pact which they concluded four days after Pearl Harbour. It would be interesting to know what bonds for mutual salutation they were able to discover in the present and prospective outcome of their three years' military partnership. The only clue is provided in a pronouncement by Shigemitsu, the Japanese Foreign Minister, that the "Axis-sponsored new order is being approached" and that the war in the Far East has entered "upon the decisive phase." If we may be justified in inferring that the 1,300-mile German retreat from Stalingrad to Balston and the 3,000-mile Japanese retreat from the Marshall Islands to Leyte are evidence of the progress of the Axis towards the United Nations it can certainly hope that this method of "approach" will undergo no slackening in the rate of advance.

Germany's Coal Burning Planes

(Newsweek Magazine)

Short of fuel and fat for aviation, the Germans have devised a way to burn coal in their jet-propelled planes by using forced steam draft for efficient combustion, according to reliable Swiss sources. For more effective streamlining and manoeuvering at speeds of more than 620 miles an hour, the pilots lie on their stomachs. Because of high climb and short range the planes are chiefly of value for interception, but their possible value as attackers of ground troops may be heightened by the fact that they cannot be heard until after they have passed.

SPENDTHRIFT

"Oh, I have fritteted it away
For pretty things to wear,"
I heard a foolish spendthrift say,
"Or someone's task to share,
Or that an hour or two of mirth,
Or but the truth be told,
I fancied half more real worth
Than being rich when old.

"Always my pocket had a hole
The money filtered through.
I couldn't hoard to save my soul
As others seem to do.
And though to keep the stuff I'd vow,
To serve some rainy day,
Against the need or joy of now,
Old age seemed far away.

"Their heads at me the sages shake.
'Poor fool!' exclaim the wise,
'Men ought to keep the coins they make,
In saving, safety lies.'
But fool I was, as they declare,
And so my money went
To purchase pretty things to wear
And song and merriment."

1,100 CLASSED AS DESERTERS

Montreal, Feb. 9 — (CP) The Montreal Star said yesterday that authorities of Canada's armed forces here now are dealing with "about 200 men from different units who overstayed their embarkation leave at Christmas." FLAMING

British and Canadian troops of the 1st Canadian Army fought with tanks, infantry, Boot handlers and planes and gained more than two miles today on a front from just into the edge of the fortified Siegfried Switch Line after a flaming all-night battle. They were driving northeast eight or 10 miles of the point where the Ruhr River flows northward to the North Sea. A "thaw" and rain added their hindrance to the first 24 hours of attack.

Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of the permanent Siegfried Line defences, 11 miles to the northwest of Duisburg, gateway to the Ruhr industrial area, says Germany's main arsenal but of increased importance now that the Russians have overrun the industries of Silesia, and the United States 3rd army has installed itself south of the Saarland's production.

Chaplain Lead in Forest.

(Reuters) News Agency in London quoted a front dispatch as saying that Allied parachute troops have landed in the Hurtgen (Huertgen) Forest.)

Some 85 miles south, in the Ardennes, United States 1st army troops were fighting through fringes of the vast Schwammenauel dam, one of the Ruhr's flood controls, and a potential flooding threat to the Belgian plain. The United States 9th armies in jump-off positions waiting for a link between the Canadian army and the American 1st army troops.

In the centre of resistance was cleared in Schmidt by the 78th division.

In the centre of the western front, the United States 3rd army pushed through an eight-mile hole in the Siegfried Line to within a mile of the important road centre of Prum, Oshkeim on the Prueem river, two miles from the Belgian and eight inside Germany, also was cleared.

Break Resistance in Alsace.

The French 1st army and its four American divisions were reported to have broken the last organized resistance in lower Alsace region of the Saar at the Rhine south of Strasbourg, capturing Drusenheim and said 4,000 prisoners were taken on the Alsace front yesterday, bringing the number caged in a six-day period to 15,000, the French said.

The 1st Canadian army offensive was a great success, front reports said the first time the Germans had voluntarily bolstered by British troops, had been thrown back with a counter-attack role and hurled eastward from Nijmegen.

Focused on Five-Miles.

Gen. Crerar's forces smashed across the flat sodden German frontier yesterday in the Reichswald area northwest of Duesseldorf and the Ruhr, the American breakthrough toward the Rhine in the north of the Ruhr.

At least in first stage, the new onslaught was focused along a five-mile front from the Reichswald Kleve road skirting the northern edge of the forest to Mook, behind the Waal to the Nijmegen-Venlo road and the southwestern end of the fortified zone.

Frauenberg on the Nijmegen-Kleve road is the key point in the enemy and five miles from Kleve, Nijmegen, Canadian troops reported penetration. The Kleve is the last natural barrier to the Rhine.

Overrun Many Towns.

Along with Kranenberg Gen. Crerar's attack troops overran Hasselt, Groesbeek, Brieben, Bruk, Denheuvel and Germanswalde, all in the Netherlands and some on the German side of the border.

Resistance was spotty on the north-western sector supporting the attack but stiff around Bruk, on the Kleve-Nijmegen road farther south. Enemy troop trains moved up to the Canadian sector were under attack by Allied airmen. The offensive was powered by a creeping artillery barrage, guns firing wheel to wheel.

The 1st Canadian Army sector had been quiet since November 30 when the Germans hit at Arnhem, and during the months between Canadian troops dug intricate mazes of trenches and took large and laid extensive minefields.

Casualties Light.

Casualties were described officially as light. Front reports indicated that the Germans were caught by surprise, and that the defenders of the onslaught which was preceded by a 1,000-gun barrage and bombing and strafing attacks by 1,000 to 1,500 planes, many of them heavy bombers.

The aerial sealing off of the front made it impossible for the Germans could get reinforcements up quickly to the new attack area, and at this point of the Canadian army attack the Allies were within 300 miles of the Russian armies which are driving in from the east.

Scattered clouds fell this morning. But the weather was no worse than yesterday when the attack was given an air umbrella which kept the German air force virtually grounded. Positions within 1,000 yards of the Canadian assault were also blasted; chaos and ruin was spread on the whole German rail system behind the front.

German Equipment Smashed.

At least 2,000 German railcars were damaged or destroyed — a terrific total when one remembers the wholesale destruction of recent weeks of rail cutting and train busting in this whole northern front.

The effect already was so great that German troops shifting from one sector of the front to another in the enemy's jiggle to meet each new threat were known to be having to use transit facilities deep in Germany, travelling many times

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

VITAMIN G DEFICIENCY

Vitamin G, otherwise called vitamin B2 now considered identical as riboflavin abundantly supplied in milk. Other foods that are good sources of riboflavin are liver, kidney, beef heart. They are also rich American cheese, green leafy vegetables such as beet tops, turnip tops, cabbage, lettuce, spinach, broccoli, asparagus, wheat brewer's yeast is the richest known source of riboflavin. Prior to 1938 riboflavin and niacin (nicotenic acid) were considered not clearly identified as different entities of the vitamin B complex, and the disease pellagra was described to vitamin G deficiency. Today it is well recognized that vitamin G deficiency is the main cause of pellagra, although there are associated riboflavin and other B-complex deficiency manifestations in most cases of pellagra.

Characteristic manifestations of vitamin G deficiency are sore-red and tender fissures in each angle of the mouth, scaly lips, chapped and cracked skin, fatty, kidney, reddened raw looking lips. This condition of the lips is called cheilosis.

Accompanying the cheilosis there is likely to be a greasy, irritation or inflammation of the skin on the sides of the nose and the cheeks sometimes extending behind the ears.

The tongue has a magenta color which must be distinguished from the bright red tongue of pellagra. In some instances where the G deficiency has been long continued there may be eye manifestations as well. Conjunctivitis, inflammation of the lining of lids and covering of eyeball), particularly of the upper and lower half of eyeball, attended with itching, burning, undue sensitivity to light and a feeling as if sand or cinders have got into the eyes.

The animal feeding tests it is possible to produce cataract, opacity or opacity of crystalline lens in rats, dogs and cats by feeding the animal on a diet adequate in all other respects but lacking riboflavin (vitamin G) riboflavin. Then when riboflavin is restored to the animal's feed the cataract may clear up. We have had individuals (white rats) and so far as I know they are the only animals whether riboflavin deficiency is a factor of cataract in man or whether increased intake of riboflavin has any remedial value against cataract in man.

Skimmed milk or separated milk (left to separator after removal of cream or fat); evaporated milk, and dried skim milk powder and buttermilk are practically as rich in riboflavin as whole milk. Eggs and also fish are quite rich.

Packing of Olives Requires Skill

Recently we took a trip over to Brooklyn to visit the plant of Mayer-Cutler-Amris, Inc., importers and packers of one of Sicily's favorite foods, olives, writes Jane Holt in the New York Times. This concern, established in 1907, is the largest olive-packing company in the world, according to J. Kolmeyer, sales manager of the organization, who took us through the plant.

All of the fruit comes from the olive producing area around Seville, Spain. The plain, large green olives arrive in lagoheads containing a ton and containing from 150 to 180 gallons each, while the smaller stuffed Manzanillas are packed in barrels holding about fifty gallons each. The brine in which they travel, we were told, has a percentage of salt double that of the ocean. While these are the two general types imported, there are many classifications of each. The queen olives, for example, come in fourteen sizes, each varying by a fraction. Super colossal, the largest, measures about an inch-and-a-half in length, while some colossal, giant and mammoth, the next sizes that appear on the label. The size of the Manzanilla varies, too, but not so perceptibly to the untrained eye. The concern also puts up a tiny, pitted cocktail variety, as well as olives stuffed with pimentos. Some go by the Spanish trade name of Grandes, while others are packaged for different companies.

Packing Scientific Job.

One hundred girls do the specialized job of filling and packing the olives in the jars. Lest you should have the idea it's a simple matter of dumping them in, it takes from six months to a year to train each one. The workers sit at long steel tables, and, using long metal trays with holes in the bottom, pick up the olives individually, examining them for perfection of shape, color, and putting them in the bottle in symmetrical vertical rows. The stuffed olives are the most difficult to pack because the fruit has to be placed perfectly on end in the jars. In and out go the tongs, and, miraculously it seems to the observer, every olive stays in the spot in which it is put. Each girl averages sixty dozen jars a day, or about two every three minutes.

As the jars are filled, they're put into trays and wheeled to a large sink, where they're rinsed in lukewarm water and drained to rid them of brine. Next, they pass on an assembly line to be filled with fresh brine, capped, rinsed again to clean the outside of the bottle, and finally labeled.

Meantime, the stuffed olives discarded by the packing girls because of cracks in the skin or other irregularities of appearance serve a purpose all their own. They are chopped fine, blended with spices, and made into a delicious product called Grandee olive butter. This makes an exellent spread for sandwiches or appetizers, much as is, or blended with cream cheese. Its flavor, quite naturally, is one of olive and pimento, and it is sufficiently oily so that no butter need be used along with it.

Behavior In Front Of The Camera

During the years I've been fiddling around as a newspaperman I've seen scores of people photographed and I've often wondered about the strange powers of a camera. W. W. writes in The Winnipeg Tribune.

For there's something about the one-eyed stare of a camera lens that exercises a hypnotic effect on the subject it is aimed at.

However before I get around to discussing that particular phenomenon, I'd like to mention that even the mere suggestion of being photographed is enough to send the average lady or gent into a bit of a dither.

Money By Away.

Nine out of 10 of them seem to think it necessary to slay away as if you had suggested yanking one of their teeth.

"You don't really need a photo, do you?" they'll say.

If I've heard that remark once, I've heard it a hundred times.

Some day I'm going to frame that answer and reply: "No, of course I don't want your picture. But the city editor does—and I think he's the boss."

I presume this display of reluctance to get before the camera is supposed to indicate modesty. But there's nothing modest about the demands for copies, once the picture has been published.

When it comes to getting interviews, and the accompanying pix (newspaper term for pictures) I've always found the more important, or well known, people are easier to deal with than the guys and gals who are far from being big league stuff.

Little Fellow Worst

It's the geezer who is still struggling to make a name for himself who gives you the "I'm so terribly busy" line and who acts as if he were doing you a favor in granting an interview.

And it's the really top-notch celebrities who treat a newspaperman as if he were doing them a favor by coming over and seeing them.

Now let's get back to the hypnotic effect of the camera.

I've often been getting along nicely with an interview, with my subject quite relaxed and at ease, when the cameraman starts lining up a picture.

As soon as he takes his first peek through the finder the subject stops talking and stiffens up. "Go ahead and talk," the cameraman will say. "Don't let me bother you!"

He's Hypnotised

But it's no use. The gent is hypnotised. He tries to continue discussing that particular phenomenon, I'd like to mention that even the mere suggestion of being photographed is enough to send the average lady or gent into a bit of a dither.

He's Hypnotised

But it's no use. The gent is hypnotised. He tries to continue discussing that particular phenomenon, but his mind and his eyes are on the camera.

He could hardly become more tense if the camera were being covered by a revolver.

The funny thing is when people have been photographed, they always act the same—like mad.

I remember one time I was interviewing a noted musician.

Things were going O.K. until Bruce Watson, one of our staff photographers, began doing his stuff.

Then it was the same old story. The musician began staring into the camera as if he had never seen one before.

"Pay no attention to Watson," said to the musician. "He's never seen a camera before and he's just trying to find out how it works."

Spell is Broken.

My silly statement broke the hypnotic spell of the lens.

Watson burst out laughing, so did the musician, and—BING! we got a swell picture, quite unposed and perfectly natural.

And it's hardly necessary to remind you how sharply the camera shows the difference between a false laugh, or smile, and a natural one.

Take the average wedding picture as an example—and now I'm talking about the studio job where the bride and groom are carefully posed for the picture of a lifetime.

The cameraman—or photographic artist, as he prefers to be called—says: "Smile, please."

And what happens?

The bride and groom both bare their teeth slightly in a grimace which is about as much like a real smile as root beer looks like the real stuff.

Getting Newbove.

All of which leads us rapidly nowhere, as far as finding a solution for camera-consciousness is concerned.

If you want to see the genuine smiles caught by the camera, and faithfully preserved in print, just take a look at any of those pictures of returned men being greeted by their wives, sweethearts or families.

Those pictures aren't posed. The photographer doesn't have to tell them to smile.

They just look into each other's eyes and forget about everything except each other.

Which finally leads to the only cure for camera hypnosis.

If you want to have a natural looking picture, just forget all about the camera.

Improved Flying Weather

British and American tactical air forces based on the continent used improved flying weather to harass enemy troops from one end of the front to the other. The United States 9th Air Force's fighters and fighter-bombers flew more than 1,500 sorties while the British 2nd T.A.F. topped 1,000 sorties for the first time in daylight.

Gun positions, railways and enemy troops dug in around the Reichswald Forest, where the 1st Canadian Army was advancing were the principal targets.

Over the battlefront yesterday R.C.A.F. Spitfires destroyed five Stukas southeast of Venlo. The dive-bombers, flushed up by the new offensive, were hit before they had a chance to bomb the Allied troops.

Flt. Lt. D. C. Gordon, D. F. C., of Vancouver, shot down two Stukas himself and shared in a third.

The R.C.A.F. Rad Indian Squadron destroyed two locomotives and damaged two southwest of Hamm.

AMERICANS GAIN

Japanese artillery fire began to taper off yesterday after two days of continuous shelling of American-held north Manila.

The important highway towns of Munoz, Rizal and Lupao have been captured by Americans of the 6th and 26th divisions. Lupao's capture virtually completed the campaign to secure the left flank on Luzon.

Enemy losses have been "very heavy" in both personnel and material in this sector, headquarters said. They reported 1,242 troops killed at Munoz alone, along with 43 tanks, 63 armored vehicles and 27 guns captured or destroyed.

WEDDINGS

DUNDON—DAVISON

Miss Lucien Mowery played the wedding music before the bride entered, given in marriage by her father, who was charming in a floor length gown of powder blue, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline. Her full length veil was held in place with a white-or-orange blossomed and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Barbara Davison, who as an attendant wore floor length frock of pale green taffeta and a halo hat of green velvet held in place with yellow rosebuds. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. Mr. Robert Dundon of Sydney Mills, brother of the groom was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate family and a buffet wedding breakfast was served from a table centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by pink tapers. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip, the bride's going dress being a black and white check suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. Upon their return they will reside at 25 Bell St., Belleville.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring and to the bridesmaid, a gold brooch and chain. The best man received a gold identification bracelet and the usher, an engraved gold wrist watch compact.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (CP)—GOOD LOOKING food that looks better, tastes better, says Laura Secord, director of the Agriculture Department's Canadian nutrition service, as she suggests these attractive garnishes for every-day dishes:

For meat pie use a pastry dough topping cut with a doughnut cutter. Or, if of pastry, cut each hole after baking makes an attractive garnish. Hot or cooked meat cold meat garnish.

Chopped cabbage let easy is made and look pay on a relish, pick or salad. Cover a sharp pointed knife make cuts in head, then push knife it inch apart down the length of the carrot. Then cut crosswise in paper-thin slices and shall in ice water until they curl.

Apple wedges make a colorful garnish. Wash and core a rosy apple, cut in wedges, and to each one insert in parsley "flags." Use on a rabbit tray or as a relish for cold meat garnish.

Hamburger or Liver .. Wrap each hamburger in a slice of bacon and top with a pimento stuffed.

HOSE CARE—Daily dusting is a must if you wish to make your precious rayon stockings last longer, and 36 hours is the minimum drying time for them to keep their elasticity. Rings on fingers and hangnails are sharp points and the source of runs. When it comes to drying, the stocking should be rolled in a towel to remove excess moisture and then hung by toe and top to take the strain off the rubber. PUMPKIN CUSTARD: Nearly everyone likes pumpkin custard pie, and that means nearly everyone ... like this one for variety in pumpkin custard which comes from the Agriculture Department's testing kitchen.

Combine one cup canned pumpkin, 1½ cups scalded milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg and ½ teaspoon ginger. Beat one egg slightly, add the milk and pumpkin mixture and two molasses. Pour into greased custard cups, set in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, for about one hour, or until cold. This recipe makes six servings.

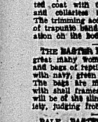
Fashion Flashes

THE TRIUMPH of the topper continues, but there is already version for Spring often with detachable fronts. Navy and black are still leaders, but grey, pale beige and platina hues.

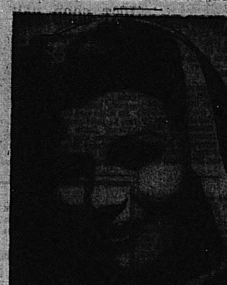
SMALL AND NEAT is the best formula for the new spring hat. An ideal hat is a Viscot pillbox in mocha brown felt the appliqued with a row of padded cushions of brown, also in. Pale beige veil stiffened to fibre.



A GOOD START for a Spring wardrobe is a heavy suit of navy or wool. A fine design has a bolero top of navy and white flake-like tweed over white with pleated jabot topped by a looped bow.

A NICE ACCENT marks many of the fresh coats created for Spring wear. Green woolen with a muskrat finish is designed for a tailored coat with one-button closing and collarless neckline modified. The trimming consists in the form of trapunto beads in branch formation on the bodice.

THE BASTER PARADE will see a great many women wearing dress and bags of tapelin skin in colors with navy, green and red featured. The bags are mostly large, some with shoulder straps, while the shoes will be of the sling-back pump variety, judging from sheers orders.



PALE PASTELS APPEAR in many little afternoon frocks of soft fabrics as crepe, velvet and taffeta fashioned on soft peasant type lines, with oval necklins and short sleeves, of course, of basic beige with underarm inserts and with skirt and upper part of each in folds. The basic folds of the bodice are caught at the waistline, and skirt fullness is centred in front.

Foot Comfort and Your Face

Rita Hayworth's dancing career has taught her the value of foot comfort

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU realize, pretty one, that foot beauty is a lot to do with your face? If you're toddling about in sloppy-weather in thin soled shoes, if you're a run-over-boots and no buskies, if you think you can't happen! Getting chilled means that germs may attack your face and red nose will have hardly accessing fun.

Girls of school age and college age have about enough to wear when they have their feet large. They may look like the Gibson girl but they protect the little fronts of their feet. Let's begin with the girls are the older ones, so an oldfashioned cream is still the best all pack that hesitates into shoes that are too short or too narrow.

For street wear, the shoe should be breathing. It can be cloth shoe leather, or it can be of any material, pliable to the foot and give proper support. The choice of the shoe should be made hastily. Pressure may place will cause blisters and callouses to form.

As for tiniest heels for street wear, we will agree, but our toes on that subject. They were designed only for dress occasions.

An occasional pedicure will help to keep the footers comfortable. Get a careful filing of the nails, then a warm foot bath. Oil or cream is applied to each nail, the cuticle lifted gently with the orked fallood stick. Corns and callouses are frictioned with a toilet pumice stone.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A STORY AS OLD AS THE HILLS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I went "steady" with a boy for two years, and then we had a serious quarrel, and he enlisted in the service. Soon afterward I met a sailor, and following a whirlwind courtship we were married. For me it was a "quick marriage," but he was against the wishes of my family. Our little baby girl is a year old now, but it seems as if everything has gone wrong.

My husband is in the Southwest Pacific. And in the past few weeks my ex-boy friend has been home on furlough, and we have gone out together and realize that we're still in love. Only husband doesn't know about this and if he knew, I'm sure it would send him terribly unhappy. How can I tell him about it?

— S. Q.

"Well, my dear, we either make the best of our mistakes or become quitters. You have a little girl who is entitled to both Mother's and father's love and protection and should have a normal happy home life. Children are not responsible for "quick" marriages, and it's too bad they are always the real victims.

If you let your husband and married the ex-boy friend, you'd probably find life has had as many problems. You might be jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Sees Objects to His Mother's Second Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 43 years of age and have been a widow for the past four years. I have remarried my son, who had always been in college before he went into the service. I feel I've done my duty to him, as I had to work hard to get him through school.

I have had a very intelligent, fresh man by age who wants me to marry him. He has been devoted to me for more than a year and has waited patiently until I fall

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

White Mountaineer! Live and healthy and delicious are the words in the spotlight. They are bargains in health, in flavor, in economy. Usually these phrases are cheapened when used in connection with food, but it is much the case with fruits, and vegetables. There is a fair ribbon of liver, several times iron, and a wealth of health builders, liver mainly promises poor daily need of iron—the mineral which the body has to have in its nutrition to get adequately in the diet. Also, they contain large amounts of other minerals and protein, and a wealth of vitamin A and B1, as well as Riboflavin and niacin.

But what good is all this food value unless we eat it? You may say, "I'm really not fond of liver." It must be taken in the steps of preparation.

Take a Tip

1.—Remove skin and tough fibres by stabbing and loosening with a sharp knife.

2.—Sautéd mushrooms are superb. Marinating (letting stand in tart seasoned liquid) in tomato juice, vinegar, tomato juice, or sour cream improves the flavor and distinctive flavors.

3.—Grinding makes pork livers more acceptable to some tastes. Grinding also helps the liver's texture very well and readily absorbs its rich flavor.

5.—Two high heat toughens meat fibres. Cook slowly in moist heat. Braising, Stewing or moist heat recommended methods.

Pork Liver With Rice.

1 pound pork liver, 1-4 pound sliced bacon, 1 cup rice, 1 cup chopped parsley, 2 or 3 sliced carrots, 3 sliced onions, salt and pepper.

Fry the liver with the bacon until brown then add the rice which has been soaked in water for one and half hour. Cover with hot water or stock and the parsley carrots and onions, salt and pepper. Cook slowly until tender, about forty minutes.

Tripe With Onions

Preparing Tripe—Tripe is usually sold in the city markets already cleaned. If not it obtainable, wash well through several boiling waters, then put in cold water and let soak over night.

Stewed With Onions

2 pounds tripe, 2 onions salt and pepper. 1 cup hot milk, butter.

Tree to marry. But my son upon learning of his plans became quite fuss and doesn't seem to think that I might like to find a companion for my old age. I'm very unhappy and come to you for advice.

—(Mrs.) O. F.

It seems as if your son has been in the habit of making a fuss when he doesn't get what he wants. Well —haven't you had your own ahead and done what you thought was best? Do that now. Nothing is more selfish than such an attitude on the part of grown children to a mother's or father's second marriage.

Simmer the tripe and onions in enough water for three or four hours, drain. Chop and season with salt and pepper. Add to the milk in hot onions and season with salt and pepper. Pour this over the tripe serve very hot.

Stewed Kidneys

1 pair kidneys, 2 pint kidneys, 1 bay leaves, 1-2 lemon, salt, 1 teaspoon thyme, 1 onion, flour, 1 tablespoon butter or other fat.

Wash the kidneys and cut out the hard white substances and fat from the centre. Soak in salt water and soak for three or four hours in water after changing the water three times. Remove kidneys and put the kidneys into a shallow pan, add enough water to cover them and heat slowly. When juice at the boiling point remove the fat from the water and again just cover them with cold water and add bay leaves, thyme, onion and stand changing the water when hot. Change the water in which it was three times that simmer (twenty minutes for small kidneys, one hour for large sheep kidney). Set away to cool. If the kidney is to be used for a breakfast dish, this preliminary cooking must be done the day before. Drain the kidneys, cut into small pieces. Place the chopped kidneys in a stew pan, add the bay-leaves, two cups of water and cook until tender, add minute for twenty minutes. When ready to serve thicken with flour mixed with the liquid. Season with salt and pepper and when thickened is the consistency of cream, serve on a dish.

Pound steaks and cut gashes in fat. Mix rice with stuffing made by combining remaining ingredients except water, carrots and onions. Top with second steak. Secure with skewers. The Marry Go Round

REMEMBRANCE OF ST. VALENTINE.

St. Valentine's Day is Wednesday of next week. And all the charm and sentiment of this romantic day have been left behind since the bogus. Along with the genuin art of letter-writing.

We envy you maided your Valentine letter or gift or card to the man overseas and if you have what you did not try to be clever or facetious or even modish and painless about it. You sent him something full of old-fashioned sentiment and sweet reassurance. For that is what they say the servicemen want this year. Some homey touch. Something that will let him know that you miss him!

It was the fun-making the cynical last-decade that St. Valentine's Day lost its long-lived sentimental charm and significance and declined almost to oblivion. About the only valentines that were sent then were the occasional vari-colored prints of a hand-drawn bracelet and the rich playboy to his latest flame.

But the pendulum is swinging a wide arc and the old-fashioned valentine is here again. Surely one day a year is not too often to remind a sweetheart or even a wife or a husband that she or he is loved. — Mother's Day and Father's Day, yet plenty of sentiment and "Why not keep Sweetheart's Day alive! And why is there no Husband's Day or Wife's Day?

Perhaps the career-girl is the one who finds it most difficult to compose an appropriate valentine, confessing that she is a victim of love after all. Nevertheless, I am all ready for her to clip and mail.

Career-Girl's Valentine

Darling, would you have the prove
That I honestly adore you?
Then oh let me tell you, Love,
All the things that I'd do FOR you!

I've no time to cook or mend
Or to scrub a kitchen shelf—
But I'd listen hour on end,
While you talked about yourself.

I'd not bake you home-made pies,
Nor not, Love, for your digestion,
But your weakest alibis
I would gravely without question!

As a housewife, I'm no riot,
My face would never wow a mob,
But I know when to keep QUIET!
Tell me—do I get the job?

B.C.I. PUCKSTERS WIN BOTH ENDS OFDOUBLEHEADER

Seniors Defeat Albert College 9-6 While Juniors Take St. Mikes 4-1

Harold Moir's Belleville Collegiate pucksters took both ends of a Bay of Quinte Interscholastic doubleheader at the Hums, Annex yesterday afternoon when the "Collegiate" senior Albert College 9 to 6, while the B.C.I. juniors triumphed 4 to 1 over the St. Michael's Academy kids. The junior win elevated the B.C.I. kids into first place.

In the junior game Jack Green and Earl Bush rapped in goals to give the B.C.I. an early lead before Larry Meagher came back with a second period goal for the lone St. Mikes counter. To clinch matters Pat Shiels raced in with a hard driving shot to beat Callaghan. However, to make doubly sure Bruce Diamond stick-handled his way into position and rang the bell for the College's final counter.

In the senior game Roddy Lyall started matters off on the right foot with two early goals as the B.C.I. beat Albert 9 to 6. Lyall was torrid in scoring yesterday to whip home six of the Collegians' nine goals. Otherwise Vollick, Bailey and Wood added the count to seven for B.C.I. into a commanding position with St. Mikes' seniors. The scoring threats for Coach Stevens' Albert College aggregation were Mills count three with Harry Boyd and "Speedy" Bell picking up one each. Los Angeles, Feb. 9 — (AP)—Connie Mack thinks the greatest baseball team of all time was the New York Yankees of 1936 through '39.

Mr. Mack added Connie in his speech last night at a meeting of the National Association of pro baseball players, "the Orioles would have been the best if they had had the pitching of any of the other three."

New York, Feb. 9 — (AP) — The weight of expert opinion seems to be again the Howard Hobson basketball version of basketball . . . but the fans seemed to like it and, for that reason, so did this non-expert observer . . . There's a bigger kick in seeing a long shot swish through the basket than in any amounts of fancy floor work under the basket—especially when so many big boys are trying to get under the basket that you can't see who's who . . . And you should have heard the customers shouting "three" when a kid was poised to shoot from just inside the 21-foot are . . . CANADIENS ENJOY 13-POINT LEAD OVER THE FIELD

Wallop Rangers 9-4 and Rocket Richard Scores Two Tallies

By The Canadian Press

As long as Montreal Canadiens continue to be featured by the Rocket line and a lot of good hockey players, there's not a finish in the N.H.L. who could honestly be happy about anything they do. And at the moment the Habitants have a big enough lead to prove just how good they are, there are no cries of surprise, at this late date.

Apparently Canadiens' season success was to be expected as expected just as much as the fact that they're over the luckiest Rangers at the Forum last night.

The second-last-place New Yorkers could only confirm what has appeared as a fact in the past, that to topple the smooth Montreal-ers in their home sanctuary, with any hope of success is no mean hockey task.

Lester Patrick's unfortunate hockey boys found themselves seven down and into the third period before they could reply.

Fern Gauthier emerged as the shooting star of the night with a pair of markers against his former teammates.

Scoring leader Rocket Richard got two more tallies for Canadiens and veteran Toe Blake got one to move within a dozen of third place Boston's Bill Cowley in the scoring championship standings.

Ray Getliffe ran into two and Buddy O'Connor with one completed Canadiens' total for the night.

When Rangers did get rolling in the final period they snapped in 4 goals in less than 15 minutes. Alex Shunter, Walter Atanas, Fred Hunt and Alex Kaleniuk were the scorers.

The New Yorkers trotted out centreman Neil Colville for his first Montreal appearance since his first charge from the armed forces.

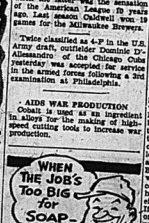
Highlight of the night was the performance of little Ken Mackay in the Ranger cage with a game Joe Lionel Bourrette of Quebec Aces Juniors subbing for Ranger bench as a sub-goalie, but was not needed.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Presidents of the two major leagues yesterday named representatives to a committee which is to select a successor to the late Kenesaw M. Landis as baseball commissioner at $50,000 per year. Will Harridge, president of the American League appointed Alva Bradley of Cleveland and Donald L. Barnes of St. Louis while Red Trick of the National loop assigned Phil Wrigley of Chicago and Sam Breadon of St. Louis.

Brendon of the Cardinals has already suggested Frankie Frisch as a good but the other members of the committee initiated preference for a man outside of baseball. Possible candidates are James A. Farley, former Postmaster General, and J. Edgar Hoover of Federal Bureau of Investigation.



The European invasion — in reverse — is in prospect in the sporting world. Marcel Cardan of Paris, raised the European welter weight championship announced yesterday he hopes to leave France for New York within six months to appear in several fights at Madison Square Garden.

After many years pitcher Earl Caldwell, 36, is returning to big-time baseball, having signed with Chicago White Sox for the coming season. The Waxaco, Tex., veteran outpitched Schoolboy Rowe yesterday when the latter was the sensation of the American League in 1934. Years ago, Last season Caldwell won 19 games for the Milwaukee Brewers.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Feb. 9 — (CP) — The Children sport program in Canada is "well underway," and there are indications that it is going to be quite a success. The way in which the Montreal and Ottawa clubs turned on the class in that recent game in Montreal, it shouldn't be long before they take their place with the best in junior hockey competition yet perhaps the N.H.L. will see them in a year or two.

When they do, the process of internationalizing of the sport in Canada, which has been started, since representatives of practically every province have had a chance in the big time so far, is all complete. Then the future of hockey, and plans for its growth and expansion after the war.

Whither Britton?

Bill (Shagras, Falls Evening Review) Chapman is going to wonder just what use Cpoches Dutton would have for Montreal Canadiens if his discharge has been delayed up-and he is made eligible to play hockey with Montreal Canadiens. Canadiens have been doing all right by themselves, and Dutton, out of condition as he is, will take some time to get back into form. Then too, he seems to remember some of the fast didn't take kindly to the big boy's methods in the N.H.L. after taking the line he was leading on the Blues and not giving his best.

Maritime Rookie:

That rumored commitment of Montreal Canadiens to have become a reality, Conn Smythe, it's reported, the promoter Eddie Mack has signed up several players for Shelling for skilling in one of his forthcoming Ice Follies productions. Reported signed are Gordie McNeil and lightweight Tommy Gallagher.

Preview:

Hockey fans across Canada will get a chance to learn just what class Sgt. Major N.H.L. stars now in the services are showing, when Foster Hewitt broadcasts from Halifax Saturday night. Hewitt will report from his view of the N.H.L. title scrap, but the big thrill will be watching how the boys compare with the pro parade which Hewitt have said the service hockey is every bit as good as the N.H.L.

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

Easy.

The vicar was taking one of the boys in his class to task.

"Tom," he said, gravely, "I hear that you have been raising false hopes in several homes in the district says that you're engaged to one girl in Ida Place, to another in Little Mudford, and to a third in Ditchley. How can you do such a thing?"

With an uneasy grin Tom replied: "Well, sir, I've got a bike."

Group Statistics.

Tonight sees the opening of the semi-final playdowns in the "Little Six" Junior YMHA group with Trenton Hawks playing off the 1st at the end of the season's scoring parade will be in order. With each team playing ten games we find Norm Belleville the leading scoring ace with 76 goals for and 49 against, despite the fact Trenton has played in the group standing one full game ahead of him. Close enough, Trenton also scored 63 goals in their ten group games, but had 33 scored against them. The final Jack Pike Memorial Trophy, Jack Pike, leading goalie in the group, has a 1.37 goals against average. As for Hastings the "Amalgamates" have scored 53 goals against them, while the Stiffies have whipped home 56 goals as McInroy and Bell cut 25 from behind him. There are sufficient figures to prove the closeness of the teams as they move into the semi-final series tonight.

Outside Comment.

With the Hastings at Belleville junior O.H.A. game on tonight, Peterborough Fred Craig came to bat with the most interesting comment about Joe Pite, of the Hastings.

Says Fred: "A story from one of the Hastings papers appeared recently about young Pite who is being seen starring for the Hastings-Normwood Combine in the Little Six group says that the Combines' star can do everything but shave. What means exactly what it seems Pite may be one of the few players in the history of hockey in this district who could perform on the seat. We have had a number of back-checkers who have learned to back-hand very adroitly on the blade, but few defensives in a position where they could use the other side of the stick. But that is not the same thing as shooting either. The only player this column can recall who could use the other was the late Hugh Burritt who in the days just after the First Great War distinguished himself by playing centre with the Strathcona in the once-prosperous City League and leading that loop in scoring with a total of goals for the season. Burritt was just 16 years old and weighed about 110 pounds but he had stick-handling and skate and his trick of being able to shoot on either side made a constant threat. If the pass came to him on what ordinarily would have been his wrong side, he merely changed his grip on the stick and let drive. It didn't really matter just where the connection of the rubber around the net he was always in position to score that unusual faculty enabled him to lead all the intermediate and junior O.H.A. players who performed in the City League. Off hand, we cannot remember anybody else we have ever seen play who could perform the trick.

Remember White.

Nellie Sonja Henie won the world's figure-skating championship for the ninth successive time at Vienna ten years ago today. The comely Norwegian gal amateur soon after, following a world tour, became a citizen of the United States and became a movie star. Now she's on the way home.

Spectators of ice shows this department witnessed the showing of Chief Chihuly Chief Chihuly at Port Hope recently following which the Chief Chihuly signed the Minor City skaters to appear at the Hospital Benefit Carnival, Feb. 16th. Instead the committee the Quinte Hockey Club are presenting their annual ice carnival on Feb. 16th, featuring Vi Vi Smith, Canadian junior champion, and Bobby Ormsby. Apparently it appears as though Belleville is to have the privilege of two outstanding skating carnivals this month and both are feature attractions.

Did You Know.

Ching Johnson is one of the most unforgettable names in hockey, but few persons know well that Johnson's first name is Tom.

Ching aced his boyhood in Winnipeg, Canada. In the Johnson family there was a small ice rink. The boys played hockey there, and the kitchen of the Johnson homestead as their mother cooked. She was called to the cooking hazards that John Ching Johnson built a small shack in the yard to serve as the dressing room.

The place was equipped with a stove. One day the boys decided to do a little cooking. They were successful, and the boys proceeded to refer to the shack as "Chinks". Later, they changed that to "Chink" and finally to "Ching", and so he became Ching Johnson back in his school days.

New York, Feb. 9 — (AP) — He was mentioned often as a possible postmaster of New York . . . and he's also been mentioned as the possible next commissioner of baseball . . . but James A. Farley basically is just a fan. He proved it when he came not depending on any official capacity connected with it.

He might even be elected the No. 1 fan, as there probably is no other national figure approaching the prominence who has been as loyal a baseball-ite at games down through the years.

"I go every Saturday and Sunday, and during the week when I can get away," he said today. "Have been for years."

This interest, he explained, dates back to the days when he was a tall, lanky first baseman with the Haverstraw and Grassy Point, N.Y., semi-pro teams, "and a feisty good hitter, too, about 200."

Farley relies fatally for remembering names is almost legendary, now he is executive with a soft drink concern.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 602

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Bridge partners would no doubt tell the truth if they knew what it would do changes the emotional system cannot seem to make up its mind. So, it seems to be up to us. Use your raincheck on this hand:

♠ Q
♥ 5 8
♦ K J 10 9 8 6 4
♣ Q 8

Your opening bid with that hand is one diamond. Suppose your partner responds with a bid of one heart. Among other things, he affirms having at least three tricks.

Your hand contains eight tricks: an ace, a king, two queens, four short cards. With partner's three, you pay now to see 11 tricks in your part; enough for a game in something.

What is the signal for saying you see enough tricks for a game? A one-jump bid. You peep no cousins to rebid your diamonds. Stiff. So, your second bid is a one-jump to three diamonds.

Your partner knows he has shown you no more than three tricks so far. He also knows your jump says you see 11 tricks. Thus, he is aware of the fact that you have eight tricks.

Suppose partner has no more than the three tricks he has shown up to now. So what? He already knows your pair has tricks enough for a game. That should keep him from stopping short of game.

No matter how you look at it, a partner has no business to pass such a one-jump raise in the same suit. The jump says you see enough for a game. The bid in the same suit says the suit is stronger.

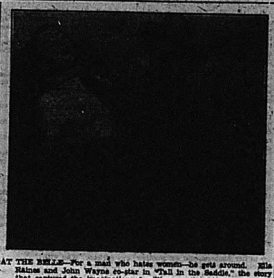
To pass it would not be practical or mystical. Short, hence no sound reason why either partner should not want to take it to game.

True, the cumbersome system now says it does not necessarily force partner to bid again. But that advice is unreliable. It is merely another one of their wrong changes.

Sound changes may be moves, spots, and still not be improvements.

SOFTENING ICE HALTS BONSPIEL

Winnipeg, Feb. 9 — (CP)—Mild weather in Winnipeg last night disrupted play in the 57th Annual Manitoba Bonspiel by softening ice at most of the 14 rinks on which the 'spiel is being held.



But the favored Ken Watson and Gordon Hudson continued to sweep their way along the victory trail and brought their string of consecutive wins to six. Watson, aiming for his fourth grand aggregate title, downed Sangster of Winnipeg C.P.R. 6-4 in an Ross Trophy match while Hudson eliminated R. T. Pritchard's Killarney, Man., rink in the same event.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 9 (CP) — A model of the proposed new House of Commons to replace the old blitzed one is likely to be installed in the central lobby at Westminster so visitors can see what the new place will look like.

Recently the model, a remarkable piece of craftsmanship, was exhibited in Manchester and Liverpool and there has been a demand that it be made available to casual visitors.

There have been suggestions for minor changes to the plans suggested by Lord Winterton's rebuilding committee but the scheme is expected to be adopted almost as it stands.

While Lord Winterton with forty years as member of Horsham has a right as a member of Commons longer than anyone else since David Lloyd George became an Earl, he is not elected and at present the fate of their succession, if they are then 91, until their death.

Sir Herbert Williams, Conservative member for Croydon South, says that after the war M.P.'s will be faced with heavy pressure to bring about a reduction in taxes and he thinks it will be justified.

Writing in The News-Letter, organ of the National Labor Party, Sir Herbert, who now is 80, recalls that when he started to smoke he paid fourpence an ounce for pipe tobacco and now he pays 2s. 6d—more than seven times as much. Whisky he drank then was 6d a bottle and now is 25s. 6d. legally, where it's available. Income-tax was being raised from 4d to 6d in the pound, and "now the beards wagged at the gigantic increase in taxation.

Vice-Admiral Sir Geoffrey Blake, secretary of the Gentleman Gaoler of the Black Rod, plans to carry on his new duties without giving up his post as secretary to Parliament with Admiral Stark, U.S. naval commander in Europe.

Making model airplanes is the hobby of Sir Robert Bird, Conservative member of Wolverhampton West. In the drawing-room of his home on a pole and attached to it by thread are small model planes propelled by elastic. "Nothing pleases him more than to sit head with his wife and watch the planes perform.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was doing the bridge problem and I was looking all around the room every place, saying, Gosh dang it all, I wish I could remember where I put that thing.

And I wish you could put things where you remember, pop said. Life is short enough for everybody, but at least it's a little longer for people with orderly habits. Just think of all the hours you've wasted out of your life just merely looking for your cap, for instance, he said, and I said, Well dumming, pop, maybe they weren't quite where I must look at all the exercise I got just walking around, and all that looking might even of been good training for my eyes, I said.

I see what you mean, pop said.

No doubt the only really happy people are the wide eyed scies who spend their lives trying to remember where they live and whether they part their hair in the middle or down the back, he said.

Being sarcoastic, and ma said, the way that boy twists everything he hits very private ends, he ought to be a lawyer specializing in tech-nicalities. There's just one prove-bial way to be tidy for and take, and that is to have a place for everything, she said.

Well gosh, ma, I do have a place for everything, only I generally forget where it is, that's the only trouble, I said. Hey, ma, C, you do you want is hear something funny? I said, and pop said, by all means. There's no form of amusement that can take the place of a good laugh, he said.

Well while I was listening to all your good advice I went and forgot what it was I was looking for, isn't that a funny one? I said, and pop said, It's a rid one, if you ask me, and ma said, Oh, do your lessons.

Which I did feeling against it.

"FILM-STRUCK"

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

CHAPTER IV

"We could be married—formally," she pleaded. "No one would have to know. Bruce, I'll give up the stage, I promise."

"Sure, this chance — okay," he said suddenly. "Tell me about it." He scribbled about Frank Merrill, Donald, the talent scout, and Alice Delaware. "Get him Bruce over because he was clever. Then we can say we just married to—to—moneyed Bruce replied grimly. "I guess not, Lyla. I told you once before I don't like second. Have your movie career, I hope it makes you very happy."

He was gone before she could think of anything else to say.

CHAPTER V

There were five other girls under contract at the Monarch Studio. Anita Clark had been a telephone operator before a talent scout found her in Atlanta. She was dark-haired and pretty in Oriental fashion. Doreen Grant had sung in a small night-club in Detroit. Wilma Hemmer, once played "Portia" in a little theatre in Indiana. Blonde, statuesque Bertha Kramer was an ex-model. Peggy Arrowhead was a debutante with an indefatigable mother.

The Drama Coach, Edda Robinson, a thin woman of forty-five had taught some of the biggest names in the business the difficult art of being themselves in from of a camera.

When Livia had been a few days under contract, she was called to the publicity department of the studio and, interviewed by Jack Tennant. Jack was a tall, dark, pale, small, bright eyes which he closed when he spoke. She admired Jack's perceptive ability at Livia and motioned for to sit down.

"Charette?"

Livia shook her head. "I don't smoke."

"Drink?"

"Very little?"

"What are your vices then?"

"Haven't any."

"Are you engaged—or anything like that?"

"In a way I am—and in a way I'm not."

"Make up your mind, sweetie pie."

"Well, I suppose not," she said finally.

"Good. I have just the thing for you," he said. Livia was alarmed.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Don't worry your pretty head about anything," he said. After a few more questions the interview was over.

Livia watched the local papers after that, but very little appeared about her, except in the "Gazette" where Neal and Sarah published as the "Charm Girl," doing slow if Bruce would call her again or merely answer the telephone, she could be happy.

It was a thrilling adventure going to the studio every morning. The gateman knew her and smiled. The cop and smiled. It was fun to be long.

Sometimes Edda Robinson took Livia and the others in a set, and explained why this or that was done and that one wouldn't last. The afternoons were for dancing and chorus. Livia posed in every known garment in swimming suit from a fur coat that didn't belong to her. She met trainz and flyers from arms around the necks of visiting celebrities and attend conventions.

Soon she was promoted to more dramatic work which she privately considered silly. Livia and the others were supposed to be sitting at a table at Victor Hugo's. Livia had been all afternoon posing for fashion stills in the studio gallery. Her face was tired and depressed. She had been under contract now for five months. There was only another month left of her present contract. And would they renew it? Of sufficient importance to take up the option?

There had been disturbing rumors of late, in the executive offices of the studio. And the first people to go always were the telephone operators and the stock girls. Already Anita had been let out, and her empty chair in Edda Robinson's drama class was a daily reminder of the ephemeral quality of a film career.

"You've been working too hard and playing too little," Bertha said when Livia hesitated, "A little fun will give you a better perspective on life."

So Livia went with Bertha. Their escorts were two young actors who recently had come to Hollywood from the New York stage. One of them had divorced a famous film star and was enjoying his new freedom by taking out a different girl every night. The other, with whom he shared a house on a Beverly hill-top, was Livia's escort that night.

"Let's dance," he said to Livia. He was a good dancer, and Livia was enjoying herself—until Bertha jumped into Bruce. Bruce was dancing with a beautiful brunette who was the current sensation of Hollywood. She was formal and polite. He introduced her to the star and Livia introduced him to her partner. There was a slight pause, then Bruce spoke.

"How is the career?"

"Wonderful," Livia said defiantly.

"I'm glad," he replied. The music had stopped, and with a polite exclamation of his head, he steered the stunned little girl back to the long table presided over by the Hollywood celebrity.

Livia was miserable and left early. She hired a taxi to take her apartment in the apartment.

"You should have stayed. We had fun," Bertha said when she came in yawning at two o'clock. "Say what's the matter?"

"Nothing," said Livia.

She stayed awake wondering how she could get out of it.

At breakfast the next day Bertha exclaimed excitedly:

"Well, I'm damned," and put down the newspaper she was reading. "Here—look," she pushed the open at a movie page, across to Livia, and read aloud:

"Charles Fordyce has a new beauty, Livia Clarkson, discovered and this time it's serious. Intimates predict marriage soon." "Not! I don't know him," Livia said helplessly.

The afternoon papers carried the same item, and another column had it the next day. Fordyce was one of the best directors in the business. He had been married four times. His reputation with women was bad.

All first Livia was amused. But as the item was repeated, she thought she saw a leer on the face everyone she met. And she was worried about Bruce's reaction.

"I'm getting sick of this," she told Bertha and went to see Jack Tennant in his office.

"I got you some swell breaks, didn't I?" he grinned at her. Livia controlled her rising anger. She reminded him of the clause in her contract prohibiting such things. "But this is only a publicity stunt," he said.

"Please stop it," she begged him. "It's embarrassing—I don't know him."

"I can fix that, too," he said. "Nothing to it."

She left him and called Bruce. "Congratulations," he said coldly before she could speak.

"But I'm not—" she said.

"He can do a lot for your career," he persisted.

"But it's all publicity—"

"He'll make you a star. He's done that to all his other wives," said Bruce.

"You're the most irritating man I've ever known," stormed Livia. "I hope you'll be very happy, Mrs. Fordyce."

She slammed the receiver down. Charles Fordyce was unhappy.

Alice Delaware, the star of his next picture, was behaving as usual. Her small, fragile fingers were clawing him every time they were it was impossible to make her understand that she was playing the picture.

"It serves me right," he thought moodily. He had broken his own rule. Never leave the boss' wife alone, and he had left Alice with nothing lady.

He flicked through the stack of photographs on his big mahogany desk and selected several to hand to him, now challenging, now pleading. He tossed them at her in the remaining stills.

"Look at her eyes," he thought. He looked at the photographs across to his secretary. "Get me that box of matches," he said to it," he snapped. "It's got to be in this picture."

If this had happened at any other time he might have played ball. She was attractive, and she was young and would be a nice change from Alice Delaware. But this was no time to upset things. Alice had refused divorce to go to her husband and get another director for the picture. Ordinarily he would have told her to go to hell and take her husband, who was his boss, with her.

"But, damn it, I get a good picture for once," he said aloud irritatedly.

But he had to use tact; it was no use appealing to Hal Schneider, for he was scared of Alice than any one else in the studio.

"Miss Delaware on the phone," his secretary interrupted his thoughts.

"Say, I'm out," he said, then changed his mind. "Tell her I'll be over now," he added. "Also, baby," he said cheerfully, "don't disturb me until Alice exhausted her temper. I'm busy."

He thought you were too smart to fall for a phoney publicity stunt, Chris in the department. The guy who dreamed up the story is first rate.

But Alice was a business girl. She would use her advantage to get her own way in the picture. And Fordyce knew this.

He put the receiver down carefully. His secretary came in.

"There's a young lady to see you, Miss Clarkson."

"Oh, send her in," roared the director.

The eyes that confronted him were as wide as his own.

"You must stop this immediately," Livia said, waving the newspaper in her hand. Fordyce laughed.

"You're either a good actress, or extremely naive," he said.

"I'm not acting," she said.

"Oh, you want a retraction," he said, and she was prettier than her photographs.

"What's the use?" said Livia wearily. "I'm not the first girl in Hollywood. They can do and say anything."

"I trust the story didn't seriously inconvenience you," said Fordyce. She looked at him in fury.

"It's ruined my life," she exaggerated.

"Me, too," grinned Fordyce.

Livia laughed and bit into the room. He was worried. Publicity was the somewhat old-fashioned medium of a woman had seemed good at the time. He was the only studio employee unaware of previous attachment existing with Alice Delaware. But he had taken fright when the summons came to Fordyce's office. He relaxed. So they did know each other—and before one he had told something of his life story. But the director's first words disillusioned her.

Livia began to feel sorry for the tall, handsome agent. And when Fordyce said, "You're fired," she interrupted.

"Please not on my account."

"It isn't on your account," said Fordyce grimly. She came close to him.

"Please don't fire him." Tennant was married and had two children. "Please," she begged Fordyce. He smiled at her tenderly.

"All right," he said and turned to Tennant. "Thank the lady."

"Thank you," said Tennant humbly. Livia was embarrassed and picked up her handbag from the desk.

"What's your hurry?" demanded Fordyce, "Sit down." He motioned her to the chair from which she had risen. He offered her a cigarette. She refused.

"I was stupid just now," He resumed. She nodded to kiss her soft mouth. With a start she likes this you probably had to go slow.

"What made you fall for me so soon?" he asked her.

He was thinking "In a month my option comes up. Will they renew it?" Fordyce seemed kind. She was prepared to discount the stories she had heard about him. If he put a word in her, and for Bertha, they might be spared the humiliation of being fired.

"I hear they are cutting down on expenses," she said. His face darkened. His budget had been trimmed from $600,000 to $600,000. And this year all the jokes had to be watched and well-played, and why he must not let Alice destroy the balance.

"Why?" he asked her.

"I don't want to be fired," she said simply. The speaking box on his desk showed a green light.

"Yes?"

"Mr. Schneider wants to see you right away."

"Okay, I'll be right there," he said.

"Had Alice told her husband? Livia did not know.

"How about dinner tonight?" she suggested. "We can go to Clive's or somewhere. Call me later."

She had thought he would suggest that he come to see her. It haven't any clothings," he said and left her alone to the door. They both laughed.

Livia dressed carefully, after having Bertha of her date with Fordyce, but she finally said:

"I'm not going out."

This was unusual and Bertha was curious. "Who with?"

"A director."

"Don't tell me—Charles Fordyce? Right?"

"Right—I met him this morning."

"The quieter they are, the faster they are."

"Bertha!"

"I'm kidding. But I hope you do yourself some good, honey."

"I might do you all some good."

"Forget it," said Bertha sharply. "That sort of man gives nothing for nothing. He's dynamite. You don't play with dynamite."

"I like him," said Livia defiantly.

"Go ahead, like him. But don't go and fall for him. Say, what's happened to that boy friend of yours—Bruce something?"

Livia did not answer. She did not want to think about Bruce just now.

Fordyce was half an hour late.

"I was kept at the studio," he told her. He omitted a meeting an hour he had had with Schneider. "I really didn't believe in the damn picture so much, I'd walk out," he said. Livia looked concerned. Alice's role was to overshadow the real, but not as much as she had wanted.

"Let's go to the beach," he said to Livia. "There's a good restaurant near Malibu."

He was the proprietor of the place. It was unfrequented by picture people. Mostly bookmakers and race touts and a few in the back room, which was strictly private.

The chauffeur's back was square and solid. He seemed a good driver to Livia when Fordyce, with an automatic gesture, raised her hand, turned it up, and kissed the palm. She whispered, indicating the chauffeur.

Nineteen Norwegians Reported Executed

Stockholm, Feb. 9 (AP)—Nineteen Norwegians were reported executed today on charges of "terrorism" in reprisal for the assassination of Maj.-Gen. Carl Martinsen, commander of Quisling S.A. (Nazi) troops in Norway, who was shot and killed in Oslo yesterday.

First reports said eight were executed after puppet Premier Vidkun Quisling refused applications for mercy.

Later the official Quisling Telegraph Agency reported another 11 were shot after a court martial convicted them of "assassination attempts and sabotage."

Municipalities Urged to Restrict Road Expenditures

Toronto, Feb. 9. (CP)— Hon. George Doucett, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, today urged municipalities to restrict road expenditures to "vital projects until sufficient labor and material are available" in the post-war period for "prosperity."

Mr. Doucett was addressing the final session of the two-day 44th annual convention of the Ontario Agricultural Council at Queen's Park.

Municipalities were asking $14,500,000 for highway construction and maintenance in 1945, compared with $11,000,000 last year, and this increase could not be met by his department's appropriations, the minister said.

The government was making plans and surveys for an extensive post-war roads program, Mr. Doucett said, which would include every municipality in the province.

Resolutions Passed

The following resolutions were passed: That the council affiliate with the Canadian Federation of Agriculture; that payment of an annual fee; that the government consider the Daylight Saving Time; that federal and provincial governments support at least 50 per cent toward a post-war program of renovating or rebuilding school-buildings; that the Ontario sales tax levy against farmers be discontinued; that a new provincial government enact legislation making its compulsory for all cheques addressed to Toronto be consigned to the Union Stock Yards market, and sold on the open market; and that enabling legislation be passed permitting the sale of eggs under the Natural Farm Products Control Act.

Command Slated

The council commended "the stand taken by Magistrate Angus Mac Innis, Judge James J. J. Coughlin of the Windsor Police Commission, concerning the introduction of the spanking machine as a deterrent of crime".

C. H. Hooper of Cormley, was elected president succeeding H. G. Taylor of Richmond Hill. Directors of Wallaceburg and John M. Story of South Lancaster was reappointed first and second vice-presidents, and directors are John T. Sheppard, Simcoe; James Lee, Manotick; Matthew Bowman, Brampton; Earl Cockerdale, Carleton Place; Charles Rush, Stoco, and Charles D. Coyle, Strathcroft.

Rumor Hitler Took Refuge In Bomb Shelter

London, Feb. 9 — (CP) — A report that Hitler was killed during the bombing of his capital by United States heavy bombers last Saturday was circulated in London today after a neutral course near the German border.

This account, although not regarded as authoritative, said Hitler took refuge in a deep bomb shelter under the Reichsanchellory, which the Army Air Forces reported was his several times.

The Fuehrer was reported to have left the shelter just before the all clear and to have been driven out of Berlin.

Canadian Army's Western Attack Hailed in London

London, Feb. 9 (CP Cable) — London evening papers, featuring the new western front attack by the 1st Canadian army, today hailed the offensive, as an indication victory over Germany can be expected soon.

"It is nine months since Allied troops landed on the storm swept outworks of fortress Europe and carried the battle to the frontiers of the Nazi Reich," said the Evening Standard.

"It was the same 1st army to whom now the honor of opening the new campaign falls that bore the brunt of our and unspectacular fighting in those first anxious weeks of the great invasion. That we now British and Canadian troops side by side, a symbol of the commonwealth's essential unity and future strength.

"None can doubt that the moment of triumph is at hand."

The Star said the "Hitlerism attack is now in full swing. Upon question to finish the job...in the east and west the battle of Germany will be fought and decided. The crisis swiftly mounts to its climax. The whole free world is expectant."

The news said "no matter where Hitler looks, east, west, south or into the sky, he sees the blow falling, falling. The Allies at last are closing in for the kill."

Cabinet Likely To Reach Decision On Another Session

By R. K. CARMICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 8 (CP)— The cabinet will meet this afternoon and it is possible a decision may will reach a decision on whether there will be a session of parliament to be held before a general election. Earlier, it had been reported that the cabinet would meet this morning.

This will be the first heart-to-heart talk on politics among cabinet members since the Liberal convention in August, 1940. Prime Minister Mackenzie is the only member of the cabinet to be absent from the country to hold a short session next month, directive powers from before He life expires April 17 and delay an election until even as late as September or October.

May Let Things Go

It is possible that the cabinet will decide to let things ride for the time being, but some decision will have to be made before Feb. 26th, when members are scheduled to come to the capital for a new session. In the meantime, war developments might affect the government's decision.

Chief argument in favor of delaying the election until late summer or fall would be to permit completion of the Eighth Victory Loan before an election campaign got well under way. The spring loan is usually held during late April and early May.

COAST GUARD CREW BATTLE ACTION PORTRAYS GRIM BATTLE ON LUZON

Coastguardsman Norman Millett Thomas of Portland, Me., who studied in the National Academy of Design, New York City, before the war and was awarded the President's medal and a Pulitzer travel scholarship, participated in the Lunan invasion aboard a coast guard-manned invasion transport, offers these dramatic drawings as a record of the hard-fought battle for the largest and most important of the Philippine islands. The drawing at left is called "Beachhead Scoire," a soldier, his sangunine carried out, lies dead on the beach as ships and men behind him continue the landing. At right is Thomas' "Race Heel" in which he pictures a hand-to-hand struggle in the rice fields edging the Lingayen gulf.

Now Farmers Grow Fish

(By Holman Harver, condensed from "The Progressive")

Last year 7,000 farmers, encouraged by government experts, raised a crop of fish. This year, many more will build and stock fish ponds, for the advantages of this new side in farming are fast gaining recognition in many states. The farmer gets 200 to 300 pounds from each acre of pond. The fish are fat and sweet, sometimes selling the scale at six or eight pounds, and it costs no more than ten cents a pound to raise them—cheaper than chicken or meat. They add wholesome variety to the diet of farm families.

The astonishing production records attained in fish-farming are based on three discoveries:

1. In any given controllable body of water, a natural, balanced food chain" can be set up which automatically provides its fish population with enough food to live, reproduce and grow to maximum size.

2. Any increase in the number of fish, without a corresponding increase in the food supply, simply results in reducing the average size of each fish in the pond.

3. By fertilizing the water, the food supply can be stepped up to support larger numbers of fish, just as pasture land can be fertilized to increase the poundage of beef or milk per acre.

It is impossible to "fish out" a pond that has been correctly stocked and regularly fertilized. No more than half of the fish can ever be caught with hook and line; the remaining half, left with twice their former food supply, simply stop biting for a few months until their number builds up and their food becomes scarce again.

I have just made a 1,000-mile tour through South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, visiting scores of farms with fish ponds. Most farmers were outspokenly enthusiastic.

O. W. Gordon works his own 1,400-acre general farm in Schley County, Ga. After his day's work, Colonel Gordon strolls down to his fish pond for relaxation.

"I get a kick out of that little pond," he said. "Maybe I'll only fish for half an hour, but I can always bring back something tasty for supper. She's chock-full of fish; the other night I weighed one that was at better'n six pounds."

Judge Raymonde Stapleton, of Elberton, Ga., has pioneered with a model pond in a region all but bereft of natural fishing waters. His three families living on his farm supply their tables with fresh fish, and Judge Stapleton himself has caught 300 bass and several hundred sunfish in the past year.

Selling fish is another of these farm fish ponds is recreation. The family has fun fishing and swimming, and many a farmer sells fingerlings to individuals or clubs for a nice cash return. Sixty families in Auburn, Ala., pay $10 a year each to maintain a 12-acre pond. Last year they caught 3,000 pounds of fish.

Two pertinacious scientists at the Alabama State Agricultural Experiment Station are chiefly responsible for pioneering the guesswork from fish farming: H. S. Swingle, fish culturist, and E. V. Smith, biologist. In joint research since 1936, they have learned that any ordinary chemical fertilizer placed in the pond will automatically increase the production of microscopic plants and animalcula known collectively as plankton. Insects feed upon the plankton, forage fish feed upon the insects and their larvae, and, finally, carnivorous fish feed upon the swarming young of the forage fish.

Within a few days after the first application of fertilizer, the water takes on a delicate sea-green color, a cadence from the myriads of plankton. Later on, it should become impossible to see more than ten inches below the surface. If the farmer can see his hand a foot or more down, it is time to add more fertilizer. No other test is needed. The plankton, by the way, prevents the fish from seeing the fisherman or his bait.

Weed growth largely dies away as plankton-filled water shuts off the penetration of sunlight. Pond lilies and weeds which send large leafy surfaces to the top must be destroyed by lopping off their tops, for they afford concealment to small fish which throw the pond's food chain out of balance. Incidentally, when there are no weeds, they devour the mosquito larvae, thus helping to eliminate the pests.

The bluegill sunfish (or bream) is the perfect pond forage fish for the southern states. It multiplies fast, and is good to eat. A fertilized pond will support a large number of adult sunfish weighing around half a pound, an ideal size for frying. From one pond I caught 15 in 30 minutes—about as fast as I could bait the hook.

A new pond, after fertilizing, is stocked with exactly 1,500 sunfish fingerlings per acre. During the first year each pair of sunfish will produce about 4,000 young. Unless these new fish were held down in numbers, there would be, within a year, 8,000,000 little sunfish per acre. Here the carnivorous fish enters to complete a stable food chain. The choice for the southern regions is the largemouth black bass, a hearty, fighting fish. Not every 1,500 sunfish, 100 bass fingerlings are stocked. Fewer bass may fail to keep the sunfish population within bounds; more may annihilate it entirely.

One year after stocking, a pond is usually supporting the maximum weight of fish for the available food, which means in a well-fertilized pond as much as 500 to 600 pounds of fish per acre. Of this total weight, between 100 and 200 pounds per acre will be bass—three to four times as many bass as the best natural lake you ever fished.

Many factors help increase the fish crop in natural waters. R. H. Taylor, of the Department of Game and Fisheries in Quebec, heard of the Alabama scientists' work and began experiments in 1943 which proved that speckled trout in Canadian lakes would double in weight in a year when fertilizer was scattered by airplane.

Our farmers get fingerlings free or at a nominal charge from state-operated hatcheries, from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, if the pond is large enough, and from the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. The SCS gives the farmer advice on the selection of a site and the best methods of constructing his pond. If the farmer does his own work with his own tractor or mule, he can build a one-acre pond for from $100 to $200.

As more farmers learn, that they can produce a cash crop merely by flooding their marginal land, it is expected that thousands of new ponds will be built.

Blowing Away The Top Soil In Australia

(From the Australian News-Letter)

New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia, the three chief coastal States of Australia, are suffering from a drought which, says the Federal Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Scully) is a "national disaster" ranking with those of 1902 and 1914."

Food production is suffering now, and will continue to suffer through 1945 to an extent which cannot be foreseen, he says.

In Victoria will be almost a complete failure; in New South Wales it will be down by a third.

Australia is faced with a vital erosion problem on a huge scale. The dust which makes day into night, is soil, tons upon tons of it, good top soil being swirled away eastwards, to form a red coating on the surface of the Tasman Sea. New Zealand reported dust clouds from Australia.

Sydney experts say the extension of settlement in Western New South Wales has been halted, and that it will take ten years to restore pastures. The holding capacity of some sheep runs will be ruined, and much mean that properties of 40,000 and 60,000 acres must be merged into million acre runs, so that pastures may be spelled by the transfer of sheep from one section to another.

* * *

Life in the dust bowl has been made unbearable by day after day of dust and sand storms. This is the sort of thing that happens:

The whole sky turned dark red. Visibility fell. . . headlights were useless. Indoors, the cellings could not be seen for the dust, which forced its way through closed doors and windows. The temperature climbed to 106 degrees. People grew afraid. . . One man telephoned the local paper for news. He feared the end of the world was coming.

"We turned on the electric light. The dust made it a ghastly blue. Soon we could hardly see it at all, and we had to grope to find the door handle.

"The sun was a ball of blue seen through the clouds. The raging gale blocked irrigation channels and railway lines with sand. Fences were covered. Then there was a shower. The rain was red."

Stock losses have been heavy, and the cause is over-cropping, overstocking, unskilled plowing, slaughter of trees and destruction of natural herbage.

Fierce bush fires in New South Wales added to the terrible losses.

The wind, which covered Sydney with a pall of dust and smoke and which blew the red clouds across the Tasman Sea to darken Auckland in the afternoon, was New South Wales' hottest wind, the northwest scorcher. It travelled across thousands of miles of the interior of Australia, getting hotter as it went, rocketing temperatures over the century mark, fanning a hundred bush fires, and filling the air with choking red dust.

In a continent of great Summer heat the City of Sydney has a reputation for moderation. The New South Wales Meteorologist, Mr. Mares, told the Sydney Morning Herald that Sydney can claim the distinction of having experienced only once a heat wave lasting two consecutive days with temperatures scorin stove 100 degrees. Both Perth and Melbourne have much more than this, and Adelaide's reputation for continuous heat is notorious.

As for towns like Bourke, which once ran temperatures over 100 degrees for 37 days in succession, or that hot-box Marble Bar (W.A.) which revelled in 106 degrees or more for 162 consecutive days in the Summer of 1923-24, Mr. Mares cherishes for them a very high statistical opinion.

CANUCKS BROADEN OFFENSIVE FRONT TO 10 MILES
RUSSIANS REPORTED OUTFLANKING BRESLAU

Enemy Describes Big New Drive As 'Gigantic'

Attacks Threaten To Split Nazis Defending Silesia

London, Feb. 10 — (AP) — Russian troops today stepped up a drive to broaden their Berlin assault line along the northern Oder River, sweeping within 36 miles of Berlin, while enemy broadcasts announced an overwhelming Soviet outflanking drive had rolled 36 miles west of Breslau in Silesia.

The Russians also were reported by the Germans to have crossed the middle Oder 25 miles due east of Berlin and slashed the north-south communications between Berlin, Frankfurt and Fuerstenberg, key cities in the Berlin defence fortified.

Enemy accounts described the big new drive, by Marshal Ivan C. Konev in Silesia as "gigantic" and said it had reached the edge of Lissa, transportation and industrial centre of 76,000 on the direct Berlin-Breslau railway line. Lissa by Germans last night.

Moscow dispatches, although not directly confirming the German reports, said today that Konev had stepped up his attacks along the Oder and was threatening to split the Germans defending Silesia and the southeastern route to Berlin.

Breslau's German garrison appeared in imminent danger of encirclement. The Russians' simultaneous drive threatening to break open the door to German Saxony in the drive on Leipzig.

Surround Elbing.

Other Russian troops in East Prussia consolidated the hard-won hold of Elbing with new drives to the Baltic and there sealed the fate of the remnants of perhaps 250,000 Germans originally trapped around Konigsberg. The Moscow midnight supplement said Soviet units continued to advance along the shores of Frisches Haff, large lagoon between Danzig and the Baltic.

Berlin said the heaviest fighting was in Pomerania where the Germans, aware of the capture of Stettin would set up a self-defence assault are along the Oder to south of Prenzlau, were resisting desperately. The Soviet supplemental communique said 3,000 Germans were killed yesterday in the area.

The drive on Stettin, vital seaport for Berlin, threatened to trap a force of Germans in Pomerania perhaps as large as that isolated in Courland.

The tempo of fighting along the middle Oder was undiminished as the Germans said the Russians built a bridgehead in the area below Gorgast of Lebus, five miles north of Frankfurt. South of Frankfurt other Soviet units were said to be in fierce but unsuccessful counter-attacks between Fuerstenberg and Guben where they were fighting in the outskirts of Dissen, eastern suburb of Frankfurt.

A German broadcast reported the new penetration by Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st. White Russian army to the Oder River opposite Schwedt, 36 miles northwest of besieged Stettin and 46 miles northeast of Berlin.

Sir H. E. Burstall, Former Canadian Commander, Dies

Winchester, England, Feb. 10—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Edward Burstall, who commanded the 2nd Canadian Division during the Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele actions of 1917, died Thursday at his home, Hinton Ampner, near here, aged 74.

Death of the distinguished professional soldier, who fought in the South African war as well as the First Great War, was announced last night.

Born in Quebec City, he went to South Africa as an infantryman in 1900 after 10 years in the Canadian permanent force. Trained as an artilleryman, Sir Henry after the outbreak of the First Great War went overseas in command of the 4th divisional artillery.

He assumed command of the 2nd Canadian Division, was stationed at Vimy Ridge, directing the activities through the operations there in the spring of 1917, in subsequent attacks on the plain of Douai and at Hill 70 and the Battle of Passchendaele in November of that year.

Under Sir Henry the 2nd Division became noted for its raiding activities which it continued to carry on when it was attached for several months in 1918 to a British army corps.

After the armistice the division under Gen. Burstall garrisoned a section of the Rhine area.

Sir Henry returned to Canada in the permanent force—second in the Canadian army in 1919 and a year later became inspector general of the forces, succeeding Sir Arthur Currie.

He retired in 1923 and took up residence at Headbourne Grange.

U-BOAT SINKING OF SIX SHIPS OFF COAST DISCLOSED

Canadian Warship And Five Merchantmen Torpedoed Within Twenty-Two Days

Halifax, Feb. 10 —(CP)— One Canadian warship and five merchantmen were torpedoed within 22 days off the Nova Scotia coast this winter as long-range German submarines made a desperate effort to cut the Allied North Atlantic lifeline at its western anchor.

Of the eight vessels, survivors were landed but at least 36 men, including eight navymen, lost their lives. Many of the merchant seamen were Canadians.

One of the victims of the subs sniping at incoming and outgoing convoys was HMCS Clayoquot, minesweeper Clayoquot. While the sinking of the Clayoquot was announced by the navy Jan. 31, the fate of the warship was not disclosed in the complete stories of the U-boat assaults for the first time yesterday.

The Canadian merchantman and four of the other nationalities were included in the sinking. One of the vessels went down with its captain and three crew members after steaming for six hours for the aid of a tug which failed to arrive.

Fight One to Cover Last

Another Canadian freighter was sunk while on its way from New York to a Canadian port some 200 miles off the United States coast. Forty-one of the crew were saved, but 14 lost their lives.

It was believed that it was to Canada that Prime Minister General A. G. McNaughton referred when he said on Jan. 24 that the North Atlantic was "calm with German submarines" and "we are taking ships torpedoed day by day."

The lingering raiders prowled around the North American Atlantic coast for weeks before they struck. Then, apparently more mysterious as they did not attack other ships, they struck in different points close to the Nova Scotia coast from Cape Breton to Yarmouth.

Stern Ripped Open.

The minesweeper Clayoquot had her stern ripped away by a torpedo shortly before Christmas and the crew of 61—most crew perished. The Clayoquot capsized in the heavy seas of the Nova Scotia coast.

Lt. Harry Drage had served four years of convoy duty in the North Atlantic and had helped clear the mouth of Halifax harbor of a German minefield back in 1943.

No Distinction is Made Between Volunteers, Conscripts Overseas

By WILLIAM BOSS

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Corps on the Adolf Hitler Line, Feb. 10 (CP Cable) — No differentiation is made between volunteers and men called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act when the latter join their units overseas, Lt.-Col. W. J. Gunn, Inspector-General of reinforcements, said in a statement given to war correspondents here just before he left.

Gen. Sansom lacked the time for a regular press conference but answered questions on the statement he submitted to him in written form by the Canadian Press army of three questions dealt with the use and treatment of NRMA. men who have been called up for overseas service.

Asked if they would be used only in certain types of work—such as supply duties—or exclusively in a "home defence" capacity, Gen. Gunn replied: "There will be no discrimination whatsoever. They'll take their places as Canadian soldiers wherever required."

He said that draftees lost their identity as such as soon as they reached United Kingdom training ground, where they trained with the officers who brought them from Canada. These officers see all volunteers, but may remain with the draftees when they are later sent posted to units and go into action.

Regarding the return to their units of men who have been wounded or injured, Gen. Sansom said that "both here and in England it is the policy to return the wounded to the field unless fully trained and fit. They are tested and trained by officers who are fit to return to the front themselves and who will possibly have them under their own command.

"Hence only the really fit are passed for return, and there is business or training is doubtful are held in reserve either here or in the Old Country, and in either case the chances apparent they must be written off as casualties."

The general, looking fit and slim after a good part of the day visiting units of the 5th Div., which he formerly commanded, surprised many with his astounding memory for faces and names.

His statement to all officers who are training the draftees was that he had been impressed by the splendid spirit of the 5th Div.

Gen. Sansom said that on his return to Canada he will report to the defence department on his observations here and on the western front, to which he will pay another visit.

He said he had obtained enough information on his first visit to the western front to satisfy himself that the Canadian army was fully up to strength before it opened its current offensive.

The British and Canadian troops of Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's army have opened a fierce attack in the north of the Western Front (1) forming part of a three-way drive on the heart of Germany. The Russian war machine is continuing to smash its way over the Oder river (1) and is threatening to outflank Berlin at Stettin, while the 1st and 3rd American armies (2) push into the Siegfried Line towards Cologne.

MORTARS, MINED STREETS SLOWING DRIVE TO DOCKS

Fighting "Fiercest" Yet Encountered Since The Invasion of Luzon

Manila, Feb. 10 (AP) — Mined streets and snipers' bullets were slowing from the upper floors of office buildings slowed American infantrymen today in their stubbornly contested drive through the heart of Manila toward dock areas on the Pasig River.

Today's headquarters communique described the fighting as "of the most heavily defended nuisance (walled city), a highly-congested commercial and residential area.

Reinforced concrete pillboxes and other barriers manned aground; from the second floors of office buildings the Japanese poured down deadly mortar and machine-gun fire.

(N.B.C. radio reporter George Thomas Folster said the Japanese were shelling from the area, even the north bank of the Pasig, with a "heavy, arresting fire.")

Folster Reported Slain

Folster described the enemy defense in the intramuros section as "very strong and so determined that it is certain to take considerably more time yet to clean out the Japs from Manila."

Fires still burned in three sections of Manila yesterday, but seemed to be diminishing.

Caring for a large number of hungry civilians liberated in territories is not easing the army's task of clearing Manila.

On Bataan, the 26th Division of the 8th. Army reached the town of Moron 14 miles by road along the west coast of the peninsula to which many Japanese are believed to have fled.

The Americans on Bataan have been impressed how particularly meticulous they are to make no man returns to the field unless fully trained and fit. They are tested and trained by officers who are fit to return to the front themselves and who will possibly have them under their own command.

"Hence only the really fit are passed for return, and there business or training is doubtful are held in reserve either here or in the Old Country, and in either case the chances apparent they must be written off as casualties."

The general, looking fit and slim after a good part of the day visiting units of the 5th Div., which he formerly commanded, surprised many with his astounding memory for faces and names.

His statement to all officers who are training the draftees was that he had been impressed by the splendid spirit of the 5th Div.

Gen. Sansom said that on his return to Canada he will report to the defence department on his observations here and on the western front, to which he will pay another visit.

NO DECISION MADE AFTER LONG CABINET MEETING

Indication Points That Prime Minister King Not Resigning Decision

Ottawa, Feb. 10 — (CP) — The cabinet held its longest meeting of the week yesterday but the mystery broke up without any announcement of a decision during political questions left hanging in the air by the Grey North by-election result.

All indications pointed to the fact that Prime Minister Mackenzie King is not resigning, although he has now puts the probable date of the general election off to the middle or end of April at the earliest. Earlier forecasts which placed the latest probable date at the end of June still stand, however.

An 80 days' truce hope between the announcement of an election and voting day, the earliest possible date for the general election now is April 21.

The Canadian Press was informed that Mr. King will make no statements on political matters during the remainder of this week.

There was a large attendance of ministers at the cabinet meeting which lasted nearly three hours and was partially sustained. Attention was devoted to discussion of the political situation, although there was an accumulation of regular governmental business to be handled.

Superfortresses Bomb Japanese Homeland Again

Washington, Feb. 10 — (AP) — Superfortresses bombed the Japanese homeland again today.

It was a daylight attack on the island of Honshu in which the Army Air Forces said 11 aircraft obstructed. The raid was announced by General H. H. Arnold, Commanding General of the 20th Air Force.

The reconnaissance was carried out from the Marianas base of the 20th Bomber Command. Details will be announced as soon as the information becomes available.

This was the first mission against Japanese by the Superforts, the fifth this month.

Tokyo, Feb. 10 — (AP) — Ninety Superfortresses raided the Tokyo-Yokohama area of Japan in daylight today, a Japanese Imperial headquarters said.

A broadcast version of the communique, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the raiders "dealt damage to ground installations was sustained."

98 ENEMY PLANES ARE DESTROYED BY ALLIED FORCES

Huns Lose Five Jet Planes in Attempt To Challenge Air Forces of Allies

London, Feb. 10 (CP) — Continent-based fight bombers of the Allied tactical air forces keeping up the air attack on Germany's battered road and rail convoys in The Netherlands and western Germany last night.

Sixty-eight enemy planes, including five jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262s were destroyed in daylight yesterday and Allied losses were 26 planes.

German jet planes, escorted by regular fighters, challenged 1,500-United States heavy bombers and almost 900 British bombers over the key rail targets of Lutzkendorf, Kleve and Wesel yesterday, but lost the first time the 10 mile a minute jet craft had penetrated the American fighter screen for a direct attack on the bombers.

American fighters shot down on German planes and ripped apart 31 others on the ground, while 20 more planes were shot down by R.A.F. fighter pilots on offensive sweeps over the battle lines and a dive-bombing attack on a V-2 oxygen plant in Holland.

Allied losses for the day were 18 American bombers and five fighters and two R.A.F. fighters.

German Free Agency Speaker Arrested Before Revolution?

Stockholm, Feb. 10 (AP)—"It is the evening before the revolution in Berlin," the Free German Press Agency wrote yesterday in reporting that it claimed was an interview in Malmoe with a refugee from Germany.

The story, printed in the newspaper Ingressen, said, "there have been no real demonstrations yet but the situation can change any hour. For the first high war profits a drainage area of 258 square miles.

At least 16 towns and 2,500 prisoners has been captured up to now. Canadian flindsight gaining some seven miles, but forward troops have engaged elements of at least three veteran German divisions.

Will Thorne, 87, Grand Old Man Of 'Mother of Parliaments' To Retire

By FRASER WIGHTON

Reuters Correspondent

London, Feb. 10 — (Reuters) — Parliament will know its grand old man no more when at the forthcoming general election 87-year-old Will Thorne, Labor member for Plaistow, stands down after nearly 40 years' continuous service as a member.

The House of Commons will miss him sorely. No longer will Prime Ministers Lloyd George, Baldwin and Churchill commended the lawyer. "Just a little thinner than yours," said the irked coroner.

Burst Thru Main Concrete Belt In Reichswald Forest

Spillways of Schwammenauel Dam Opened To Flood Roer

By JAMES M. LONG

(A.P. Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 10 (AP) — First Canadian Army troops, bursting through the main concrete belt of the Siegfried line in the Reichswald, struck today to within three miles of Kleve, while the Germans flooded the Roer River on the United States 9th. Army front through gushing spillways of the Schwammenauel dam.

Canadians and British forces, gaining two more miles, were assaulting earthworks of the Siegfried's secondary defense in a power drive rolling toward the northern end of Nijmegen, the original Waterloo of Allied arms.

Other units battled in the Rhine of Millingen, six miles northwest of Kleve, in the army's swift-developing threat to slice behind the Rhine and the rich Ruhr industrial area.

Waters of the lower Roer River, along which the American 9th. Army is arrayed, rose a foot and a half in an hour at some points as the German opened floodgates of the Schwammenauel dam impounding 170,000,000 tons of water.

Prevent Crossings

The German action flood had presented the 9th. and 1st. armies from attempting to cross the Roer since they reached the east of Aachen last November.

The United States 1st. Army infantrymen upstream reached the edge of the great dam today and prepared to get within reach to clinch its capture.

The Germans had opened the valves on the north side of the 1,600-foot long structure, whose pent-up power if released all at once might send an 18-foot tide thundering down the Roer valley. Built of earth around a concrete core, the dam is 205 high and has a drainage area of 258 square miles.

Still farther south United States 3rd. Army troops fought within artificial range of the Siegfried Line of Prusen, and scored advances today of one to two miles northeast and southwest of the road hub. Germans resisted desperately.

The House of Commons will miss him sorely. No longer will Prime Ministers Lloyd George, Baldwin and Churchill commended the lawyer-like thickness of human skulls varied with individuals. "How thick is your skull?" the attorney asked the jury. "Just a little thinner than yours," said the irked coroner.

Quake Recorded In Tokyo Area

San Francisco, Feb. 10 —(AP)— The Japanese Domei Agency reported an earthquake today on the main Japanese island of Honshu, but no damage.

The dispatch, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, did not disclose the intensity of the shock, but said it had extended to Aomori Prefecture, in the northern end of Honshu.

The broadcast said the city of Hachinohe, on eastern Honshu, felt the weight of the quake. Time of the shock was 1:30 p.m. (12.30 a.m. E.W.T.) No other details were given.

There was more.

The last Sunday, midnight there were three explosions—one at the concrete bridge at Heimbach side, another at a Spillway Bridge, and a third, more immediately front of the, big dam remained intact.

Roer Rises

United States 1st and 9th army troops reached the Roer east of Aachen in November, but the western ace of the wall of water which the Germans might send down the river prevented their crossing.

Canadian troops broke two fresh crossings of the Prusen River overnight, and in new advances of up to 2 miles northeast of Prusen, 2 1-2 miles northeast of Prusen, and 1 1-2 miles on the southwest.

The Germans counter-attacked from Hau, but were thrown back, twice with tanks, but were beaten back.

Twenty more pillboxes were cleared in the Habscheid area, northeast of Prusen, completing penetration of the main Siegfried belt and widening the breach to nine miles. Bridgeheads over the Roer and Cleve rivers in the Dasbourg, Wallendorf and Echternach areas were built up against strong resistance.

The United States 7th army cleared the Germans from Echtes, southeast of Hagenauen. The French 1st army fought up the Rhine Colmar pocket, lashing 10,000 prisoners.

One field dispatch from the Canadian front said the Germans retired at gaits there could not be disclosed for security reasons.

ICE-CLOGGED EAVES BEING CLEANED OUT

With the overnight thawing in temperatures the fear that the belief that the winter's first real "thaw" was in the offing, ice-clogged eaves and down spouting sounds drew the attention of many downtown property owners this morning. Melting of the accumulations ranged as far as the eye could see across snow-covering and apparently providing homes in search of damaged ceilings as drops of blocked spouts would commence leaking with the sudden change. Several workmen were seen busily on roofs and eaves and more could be seen at the downtown area this morning.

Night Watchman Found Dead On Basement Floor

Plant personnel of the Stovers Warner Alemite Corporation try a thorough search after Samuel Way, 56, second night watchman failed to report at his duties Friday night. The dead body was in a concrete floor of the basement. It was found by fellow workers shortly after nine o'clock today.

The dead watchman had suffered a severely fractured skull. Dr. J. Robertson stated, after conducting a preliminary investigation at the scene of the accident. The body was later removed to Belleville General Hospital, where a post-mortem will be held.

According to plant officials, Way had been on the 12 to eight shift and was last seen at 4.30 this morning, on his last tour of duty. He failed to report in at the end of eight o'clock. Fifteen minutes later a search was made and staff personnel conducted a thorough search of the large plant. An hour later they found the body.

It is assumed that Way had inadvertently opened the wrong door as adjacent to the door leading to the basement was another which opens to an office. Way's duty did not demand his presence in the basement. It is thought he had gone to the basement after he made the error.

Way's address is given as 276 Coleman Street.

Netherland Women Wear Wooden Shoes, Shop in Villages for Hand-Made Items

In The Netherlands — Even the many Netherland women who live in fine modern houses and Netherland children whose fathers are burgomasters or powers in the community, state they wear wooden shoes of shoes these days shop, not in town, but in the country. When the shopper proffers her foot the Hoek of Holland salesman chalks white wood which he thinks would be the right size and sits down to wait.

More Netherland people wear wooden shoes today than in the past, says the New York Times.

Before the war only country folk clattered along the cobblestone village streets in wooden shoes, and then only for rainy days. Today in Nijmegen, Eindhoven, Breda, and all the larger Netherland cities that are liberated, women, as well dressed as anyone, and men who own prosperous little businesses click about in their wooden shoes.

Almost all children, rich or poor, wear wooden shoes, because it is impossible to keep leather shoes often enough to accommodate their growing feet. Very seldom do leather shoes appear for sale in the shops of the Netherlands, and when they do the few pairs available are inferior in quality, high in price and unsound and will not long before the end of the queue is reached.

As a result the people of the Netherlands, whether they live more in the country who have been making shoes for their country cousins for many decades. Burghers of the Amsterdam district, who live within a few miles into the country to a tiny settlement consisting of a few buildings huddled together in the midst of misty fields.

In a white-washed shed behind a brick farm cottage with green shutters one step-aside-time has more work than he can do.

There was a big brough in much business in his white-floored wood shop that no while three sons work with him at benches and lathes and hewn logs.

By the door is a pile of blocks of different sizes. When a customer selects the size, one of the whittles a block to a turned up point in front for the toe and rounds it at the back for the heel. Another son with a metal tool like primitive ice cream scoop cuts out the centre of the block. When the shoe has taken the shape a third son smooths the surfaces with sandpaper.

It is the gnarled old father, who has been making shoes since he was a small boy who puts on the finishing touches—bits of carving on the toe or heel.

Some customers wear shoes with plain surfaces, but many have them painted bright blue, red or yellow. It takes two hours for one person to make a pair of shoes of wood into the finished product ready for drying and painting.

Before the war a pair of wooden shoes of good quality cost average Netherland cents. Today the price is two and a half guilders, just for many decades. Burghers of over the American dollar.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 10 — (CP) — A bill before the House Military Affairs Committee calling for automatic promotions of American officers of the war below the grade of colonel or the corresponding rank (Cadet).

Introduced by Rep. Charles R. Mahon (D.-Tex.), 56-year-old attorney and First Great War veteran, whose wife was Emma M. Neville of Truro, N.S.) the bill provides that these promotions be given at the rate of one grade a year. Its the non-commissioned officers would rise to those below the top-ranking grade of such classification.

It is based on numerous petitions suggesting that those who suffer years of imprisonment, denied the opportunity to better themselves, should be compensated for time absent for their privations.

The bill also provides that those who were receiving extra pay for flying, submarine work and such hazardous duties, would continue to receive the full extra emoluments.

Recent liberation of American prisoners in Germany and in the Philippines has brought this subject to the forefront and there is an outcry against the inferior treatment accorded enemy prisoners held here as compared with that of Allied personnel in enemy hands.

Rep. John H. Tolan (Dem.-Calif.) is the first to start agitation for the interment in Arlington National Cemetery of an unknown soldier who died in the Second Great War. He has a bill before the House Military Affairs Committee directing that the body of an unknown American be transported from one of the battlefields and suitably interred in the memorial amphitheatre at Arlington "near or beside" the white marble tomb of the "Unknown Soldier of the First Great War."

Prof. Frank Scott of McGill, national chairman of the C.C.F. party came here this week to address the League for Social Democracy and that organization arranged a press conference for him. But only a sleepy correspondent turned up. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader has taken this as a pointing an experience here a year ago. Washington correspondents just don't get up that early.

Dramatic Police In Fiji Isles

(By Robert Lewis Taylor, in "The New Yorker.")

The traffic policemen are one of the great sights of Suva, metropolis of the Fiji Islands. In the old days the tourists from the Matson ships would collect on the street corners and watch them, and nowadays the American troops who pass through find them a curiosity. Fiji policemen are a dusky party for the most looks and physique. There is a mixture of races and some country in Fiji, but crime is no problem. The sunny uninhibited policemen often have a dull time, so when the opportunity comes to nab a felon, they are playing rugby.

A half-caste say, warmed up by native beer, may amuse the throng of cats-eye beads from a sidewalk merchant and go strolling down the street. With many a joyous leap and wild cry, the cops will string out in pursuit. When they catch up, as they always do, they will try to bring him down in various ways. The policeman in the lead may elect to tackle him from the side with a body block. If this happens the others may dive or jump on the pair, landing head downward or in a sitting position. Again, the leading officer may just swing his club, a native belly.

In the case the delinquent authorities seldom find regeneration necessary. The offender has learned his lesson and is he ever gets out of the hospital, he goes straight.

All the Fiji police wear a blue serge shirt, a bright red sash, and white blouse and go barefoot, and the traffic cops manage to provide themselves with an extra flair such as gold earrings or gardenias in their hair. Directing traffic is a podium and under a huge umbrella,they go through various contortions. No symphony conductor fired by the genius of Beethoven has ever risen to greater muscular heights.

At the approach of a two-wheeled cart pulled by a sick donkey, a Fiji traffic cop is likely to raise his right hand slowly, palm inward, then swing his right hand up as he leans till his arc and lay his head straight back, nose pointed to the sky. That gesture presumably means "Come ahead if your donkey can make it," but an onlooker from the Western world is apt to find himself listening for the opening strains of the "Pastoral" or "Till Eulenspiegel."

The Fiji traffic cop is proud of his work. They get equal pleasure from a Chinese rickshaw and the limousine of the governor-general, and they have been known to do some of their best work on a perfectly empty street. Just practicing.

Hun Counter-Blow In Serchio Valley

Rome, Feb. 9 —(AP)— The Germans have launched a counter-attack in corresponding against positions newly regained by the Allied 5th Army in the Serchio valley north of Gallicano, Allied headquarters announced today.

The enemy counter-attack began a few hundred yards north of the village of Fornoli and the official report said fighting still was in progress.

Brisk clashes were reported in other 5th Army sectors, but on the whole there was no large-scale action on the front.

On the west coast Allied patrols drove forwarded to positions as much as 300 yards ahead of the lines despite light opposition, including Mortar fire.

Fair weather and higher temperatures prevailed over much of the front, but streams still were out of their banks. This and German dynamiting of dykes of the Senio river in front of the 8th near the Adriatic, where the 1st Canadian Corps has been stationed, are likely to prove temporary, although no immediate Allied offensive or quick pursuit should the Germans choose to withdraw to the Alps.

HEAVY EXPLOSIONS HEARD

Stockholm, Feb. 10 —(AP)— Heavy explosions from the direction of the capital of Copenhagen were heard for an hour yesterday morning by residents of the Swedish Island of Ven, an Aftonbladet correspondent said. Forty weather prevented observation. The explosions were reported to have moved cruisers, and torpedo boats from the Polish port of Gdynia to Copenhagen harbor.

British Enlarge Bridgehead On Irrawaddy River

Onday, Central Burma, Feb. 10— (Reuters)— British 14th Army troops have enlarged their bridgehead at Kyaukmyaung, on the east bank of the Irrawaddy 45 miles north of Mandalay, capturing three hill features in an action which lasted from Saturday to 3000 men.

After bombing and strafing tanks, followed by infantry, wrested another stronghold from the Japanese near the village of Kudaung south of Kyaukmyaung, and held the northern half of the village against repeated attacks.

There was evidence that the Japanese were preparing a major stand in the direction of Kyaukmyaung, where they fell the pressure of Allied tanks. Japanese tanks were seen, apparently moving towards the bridgehead.

On the front directly threatening Mandalay, capital of northern Burma, Japanese on the north bank of the Irrawaddy, about six miles west of Sagaing opposite Mandalay, were withdrawing, but the only escape route left to the enemy was across the Irrawaddy.

Australian, Advisor To President Chiang, Liberated at Manila

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 10 — (CP) — W. H. Donald, Australian-born advisor to President Chiang Kai-shek and one of Japan's most implacable enemies, said the Japs from a Manila internment camp after three years' captivity during which recognition by his captors would have meant instant death.

The Japanese had a high price on Mr. Donald's head, and the fact that he had fallen into enemy hands in the Philippines was a guarded Allied secret.

A Japanese investigator at the Manila internment camp questioned Mr. Donald, who had given his correct age of 66, and asked if he was too old for the man they were seeking.

The Australian government helped by clamping a censorship on all references to him.

Citrine Favors Full Control Of Defeated Germany

London, Feb. 10 —(CP)— Proposing full control of defeated Germany by the Allies, Britain's delegate to the World Trade Union Conference today told the cheering delegates from the Reich of "an international T.V.A. including a Rhine Valley Authority and Danube Valley Authority.

"The Tennessee Valley Authority, popularly known as the T.V.A. was created in the early years of the Roosevelt administration to develop the Tennessee river system in the interests of navigation, flood control and national defence."

Sir Walter warned the labor delegates from more than two score countries that there probably would be no armistice and peace would be "applied practically by the actual occupation of Germany."

The general secretary for the British Trades Union Congress, Sir Walter suggested, nevertheless that "Hell will have ended TWELVE."

H.M.S. Monara

H.M.S. Monara at Ceylon is one of the Royal Navy's most unusual shore establishments. It is devoted entirely to the training of Ceylonese youths to become air and motor mechanics, sick-bay attendants and accountancy ratings.

The scheme began just over a year ago at the instigation of Rear Admiral H. C. Rawlings, who until recently was Rear Admiral commanding Naval Air Stations, Indian Ocean.

The establishment was founded for the purpose of training the youngsters of mainly native army in Ceylon to replace Europeans engaged in these ratings and already a large number of qualified mechanics have been turned out, while many more are almost ready for drafting.

More than one hundred accountancy ratings and nearly fifty sick-berth attendants have qualified and are now working at Naval establishments in Ceylon.

When these youths join H.M.S. Monara they are put through a disciplinary course for two months, after which most of them start training as air mechanics on airframes, engines and electrical instruments while others learn to be writers, supply assistants and sick-bay attendants.

In the workshops they strip and assemble a motor lorry and are taught the use of tools, while their instructors, mainly Naval Petty Officers, lecture to them in front of sectionized models of airfrimes and internal combustion engines.

The Ceylonese youths are billeted in trim huts with their own mess quarters and a modern sick-bay. N.A.A.F.I. run a canteen in a large recreational hut, where indoor games, cinema shows and concerts can be enjoyed. The ship's boys also play cricket, association football and hockey.

The difficulties of running the establishment can be imagined when it is realized that of the ship's company fifty per cent are Buddhists, ten per cent Moslems, twenty-per cent Roman Catholics, ten per cent Church of Ceylon and ten per cent Nonconformists. But they all work well together as a team.

British Hospitality

Despite the evacuations occasioned by V-1 and V-2, Britain is undertaking to care for Dutch children between the ages of 8 and 15 who are coming to regain their strength. They are mostly from the flooded areas where they have been suffering hunger and cold. The opening of the port of Antwerp should speed their arrival. Hundreds of British families have shown their sympathy by offering to give homes to Dutch refugee children.

Weather Knowledge

Vagaries of the weather are more and more used by the people, not only in a winter which has been marked by continuance of severe winter conditions, but generally too since they have come to note why the weather here differs somewhat from the weather elsewhere, as there may be a light fall of snow here while there is rain there.

Belleville folk look to North Hastings to provide some record reports of cold in winter weather and that section has not failed. On Friday Bancroft turned the tables and could report rain falling while it was snowing a little in Belleville.

So people are learning more of the currents of air which cause so great a variety of weather conditions. In summers past sometimes sections have plenty of rainfall and in others there has not been nearly sufficient.

Modern invention and study are going far towards developing the science of weather, which it seems will become one of the most important of all the sciences. For from time immemorial man has watched the seasons and the temperatures, the fails of rain and snow, especially if he has been a tiller of the soil. The farmer has become in the courses of time very astute in weather lore and what he does not know about the weather only a modern scientist could know.

The war and the needs of as full knowledge as possible of air currents for the sake of air travel have given the science of the forecasting of weather a great deal of lift and this will no doubt continue to expand as air transportation in peace time is speeded up.

Besides gaining the knowledge of weather conditions, the collection of data as recorded today has been able to bring to light facts not previously known.

Hereafter less an important field or study for the future for many's course is made dependent on the weather. The success or battles in history has been decided by weather as in ancient days. Today the modern soldier has the advantage of weather data, of which the old time general was deprived by lack of knowledge of the weather that prevails in the air above the earth.

Food Crisis

All through history the food question has loomed large in time of war. Now the Nazi Government of Germany has taken over all German stocks of grain for bread for there is seen the evidence of a food crisis in the Reich.

The inevitable is showing itself. When a nation's armies are driven back, they lose territory on which they have been able to subsist. The same is true with regard to the Germans. By the strength of the blitz warfare which Hitler hurled upon mankind, he drove his forces to the Atlantic and deep into Russia, though the Russians used the scorched earth policy which pinched the Hitlerian plans greatly. Now Germany in her overrunning of a great deal of Europe caught nations which could not fight on and conduct the war against the Hun the way the Russians did. So the Germans in some of the smaller countries were able to draw upon their resources in livestocks, grains, and rural materials and the Goerings grew fat while the inhabitants who were in the occupied territories felt the result of the looting by the enemy.

But there came like a development of the United Nations into the greatest organized fighting power in the course of all history, organized in a good cause to defend liberty and regain liberty which the aggressor had trampled down. Now a great series of Allied victories has been proceeding for several years and the result is the continuing reduction of those things of which the Germans could rob the nations. Now Germany has had her own rich areas, the Ruhr and Silésia especially. The loss of Silesia has been a blow at the industrial resources of Germany and the Allied advances on the Western Front and the gradual loss of Italy to Germany have added to the Huns' woes.

The news stories tell of the growing numbers of refugees which help to eat up Germany's food supplies.

Several recent ration reductions have taken place, among them one forbidding the feeding of grain to stock unless under special permission in the case of hogs. A drastic reduction in the number of hogs was ordered.

Germany's troubles are multiplying as the Allies advance deeper and deeper into the Reich.

Goats in Bengal

A novel scheme of goat multiplication has been adopted by the Government of Bengal which is a way to meeting the increased demand for goats in the province. It is expected that 50,000 goats will be produced in the first year of the scheme.

Under the scheme, nanny and billy goats will be loaned out by the Government to villagers on the condition that for every goat loaned the borrower must return within 18 months of the supply two goats at least six months old, out of the progeny of the goat borrowed by him. When this is done, the mother goat taken on loan will become his property.

THE HIGH ROAD

How tell of all departed, good or bad,
And who did best with what of life he had?

One must be more than merely richly dressed
To live superbly under sorrow's test.

Faith and high courage, lest the spirit tire,
The storms of life are certain to require.

How come to these? For one and all, the will
To keep the high road, facing good or ill;

To trust to courage more than chance or luck;
To build a faith before the blow is struck;

To win the friends, before the need for aid,
Then to press on, serene and unafraid.

The Worst Is Always Still To Come

(By Homer Croy in the Rotarian Magazine)

A learned professor in Massachusetts has written an article for a learned review in which he says the world is going to hell. He not only said it, but just about proved it. He said that after the war is over, the masses in the United States will be so impoverished by the burdens which the war has laid on them that they will have no cars, no radio, no refrigerators, not even washing machines, and no debt.

After reading this I felt gloomy all afternoon. I began to think of others who have said the world was going to hell—"big shots," too —and felt better.

No one can say General U. S. Grant wasn't level-headed, but when he was getting ready to write his autobiography, he announced: "I don't know whether the book will be interested in my story or not. Nowadays all the people seem to be interested in the giddiness and having a good time. But I need the money, so I'll go ahead and write it."

The country, which had been going to Hades so fast, fell still to reading the book, and the widow of the author got a royalty cheque ever handed out in America—no, goodness, not as big as I know, the country hasn't lost the level headedness yet.

Horace Greeley was a thinker, but now and then thinkers can think too much, and so can fence. After the disastrous second battle of Bull Run he said the South could never be conquered and advised ending the war on any terms.

The way to look ahead is to look back. When you take a squint along the gun barrel of the past, you don't feel so much like shooting from the hip. Not that our own country, but for the world.

For instance there was Plutarch, who lived 2,000 years ago, started man in Greece. People had been doing things and trying to catch the pearls of wisdom that fell from the lips of Socrates (who turned out to be paste.) This is what he once said: "I look upon a dying man as one who has finished his task and is free."

In 1901 Bishop Wilberforce in England was exactly what the last man in the world would want. He said: "I would like to marry the man who is too unsettled to risk such a step." Which is a nice way or other England managed to wed.

Sir Walter Scott was fine, because his future is brighter than his past. He said: "I got very expert."

In 1806 Sir William Pitt pondered the future of England and said: "I look behind me with regret, for I see it is past, and ahead with despair, for the future holds nothing for me."

Things didn't turn out as Sir William thought. England's still doing business across the water.

In 1848 Lord Shaftesbury announced: "I have no ambition about me, I am very much depressed. I look upon the future as British empire from destruction." Hitler came along and that Anyway they were both wrong.

In 1940 Disraeli gazed about him in comfort, surrounded by industry, commerce, and what have you, and said: "I cannot say I see no hope." But England continued to be England at the old stand. And what a glorious stand that turned out to be.

In 1853, when Lord Wellington was 84, he said: "I am as well as well I go, but I shall be spared seeing the consummation of evils that my country is plunging itself into."

Here's the spirit I like much better: One night Ralph Waldo Emerson's home in Concord, Massachusetts, caught on fire and his precious library was almost a second in smoke. His neighbor, Louisa May Alcott, ran in and expressed her sympathy. "Never mind," he said. "See what a beautiful night it is."

This is overdoing it a little, but that's bound to be right. Nothing is ever quite so bad as it seems when it's happening.

The Nelson Touch In Canada's Navy

From the Yorkshire Post of London, England

Few can have failed without a quickening of the pulse to hear the story, told on the weekend, of the tiny corvette which, manned by the Royal Canadian Navy—brave lads from the prairies—fought a battle one morning in 1940 she sighted a German raider in the Atlantic waters, what appeared to be two large and powerful enemy raider. The Mayflower was thus suddenly to battle with so formidable an adversary. Her commander, Captain, in those early days, of a Canadian corvette, was one John Tommy-gun, one Lewis gun and a few hand-grenades. What she lacked in weapons she made up for in audacity.

I have a thousand spirits in my breast
To meet every thousand such as you.

Twice she signalled a defiant challenge to the leviathan. Twice her words were observed, and her captain, Lieut.-Commander, now Commander G. H. Stephens, gave a final order to his men: "Tell them we are going to open fire if they do not answer." Back came the amazing reply: "Are you mad? We are a battleship." Yes, was H.M.S. Rodney, one of British most powerful warships.

There is something to ponder on here. When we think of what might have been, when we imagine in imagination the pathetic armament of the Mayflower with the mighty guns of the Rodney, and consider that the Mayflower was most of whom were making, their first sea trip, we are fully convinced that the giant was an enemy, we begin to see something of the indomitable spirit which permeates all ranks of His Majesty's Navies and Merchant Marines in the seven seas.

The odds were overwhelming, but the captain of the Mayflower, mindful of the Nelson touch, knew no captain can go far wrong if he lays his ship alongside the enemy. Sails down his challenge undismayed.

LITTLE DAYLIGHT

In peacetime, city dwellers in central Europe often kept lights burning until after 10 o'clock in the morning. And frequently turned them on again at nearly 2 p.m. because of the long dark winter nights.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

REAL BREAKFAST FOOD

I read in your column that you would like to know how to make buckwheat pancakes, any literary hundreds of readers sending in their recipes. That's news to me. What I expressed a wish for is to find some one who can make old-fashioned yeast-raised buckwheat pancakes. A printed or written recipe and the actual know-how are widely different things.

Meader H. A. T. submitted the following:

First, put your pure buckwheat flour—no mixture. If it is ground with bran and all, so much the better. The black specks will give it a distinctive flavor. Get a cake of dry yeast, the kind that is used when they baked their own bread. Any other kind is unsuitable. Soak the yeast in lukewarm water for about eight hours. This is to start the yeast plant growing and multiplying. Turn into a bowl used for containing batter. Add salt to suit taste, not too much. Use sufficient warm (not hot) water to make up about a quart more than you want for one time. Stir in sufficient buckwheat flour to make a thick, not a thin, batter. If it is too thin the gas will escape without raising the pancake. Set it in a warm place over night.

Next morning it should be raising and in good shape. First batch is usually not so good as subsequent batches. Do not stir better before using. The gas will escape if you do. Your pancakes will be flat. Grease with spoon from top of batter and turn the spoonful as gently as possible upon the hot griddle. Better make cakes the size of a plate, rather than little ones. Rotate griddle with left hand. Spread around the cake but do not spread without shaking it to see if it is ready to turn. Well done pancakes will not be light. If it is not ready to turn it will not spread with shaking it is too thick.

Do not touch batter with spoon after it is on the griddle; you will release the gas from the places you touch. If batter is too thick, dip spoon deeper into batter and turn a spoonful from the underside which is likely to be thinner.

If batter is too thin you are out of luck—wait for breakfast today. Set it away until night, then add some more buckwheat flour and more salt and let it rise for the follow-

"An ethical newspaperman is one who has just been scooped."—Author Unidentified.

When Eugene Meyer became owner of the Washington Post he showed considerable interest in the welfare of the employees of the paper. One Saturday, coming through the city room, he asked a man how he was. "Not very well," replied the employee, "that's the matter," inquired Meyer, "do you have the grippe?" "I'm not sick, only weary!" shot back the employee.

Meyer, a man who would be paying the salary that she had composed a poem and would like to see it found publication. "Would you be so kind," she wrote, "as to give me the name and address of the governess of the royal children? I can get a poetic licence."

Well, she got the only girls having girth trouble. Several ten bunch of girl reporters on a Washington newspaper made up a pool of ten dollars to be awarded to the one of the group who first could reduce ten pounds.

Officeholding is the chief industry in Washington, it is said.

A newly arrived Congressman observed that even the squirrels in Washington nope around as if they were looking for appointments to take care of them in their old age.

Franklin Roosevelt, who is a communicant of the Episcopal church, sometimes has communion services in the White House.

Many years many people have been erroneously referring to David Lloyd George as "Lord George." Now he is actually a lord and a good, but this title is not Lord George, but Lord Lloyd George of Dwyfor," or simply "Lord Lloyd George."

There is no scientific foundation for the popular belief that the buoyancy of water increases with depth of water and that consequently the deeper the water the easier it is to swim in it. The buoyancy of water does not increase with its depth. It is just as easy to swim in water ten feet deep as in water 300 feet deep. There is also a common belief that a boat will float higher in deep water than in shallow water. The depth of water has nothing to do with how high an object will float in it. But an object floats higher in salt than in fresh water because of the greater density of salt water.

EX-MAHARANEE AND HER MAILMAN HUSBAND

Mrs. Charles Masters, former wife of the Maharajah of Indore, whose ex-husband rules over 7,000,000 Indian subjects, and is reported to have an income of $70,000,000 (believe it or not) a year, is shown in her home at Laguna Beach, Calif., with her husband, former mailman, and ex-cost guardsman, Charles Masters. They are looking at a picture of Uday Devi, the Maharajah's beautiful daughter by a former marriage, who was adopted by the present Mrs. Masters. Uda has returned to India to rejoin her royal dad.

Valentine Atmosphere Greets Energetic Club

The Energetic Club of Mallorytown Street United Church held their regular fortnightly meeting on Friday evening. The League room was prettily decorated in keeping with St. Valentine's Day. The meeting opened at 8.15 sharp, the president of being on time, which has often been to carry out throughout the year.

The Scripture reading was taken from Romans and was read by Miss Georgs Greenlee.

The President, Mr. Bill Slavin led in prayer.

After the singing of "Will Your Anchor Hold", the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Larry Hopkins.

A short discussion period followed, the club deciding that in the very near future the members would entertain the Aged at the County Home with a concert.

Letters were read by the secretary from boys overseas who had received parcels from the Club at Christmas.

Following the business session, Mr. Larry Rock introduced the speaker for the evening, who was Dr. Wyatt. This being National Health Week Dr. Wyatt gave a very inspiring talk on health from which many good was derived.

The highlight of the evening was several piano solos by Mr. Haynes. Mr. Haynes also sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" with his own accompaniment.

After a sing-song a few lively games were played and a couple of contests enjoyed.

The red tapers on the piano and red and white table covers made a very pretty setting for the delicious refreshments which followed, ice cream, cake, cookies and coffee, were enjoyed by all.

The club is now in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt and their group for the very successful evening.

Rev. Mr. Dills issued a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Haynes and the group in charge. The meeting closed with the Friendship Circle and the Mizpah benediction.

Fashion Flashes

STYLE AROUND at smart gatherings is the short-skirted all-over-bedecked lace dress very fitted to the figure through the bodice and waist. A slip one is in black crepe with deep royal blue bugle beads in an all-over small design. Short sleeves, deep, collarless V neck.

High honors this spring will go to the little silk suit in moire, faille, taffeta and brocade. Many of the suits are made with bolero or short jackets. The skirts are sidedraped, and are worn with very flowy blouses. Brown, navy and black, with here and there some beige or gray.

Just what had to wear with a short-skirted after-five frock? Well —most smart women prefer a small hat fashioned of flowers—or feathered—and swathed in veiling. The sort of hat that looks, and is, very overdone when worn for the street.

One smart girl, handy with her needles, has given a new and expensive look to her plain crepe blouses, using cut-outs from floral designs in lace. She appliques these onto the ends of the bow tunettes and down the centre front.

Way down south, we hear, some gals are wearing a cotton or a water-proofed satin as beach coats as well as for general wear. Nice idea!

Seen about town on nice days are hats trimmed with enormous ribbon bows and, loops of forward-tilted, narrow-cuffed hat of natural blanching balm, reached for Spring, has a many-looped, enormous bow of the finest red, white and yellow satin striped taffeta ribbon, the bow and loops posed in front, giving height.

Fashionable Fabric Footwear

By ALICE ALDEN

NEW weaves developed by the National Shoe Fabric Association, make the fabric shoe picture even more interesting than it was last year. The fabrics, coupled with an unlimited color range and smart styling have helped to take the fabric choice out of the play or casual class, into a more fashionable field. Typical of the new fabric shoe is this new modernistic platform design in bright rep gabardine with cross-band ankles effect.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can military rank and an officer's uniform count more with the girl he finds himself—even the life of her husband?

A doleful letter from a young married man says yes, tells of a situation which I hope hasn't many sleeves, deep, collarless V neck.

"My job is with an industry classed as 'essential'—he tells me—'I work nights and in fact I work seven days a week. Many of my friends don't believe I'm useful to my country. But when I drag myself home in the morning, my wife knows I love her more than on the day I married her, now looks at me with a critical eye. Her friends all have husbands in one of the services. The other day she said she hoped when our baby grew up he would be satisfied with his father's war record. That hurt me terribly. It seems to mean nothing to her that I'm on hand and safe.

"How that she is alone evenings, she goes to the movies a great deal and she sees what officers and athletic uniforms look like. She tells me she wishes I were one and I suppose she thinks it would be a good idea. But I'm pretty unhappy now that she seems to think I've sneaked out of war service for nobody loves his country more than I do. Can you tell me what to do?"

P.S.E.

Since all this is due to ignorance and dash on the young wife's part, I can only suggest that she needs more education. I think that if she did some Red Cross work, for example, this would bring her in contact with people who would grasp ably teach her that a war is waged not only by the men who wear epaulets or crack up in the cockpits of the bombers but also by those indispensable ones who work at home. It's an old story, of course, that women, especially young ones, are over-susceptible to brass buttons, but in a going pretty far to allow the absence of buttons to destroy a girl's faith in her own patriotic and hard-working husband.

By consulting with the girl's parents, for example, I think it could be brought about that the young wife could be made a more useful person and at the same time weaned from her selfishly romantic dreams, so that in time domestic happiness would be restored. It's worth trying, anyway.

Claims He's Not Good Enough For Her.

Dear Miss Fairfax,—

I am 17 years of age and my fiance is 20. He's a sailor serving in the Southwest Pacific. We have been going together off and on for two years. He has been sending me money to save for a ring. Before he went overseas he spent every furlough with me, and I know he's in love with me, as I am with him.

He wrote me the other day that he thought we should break out engagement and that I should be free to go out with other boys and have a good time, as he didn't want to go out with other boys. If I could be sure he would be true to me. Do you think he would be sincere when he says he loves a girl, and then turns around and says they should break their engagement? He says he's very good enough for me. He writes every day and I believe he loves me, and I'm willing to wait until he returns.

—M.S.

Perhaps this young sailor is a man of exceptional ideals. They say he's not good enough for you, and to advise you to break the engagement and go out with other boys and have a good time. One man in a million may have such unselfish standards but as my old nurse used to say "It's agin nature for a man to be too humbling."

The Marry Go Round

Why Not a "Husband-and-Wife's" Day?

"Sweetheart's Day" or "St. Valentine's, has a very special significance for most of this year. Because it gives us an extra chance to send a tender greeting to the sweetheart or husband overseas and sends them out of our love and affection. And that's what he wants and needs most in the world.

But as I suggested in this column last week, why have we no Husband's Day or Wife's Day? We have Mother's Day, when we all remind Mother that she is loved; and say it with flowers and flowers. And there is Father's Day, when (sometimes to his embarrassment and surprise) he is lavish affection on Dad.

And we have Christmas Day, which commemorates the birth of the Christ Child, and is therefore essentially a Children's Day, when children all over the world are reminded that everybody loves them.

But what we need is a special Day for husbands and wives to concentrate on each other and keep their marriage green with tender reminders of their romantic past and their present love and affection.

Of course, we husbands and wives can horn in on "Sweetheart's Day", and lots of us do. It's our only chance to send each other valentines or poetry or flowers—since we have no day all our own. And many husbands and wives are still sweethearts because they have always kept up the sentimental reminders.

Of course, the fact that a man has to marry a girl proves that he loves her—but that is no reason why he should never mention it again. And I don't hold with the wit who said that the average man tells his last look at his wife at the altar". I believe that many, many husbands and wives grow nearer and dearer through the years. But many grow farther apart, as business and domestic problems and hard work and money worries come between them. They are the ones who need at least one special day on which to remind each other that they are still in love. Such a day would hold many marriages together!

When all a wife has heard her husband for years is "Good Lord, I'm tired! What've we got for dinner?" Or "Say, where've you put the sapiron?" and a husband has heard for is "Gimme five dollars for the laundry-man", or "Can't forget to call the plumber!!" or "Have you got on your overshoes?" it must be a wonderful thrill to receive a few tender words or a few flowers on St. Valentine's Day.

A man can be the most dutiful husband in the world; but if he never stops to be romantic or tender, his wife may be pretty bleak. And a woman can be the most efficient housewife in the world; but if she never softens and gives her husband a warm, spontaneous caress or a compliment, his courtship days are likely to fade out of his memory. And he is apt to think of her just as a necessary part of the household equipment—like the refrigerator.

Perhaps some day we'll get wise and inaugurate a "Husband-and-Wife's Day". Meantime, send your husband or wife a Valentine just to show the front of the air—and see if you can't awaken some of the dormant old romance.

BEAUTY

PREMATURE SPRING FEVER

It is the season of the year when you are getting just a little sick of the colours you are wearing. At times you read all the time and tired of your face, even if you have gotten a Spring tonic with it up to date. If your skin is chapped, and your hair, your feet, your hands, and your feet get cold, your nose gets scarlet, don't take it to heart. It is the month of anxiety. Every season brings its own particular problems to us. You won't be without them next summer. You'll be getting a new crop of skin troubles freckles. Just make up your mind that you are waging a 100 year war against them and you'll succeed, and that's all there is to it.

Start out, right now, nail your soul to your mast, and get started with a good tonic, and it will do a lot for what ails you. Remember all the lovely blooms in the florists' windows displaying the bursting of buds and the singing of birds that will later. Also, by way of encouragement, a vendor of cosmetics and holstering spirits that trailing arbutus always in the window, you can plough through the woods to a cosmetic counter and get yourself some new face-fixings. Nothing is more fun than lugging home bottles and jars filled with fragrant beautifiers; you can hardly wait to try them so see if they make you look exquisitely different RIGHT AWAY. Maybe they will; who knows?

Of course, some complexion troubles are caused by their victims. Take bad habits, bad eating and steam heat in the home—we forget to fill the water containers on the radiators—nervous temperament—not enough exercise may be the direst reasons why we look in the mirror with acute distaste. Also the Spring fever that makes us rush out pell-mell for a facial treatment in the hope that it will erase ten years from our age—which it won't. All it does is give the cosmetician a calling, which is what it needs this time of year.

You need a cream with a superfatty base, that the skin will lap up eagerly. If you will apply it with friction, you will smooth out the muscle strain, and bring a rosy glow. Spread it on with flat-handed fingers, always working upward and outward. Do five-finger exercises, using the fingertips as if they were little hammers.

Unless your skin is naturally oily —even if it is, you will need cream to offset the effects of playing winder love will not heal astringents. They are grand summer cosmetics, cooling and refreshing.

Increase your water-drinking; the "drink more water" habit is benefited by it. Unless you are keen about tea and coffee, you should have at least four glasses a day, and we bet you don't drink even half that amount. Get to bed at a decent hour, bathe daily, keep

CANADA'S VETERANS
Their Post-War Opportunities
The first of three advertisements explaining the re-establishment credit.

The Re-establishment Credit—
AN EXPLANATION OF THE GRANT

In planning the return to civilian life of men and women in the armed forces, Canada's parliament realized that assistance in re-establishment must cover a number of fields. For many—particularly younger members of the forces—the best method of effecting permanent re-establishment will be through training or through a return to employment previously or continue an interrupted education. Others can be assisted through the provision of opportunity to continue an interrupted business or to establish a new one. Still others can fall done farms or on small holdings operated in connection with industrial employment. In many cases a combination of these two training and land settlement—will be the solution. Legislation for this type of re-establishment was provided early in the war.

ANOTHER LARGE GROUP

There is, however, another very large group who do not need training and who are not suited for land settlement as provided under the Veterans' Land Act. After long months or years in uniform, these veterans will need assistance also. There will be those who normally would have owned their own homes but who have lost their service. There will be those who own homes but who have been unable to carry out needed repairs and alterations. There will be veterans who sold businesses to enlist and who want to resume them, and others who are fitted for a business of their own but who need assistance in financing. The Re-establishment Credit is designed for this latter group, and primarily is an alternative to training and land settlement benefits.

PAID UNDER WAR SERVICE GRANTS ACT

The Re-establishment Credit is available under the new Re-establishment Credits Act, which provides War Service Gratuities. It is not a loan but an outright grant, paid in an eligible veteran to aid in re-establishment if the veteran decides not to use land settlement or training benefits. It may be used in Canada only at any time in the ten years following discharge for certain specified purposes as outlined in this advertisement. The grant is called a "credit" because it is in an amount carried on the ledger to the credit of the veteran for ten years until used by him for a re-establishment purpose.

HOW TO APPLY FOR RE-ESTABLISHMENT CREDIT

The re-establishment credit is an amount equal to the basic War Service Gratuity—that is $7.50 for each 30 days' service in the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each 30 days' service overseas. The amount is computed by the branch of the armed forces with which the veteran served, and for that reason application first must be made for the War Service Gratuity. When a statement showing the amount of the basic gratuity has been received by the veteran, application for the re-establishment credit may be made to the Department of Veterans Affairs on a form which may be secured from any district office of the department. Application for the war service gratuity is to the branch of the armed forces with which the veteran served and forms may be secured at any armed forces depot or at any office of the Department of Veterans Affairs.

STUDY ALL MEASURES BEFORE APPLYING

It is important that every veteran shall have made a definite decision as to future plans before applying for the re-establishment credit. Payment of the re-establishment credit debars the veteran from educational and training grants and benefits under the Veterans' Land Act, since on application for the credit the veteran elects not to take advantage of these other benefits. Any benefits under the Veterans' Land Act and payments to, or on behalf of the veteran for training or continuation of training already granted will be charged against the credit. Do not apply for your re-establishment credit until you have studied all other rehabilitation measures. Advice of department officials is available to assist you.

PURPOSES FOR WHICH CREDIT MAY BE USED

Grant of the credit may be authorized for the following purposes:

(a) To assist in home-ownership.
(b) To assist in building a home;
(c) To assist in home repairing or modernization;
(d) To buy household equipment and furniture;
(e) To buy tools, instruments, etc., for trade, profession, or business;
(f) To provide working capital for profession or business;
(g) To buy a farm;
(h) To pay premiums on Dominion of Canada Insurance;
(i) To buy special equipment required for educational or vocational training.

In the case of (a), (b), (d) and (g) above, the veteran must put up one dollar for every two dollars used from the re-establishment credit. If experience shows a broadening of these purposes is needed, provision has been made for it.

BELLEVILLE JRS. SWAMP COMBINES IN PLAYOFF GAME

Dick Barrett Scores Four Goals and Has Two Assists in 13-1 Victory

Scoring pretty much as will the Belleville hockey fans opened their part of the "Little Six" O.H.A. semi-final playdowns by shellacking the Hastings-Norwood combine, master, 13 to 1, at the Rome Arena last night, the second game of a best-in-three series will be played in Norwood next Wednesday with a possible third and deciding contest back in Belleville on the following Friday. The period scores stood at 5-1, 7-1 and finally 13 to 1.

As Coach Tom Slobary's locals fattened their scoring averages and ran the count into the double column figure a unique scoring feat occurred in the third period of a one-sided fiasco when Belleville scored three goals inside of one minute and two made it five goals inside of the two-minute mark. This all occurred between the 11.54 mark and 12.55 in the final stanza for something of a record in hockey scoring in these parts.

Barrett Leads Scorers.

Don Barrett led the scoring attack of the Belleville kids with four goals and a single assist to his credit scoring points. Doug Day came into his own for two pointers going as Bernie Meagher rattled home a brace of bumpers. Otherwise Bill Holway picked up a goal and an assist, as did Roddy Lyall and Bill Greatrix, while Jerry Moher duplicated this feat. Doug Pye, of Campbellford, picked up the lone Hastings goal late in the initial stanza, although several occasions Joe Pite, sporting nine stitches in his face gave goalie Fitzpatrick anxious moments.

Three Campbellford Men Play.

As several of the Hastings-Norwood team were unable to play owing to illness, the Amalgamated pressed three Campbellford players into service in order to complete their scheduled play-off game here.

Belleville put on a strong defensive game in front of Dick Fitzpatrick, even though the locals rattled home 13 goals, they missed scores of scoring chances in a loosely-played game. Hastings-Norwood tightened to the scrambly side at times, but far from a task to prove any particular worth for the locals, but in order to assure themselves of a spot in the group finals their principal test comes Wednesday night in the return game. For the losers Pte. Pye, Williams and Jones at least tried and in fairness to the weakened Hastings squad it must be said in their favor they rallied considerably retaliating when the opportunity presented itself.

The one-sided score speaks for the game as Belleville carried the play pretty much and at least put in some practice. The second half of the semi-finals, between Trenton and Stirling, opens in Trenton on Monday with the ultimate winners of each series meeting in the group finals.

The lineups:

Belleville: Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Holway (capt.), Green; centre, Barrett; wings, Al Meagher and B. Meagher; reserves, Moher, Day, Greatrix, Rush, Lyall and Reeves.

Hastings: Goal, McGrath; defence, Pite and W. Jones; centre, Glover; wings, West and Johnson; subs, R. Jones, Williams, Richter, Pye and Edwards.

Referee: "Speedy" St. Louis.

Summary:

1st period:
1...Belleville, Greatrix. (Day) 4.11
2...Belleville, Al. Meagher... 5.16
3...Belleville, Barrett 16.15
4...Hastings, Pye 19.21
Penalty—Green.
2nd period:
5...Belleville, B. Meagher (Barrett) 8.15
6...Belleville, Moher (Lyall) 11.54
7...Belleville, Day (Greatrix) 17.19
8...Belleville, Moher (Moher) 17.54
Penalties—Williams and Rush.
3rd period:
9...Belleville, Barrett 5.14
10...Belleville, Barrett 11.54

CLOCK STRIKES 52 FOR BILL TILDEN

New York, Feb. 10. (AP) — A clock struck 52 for big Bill Tilden today but the hardy perennial of the courts scarcely noticed—he was still too busy with his tennis.

The angular, aging but active ace apparently needed no more than several sets of tennis daily to keep him young. He averages at least five a day.

Greatest showman in the history of tennis, Tilden is the only remaining active member of the "big four" who, with saw him, Babe Ruth, Bobby Jones, Tommy Hitchcock and Jack Dempsey, the big five in sports.

Bill is here to defend his mixed doubles partner Vinnie Richards and others in the Grossinger century-hall tennis show, the proceeds will help distribute packages to families of service men forced.

Tilden began swinging a racquet in 1940. Asked how long he expected to continue public play, the old master said: "I haven't the foggiest idea. Just as long as I think I can hit a ball well enough for others to enjoy it".

Jug McSpaden Has Wide Lead In Golf Match

New Orleans, Feb. 10. (AP) — Harold (Jug) McSpaden starts his second round of golf in the $5,000 New Orleans open today with a wide lead—thanks to a medium par under par 68 for the first 18 holes yesterday.

It was sheer consistency in the opening round that gave McSpaden a two-stroke lead over his closest rivals, who included the game's top money winner, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O. McSpaden's card showed four birdies and 14 pars. He was two under par on both nines, 33 and 35.

Nelson starts today with a 2-under par 34-36—70 to his credit. Others 70s are held by Claude Harmon, Ossine Point, Mich., Byron Shutz, Akron, O.

Other members of the pre-tournament "favored five" Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., Henry Picard of Harrisburg, Pa., and Sammy Byrd of Detroit, will have to hit their best form today if they intend to close in on McSpaden.

Slammin' Sammy competed the first round with a 6-over par 76. Byrd, defending champion, came around with a 75, and Picard, twice champion here, took a 78.

London, Feb. 10.—(CP)—Bounty Woods, six-foot amateur from the Cotswolds, brought about the new year's most startling upset in sport when he came to London as the unheralded and unfancied Sid Duffy.

Duffy, a petty officer in the Royal Navy and one of Britain's lightweights, was expected to be an easy victim for Woods, a former sky-high After he knocked out the world, George Nichols, and Jack Paterson of Glasgow, in a memorable fight last December, one.

Woods, 24, and possessing of a human hairpin at 136, towered head and shoulders over the sailor and kept him at bay with a flicking left, unleashed blows to the body that seemed to have earned the victor five of the ten rounds. But Duffy won the first three rounds and then had enough left in reserve to wipe the perpetual smile from Woods' face.

The sight of the two in action was almost comical. Duffy, a normal well-built feather, looked as big before opposed to a Guardsman suffering from malnutrition.

Incidentally, the fight nearly didn't come off. Duffy's boxing manager considered Woods far below Duffy's class.

. . . .

Jim Brady of Dundee, Knight-hamtanwood, Scotland, with a boxing career of 18 years, easily outpointed Jimmy Warnes, Swansea, one of Wales' best, in another bout on the Duffy-Woods card. Davies, holding a weight advantage of 14 pounds, failed to win one of the eight rounds.

. . . .

Meanwhile, in another wartime instance of matching top-notchers with handicaps, flyweight king Paterson signed to defend against Jackie Grimes in a non-title London bout on February 24 or March 3. It will be Paterson's first fight since he knocked out Woods.

Grimes, a stablemate of Duffy, has had only five bouts since he turned professional a few months ago. On paper it would appear that Paterson has earned a shot but that's what the gambling fraternity doubtless about Woods.

. . . .

Handsome Eddie Maspood, holder of two Scottish championships and one that may never be beaten, has been signed to box Jack Hood, left-handed "Football Ambassador." He is the fighting chosen to play on the England team that defeated Scotland 24 times named captain of the side.

One of scranton's greatest men, Maspood holds the book of his 17 years in first-class soccer and at his best was closely linked to the rise to fame of his wife, Hannah Gunn-ness. Now a flying officer in the physical training branch of the R.A.F. Maspood has been posted to the coaching staff. His eventual discharge he will become manager of Aldershot Rovers of the League North.

. . . .

Tom Whittaker, Arsenal football club trainer in peacetime, was elected M.B.E. in the New Year's Honors for his work with new engines and fuels as a member of the R.A.F. He has the rank of squadron leader . . . The Yorkshire County Cricket Club, in its annual report, paid high tribute to Herbert Sutcliffe, one of England's greatest left-hand batsmen who was killed in the Sicily fighting, and accepted $4,500 to his widow and family.

TWO "TERRIBLE WEEKS"

Liverpool, England, Feb. 10—(Reuters)—Two "terrible weeks of starvation" were described in a letter to his parents here by Trooper William Brown, Royal Armored Corps, one of the released prisoners of the Greek R.I.A.F.

Brown wrote: "They stripped us of everything we possessed—bikkets, wallets, money and pens. They took our boots and made us march 60 miles with sacking tied around our feet."

CASUAL COMMENT

Lighter Vein.

A man with a black eye and other injuries came into the orthopaedic ward of the hospital. The desk attendant began to fill out the usual forms.

Desk Attendant — Married?

Patient — No, automobile accident.

No Competition.

There wasn't much competition when the local juniors shellacked Hastings 13-1 last night to take the first game of the "Little Six" Junior O.H.A. semi-final series in a convincing manner. Not only was the Hastings club 30 minutes late, but they had to stop at Campbellford and enlist services of a trio of Hydro Town kids in order to fulfil their date here last night. However, the Amalgamates hope to have their full roster on hand for the second game at Norwood next Wednesday. Actually it was scrambly hockey last night, brought about no doubt by the fact Hastings had a patched-up squad. It was a field day for the locals who fattened their scoring averages, with Don Barrett leading the parade with four. Doug Day landed a brace, as did Bernie Meagher with, the remaining counters were registered by Bill Holway, Jerry Moher, Al Meagher, Al Meagher and Roddy Lyall. Doug Pye of Campbellford, picked up the visitors' lone tally, while Joe Pite looked as good as any in the igloo.

Wanna Laugh?

Scribe Bob Ford in the Trenton Courier-Advocate, took exception to "the rough Belleville players" after the locals beat Trenton 6-4 last week. Bob says the Belleville kids were "out to get Barney Lesperance," which is quite ridiculous, although Hockey's champs were meeting the shifty Lesperance in every turn, which is good business.

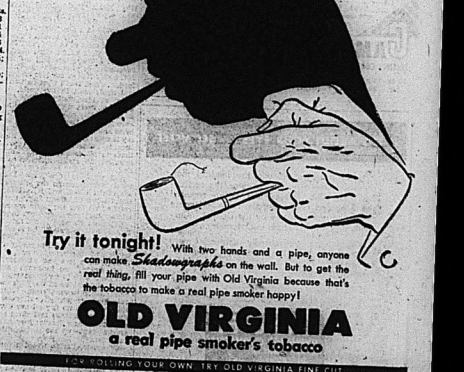
However, here's the lowdown on things:

"At the Belleville-Trenton junior hockey game last Friday night, the old rivalry between Belleville and Trenton really flared up. From the opening whistle, it was evident the object of the game it was evident that Belleville was out to get Barney Lesperance. To the writer that's not good hockey, nor conducive to good sportsmanship. Barney Lesperance is one of the cleanest hockey players ever to don skates and to try and force a player of his calibre to leave his beat ice, is not for the good of the game. Barney is handicapped in that he has to wear glasses, and during this game they did manage to break them, and Barney had to watch 'em up with the ever useful adhesive. The writer has been attending all season the point of referees keeping hockey clean, for the sake of the game, and for the good of the future of the boys concerned. Such high-sticking, boarding, elbowing and chopping that was allowed was just a disgrace. By way of thinking this league could be one of the type of Charlie Puffer, of Norwood, as referee. He will not tolerate that kind of business. He will not be afraid to refree this column will go for at all times. He knows the game, and knows what clean hockey means. In this kids who play it, Belleville will "Between the ever-so dirty-that—but the writer does take strong objection to rough, dirty play against one of the cleanest players playing the game today."

At the Barrier.

Tied at the end of the regular schedule with nine wins and a half each, the Mountain View "Bombers" and Trenton "Flyers" go to the wire in the first play-off game of the Quinte R.C.A.F. group service league clash on Monday night. The winner will be the best-in-three with the winner advancing to the R.C.A.F. No. 1 Training Command semi-finals against Camp Borden "Flyers." On the season's play Trenton has the edge, 5-4 earlier in the season, but P/L. Jimmie McGrath's Mountain View sextette evened matters up in their next meeting 5 to 3, all of which goes to prove how closely matched the two squads really are. No doubt Skipper McGee will transport his Bombers to keep a close watch on Percy Bancroft, league's leading scorer and Trenton's star. If we see Sig Raymond we'll repeat as champion and predicted McGee today. In the meantime it is rumored the Flyers are angling for Randy Ellis, former Cobalt ace now with Kingston airmen.

Remember When . . . .



Just 52 years ago tonight more than 20,000 fight fans screamed "Take" as Ernie Schaaf sprawled to the canvas for the count in the 14th round of his 15-round bout with Primo Carnera. Four days later, the quiet boy who wanted to be a priest, died in hospital from the effects of the beating. He never regained consciousness.

. . . .

Joe Cronin, manager of the Red Sox, is a firm believer in golf during off season, and expects to get back into the game himself, as he recognizes the necessity of exercise. He stands, at times, 15 or 20 players per day, but that doesn't mean 15 or 20 losers. "But some of 'em have pretty fair" or 6's they may mean further losses. "But some of 'em have pretty fair" or 6's other handicaps, which make them handy fit for any service," Joe added.

Between the over-ripe, dilapidated and rejected players, I think we will have enough. "

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 661
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

With the best intentions, some boys are unlucky. Take the one that decides partners in a session of rubber bridge that is played by a group of four players.

The laws of bridge say: Before each rubber, the four players draw cards. The two players who draw the highest cards play as partners against the other two.

You will notice that it says "before each rubber". Therefore, not only does that apply to the first rubber, it means that with the exception of deciding partners before every rubber.

Such a policy is unfair, impractical, unsatisfactory, and contrary to sound principles. It is good for deciding partners for the first rubber. But not for all rubbers in that session.

Take a foursome in which two of the players are expert and the other two are very poor. If the experts were partners for the majority of rubbers, the palookas would be supporting them in luxury.

At one very first game of contract bridge, we started a house rule in our club. It proved to be needless for ourselves and those who joined us as regulars or guests.

The house rule was: For the first rubber, players cut for partners. For the second rubber, the two farthest from the dealer are partners. The previously unpaired players were pairs for the third rubber.

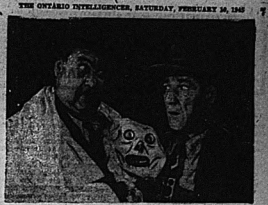
In this way, each player was the partner of each of the others an equal number of rubbers. No one player had the advantage of having the best player of his partner more than his share of the time.

In a scientific game like bridge, each player is usually better than the rest. Or some player is usually not as good as the others.

Imagine being 3000 beans in the hole after losing a rubber with Doffer Dan as partner. Then see Sabine drawing him again as partner for the next rubber. You might as well put your suspending in storage.

Then the first hand you get is this:

♠A K 2 10 8 4
♥A K Q 6 3
♦ 5
♣Q 6



You open that hand with a bid of 1 ♠. Doffer Dan passes. What would you do? There's a few against that.

CLUBS JOCKEYING TRYING TO AVOID THE CANADIENS

Team Finishing 2nd Must Meet Habitants in the First Round

By The Canadian Press

Now that Montreal Canadiens have all but officially clinched their second straight National Hockey League pennant, the other playoff-contending clubs can concentrate on just where they finish the schedule — the best being to avoid the Habitants in the first round of the post-season series.

As in the past few years, the leaders will met the third-place team in the semi-finals while second and fourth decide the other finalists.

The only clubs directly concerned with who draws the unlucky No. 2 spot are Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, since either Boston or Chicago will be happy to finish fourth and can hardly go higher.

For the Detroiters, any privilege connected with finishing second will be the extra week-end rest before facing somebody else besides Canadiens in the first round. While almost invincible at home, the Olympia Wings are winless in eight games against the Canadiens. Their only chance for Stanley Cup honors seems to be to beat the Habitants right out, the Canadiens or by at least soften them up for the finals.

On the other hand Leafs, while handy at winning club against the rest of the league, have handed Canadiens four of their five beatings and on the basis of that record may prefer to lead off against the champions.

For the Toronto club, however, it's a case of meeting the Habs sooner or later, if they eliminate Canadiens or they must face Detroit or Boston, both of whom have been on them consistently this year.

Why, what's happened, what do you mean? ma said, and pop said, You haven't heard anything wrong from back home, have you?

It looks like I'll have to be leaving you, cousin Cesar said. That's the whole story without trimmings, and it don't look as if I can put it off, he said, and ma said, Really, Cesar? I mean, do you mean it?

Is that a fact, Cesar? pop said, and Cesar said, I knew it would come like a shock, I knew you'd get kind of used to seeing me making myself at home around here, that's the kind of a natural citizen I am, home is wherever I park my feet. But there dont seem to be any help for it, I'll have to be shoving off, he said.

Well now isn't that hard luck, how soon do you got? pop said, and Cousin Cesar said, First thing in the morning.

Well, it's hard to believe, ma said. I mean it's been so nice having you, Cesar. I'd better help you to pack, we wouldn't want you to forget anything, she said, and pop said, Yes gods, no.

Oh, that wont be necessary, Cousin Cesar said. This buddy of mine has been pestering me to come and visit him, but I'm sure he hasn't got a spare bed as comfortable at home. I could do just as good in your guest room, so I promise not even to stay overnight if I can get out of it, he said.

CHAPTER 13

"Oh, Donald? He's deaf, dumb, and blind Ford,or, and Livia was less convinced of the protective qualities of the others, back. But she must not get angry. A word from him, and their jobs were sats.

Charles put his arm around her waist and drew her to him. He meant to kiss her lips, but Livia's sudden twist made her cheek instead. Otype number three, he decided. He classified all women into three groups — the very easy, the easy, and the less easy. With the latter group, you usually let them have dinner first. He was a talker; and unlike most executives in Hollywood, read books as well as scripts.

"I really would like you to see my library," he told her and laughed, "I mean really to see the books." He was that first editions, among them a red leatherbound complete set of Dickens for which he had paid $700. "And it was a bargain."

The dining-room was empty.

"You remind me of someone," he said absently. They were halfway through the meal.

"An actress?" Livia asked. She wondered if she reminded him of Bert Dinne.

"I guess so," he said slowly.

"I'm supposed to be a 'cross between Greer Garson and Josephine Hutchinson," she smiled.

The red California wine warmed her cheeks and eyes. He brought his chair closer to her and held her hand. Now perhaps was the time to ask his help.

"We're all getting tired," she told him. A flicker of non-interest passed in and out of his eyes. "What's the matter with me?" she suddenly asked him. "Why can't I get on? I may be a bad actress, of course, but no one's ever bothered to find out."

"I think he is all right," he said and added, "I can talk to Schlenker. What you want me to do?" He leaned closer and played with a red-gold curl.

"Not only for me, but the others too."

"Oh, there are others? That might be more difficult." Her eyes sparkled again, and he said, also, "All right, the others as well."

She was happy. And when he said, "Let's drive through the mountains," she agreed. There was the chauffeur. And he was driving at high speed, so he was not dumb and deaf and blind.

But he might have been both when Fordyce looked at her in his car and almost smothered her in a bear-like embrace. She tried to bring her arms up to push him away. And then her mouth until the lips were forced open. She remembered her closed fist against his stomach.

A small trickle of blood started from the corner of his mouth. He stared at her hand. There was no pain, just a very awkward stillness. She waited for the storm to break and moved away from him. The chauffeur drove smoothly.

When she looked at Fordyce again, he was staring ahead. It was hard to know what he was thinking. The trickle of blood had reached his collar.

"Your neck bleeding," she told him coldly. She tried to point with her right hand and gave a cry of pain. He looked at her, and she let her eyes to her wrist. She was crying now.

"I've do the sort of thing that often?" he asked sternly.

She shook her head, biting her lip to hold the pain.

"Let me see it," he said and tried to take the wrist, but she moved quickly away. "Let me see it," he repeated.

She moved to him slowly and felt dizzy. There was some candy and a bottle in a flap in the car. He held it to her mouth.

Stop at the first telephone booth," said Dr. Nelson," Fordyce told his chauffeur. "I'm bringing him a patient."

"I fell down," she told the doctor.

Fordyce drove Livia back to her apartment. He seemed there was another class of girl in Hollywood, and he wasn't going to have it.

"How would you like a part in my picture?" he asked her when they reached her street.

"No."

"It's not a big part, but you couldn't do it with me," he continued. "We start shooting in three weeks — that'll give your wrist a chance to heal."

"I won't do it," said Livia stubbornly. "I think you're horrible."

"Okay—but report to the studio at three weeks from today. He heard the short flight of steps. "And don't worry about the doctor's bill— it's all paid for. From today you're on my payroll."

"No," said Livia.

"Good-bye—I'll send you the script in the morning."

The first person Livia encountered at the studio was Bruce Nolan. He was on his way to the sound stage and the barroom balcony from which he soon would jump twenty feet to the ground for $75 a jump.

"What's wrong?" he asked looking at her wrist, which was still in a small cast.

"Oh, nothing," hurriedly. "I—I fell down." His cool eyes took in the details of her face and dress.

"I read where you had a big part in a picture. What's it's name—something about love and money?"

"June Madness—but it isn't a big part."

"You should complain to Charles Fordyce. He's your friend. He's every woman's friend."

"Bruce — please don't be so mean," she said, eyes large. "Don't let's go somewhere and talk."

"Sorry," he said, "afternoon flicks," he said and strolled away. It was a new casual Bruce, and she did not like him this way. He had left a little faith in her powers to charm him again.

She called at the publicity department. Donald was grateful to her for saving his job.

"I'm going to be over, baby, like no one has before. I'm going to make you the new sensation."

She smiled. Her eyes were almost —only no romance." She escaped and found stage 7. The doorman knew her, and there was no difficulty getting on the set. Bright arc lamps converged on the three principals in the barroom. There were always the same in pictures — the cheap-looking, underdressed girl, the gambler, and the hero. She had forgotten the name of the final free-for-all; the gambler hides the owner proprietor with a diamond pin as his weapon and fights; the actor can gun-play, the gambler and the girl escape through the usual back door.

Bruce was doubling for the hero, and he was practicing to risk his $150,000-per-picture life for the $75 stunt jump. But the hero would do the actual jumping. Livia watched Bruce as he got one foot on the balcony railing, but he was nervous and had to be done over and over again—until the director lost his nervousness.

"You are you—an actor or a stuntman?"

Livia giggled nervously into her handkerchief. And now the camera was ready for the actual jump. The balcony seemed very high from the floor. Suppose Bruce was hurt? Her throat contracted. Suppose he were killed? Then he would never know how much she loved him.

"Bruce!" The word cut through the air with a long time. She knew he would join her. But she finally had to go.

It was late when she arrived at the wardrobe department.

"We'd given you up," said the pleasant-faced woman, through the pins in her mouth.

"Sorry," mumbled Livia. She undressed. "Do they have many accidents?" she asked the dress dresser.

"Who, dear?"

"Stunt-men." The woman draped a twist of silk over Livia's hips and pinned it into place.

"There, that gives you a long sleek look. . . Accidents? Sometimes. Not mostly not. Or there wouldn't be any stunt-men," removed the pins and laughed. And Livia tried to smile. "How is the wrist?"

"That's good."

"I'll bet Jean Arthur rack were magnificent this afternoon. Dressing rooms in various stages of crescendo.

"For Alice Delaware?"

"Yes," the woman nodded and turned her eyes up to the ceiling.

"She's late as usual. We've been expecting her for an hour.

"She was worried. She had no desire to encounter Alice Delaware and did not feel safe until she was out of the studio gate. She helped back to the apartment. She did not know Charles Fordyce was there until she turned on the light and saw him lying on the couch. He had his coat and hat on, and at first she thought he was asleep.

"Did we have a date?" she sat on the couch beside him.

Three weeks had passed since the fight in his car. And Fordyce was still puzzled. She was playing a game, of course. Ambitious girls in Hollywood did not refuse the admiration of an important producer. She was a nice kid though; and whatever her game, he would find out. He was providing she didn't take too long about it.

He enjoyed being with her. He liked the excitement in her eyes when they talked. She would learn and grow. She had infinite possibilities. And if it were the last time — he was going to make an actress of her.

"We'll do a little rehearsing," he said, shoving her gently off his left side, "after we've eaten."

Livia scrambled some eggs. She was not a good cook, but Charles pretended that he was. She knew really was a sweet kid. Had he fallen for her? It was nothing new. He had fallen in and out of love all his life. But the women were usually there, again. It was safer that way—safer for him. Well, no matter for how long, during they were, he could always take care of her.

"Sit next to me," he said to Livia. She was taking off the little green apron when she had worn over her dress she hesitated.

"Still scared?"

"No, but—"

"Sit down."

"I'm being ridiculous, Livia thought, but she left a foot of space between them.

For two hours he destroyed her self-confidence. He told her she would play the part, her voice, her appearance, her gestures.

"You're very charming in real life, but terrible on the screen," he told her. "And you bounce when you walk. You've got to get you'll look like a penguin on the screen.

That line again — and raise your voice at the end— I'm not going to be real like. . .Now smile. . . Oh, my, aren't you pretty when you're angry."

Livia tried to soften him by moving closer, but she might as well have been on the dole. He felt ashamed and moved away. Finally he said despairingly:

"I'm hopeless." He stopped, played teacher and grinned into her disappointed face.

"Not entirely," it went on.

Livia was busy getting up and saying good-bye to Livia and dismissing inwardly the sort of kiss he might get away with, when there was a loud, insistent ringing at the door.

"I'll go see," said Livia.

It was better for him to come down. A boy under the influence of drugs, and supporting Bertha. He was almost sober. "Quick—look at her face."

"My car — all the corner of the street," he said vaguely.

Bertha looked in the passage way. She revived before the doctor arrived. He looked she must go to a hospital.

Her face was badly lacerated.

"I've ruined you," the boy sobbed.

"Stop that," commanded Fordyce. "Why in hell do you drive a car when you're drunk? Where are the police anyway in this damned State?"

Bertha did not want to go to a hospital.

"I'm afraid," she whispered to Livia.

"I'll be with you, darling—all the time," Livia assured her.

"But what are they going to do to me?"

"Only a few stitches," Livia lied. There was a piece of glass deep in her skin. It meant the end of Bertha's un-begun movie career. She had been signed for the leading role in June Madness. And her legion of men. Would they, too, drop away? Yes.

"We'll get in my car," said Fordyce. Bertha cried, and it hurt her face to cry.

The sordid little story was in the newspaper the next day — with pictures. A man who had been on the spot with a camera received $10 a piece for them.

Livia lunched with Fordyce. He was irritable. Another quarrel with Alice.

I waited two hours for you last night," Alice had yelled into a telephone at twelve that morning. "You can't do that to me. I'm going to tell my husband." But Fordyce knew that Alice couldn't say to her husband, "I went to Bert's dressing room. He did not keep a midnight appointment with your wife, so she could make trouble for him in other ways. He almost decided to throw up the picture, and tell them both to jump in a lake. But here was Livia, her blue-gray eyes were troubled. He would be grateful to him. And grateful girls were kind and yielding.

"Poor Bertha," she said, her eyes filling with tears.

"Poor Bertha nothing," snapped Fordyce. "What do you suppose when you go about with drunks? She's lucky it wasn't worse. Look: if you want to get on in this business, don't go out with drunks. I've seen too many directors and actors getting $5,000 and $10,000 a week, and throwing it all into a bottle of liquor. Stay away from them. They drag you down with them; if it's the last damn thing they do."

There was fear in her pald face. "I'll be good," she said. "I'm fine. Remember, I'm on your side as long as you're a business, stay away from drunks."

She almost told him, "My father is Bert Dinne." She pictured the new look on the director's face. He would find it strange to have nothing to do with the daughter of a drunk. "I must find him," she decided. What if he were an extra in her own film?

When the Germans Shackled the Canadians

(By T.E. Pinder in the Legionary)
Trooper T. H. Pinder, of the 14th Tank Regiment of Calgary, was one of the Canadians captured by the Germans at Dieppe, August, 1942. Each subsequently shackled for many months. Trooper Pinder recently was repatriated, became ill himself and is still in hospital—and he wrote for The Legionary his story of being shackling which we reprint below for you.

We were formed into two long columns five abreast and about 600 in each column. We began to wonder was afoot when we looked three guards and two machine-guns to each sentry-box and about half the German army around the fence, armed to the teeth with light and heavy machine-guns, grenades and rifles with fixed bayonets. We were pretty quiet then, but every time the various mass murder stories we'd heard about the Nazis and didn't make us feel very happy.

A light was on and then there appeared an officer with enough braid and medals to be a stand-in for Goering himself. More hard clickings and salutes, and he turned to us and, through an interpreter, in a good glaring-over, proceeded to read us a long proclamation. Words such as "pirates" were fairly frequent, and after a while we began to get the drift, owing to an incident that had occurred on the Dieppe beach and together with a small Commando raid a short time later, we were to have our hands tied together "until the British Government should appoint one to the Reich," or words to that effect.

Then we figured that we better than being shot, so we stepped forward in groups of 20, held out our hands, wrists crossed, and were tied, he said Hudson seal, ties 16, 226; used electric seal, size 40, $30. Woodley's Fur Store. P9-3t

Yugoslavia's Royal House Has Bad Record

The ascendancy of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia may mean the end of the "Black George" dynasty, the line of the Karageorgevitch kings who came from the soil at the beginning of the 19th century in the long struggle against the Turks, and who have ruled the most turbulent country in Europe for nearly 150 years. Fred St. Goodchild writes in The Vancouver Province.

The history of the rise of the various kings in that period is one of the blackest in history, marked by assassinations, treachery, irresponsibility and moral scandals.

First Was Bandit.

The founder of the dynasty was Kara George Petrovic, who was apprenticed to a Turk bandit and followed that adventurous trade for some years. After fighting for the Austrians against the Turks he settled down in Serbia as a swine dealer but tired of that and took up guerrilla warfare.

His courageous deeds and his strategy in warfare brought him fame and respect and he was made king in 1808 in a spirit of revolt against the Russians, who were gaining ascendancy in the country. The Serbs wanted something at the head of the country whom the Russians would respect so they made their guerrilla chieftain king. His dynasty lasted only a few years. Fred St. Goodchild writes in The Vancouver Province.

His courageous deeds and his strategy in warfare brought him merry him into a royal house by suddenly marrying his mistress, Draga.

Their conduct and plotting provoked an uprising and they were both slain with eight others in their palace one night. That was in 1903.

Peter the First then took the throne as the first king of the Serbian dynasty which is the performance turned in by the veteran Tyrrell Day, who has turned to Broadway to star in "Harvey."

Mr. Fay's characterization of Elwood P. Dowd, the forgey-minded lose-pot companion of a six-foot-tall phat rabbit named "Harvey," has been classed by previewers with the Lambe Club as on a par with such diverse performances as family memory as George M. Cohan's "Little Johnny Jones" and John Barrymore's "Hamlet."

Certainly the actor's wistful confidence in the existence of Harvey is likely friend — other characters in the play find they can't see him in this rabbit who is six feet 1½ inches tall and handles his lines in prodigious quantities — is superbly touching and never mawkish. It merits a word sometimes used too freely — "brilliant."

An excellent second to Fay in this year's list of moving performances is Jen. D. Garvey, a portrait of the name-role in "the Late George Apley" constitutes one of the most delightful stuffed shirts in a long time. Both satirical and sympathetic, the characterization has depth and solidity as well as surface gaiety.

Frederick March is excellent as the Major in a "Hall of Adano," the best war-play of the season, and in "Anna Lucasta" a splendid young Negro actress, Hilda Simms, has made a debut which is likely to make her one of Broadway's fixed stars.

No mention of the year's best play can exclude one by Will Shakespeare, whose "Tempest" — starring Canada Lee and Vera Zorina — is the current toast of Broadway.

Ottawa, Feb. 19 — Maj.-Gen. Arnprialle's New High Commissioner to here in a few weeks and move into the Wilfrord Street official residence becoming his country's first career diplomat to hold such a post.

He succeeds Sir William Glasgow, a non-civil servant responding to public service.

Canada also has recently made two important diplomatic appointments, both from the ranks of permanent diplomatic service staff. They are Leonard Couillard Pearson, ambassador at Washington, and Dr. R. Mexico City. Their predecessors were called to public service from private life.

Jeepers! In the capital the other day trying to thumb a service flight to Canada. Alfred Bentley, Canadian correspondent Gerry Clark of the Montreal Gazette.

He came home to find out what people want to know about so guide him in his coverage of news budget. He was surprised that most people had to second to need filling in on background such as explanations of what the Army Group —Field Marshal Montgomery's command, Canadian group of armies —is and he found a little bit more news on daily life in liberated areas. A lot of people are interested on the part of many persons to believe that some stories, pictorial proof was produced, and others just didn't want to be shocked by the stories.

He is one of the old army game of scrounging if necessary, Fleming and said the amazing jeep is looked upon as the last game in all creation. He told stories of Jeeps being "borrowed" away in ferries, repainted and renumbered and, of course, Jeeps being among drivers to chain their snub noses to the power poles and trees.

He had scrounging story was about an unhoused artillery troop which was ordered into a country hotel cation was going to move into some Canadian German, pre-fabricated quarters on a hill. Night, the gunners got a couple of jorries, drove down the barracks in sections, and installed the huts on their own unbelieved site where they were found in the morning. Artillery arrived next day to find no accommodation.

New York, Feb. 10 — (CP) — Drama Critic — even the chronic Gregorians — took time out during a brief respite from the critic coming duel to remark that the 1944-45 theatrical season already has achieved considerable distinction.

Standard of the general run of this year's plays and musicals is reasonably high, the still-frequent turkeys shad come along die with commendable speed for the most part, there are a few plays of genuine merit and several particularly outstanding performances now are on view.

Among the latter, on careful consideration, appears to be one piece of acting that places it ahead of the rest — top on the American theatrical all-time "Treats" list. That is the performance turned in by the veteran Tyrrell Day, who has turned to Broadway to star in "Harvey."

CANADIANS CAPTURE KLEVE

RUSSIANS LAUNCH NEW DRIVE IN S. GERMANY

Americans Clear Half of Major Road Junction of Pruem

Floods Loosed by Germans Immobilize Two U.S. Armies

By JAMES M'LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 12 (AP) — Kleve, northern anchor of the Siegfried Line, was captured today by the 1st Canadian army.

The city of 2,000 lies 12 miles west of Nijmegen, starting point of the Canadian and British offensive. Reduced to smoking junk by artillery and artillery poundings, it was the largest place yet captured in the five-day-old drive.

Some 115 miles south, the U.S. 3rd army won half of the major traffic centre of Pruem, which the Germans apparently were abandoning.

In between, Roer River floods created by German breaching of headwater dams kept the U.S. 1st and 3rd and he British 2nd armies immobile, the reservoirs behind the opened dams still were draining but the Roer, two miles wide at one place, did not appear to be rising further than the seven-foot stage already reached at some points.

Allied Bridge Enlarged

The Canadian, British and Scottish bulge was enlarged on both the north and south ends of the Kleve sector, and Allied lines encompassed more than three-fourths of the Reichs Forest. The Allies were beyond the main defences of the original Siegfried Line in the north.

The Canadians cleaned the low Rhine lands up to a railroad connecting Kleve with the river and forced the enemy back, leaving the mills north of Kleve to the Rhine.

At points south of Kleve, the Allies were within 22 miles of Wesel on the Rhine, nearest city of the great Ruhr industrial valley.

The Canadian Army by-passed or captured Udenhorn, Wassenberg, Wardhen and Brienen in its advance toward the Rhine.

In the centre of the front, the United States 4th Division cleared half of the major road junction of Pruem behind the widely-breached Siegfried Line. This road-rail traffic centre is eight miles inside Germany and 40 miles from the Rhine at Koblenz.

Between the focal points of battle, floods loosed by the German breaching of the Schwammenauel dam flood-immobilized the United States 9th and British 2nd armies. Water from the Roer, over which was a rampaging river two miles wide at one point, Wednesday set feet from the top of the dam and flooded the five-mile-long reservoir flooding the Roer Valley.

The British and Canadian troops of Gen. Crerar's command were in control of three fourths of the Reichswald thickets of fir trees, and crossed in force the Spoy canal linking Kleve (pop. 20,000) to the Rhine, four miles south.

The Netherlands border town of Gennep nine miles northeast of Kleve was captured and the Niers river to the east was crossed. Vanguards passed a road through the shell-splintered Reichswald a mile north of Kessel, which lies four miles northeast of the West Wall road centre of Goch and 20 miles west of Kleve. The prisoner bag since D-Day, most of them teenage youths or fifteen men.

Amphibious Operations

Fighting in the Rhine elbow between the medieval fortress ruins of Kleve and the river was described as almost an amphibious operation because of the extensive thaw and flooding of the sadly drowned German plain flatlands. A growing array of amphibious equipment including Buffaloes and ducks kept the offensive on the move within 22 miles of Wesel, northern gateway into the prized Ruhr industrial valley.

(The Germans said "the enemy is breaking through our Maas river defences near Kleve and that preparations were proceeding for an impending large scale offensive in the Aachen-Venlo area.")

Hopeful Many War Prisoners Gain Freedom

Moscow, Feb. 12. (AP) — Allied military missions in Moscow are hopeful that the current widescale operations of the Red Army may result in the release of numerous British, American, Canadian and French war prisoners.

Marshal Konev's latest break through in Silesia has brought him to within thirty miles of Sagan on the Bober River, believed by the American military mission in Moscow to be the last stie of Stalag Luft III.

Stalag Luft III near Dresden is the camp where fifty airmen, including six members of the R.C.A.F., were shot last summer after an escape attempt.

It is estimated that some 600 Canadians were held in prisoner of war camps in Eastern Germany and Poland. Most of them are believed to be in Stalag 344 at Stalag 8-B at Teschen, southeast of Krakow in Poland; at Stalag 3-D at Berlin and in Pomerania, and at Stalag 344 at Lamsdorf southeast of Breslau in Silesia.

Occupants of some of these camps are believed to have been moved westward by the retreating Germans.

Canadian Troops at Kleve Now Well Into Second Line Hun Defences

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Army in Germany, Feb. 12. (CP Cable)—Canadian Highland troops, fighting around Rindern, 2 1-2 miles northwest of Kleve, have run up against some of the stiffest opposition encountered by the Canadians since breaking out onto the Polder land to the east of Nijmegen.

In difficult fighting yesterday they killed thirty Germans and captured a number.

This fighting developed as British and Canadian troops of the command cleared the Germans from the Reichswald forest. Fighting flared last night in the southern half of the strongly-held Siegfried Line northern anchor.

Scottish troops on the army's right flank pushed on today for The Netherlands village of Genep, just east of the Maas river.

On the north, meanwhile, Canadians pushed on through flooded country to capture the village of Middelaar, three miles northeast of Kleve. They entered Rindern on the southeast, but because of floods not from the north. Other Ontario Highland troops pushed speedily against Difterwiek.

Although the pace of the army has been spectacular, the troops at Kleve are about seven miles beyond their starting line and are well into the area of the Hun defences. The prisoner bag is around 500.

The Germans began yesterday to show increasing signs of weakness and considerable movement from the east towards the battlefield was observed by airmen. The enemy defence system is one of depth, though, and progress must necessarily be slow.

During the weekend I visited some Canadian troops who had been hoeing their way over the flats between the Reichs Forest and the Rhine and Wall Rivers and it is very easy to understand why they had been dubbed "water rats" by their divisional commander.

Water is pouring from the Wall river through a gap in the bank of the dyke, blown some time ago by the Germans, and is 12 to 15 feet deep in some places and village-high. Isolated, with only the top storeys of houses

British soldiers, who worked with the 1st Canadian Army on the Scheldt Estuary island of Walcheren are back in Canada on the Scheldt during the campaign to open Antwerp to clear the estuary of Germans to permit unloading of the fleet of Antwerp, 40 miles up the Scheldt, as the western ocean approach to the port is cut.

We rode on one of these buffaloes as far as Zantpol, about 4 1/2 miles northwest of Kleve, and then walked along the dike to the village of Kerkedom, about a mile southeast of the Rhine River town of Millingen. This is the area of the new advance for troops of an eastern Ontario battalion which won an assault landing Thursday night to capture Zandpol. Then they cleared the Germans from dike defences between there and Kerkedom.

Zandpol was captured without a fight for the only seven Germans in the village were the battalion Lieutenant-Colonel, who comes from Ottawa, told them their fellow-Canadians had surrounded. This battalion sent a patrol forward as far as Kerkedom, which they also found it unoccupied, the soldiers of the battalion moved in.

The Canadians since then have been greatly bothered by enemy shelling and mortaring. A smoke screen which extends for several miles along the Waal and the Rhine hides them from snipers on the far bank. There have been some casualties from mines but the Germans laid them so hurriedly more than half of those lifted by the Canadian Zandpol and Kerkedom were not fused.

GREEK AGREEMENT SIGNED BY E.A.M. AND GOVERNMENT

Signing Is Expected To Bring Peace and Harmony to Troubled Country

Athens, Feb. 12 — (AP)—Negotiations between Premier Gen. N. Plastiras (National Liberation Front) leaders and the government of Premier Gen. Nikolaos Plastiras were successfully concluded today with the signing of an agreement expected to bring peace to this troubled land.

A brief announcement said the conferees, who have been trying to reconcile their differences for several weeks, finally reached agreement "on all points under discussion" at 4:30 a. m.

A formal session preceded the final signing of the accord, which was limited to a brief protocol because of the hour, the announcement said.

Protocol Announcement

The protocol specified that a detailed statement embodying all points of the agreement would be signed at 10 a.m. (8 a.m. E.W.T.).

It was presumed that a fuller announcement would be issued later concerning the terms of the agreement.

(A Reuters news agency dispatch said the terms included surrender of arms by the E.A.M.-controlled militia of the E.A.M. — to Greek forces under British supervision.

The dispatch said martial law would be terminated, but that certain restrictions on the right of assembly and the freedom of the press would be retained.

Present at the signing were Harold Macmillan, British resident minister in the Mediterranean, and Reginald Leeper, British Ambassador to Greece.

Sufficient Reinforcements Overseas to Meet Continuous Operations for Several Months

—McNaughton

Ottawa, Feb. 12 — (CP) — The Canadian Army now has sufficient reinforcements overseas to meet continuing operations over several months, Defence Minister McNaughton said today in a prepared statement.

"The Department of National Defence has received word of the safe arrival overseas of further reinforcement contingents and I can now state that we have behind our army in northwestern Europe adequate reinforcements to make the replacements anticipated to be required in the present operations," Gen. McNaughton said.

"We have substantial further reinforcements in the United Kingdom to meet continuing operations over the next several months. These will be augmented by the continuing dispatch of further members now in training in the training centres in Canada."

Unable to Elaborate

Defence headquarters said they were unable to elaborate on the reference to the latest arrival overseas. They said the troops were classed as "general reinforcements" and they could not say whether the troops were all general service or whether any were drawn from the home defence army.

Gen. McNaughton announced Jan. 20 that 8,300 home defence troops had gone to Britain. At the same time he said 6,300 draftees finished for overseas service had failed to report back to their units after embarkation leave.)

Of the action in which Canadian troops now are engaged Gen. McNaughton said:

"Canadian soldiers are now joined in an offensive which may well be the opening phase of one of the world's most critical and decisive battles. They will play their full part in the final defeat of Germany, secure in their knowledge of the full support of the people of Canada in their great undertaking."

Influence Course at History

At another point he said:

"The battle joined on German soil last week may influence the whole course of history for generations to come. While this battle lasts, the attention of all Canadians should be concentrated on the military tasks ahead. Any distractions from this single objective, however important they may seem to be, must be forgiven in the interests of the army of Canada and all we stand for and hope to stand for in the world."

The minister referred to "accusations made by a section of the press that I have used the power of military censorship to suppress news they would have liked to publish," and said recent amendment of citizens off the Nova Scotia coast was evidence of the necessity for observing security regulations.

He referred also to "careless statements made in this country by men who ought to know better than to bring discredit upon Canadian homes and comfort to the enemy, irresponsible assertions" and said that such accusations he had refrained from giving information because such reticence would have endangered troops.

SUPERFORTRESSES STRIKE IWO JIMA IN HEAVY RAID

Third Attack in As Many Days on Different Targets

Washington, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Superfortresses struck Iwo Jima in ever-increasing strength, struck Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands today for the third attack in as many days on different targets.

Hitting the enemy hard from Saipan, Guam and India, bases, the raiders also bombed the important Nakajima aircraft plant at Ota, Japan's fifth largest city northwest of Tokyo, and the Nippon Oil refinery at Kawagoon.

The big bombers of the 20th Bomber Command, India, had a field day blasting the Rangoon supply dumps yesterday, dealing a hard blow to the enemy's ability to make war in Burma. All Superfortresses returned to base safely.

The daylight raid today on Iwo Jima, carried out by the 21st Bombardment Command, Saipan, struck at the airfields of Iwo Jima's southern end. The second attack in as many days on different targets.

The 21st Bomber Command at Guam announced the raid on Ota (Saturday), where one of Japan's most important aircraft factories was struck with "excellent results."

This raid probably cost the American forces four B-29s. The command disclosed, while 7 Japanese interceptors were destroyed, 19 planes probably destroyed and 12 damaged.

Two Superfortresses collided over the target and exploded. Two other bombers possibly were lost to enemy fire.

This was the first attack on the Nakajima plant, oldest privately owned aircraft company of Japan.

A United States Pacific Fleet headquarters announcements said army heavy bombers raided Haha Jima in the Bonin Islands Saturday.

JAP DEFENDERS ARE TRAPPED IN NARROW TRIANGLE

American Troops and Armor Aided by Dive Bombers Four in for Kill

Manila, Feb. 12 — (AP)—Manila's blistery-resisting Japanese defenders were trapped in a narrowing triangle between Manila Bay and the winding Pasig river today as infantry, armor and dive bombing troops and armor poured in for the kill, blasting artillery and marine divebombers.

First Cavalry Division columns thrust within a mile of the entrance to the east yesterday after fording the Pasig river, and Filipino guerrillas reported they swept over the Nelson airstrip through the Santa Ana district southeast of the flame-blackened business district, fashioning a firm grip on the entrenched enemy defence garrison in the ninth day of the bloody battle for the capital.

The 37th Infantry Division, meanwhile, fought through to the capital Ermita district, along the south Manila Bay shore in the face of withering fire from Japanese heavy machine guns mounted on or behind 10-foot-thick concrete and old intramuros (walled city) immediately north.

Rake Enemy Positions

American artillery shells and rockets raked the enemy positions.

Meanwhile, the Filipino forces were battling around Nichols Field, at the southern outskirts, and sent units southward within a mile of the American Polo Club.

Seventy-five Marine dive bombers are added their weight to the artillery.

Sheets of flame spread over Corregidor, historic fortress at the entrance to Manila Bay, Saturday night, indicating American bombs might have set off an ammunitions dump.

The Americans now are astride all of Luzon's main highways north of Manila on a long running southeastward from Lingayen Gulf.

AERIAL ATTACKS DESTROY QUANTITY ENEMY EQUIPMENT

Nazi Effort to Move Troops to Bolster Lines Wrecked by Intrepid Airmen

London, Feb. 12 — (CP) — A German effort to move men and material to bolster their lines sagging under Field Marshal Montgomery's offensive in the Kleve was wrecked yesterday by R.A.F. and American planes braving hazardous flying weather. Aerial attacks destroyed more than 1,300 pieces of enemy equipment.

The Germans trusted to a low cloud cover to aid them in a mass road movement but Allied fighters and fighter-bombers operated in three-plane formations broke through the overcast and, broke up the reinforcement attempt.

Most of the action was in a triangle north and east of the Ruhr.

The minister referred to "accusations made by a section of the press that I have used the power of military censorship to suppress news they would have liked to publish," and said recent amendment of citizens off the Nova Scotia coast was evidence of the necessity for observing security regulations.

He referred also to "careless statements made in this country by men who ought to know better than to bring discredit upon Canadian homes and comfort to the enemy, irresponsible assertions" and said that such accusations he had refrained from giving information because such reticence would have endangered troops.

Konev's Tanks Break Into Bunzlau Says Nazi Report

Troops Encircle Breslau Except for 15-Mile Gap

London, Feb. 12 — (CP) — Marshal Ivan Konev, virtually encircling Breslau in Silesia and racing ahead 15 to 27 miles a day, has forced a bridgehead across the Bober River 70 miles due west from Dresden, German broadcasts said today.

The Germans said Konev's tanks had broken into Bunzlau on the Bober, while to the north they had smashed through German defences some 12 miles north of Sagan. "The point is 40-km. 90 miles southeast of Berlin and only 30 miles south of Marshal Gregory Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army which the Germans said had crossed the Oder south of Frankfurt.

Zhukov the Germans said, had made a start to within 15 miles of Berlin, Berlin's Radio put it. The Germans said Zhukov's right wing had penetrated to both sides of Madue See, a lake north of Fyritz, where they were menacing the rear of Stargard, a stronghold of Berlin's eastern defences.

Breslau Besieged

The break-through at Sagan meaned the rail centre of Sorau eight miles to the northwest and indicated that Konev's 1st Ukrainian columns had overcome the fear of German forces dug in on the Oder's left flank between Frankfurt and Berlin.

Sagan is 27 miles west of the furthest point which Moscow has reported as reached.

The break-through there threatened to roll up the southern flank of Berlin's defences within the wedge pointed at Stettin threatening the northern flank.

The drive to Bunzlau took the 1st Ukrainian Army three-fourths the way across Silesia, leaving within 32 miles of Czechoslovakia.

Breslau's only communications were out of the southwest, toward Czechoslovakia.

On the Berlin front, Moscow dispatches said some of the most recent units added to the battle were over new communications systems from bridge-equipped rivers with a clear indication that Marshal Gregory Zhukov might be ready almost any time to open the battle of Berlin.

The big kingpins of Berlin's defence along the Oder, Kustrin and Frankfurt, were beginning to fall away under incessant day and night artillery pounding, Moscow said.

The fire from the Kustrin area this was diminishing, while Soviet units pressed closer to the Frankfurt area supplying Kustrin. The Germans said the Russians had crossed the Oder to the southeast.

The Germans said the Russians had broken into the Frankfurt defences.

Southeast of Breslau, the German communique reported a strong Soviet attack had been beaten back between Bielsko in Polish Silesia and Zywiec in Austrian Silesia to the west on the Moravian gateway to Vienna and Prague.

Enemy Lifelines Stretched Taut

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Marshal Ivan O. Konev's drive northwest of Breslau grew fresh German divisions from other sectors for the defence of Saxony today and threatened the enemy's lifelines between Berlin and Munich.

The Germans said Russian tanks and mobile infantry were trying to cross a waterway between the Oder River and Saxony—which, if true, might be the Bober river west of Sagan—and Marshal Georgi Zhukov's High Command made no admission of such operations.

Dispatches said, however, that Red Army units were pressing on from the Elsterg toward Dessau on the Route 18 miles to the west and the main Saxony-Silesia highway.

German troops from Saxony and Italy were in the latest groups of reinforcements taken as the Germans sought to stem Konev's massive drive.

The German High Command this morning was trying to plug gaps in the Oder army front, now more than 500 miles long, and the effort was straining their reserves to the limit.

Konev early today had expanded the width of his bridgehead to break through to more than 100 miles and gone westward to a depth of 30 miles.

His drive across the main railway from Berlin and the big auto highway to Dresden have cut off Silesia from the rest of Germany. Red army dominion of the entire Silesian area is a fact.

said Moscow dispatches.

The fall of Deutsch Krone, 43 miles from the Baltic, virtually settled the fate of the German garrison in the railroad town of Schneidemuhl, 24 miles to the southeast.

The Germans said the Russians had broken into the Schneidemuhl defences.

Southeast of Breslau, the German communique reported a strong Soviet attack had been beaten back between Bielsko in Polish Silesia and Zywiec in Austrian Silesia to the west on the Moravian gateway to Vienna and Prague.

'We Will Make Rhine French Stream', De Gaulle and Giraud Reconciled

(By JOSEPH DYNAN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Metz, France, Feb. 12. (AP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle dramatically completed reconciliation with Gen. Henri Giraud over the weekend by parading side-by-side with his erstwhile political rival in Metz this morning a two-day trip through recaptured Alsace-Lorraine.

Garbed in battle dress, De Gaulle's route endured chilling rains to greet with wild ovations the provisional government chief who reiterated France's determination to extend her authority to the west bank of the Rhine.

Gen. Giraud, pre-war military governor of Metz, made the trip to Metz from his home in Dijon to welcome De Gaulle.

"We will make the Rhine a French stream from one end to the other", Gen. de Gaulle told the Metz townspeople, "and this will symbolize the obligation of victory — a durable one this time—and of refound 'grandeur'."

Appearing alluding to his reference from the "Big Three" Conference, Gen. de Gaulle said at a reception that it was a "great honor that is being prepared for us" but that "there is no peace—obviously preferable to war.

He had been walking along the Bay Bridge Road when the wind blew his hat off and he dashed to the bay in an effort to retrieve it.

As he plunged into the icy water, he had just enough presence of mind to hold on a large stone, and succeeded in extricating himself from his predicament. He stated afterwards that the water was over his head, and only by dint of hard work was he able to save himself. He eventually reached the road, and regained home before his clothing froze. A number of motorists passed him without an offer of assistance, he said. A Mr. Redward, assisted him in removing his wet clothing and he was put to bed. TRUCK CUT IN TWO BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Harry Burkett, Frankford transport driver, narrowly escaped death within a large Roberts Transport that he was driving stalled on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, two miles west of Belleville early Monday morning and was later cut in two when struck by a C.P.R. freight train.

With Driver No. 2 in an icy condition and heavy icy ruts in the surface of the road, the driver of the Transport's transport stalled as it rolled upon the tracks. Mr. Burkett tried in vain to get the heavy tractor-trailer off the C.P.R. crossing before the C.P.R. freight train approaching from the east struck the transport in the middle, cutting it completely in half. In the meantime Mr. Burkett had gone to procure assistance to remove the stranded heavy truck. Traffic Officer Harry Callender investigated the accident. It took several hours to clear away the wreckage.

WOLVES DRIVEN TO LOWER LEVELS

Inability to secure food, due to heavy snow in their native woods, is driving wolves by the lower levels of the county in increasing numbers.

Recently Harry Doughty, of Madoc Township, set a trap for a fox but instead caught a timber wolf. Arnold Empey, a neighbor, caught another on Monday and both were destroyed. Both animals were of large size, measuring over five feet of the Empey barns. Other wolves have been seen prowling the open fields in the district.

INCOME TAX FORMS TO BE FILED APRIL 30

Although the final date for filing is still more than two months away the making out of income tax returns for 1944 is already beginning to gain the attention of many people, notwithstanding the fact that the special forms will not be made out prior to April 30th.

And incidentally radio announcers and The Canadian Press wire service had a slight error last week regarding the date for filing these forms. It was wrongly indicated the final date for same was March 31st but income tax officials in Belleville state that should have been 30th instead. It is still April 30th.

The reason which may be had at the local income tax office is that owing to the change in the exemptions and the same as were filled out one year ago, it includes the charge tables for easy computation of tax and the actual taxable income is determined.

Investigated and it was deemed no charges necessary as the matter was amicably settled.

Peterborough police reported the theft of a 1939 model Ford sedan bearing 1944 Ontario license number 21-6618 over the week-end.

ASSEMBLY

GUEST SPEAKER:

As the special speaker in our Naval Week program, Dr. Cronk delivered a very interesting address to the student body. He explained the fact that education was a prime factor in our public health system.

LEATHER PUSHERS:

An original feature of our assembly was the presentation of two exciting boxing bouts under the supervision of Mr. Townsend. The first of these was between "Sunny" Jim Hall and Jack Morgan and although no knockdowns were scored, plenty of action was provided. The second bout saw Ronnie Wood trade punches with Scott Dennon. In the closing seconds of this encounter, Legate, momentarily caught off balance, bowed to his opponent, who bounced back to register some telling blows in the region of—finally right eye. The referee's main observation was that everyone got punished around except Mr. Townsend.

MUSCLE TWISTERS INC.

Those two wrestling rascals of the year, Bill Ackerson and Harry Abbott took the stage in the assembly in their hilarious interpretation of a wrestling match. Referee Mr. Cecil Anderson as the third man finally succeeded in separating at each other with a roll and crocodile tears for the wife until some sort of a conclusion was reached.

ONE LONG! TWO SHORT:

Under the direction of Miss Morton, the girls of XII and XIII English presented a very entertaining and truant in troupers, presented a humorous interpretation of the walk. The ease and precision with which the girls executed this dance was a credit both to themselves and their instructress.

DEMONSTRATION OF CONDENSATION:

An exhibition of skill on the parallel bars was given by Grant Hutton and George Carrow. The boys performed a number of clever manoeuvres in such a way as to thoroughly bewilder the audience. Very fine display of skill.

SPORTS AND MUSIC ON THE SCREEN:

Two movies were shown to the assembled students, the first being demonstration of the correct methods of high-jumping, pole vaulting, broad-jumping etc. This movie was produced by sports experts particularly appreciated by the audience. Mr. Gay, of Grade IX, was the second film and the beautiful scenery and this great composer was the highlight of the movie. Beethoven's works were woven into the story in a very effective manner.

HIGHER AND HIGHER:

The stage was wet with honest sweat as the pyramid builders plied their trade under the direction of Mr. Townsend. The combined teamwork of these boys was well demonstrated as human flesh and curtains pulled after the spectacular stunt "pyramids" the applause rang tumultuously.

BOYS' SPORTS

BASKETBALL:

FLASH—B.C.I. Defeats Trenton.

Last Tuesday after 4:30 p. m. our fleet-footed basketball team covered a willing but inexperienced Trenton cage team to the tune of 56-18. Showing too much cage skill general finish around the basket proved a disappointing little difficulty in racking up their second victories with a score of 56-18. Our skill stands in first place in the Bay Shore C.O.S.S.A. as a result of this win. Tomorrow we journey over to Stirling to take on their Secondary school team while on Wednesday our Junior boys travel to Picton College to play a return game from that not too well chosen opponents. You still have time to subscribe over its same old French and Math. etc. that you forget to learn or by some queer circumstance you missed last year.

CARD OF THANKS

To our many friends of Zion Hill and District, we wish to extend our sincere thanks for the many expressions of sympathy and kindness and lovely gift which we received on our departure from your neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Sims.

Your shell you're promptly forced to climb back for reasons not necessary to record now.

The tables seem to have turned and you find yourself making life as unpleasant as possible for your companions, the poor little ninth formers.

This year instead of being pushed in the corridor wall at ten dances, you find that you are actually glad to dance by some of those creatures. Instead of being made to grade nine, if grade ten hops all the way to grade ten, you have three more years to go.

LETTERS TO SYLVESTER

Dear Sylvester:

My problem is great. I am having trouble with my hands. They are continually getting better what I do about them? Can't help myself with my hands. My friends are even talking about it. What should I do?

Signed: Sadsack.

Dear Sadsack:

I have considered your problem and have my advice. When you are receiving your report card keep your eyes on the dealer. He sometimes forgets to put a test over on the dock. This can spoil a hand quickly. If you can slip an ace or two up your sleeve during the game, I think you will find a great improvement in your hands.

Signed: Sylvester.

R.A. Pringle Elected Chairman Of Industrial Commission And Program for Year Discussed

Attractive Industrial Folder for City Will be Issued; Steps for Securing Municipal Airport Talked Over

The annual meeting of the Belleville Industrial Commission was held at the Chamber of Commerce on Friday night.

The election of officers resulted in the re-appointment of R. A. Pringle as chairman and of Ald. Lorne McDougall, chairman of industries in the city council, as vice-chairman.

In addition to those mentioned, the following members of the commission were present, His Worship Mayor Follwell, Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of Belleville Public Utilities, Mr. J. J. Tresidder, president of the Belleville Board of Trade, Secretary, Mr. J. B. Boyce, Ald. Harold Woodley and Mr. J. O. Herity industrial commissioner.

The principal business discussed was the program for the coming year.

It was informally decided to take active steps to provide Belleville with a new pictorial folder of the quite attractive character.

Other matters considered were the necessity for an industrial survey, what practical steps should be taken to secure it, and further prosecution of industrial efforts.

The secretary presented a comprehensive report of the commission's activities the past year and a report to the city was made by commissioner for the city. The report follows:

Annual Report.

Belleville continues to make notable progress in every phase of business. In many important respects, the year 1940 was one of steady advancement; in manufacturing, in retail business, in new building and in general civic promotion. The population has grown, new industries have been acquired, scores of homes have been erected and public works of permanent character have been undertaken and completed. All of these various phases of civic life give ample indication that Belleville is not only becoming a larger city but is also getting to be infinitely more desirable as a place of residence and a location for business.

In the year 1940, Belleville secured the location here of four new industries and opened promising negotiations for a number of others. Three of our largest industries are formulating plans which will mean greatly increased factory space, jobs for hundreds more of workers and enormously increased output.

44 Industries in City.

The Swift Canadian Company has acquired a large acreage at the corner of College and Coleman streets where there will be located an enormous chicken-rearing establishment. An all year business will be carried on here by way of growing chickens to the profitable stage when they will be sold to the select trade in Toronto and elsewhere. It is expected that construction of the new buildings and offices will commence as soon as it is practical to do so this coming spring.

Erect Extensive Building.

George Weston Bread & Cakes Limited of Toronto, large manufacturers of bread and cakes, and also largest users of flour in the British Empire, have purchased a well located site at the junction of Wellington and Parker streets where they have erected an extensive building to be used as a distribution centre for their products all over the City of Quinte district. There will be a fleet of trucks, cars and horse-drawn vehicles used which find accommodation here. The main building is now almost completed and will be ready for occupation in a very short time. The company expects to give employment to twenty or twenty-five hands. It is also anticipated that a factory unit will be established here in the not distant future so that the Belleville area may be served more promptly and effectively. The company is ultra-modern and progressive in its policies. It is not many years since the company decided to establish in Great Britain. Their success with this modest way and now they have 78 bread and cake manufacturing establishments, making this the largest unit of its kind in Great Britain, or Ireland.

To Manufacture Stokers.

Arrangements have been completed by which the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company of Canada Limited will undertake the manufacture here of the well known Taylor Multiple Retort Underfeed Stokers, which are produced in the United States by the American Engineering Company of Philadelphia. This will of course mean an augmented staff of workmen at the Stephens-Adamson plant and another line of production which will be in reality an additional industry for Belleville.

William Hamilton Limited of Toronto, manufacturers of biscuits, tea-cream, chocolates and confectionery, have purchased a large site at the intersection of Burton and Wellington streets. Here they plan to erect a distributing warehouse and office to serve Belleville and the Bay of Quinte area.

Equally advantageous to a city is the expansion of existing industries when compared with the acquirement of those that are new to that particular locality.

Three of Belleville's most important manufacturing corporations have been seriously considering the problem of post-war expansion. It seems probable that all three will undertake extension programs which will mean at least one hundred per cent increase in output in all three cases. One of the industries has extended its plans to the accumulation of blueprints for the factory enlargements have been prepared and these designs are carried through to the point of readiness for many hundreds of additional workmen.

Remarkable Expansion.

Statistics of manufacturers taken during the course of 1941 have not been published. The figures show remarkable expansion for Belleville not only during the decade just ended but more impressive still if we go back to 1921 or 1911.

Belleville is now credited with 44 industries with a total capital investment of $11,851,650. There are 2,500 factory hands to whom $46,343 was paid during the preceding year in wages. The cost of the raw materials and fuels during the year was $3,839,183, and the value of the year's output reached the magnificent total of $10,097,991.

Year by year all of these figures are for the year 1941. Since then enormous activity has unquestionably taken place. It would probably be well below the mark to estimate the increase in industries of Belleville now represent at least $3,000,000 more than the $15,000,000, that they give employment to upwards of 2,500 hands and that the annual payroll now represents a total of over $2,000,000. The $10,097,991.000 and that the gross output would be considerably more.

Competent economic authorities assert that an industry is worth the equivalent of the payroll as a permanent asset to any town or city.

MOVING INTO THE LAST LAP—1945

Pay No Bonuses.

In other words if Belleville paid out $4,000,000 to acquire industries and this $4,000,000 in wages payroll and $4,000,000 it would be a good business. But as a matter of fact Belleville has got its industries for a dollar by way of bonus or special inducement. All of the staff of these splendid industries have come to us without money and without price. The only outlay involved has been the comparatively trifling expense involved in making the office of industrial commissioner.

That four-million-dollar payroll is practically all spent right here with Belleville merchants, professional men, serving industries and also in the payment of taxes. Its importance to the community as a continuous business builder cannot well be overrated.

44 Industries in City.

The presence of those 44 industries in Belleville provides the directors of livelihood for upwards of 2,000 office workers, mechanics and factory employees. The expenditure of $4,000,000 for salaries and wages is the further expenditure of well over four million dollars for raw materials and still another outlay of upwards of half a million dollars for electricity and fuel, and additional disbursements of large amounts to municipal corporations such as gas, wages, and large contributions to the civil treasury in the form of taxes, constitute an aggregate enhancement of the public and economic welfare of our city that is beyond computation.

When you come to analyze and estimate the effect of those huge expenditures year after year there will realize something of the importance of having these manufacturing industries have and will continue to make Belleville and upon its future progress.

All Will Profit.

Every home does and will profit. Every piece of real estate will advance to higher values. Every line of mercantile business and trade will increase its sales. Every professional man will have the opportunity to augment his income.

A quarter of a century ago Belleville had a few languishing industries which were not quite sure where they were going. Today our industries are, in the main, partners in vast corporations. Five of them are subsidiaries of the largest manufacturing organizations in Canada and in the whole world. Those that are locally financed are operated by forward-looking men of ability who have built solid foundation of solid rock. Our future is assured.

Make Extended Tour

During the fall of 1944, the industrial commissioner made an extended tour of the industrial centres of South-Western States. This was the first time that he had visited the States in two and a half years. War conditions, after the American government itself entered the war, had made it extremely difficult to arouse any interest among manufacturers in looking towards expansion in the Canadian field of industrial activity. They were occupy their attention at home in developing the huge contracts without making further commitments elsewhere.

The favorable trend in the course of the war in the late summer occasioned strong hopes of peace that would come to a speedy termination. That optimistic spirit reawakened interest in peacetime industry and the possibility of maintaining something of the wartime volume of production.

About this same time Rotary International honored the industrial commissioner by appointing him to be appointed by all the clubs of Canada on an international committee. Arrangements were made to hold the first meeting of the Committee at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, Mr. Hurst-Ass. being a prominent and transcontinental journey had to be abandoned on this Rotary mission, it was thought expedient and advisable to complete the trip to the Pacific coast and to return by the southern route. This design was carried out and with the promise of very happy results.

Popular Error

It is a popular error upon the part of those unfamiliar with the industrial West and the Pacific Coast states to suppose that those areas are almost completely devoted to agriculture, the rearing of live stock, ranching and fruit production.

While those interests are tremendously important it is also shockingly true that along with those developments there has gone an almost equally important growth of manufacturing industries which rival in number and magnitude those of the New England states or Ontario, Canada. For instance, San Francisco and Los Angeles are more heavily industrialized than are Toronto or Montreal. And the industries are sometimes of greater magnitude than anything we have in Canada. Several of them are by far the greatest of their kind on earth.

It is interesting to note that three industries now located in Belleville also have important branches at Los Angeles, California. These are the Stephens-Adamson Company, Inc. of Clark, Incorporated, and Swift and Company.

During his tour in September and October the industrial commissioner called upon manufacturing corporations in Chicago, Ill., Racine, Wis., Milwaukee, Wis., St. Louis, Mo., Kansas City, Mo., Denver, Colo., Salt Lake City, Utah, San Francisco, Cal., Oakland, Cal., Los Angeles, Cal., Houston, Texas, Dallas, Texas and Memphis, Tenn.
